A number of petitions were received and acted upon as follows: From the fire commissioners asking that a tree in front of the Greeneville fire station be cut down, referred to public works committee and tree warden with power; from residents around the Lake street playground, referred to recreation committee; from Charles M. Gordon requesting a light in front of his house near 259 West Main street, where other houses may soon be constructed; from William H. Murphy of 206 Broadway requesting that five trees in front of his residence be trimmed, referred to public works committee and tree warden with power; from Henry F. Ulmer and others, for street light in front of 269 Broadway, referred to police committee with power; from residents on Roath street for the fixing of grades and widths for sidewalks on the west side of Roath street from North Main street to Boswell avenue, referred to public works committee.

For High Street Macadam.

Max Stamm and others petitioned for a macadam road on High street from West Main street to Spring street, to complete the macadamized section which runs from Spring street, through Mechanic street to West Main. They claimed that this small stretch of macadam road would complete the circuit and many automobiles could use this route in coming from the west side, thus decreasing traffic on West Main street at the narrow section between High and Forest streets. The petition was referred to the public works committee.

Petition was received for establishment of grades and width of sidewalks on Rockwell street and this was referred to the public works committee.

White Way Extension.

Every merchant on Franklin street petitioned the council for the extension of the white way system from Franklin square to Boswell avenue. The petition was referred to the police committee to confer with the gas and electric commission.

A petition for a light on Rockwell street was referred to the police committee.

The reports were then taken up as follows: Board of water commissioners, reporting election of F. H. Quinley as president with compensation of $500 a year, report accepted; monthly reports of street commissioner, city treasurer and quarterly reports of water department, fire marshal and chief of police, accepted.

City Bonds Burned.

Mayor Milo R. Waters and City Treasurer Charles S. Avery reported the following city bonds burned on June 15th: City water works, due January 1, 1923, $150,000; City of Norwich sinking bonds, due April 1, 1908, $150,000; 1923 water funding bonds, due September 1, 1924, $5,000; bonds for enlargement of G. & E. plant due May 16, 1921, three series, total $256,000; City of Norwich floating debt, due June 1, 1925, $166,000; water funding bonds due January 1, 1910, $50,000; water funding bonds due January 1, 1898, $150,000. The report was accepted.

Annual Reports.

The annual report of the water department was accepted and ordered printed in the appendix of the council journal and usual number of copies printed. The annual report of the city health officer was accepted and ordered printed in the appendix of the journal. The annual report of the Gas & Electrical department was accepted and took the same course, with 500 copies to be printed. The annual report of the auditors was accepted and ordered printed in the appendix of the journal and 550 copies printed. The report showed 223 alarms last year with fire losses of but $37,535.64 compared with 187 fires and a loss of $53,473.25 in the year previous.

Total risk on buildings and contents during the year was $3,207,834.49 and insurance on buildings and contents amounted to $2,024,350.00, the loss by fire being very small in comparison to amount risked.

The greatest loss reported was the Pasnik fire, $14,627.61 being the loss during that month, while the second largest month was that when the Self Service Grocery store caught fire, the loss being $7,259.79. September was the smallest month, the loss being but $50.

The report of the police committee that two bug lights had been installed on of 658 North Main street was accepted. Resolutions that Eleanor G. Rinella be refunded $22.75, taxes paid which were exempt under soldier exemption and that taxes of $135.18 paid by Oliver L. Johnson, through error, be refunded, were adopted by the council.

The usual bills were read and voted paid as follows: Finance department, $9,160.65; cemeteries, $1,575.87; fire, $6,348.29; recreation, $151.77; park, $527.00; public works, permanent street improvement, $519.11; public works, regular bills, $26,283.15; water, $11,811.06; Stony Brook, $387.63; gas and electrical, $55,880.00; police, $5,313.41; street lighting, $4,347.74.

FINED ON THREE COUNTS HE GOES TO JAIL

Ellis Eckstrom, 32, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was before the city court Monday morning charged with intoxication, resisting an officer and indecent exposure. He drew fines and costs totalling $48.18 and went to jail when the funds were lacking to pay the bill. Eckstrom went to jail minus his shoes, hat and coat and wearing clothing loaned him by friends as his clothing is aboard the dredger which was working in the Thames river last week, but has left the river temporarily.

Dennis Coughlin, 49, who stole the American flag from the Odd Fellows building and placed it on top of the gas and electric plant, was presented on a charge of stealing an American flag. He asked to change the charge to intoxication and the court granted his request after deliberation. A fine of $10 and costs was paid by Coughlin.

Edward Jackson, 22, of Versailles, was fined $25 for not having an operator's license issued to him and an additional $25 for not having a registration issued to him, costs bringing the total to over $60. Daniel Flannery, of North Walpole, N. H., on the same offense had a nolle entered.

John J. Vassett, of Valley Falls, R. I., had his case continued until July 11. He was charged with driving a car with a Connecticut registration with a Rhode Island operator's license, contrary to law. While coming around a corner at 12th street Saturday afternoon, he operated his car in such a manner as to cause Ernest Heber to hit a pole with his machine. Vassett was driving the automobile belonging to his brother-in-law, Henry F. Bamber, of 209 Rockwell street.

Several people charged with intoxication and minor violations paid fines and costs for the failure to obey the law.

WEDDINGS

Byrnes-McDonald

Miss Marguerite Eileen McDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. McDonald of 14 Center street, New London and James Byrnes of Pomfret were married Friday evening at Pomfret, Rev. Father George J. Donohue of that place performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by Miss Gabrielle Guloine of Pomfret and the best man was Michael Hanley, also of Pomfret.

Mrs. Byrnes graduated in the class of 1931 from Williams Memorial Institute, New London. She attended several sessions of the Yale summer school. She taught for two years in the Collins school in Montville and then went to the Pomfret grammar school, where she taught until last week.

CLAIMS SEA SLED DID NOT MEET WARRANTY

Suit against The Sea Sled Co., Ltd., of West Mystic has been brought in the superior court for $10,000 damages on a claim that a sea sled bought for $8,500 by the American Agricultural Chemical Co. of New London did not live up to the warranty made when it was bought.

The plaintiff company wanted the sea plane to use in carrying passengers from Tampa to Boca Grande, Florida, in connection with real estate development, its maximum capacity to be 20 passengers. It was warranted for 40 statute miles per hour and 1700 r. p. m. The plaintiff contracted and paid for the sea plane on Oct. 25, 1924 and it was delivered at Tampa in December, freight and unloading charges being $614.27.

The claim is made that engine trouble developed, that the sea sled failed to make the warranted speed and only showed 1200 r. p. m. It was out of commission practically all the time between December, 1924 and March, 1925 while attempts were being made to remedy the engine trouble, but in March the plaintiff made demand for return of the money that had been paid and asked that the sea sled company, designate some place where the sled could be delivered at the time the money was returned. All this, it is claimed, the sea sled company has refused to do.

The writ in the suit was filed here Monday with the clerk of the superior court.

MACHINES IN COLLISION AT PRESTON CITY

Monday afternoon at Preston City, automobiles driven by Leo Barr of Montville, and John Petrosky, of Uncasville, were in collision when Barr passed the other machine from the rear. Barr was driving the machine belonging to John Levine, of R. F. D. No. 5. This had its right front mudguard and wishbone damaged. Petrosky's machine had its left front wheel broken and left forward mudguard damaged.

MONTGOMERY CHAPEL AT CAMP HAZEN DEDICATED

In loving memory of Robert Eldridge Montgomery, of Norwich, who was drowned about two years ago near Crescent Beach, a beautiful out door chapel, the gift of his parents was dedicated on Sunday, July 5th, at the state Y. M. C. A. boys' camp, near Chester. The service was held at 11 a. m., standard time, and was very impressive from beginning to end. Edward W. Hazen, the donor of the camp and the chairman of the state Y. M. C. A. committee, was scheduled to preside, but owing to his inability to be present, James L. Case, of Norwich, a member of the Y. M. C. A. national council, was called upon, and he presided in his usual pleasing manner. The program was opened by the singing of the hymn, "Jesus calls us, o'er the tumult," following which General Secretary Edwin Hill, of the Norwich association, read the scripture, the 96th Psalm, and offered the prayer, of dedication. This was followed by a statement of presentation written by Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery, and read by Camp Superintendent F. A. Stanley, who also in well chosen words accepted, in behalf of the camp, the gift of the beautiful chapel. The formal dedication was read in unison by the large congregation of boys in camp and many visitors.

REV. H. J. WYCKOFF
Delivered Dedicatory Sermon

The hymn, "Sweet Lord Jesus," was then sung, after which Rev. H. J. Wyckoff, of South Fairlee, Vt., formerly pastor of the Second Congregational church of this city, delivered the dedicatory sermon which was very impressive. Among other things Mr. Wyckoff said: "The formal dedication completed, in what our hearts have planned and our hands wrought, there remains only for us to grasp its meaning. We have here the four natural physical essentials of worship; first, the water for cleansing; second, the hill top for prayer; third, the open sky for aspiration, and fourth, the trees for friendly reminders. The water may be used for washing, suggestive of the inward cleansing of the Spirit; the water also suggests the carrying power of the Infinite; you recall that on one occasion, Peter was sinking and the Master bade him have faith and he was saved. The water is friendly, and by the way of it Robert went home to the larger life. This beautiful spot on the hill top, is a place now made sacred, by God himself; it is a place where we may come apart from the daily routine of the camp life and commune with the Master. You will remember that Jesus often went up into the mountain to pray, and thus He was strengthened for service, and so we may come for inspiration; this spot should ever be a sacred place for all who attend this camp. The open sky suggests aspiration, and as we may look at the beautiful colorings in the west at eventide, our hearts may go on and out yonder to the home of the soul. Then here are the trees, which I like to think of as kind friends, for they teach us many lessons; they seem to speak to us if we will but listen and think of what they mean. You will notice that trees as a rule are straight and they shoot it into the air and the sunlight; surely Robert was like unto a tree; he was straight and true in all of his relationships; not only was he straight as we knew him, but as he lived his life in the home, he manifested the same characteristics, and what a boy is in the home, that he really is indeed. I remember Robert's smile as he sat in the church in Norwich when I was pastor there; his attractive smile was one of the biggest inspirations I had as I tried to proclaim the message Sunday by Sunday. While we have gathered to dedicate this chapel, in familiar words, let me say, 'we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground;' it is rather for us to be dedicated.' This means that, understanding the meaning of this physical setting, we are here to 'listen in,' and to be responsive to God's messages, and to carry out the instructions received.

The interesting and impressive service was brought to a close, by the singing of the hymn, "For the beauty of the earth," after which Mr. Wyckoff pronounced the benediction.

HEADMASTER TAFT GIVES LIQUOR QUESTION VIEWS

Horace D. Taft, headmaster of the [illegible] school at Watertown, this state, asked and answered the questions as to what is the way out when he spoke upon the subject of "Our Duty to The Liquor Law" at the special patriotic service Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church.

There are but two ways out, in his opinion, said Mr. Taft, who is a brother to Chief Justice Taft. The first is for each citizen to say: "I will do my duty, obey the law and help enforce it." The second is to say: "We will let the country go to the dogs."

In the absence of the pastor, Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt, the service was in charge of Judge Allyn L. Brown, who presided. It opened with an organ recital of appropriate patriotic selections which were rendered with fine expression by Miss Louise Fuller. Her selections were Scherzo Symphonique (Freysinger), The March of the Nations (Novello) and Andantino (Lemare). The anthem by the church quartette was The American Hymn, which was sung with admirable effect.

After prayer by Rev. C. H. Ricketts, of the Greensville Congregational church, Headmaster Taft was pleasantly introduced by Gen. William A. Aiken, who referred to the distinguished speaker as a dear friend of many years, who has been a patriotic, conscientious, devoted citizen of the United States all his days, and has founded a school that stands today recognized as one of the best for the training of young men.

Beginning his address upon "Our Duty to The Liquor Law," Mr. Taft said we have been under the prohibition law and the Volstead act for five years now and the question is where have we arrived. Is the first place enormous good has come out of the liquor law in the last five years. Industrial leaders have stated that it is taken only from the economic standpoint prohibition has justified itself. Waterbury is a wet city but a principal in one of the schools says that any one with half and eye can see the improvement in the condition of the children of the poor since prohibition.

But we know too that an enormous amount of evil has come with it. Over the border and along the coast line enormous quantities of liquor have been poured in and in addition to that have been the synthetic drink that has been manufactured and the poison stuff that has been sold. But worse than the liquor itself has been the corruption that has reached the police force, the detective force, to the prosecuting attorneys and in some cases even to the bench. We know that our legislators have been corrupted by the liquor influence, said Mr. Taft. You can't dig into this wet part of the country without finding it out. And beyond this we see a generation of young people growing up, seeing their elders flout the law and themselves learning to break it.

It is no exaggeration to say that the situation is dreadful and that this is the most important question before the American people. If that is true, it is the duty of every citizen to think, and to think hard, to find the way out and to follow it at any cost.

I wasn't a prohibitionist, said Mr. Taft, and I don't think that was the wise way to settle it, but the man who says now that the thing to do is to repeal the amendment can't think straight about this. In the first place you can't repeal the amendment because two-thirds of one house voted for it, two-thirds of the other house and three-fourths of the state voted for it. The people of the United States have spoken and the states are drier than they were before. They won't repeal it. If it can't be repealed, what's the use of talking about the beautiful way they manage it in Canada?

In the second place they say: let us modify the Volstead act so as to give us beer and light wines. But the people of the United States won't let us. If we should let in beer and light wines the result would be that we would have just as much rottenness as we have today because of hard liquor and the beer and the light wine would inevitably become stronger. The situation would be infinitely worse if you could modify the Volstead act, Mr. Taft. There is no way out here.

Another way out that opponents of the liquor law suggest is to let it become a dead letter. But 60 million people say it must not become a dead letter. Every official who took the oath of office to support the law and the constitution is sworn not to let it became a dead letter. Every corrupt official in the country is determined that it shall not become a dead letter. There is millions in it for them. It is the silliest thing in the world to talk of this becoming a dead letter.

I've never heard any other way proposed by a "wet," said Mr. Taft, than these which I have already spoken of. There remains only one way, the straight and honest way. Quit drinking and help enforce the law. Stop patronizing the bootlegger, for every man who buys from the bootlegger is responsible for the trail of crime since the liquor left the rum runner.

They tell us you can't enforce the law, continued Mr. Taft. There is a good deal of public sentiment behind the law and it is growing. Then there are the women, not fully organized yet, but as a rule the women are more opposed to drinking than the men are.

There has never yet been an honest attempt to enforce the law. Congress put it under the spoils system and made it a political game to discredit the law. But now a change is to be made and the law is to be under the merit system. We're going to find out what the United States can do when it really tries.

Mr. Taft went on to speak of the progress of prohibition sentiment in the last 100 years, and referred to the way it has jumped the ocean to Norway, Sweden, Iceland, Finland, Germany, England and Scotland.

In conclusion he said that this law should be obeyed because disobedience to this law is ruining the country. Honesty and clean living are the salvation of this country, and there are only two answers to the question. One is to say "I will do my duty, obey the law and help enforce it." The other answer is to let the country go to the dogs.

SMALL FIRE AT CENTRAL AVE. HOUSE

The fire department was called out at 4:15 o'clock, Monday afternoon, by Box 226, Central avenue, for a fire at No. 12 Central avenue, in the house occupied by George Yheronis and owned by Mrs. Irene Viccia. Nine gallons of chemical were used to extinguish the blaze which had started on the outside of the house and worked its way into the studding.

Squad A, Engines 1 and 2 and Fire Chief Stanton responded to the call. The damage was slight and the fire had evidently been caused by boys playing with matches, in the opinion of the firemen.

THE CENTRALS WIN THEIR FOURTH STRAIGHT GAME IN TWI-LEAGUE

Monday evening at the Duwell Field, the Centrals won their fourth straight game in the Twilight League by defeating the East Ends, last year's pennant winners 5 to 3.

Lefty Harrell, former sub-base twirler, pitched for the Centrals and was in fine form. Lefty allowed but seven scattered hits, fanned seven and shut out the East Siders until the last frame when the losers managed to push one counter across the plate. Control was Harrell's greatest asset however. During his seven innings on the mound, the port-side twirler did not issue a single free ticket to first, and it was in this respect that he greatly outpitched Mills, the East End twirler.

Although Mills allowed but four hits, he was as wild as a pitcher could be, and presented his opponents with no less than eight free passes to first, six as a result of walks, and the other two as a result of being hit by the ball. It was Harry's unusual wildness and rank support by his teammates at critical stages of the game that proved his undoing rather than any avalanche of hits by the Centrals.

In capturing their fourth straight contest, the Centrals showed that they have a real ball team and one that is bound to stay at or near the top throughout the season. Their fielding was sharp and sure, and although their four hits were nothing to brag about, it must be remembered that they were denied the chance to hit no less than eight times. Had Harry Mills put the ball within reach more often, the Centrals quota of hits might have been considerably greater.

The Centrals started right off the bat and scored one run in the very first frame. Eddie Murphy opened with a two-bagger to left, and remained there while Gaurbois popped to LaBlanc and Lefty Dugas flied to Duffy. Mills then showed his first signs of wildness, hitting Harrell with a pitched ball. He then walked A. Dugas and the bases were filled. Tombari then drew a pass and E. Murphy crossed the pan with the first run.

In the second, the league leaders scored again, Gauthier singled inside of first base, Yerrington tried hit an easy roller to Mills, and Harry in an attempt for a double-play threw to second before there was any one to take the ball. The ball rolled on the centerfield. Gauthier going to second and Yerrington to third. Gauthier then tallied when LeBlanc let one of Mills fly get away from him. In the fifth, the Centrals brought the score up to 3 to 0 when they scored twice on a double by Yerrington, a sacrifice, a pass on balls, and an error by Norcombin. And in the fifth, they pushed two more across, this time as a result of a one-base hit by Gauthier, a hit batsman and an infield error.

In each of the first four innings, the East Ends made one hit, but were unable to score until the last frame. Normandin led off in the first with a double and Coughlin did the same with one out in the second, but in each instance the runner was stranded on the base paths. In the seventh, however, the East Siders bunched two hits and avoided a shut out by scoring once. With one out, Noel doubled to center and came in on Duffy's single to right who was caught at second trying to stretch the hit and LeBlanc ended the game by grounding to A. Dugas. The Tonight's Game.

Close to a thousand fans wended their way over to the Duwell field last night and saw the league-leading Centrals open what really should be the biggest week for the league, by walloping the East Ends. Many received the surprises of their lives to see the East Ends fall before the Centrals after playing like they did against Yantic the week before, but one can never tell what is going to happen in baseball.

While the breaks of the game were with the Centrals, they must receive the credit, as Mgr. Holland has a team under his wing that will give any one in this part of the state a go and may well deserve to be at the top of the league.

Tonight's game between Yantic and Mallville should be a real good one, as Yantic is composed mostly of the Sotomy team in New London, each one a star by himself. While nothing at all is known about Mallville, except that Mgr. Taylor has been given permission to go out and sign up any one he wants to as long as he strengthens, it is a sure bet that he will present a strong lineup tonight. When asked to give some information in regard to his lineup he refused to make any statement except that he has been given permission to strengthen and has taken advantage of it.

The Yantic team will use either Tilly Daniels, Steve Posick or Jerry Lamphere in the box with Smith behind the bat, Coullard on first, Burns or Foote on second, Lockwood or Lamphere on short, McKiernan at third and Ainsworth, T. Lamphere and Marchand in the outfield. Should Mallville have as good a team as this it should be a real game.

The real surprise of the season will be Thursday, when St. Joseph's play the Nuggetts. There has been a complete change in the Saints' camp and Mgr. Oney, their newly-elected manager, claims that when he announces their lineup it will make everyone sit up and take notice.

GIANTS AND PHILLIES SPLIT DOUBLE HEADER

NEW YORK, July 6—(A. P.)—After suffering their first shutout of the season, 6 to 1, in the first game of a double header with the Giants today, the Phillies won the second contest, 10 to 6, Philadelphia broke a 3-3 tie by a rally in the eighth inning which netted seven runs.

In the opener, Virgil Barnes twirled the victory allowing the Phillies but three scattered hits. Delate was pounded out of the box after he held the New Yorkers scoreless for five innings in the same contest. Score:

LADY ALETHAIRE SETS NEW WORLD'S RECORD

CLEVELAND, July 6.—(A. P.)—The historic Edwards stake with an original value of $5,000, feature of today's Grand Circuit races at North Randall, was split into two divisions of $3,000 each. Because of the large number of starters, eight 2.08 pacers faced the starter in each.

The first division developed into a split heat affair and went to Walter Cox's Skeeter W., and the second to Marvin Child's Ribbon Cane, in straight heats.

Lady Alethaire furnished the big surprise of the day when she won the first division of the 2.18 trot and set a new world's record for three-quarters of a mile by stepping the first heat in 1.32 1-5. This is 1-5 lower than the mark of Northern King, made Friday.

Lady Alethaire was the longest shot of the day, two $10 result tickets on her paying $937.25 each. She took the first and third heats, going into a break in the second and finishing seventh. A $3 mutual ticket in the first heat paid $64.

Theodore Guy led all the way in the first heat of the Edwards first division and lasted long enough to beat Archibald, the favorite, a head. He could not withstand the challenge of Frank Worthy in the second. Archibald went lame and was pulled up at the first turn. Skeeter W., captured the last two heats.

The first three were paced in 2.02 4-5, which equals the state record. 2.03 4-5 and 2.03 1-5. In the race off Walter Cox, Fred Egan and Sep Pulin waited on each other to set the pace, the time for the mile being 2.27 4-5, the last quarter being paced in 29 1-5 seconds, compared with 43 seconds in the first quarter.

It also required four heats to decide the second division of the 2.18 trot. Ned Hale and Dorothy Gish, which had won an equal amount of money in three heats racing three quarters of a mile for first money, Ned Hale won.

JAP STARS HARDPRESSED IN R. I. TENNIS PLAY

EAST PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 6.—(A. P.)—The seeded players swept through the opening round in the Rhode Island lawn tennis championships at the Agawan Hunt club today, in love-sets or near-love-set fashion for the most part, and all of them survived the day's play. The boys in the junior tourney, an added event this year, went through to the semi-finals under the hustling direction of "Big Bill" Tilden, national champion. The doubles for both men and women begin tomorrow afternoon.

The victories of Tilden, Miss Mary K. Browne of California, Mrs. Molla Mallory and Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup were all impressive, and showed that they are in fine form for this early in the season. Tilden and Mrs. Mallory, who look at the peak of physical condition, won in love sets Mrs. Jessup won two matches without any difficulty.

The play of the Japanese stars, T. Harada and Fukuda, who were hard pressed, indicated that they may not get very far in the tourney. Zenzo Shimizu came through in love-sets but has drawn one of the wiliest old veterans of the courts tomorrow in Russell N. Dana, who is playing with all his accustomed accuracy.

BALLERINO WINS JUDGES DECISION FROM MARTIN

NEW YORK, July 6—(A. P.)—Mike Ballerino of Bayonne, N. J., successfully defended his title as junior lightweight champion tonight by winning a judges' decision over Vincent (Pepper) Martin of Brooklyn in 15 rounds of fast fighting.

The bout was a hurricane exchange of wild swings in every round. In the first round the boxers cut loose with a whirlwind rally which continued for the full three minutes of the round.

In the second Ballerino floored the challenger with a terrific left hook. He staggered Martin repeatedly in the third, fourth and fifth, but each time the Brooklyn fighter recovered and mixed furiously with the champion. Martin fought back under an unceasing battery of lefts and rights during the remainder of the bout, but Ballerino's aggressiveness and superior punching carried him a clean cut verdict. Both men weighed 129 1-4.

It was the second meeting of the pair and Martin's fourth futile attempt to lift the title.

A fast left hand guide by an experienced ringman beat the powerful right of a promising youth in the semi-final of ten rounds when Eddie (Kid) Wagner of Philadelphia, won over Charley Rosen, of New York. The Quaker boxer, clever and aggressive, piled up a long lead on points in every round except the fifth and eighth, and took the judges' decision. The weights were Wagner 131 1-2, Rosen 135.

PROVIDENCE TEAM FORFEITS GAME TO DANIELSON

The game between the Danielson nine and Universal Winders team of Providence, Saturday afternoon was forfeited to the home team in the tenth inning, when the visitors refused to continue the game, the score being 4-4. The grabbing on the part of the Providence team spoiled what was to be the fastest game seen in Danielson this season.

Lagaire, pitching for Danielson, was a mystery for the visiting team, allowing seven scattered hits and fanning 12, while Brown was touched for 10 singles and struck out 5. Farrell and Stockbolm led in the hitting for Danielson, while Hanson started for the Providence team. The score:

SPRINGFIELD GAINS FIRST PLACE BY BEATING ALBANY

ALBANY, N. Y., July 6—(A. P.)—Springfield went into first place in the Eastern league today by winning its second straight game from Albany 3 to 2. The hitting of Belanger and a one-hand catch by Standaert featured a pitching duel between Mayberry, of Springfield and Hingle for Albany. A dropped fly ball by Schinkel paved the way for the winning run in the eighth inning. Herrera, who got on through the error, scoring on Bosse's infield hit. The score:

MLLE. LENGLEN CROWNED QUEEN OF WOMEN'S SINGLES FOR SIXTH TIME

WIMBLEDON, England, July 6—France has won five finals honors in this year's all-England lawn tennis championships, the climax coming today when Jean Borotra and Rene Lacoste won the doubles by defeating the American pair, Ray Casey of San Francisco and John Hennessey of Indianapolis in a stirring five-set match that required 56 games for decision. The score was 1-6, 11-9, 4-6, 1-6, 6-2.

Mlle. Susanne Lenglen, the French star, was crowned Queen of the women's singles for the sixth time on Friday, when she defeated Miss Joan Fry, of England. Lacoste took the men's singles title from Borotra, and Mlle. Lenglen and Miss Elizabeth Ryan took the doubles finals from Mrs. A. V. Bridge and Mrs. C. G. McIlquaham, of England on Saturday. Before the big match today, Mlle. Lenglen and Borotra took a two-set mixed doubles final from Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Baron De Morpurgo, of Italy, 6-2, 6-2. Miss Ryann who formerly lived in California, but now makes her residence in England, was the only "Alien" to share honors with the French players.

Today's affair was not a walk-over for France, and when Casey and Hennessey, after losing the first two sets took the next two in whirlwind style there were many in the stands who were willing to wager that the great driving of the Americans would smother Borotra and Lacoste and win the fifth set and the match.

But the pace was too fast and too hard, the Frenchmen who had kept something in reserve, pounced to the attack and held the advantage.

Neither Casey nor Hennessey was at his best in the first set. Their drives and volleys were hard, but they lacked precision. There were times when their teamwork seemed to fail.

But in the first seven games of the second set, they showed something like their usual form and carried the set to 4-1 and 5-3 by hard hitting and a strategic offensive.

Then Borotra anti Lacoste started a brilliant rally that snatched victory from the Americans, when they were thrice within the set-point at 5-4. The Frenchmen evened the set at 5-5 and run it up to 9-8, when they broke through Hennessey's service, and took the lead 10-9. Lacoste worked hard to make it 9 all 11-9 with a brilliant volleying battle, his rarely employed work at the net figuring to advantage.

The third set was tame in comparison. It followed the service until the last game, when Hennessey, with deep drives, forced the Frenchmen to the base line and then put over a kill from the net for the final stroke a 6-4 set.

Then the Americans began a display of all they had, driving, volleying, chopping and slicing with such rapidity and force that the Frenchmen could not figure where the ball was coming from or where it was going to land. Lacoste and Borotra got only one game out of seven in this set.

Both Hennessey and Casey appeared to be showing the effects of the strain when they went on the court for the final set. Casey's drives were erratic and his volleys frequently went outside or smashed into the net. The Americans lost the first game 0-4 to Borotra's puzzling screw service down the center line, and the Frenchmen took the next two largely through playing to Hennessey's weakness in his overhead shots.

Casey's fast volleying broke through Borotra's service in the fifth, and he took the sixth with three service strokes and a kill at the net, that proved to be the final American effort, for the French pair had found their opponent's weakness, and with Borotra at the net, placing with uncanny accuracy, and Lacoste lobbing to Hennessey's overhead from the baseline, they took the next three games without serious opposition. The match was theirs, giving them the honor of winning the fifth event for France in the tournament.

MOOSUP WINS FROM BALTIC SUNDAY, 9 TO 4

Manager Collins, of Baltic, journeyed to Moosup on Sunday, where his team crossed bats with the American Woolen nine, the visitors receiving the small end of a 9 to 4 score. The game was a fast one with the exception of the fourth inning when the Moosup boys became a little unsteady, allowing the visitors to score four runs on two errors, two clean hits, one of them a double by Krauss and two singles. After this inning, Manager Collins' men could do nothing with the twirling of Young and with the exception of the fourth inning they were retired in one, two three order. The Moosup team found their eyes in the fifth and sixth innings, touching up A. Stewart for a total of six hits, five of which were doubles and these, interspersed with three passes, three errors and three stolen bases netted eight runs and clinched the game for Moosup. HEDLER SUSPENDS GRIMES FROM NATIONAL PASTIME

NEW YORK, July 6—(A. P.)—Burleigh Grimes, Brooklyn Nationals' pitcher, was indefinitely suspended today by President John A. Heydler of the National League for his argument with Umpire Pete McLaughlin in the second game of the Robins' doubleheader yesterday with the Braves.

Grimes objected when the umpire ruled, Padgett had drawn a pass on balls and when a mixup threatened, players and the other umpires intervened and Grimes was ordered off the diamond.

WORK-OUT GIVEN OXFORD-CAMBRIDGE TRACK TEAM

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 6—(AP)—The twenty members of the Oxford-Cambridge track team which will meet the combined Yale and Harvard teams here on Saturday had their first workout in the United States today when they took part in a light practice on Soldiers field. The team will workout again later in the day when the Yale-Harvard team also will go through its paces.

Baltic vs. Hanover.

The game that was scheduled for Tuesday night between Baltic and Hanover was postponed, but will be played Thursday evening. As both teams have put in considerable practice lately there is every indication that the fans will see a real baseball game.

CLEVELAND WINS TWO GAMES FROM CHICAGO

CLEVELAND, July 6.—(AP)—Cleveland defeated Chicago in both games of a double header here today, 8 to 1 and 4 to 3. Garland Buckeye, 250 pound pitcher, held the White Sox to seven scattered hits in the first game while Joe Shaute outpitched Cvengros and Connally in the second.

MEN WHO BEAT UP STATE POLICEMAN HELD IN NEW LONDON JAIL, BONDS $5,000

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 6.—Allen McDougall and Charles Stevens, occupants of an automobile, brutally assaulted State Police Officer Joseph Bobnick, of Groton barracks, in Waterford, early Saturday morning when the officer caused the machine, a Cadillac touring car, to be halted following autoists alleging that Stevens was driving at a reckless rate of speed, and they were apprehended in Parker, after they had left the officer lying in the highway. They were presented on a charge of assault and battery, in the Waterford town court, this afternoon. Judge Frederick Dimmock ordered the case continued until next Friday afternoon and McDougall and Stevens were remanded to jail in default of a surety on their respective bonds of $5,000. Bobnick, who had been under treatment at the Lawrence hospital since the assault, was able to leave the institution this afternoon and go to his home, 57 Blackhall street.

An automobile, owned and driven by Arthur P. Slate, South Windham, and a machine, owned and driven by Richard F. Lizzi, 53 Walbach street, were in collision late last night at the corner of Pequot and Glenwood avenues. Both cars were damaged, but the occupants were not injured. Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman Clarence Martin arrested both Slate and Lizzi on a charge of reckless driving, whereupon was presented in police court this morning.

"I will leave the city and the state if you will give me a chance [illegible]" pleaded Tom, and Judge [illegible] advised him to redeem his promise after he told him he was too old to be taking a chance at getting intoxicated.

Marcus Ponh who said he was employed as a laborer for the city, was out of work and hoisted in several things on the Fourth. He was found intoxicated. Judge Prince advised him that there was a straight and narrow path and told him to keep in it. Then he suspended judgment for 2 hours.

Larry McPherson, also appeared for the first time. He got it in the shape of a bill of costs. As he didn't also get a fine, Larry was delighted.

Sailors in the service of Uncle Sam [illegible] in the court docket today. They were intoxicated yesterday. Louis Vanus got mixed up with Tom Costello, also a sailor, and in their argument Louis swiped Tom a singing [illegible] out. The affray occurred at the railroad station, where Officer John Sullivan was a witness of what happened. He arrested the pair. Vanus paid a fine of $5. Vanus endeavored to convince the court that some other fellow struck the blow, but in that he was unsuccessful so he got the dose.

Harold Blume was another sailor accused of intoxication. A lieutenant was in court and represented that the sailor would be disciplined when he returned to the base, so judgment was suspended in the court.

Teon Zondiros is to come into court tomorrow and tell about what happened between him and Alter Santos that led to a charge of a breach of the peace being made against him. Zondiros has already told his story, but Santos wanted a chance to get on the stand witnesses of what happened. Zondiros does not think Santos is serious about the matter and is of the opinion that Santos will back down. The row was over the sale of a bunch of bananas, in which fruit the men are [illegible].

Lyman Hempstead Beckwith, well-known resident of Waterford, died late Friday night at his home, after a long illness. The funeral took place this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Mr. Beckwith's home and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. George H. Brouse. Burial was in Union cemetery, Niantic.

Mrs. Ralph Santacroce, of 80 Baker avenue, Groton; Clarence St. Germain, Waterford; Edward Dotzauer, 40 Perry street; Mrs. Thomas Henderson, Groton; Miss Nancy Miner, 15 Post Hill place; Joseph Nooger, United States Coast Guard, Station 8, Fishers island; Mrs. Ralph Meeks, Groton; Mrs. Wallace Bailey and infant daughter, 16 Montauk avenue; Mrs. Carl Allen and infant son, Quaker Hill; Napoleon Cody, 71 Crystal avenue; Carroll Budy, Portland, Me.; Miss Nina Brigham, Waterford; Mrs. Frederick A. Byrnes, of Norwich; Joseph Rochette, Middletown; Miss Faye Devereaux, Harris building apartments, State street; Mrs. William Lipps, 35 Wall street; Leo Paradise, New Haven; Samuel Fritt, United States Coast Guard destroyer Downes; Peter Berardinelli, 31 Franklin street, Westerly, and Richard Gorman, United States Coast Guard destroyer Downes, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed Sunday and today.

An automobile operated by Almet R. Latson, Jr., 193 East 17th street, in passing through Bank street late this afternoon, struck Everett Hendry, 7, son of Mrs. Hendry, 2 Union street. The boy was taken to Lawrence hospital where several stitches were required to close wounds on his face and neck. The child was crossing the highway, near Golden street, and became confused in the mesh of automobiles.

A Cadillac touring car, owned by Arthur A. Fain, 226 Huntington avenue, Boston, that was stolen from its place of parking at Ocean Beach Sunday, was recovered by the New London police, late this afternoon. The machine was observed parked on Denison avenue throughout the entire day by Mrs. Martel, residing at 34, who communicated with the police. Sergeant Samuel Hick inspected the machine and fixed its ownership. Fain, who is in Westerly, was notified of the finding of the car, came to New London early this evening and took possession of the machine. The automobile had evidently been used by joy riders and then abandoned.

Mr. and Mrs. William D. Hamilton and Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Robinson, Jr., Orange, N. J., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Emmerich, Connecticut avenue.

Harold Coates and Miss Helen Sullivan, of East Hartford, are guests of Mr. Coates' parents, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Coates, of Williams street.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Newton, of Bayonne, N. J., spent the week end with relatives in New London.

Charles Cowin, Jr., reported to the police this morning that while his car was parked at Ocean Beach last night a spare tire was stolen from the rear of the machine.

The police have been unable to locate any clue that might lead to the recovery of the automobile, owned by Attorney Frank L. McGuire, that was stolen from the rear of the Alling building, State street, last Friday afternoon.

CITY COUNCIL GETS DATA ON GASOLINE STORAGE TANKS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 6.—The city council held a half hour's session this evening, during which it granted applications for construction work to eleven persons and corporations. Most of the work to be done is the erection of garages, the alteration of property, the building of verandas, etc. One dwelling application was presented and the Connecticut Power company is to build a two-story centrifugal house on its land on Water street.

The Hopson & Chapin company was awarded the contract to make repairs to the heating system in Nameaug school building, at a cost of $6,600.

The city manager, at the request of the council, presented a report showing the extent to which gasoline storage tanks, etc., have been permitted in New London. It was disclosed that the number of gallons capacity of the storage tanks and wagons is 991,305 and that the city receives $1,920 a year in taxes from them. About $500 will be paid by the 1st of December next.

Mrs. Arnold Clemens, who was assistant town clerk prior to her marriage, was reappointed to the position. She was Miss Beth Keeney.

STEALING GAS FOR AUTO, SUNDAY'S TRAGEDY RESULTED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 6.—Sergeant John Cavanaugh this afternoon decided that the theory advanced by the police yesterday as to the cause of the explosion aboard the government launch L-16, which resulted in the destruction of the boat by flames, the killing of Tony Alfiero, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Casper Alfiero, 27 Orchard street, and the serious burning of Alfiero's brother, Joseph, 35, and Peter Grillo, 13, the latter of 35 Orchard street, was a correct one. When the investigation was started it was declared that the youths went aboard the L-15 to steal gasoline by which they could provide power for the automobile in which they were riding. This fact was stated to have been the cause of the explosion this afternoon, when Sergeant Cavanaugh interviewed Dominick Alfiero, a brother of the two boys.

JOHN MORIARTY, DESPONDENT, TRIES TO CUT HIS THROAT

NEW LONDON, July 6.—John Moriarty, 53, residing on the houseboat Pequot, rear of 80 Howard street, and employed by Palmer Brothers, bed quilt manufacturers, attempted self-destruction early this forenoon, when he went to the bathing beach at Green's Harbor, Pequot avenue, and slashed his throat with a razor. He is now under treatment at Lawrence hospital, where it is not known whether he will recover. No cause is assigned for Moriarty's act except possibly despondency.

Moriarty was seen sitting on a rock on the beach, about 6 o'clock, by employes of the New Haven Dairy company, and he was observed to be bleeding, but apparently was sober. The police were notified and Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman Clarence Martin were sent to the beach and instead of a lacerated head, the officers found Moriarty to be bleeding from a gaping wound in the throat, which he had inflicted with a razor. The man was placed in the police automobile and rushed to the hospital, where his condition is considered critical, especially as he had lost much blood.

SHIRT MANUFACTURER HELD FOR HIGH COURT

STAMFORD, Conn., July 6.—(AP)—Matthew Rosenbloom, former owner of the Connecticut Shirt Company now in the hands of a trustee, was bound over to the superior court today in $2,500 bonds by Judge Young on a charge of making a false statement to obtain credit.

Prior to bankruptcy, the allegation is, Rosenbloom, to obtain credit in New York gave a statement of debts in which he failed to show that he owed relatives $50,000. He filed a demurrer two weeks ago but this was over ruled today.

COLCHESTER

One of the largest crowds of the season attended the baseball game on the Park grounds Saturday afternoon, Colchester vs. Groevernordale. The result was 10 to 6 in favor of the visiting team. The batting order follows: Colchester, Groubert, c., S. Slavkin, 3b. and p., Casella 2b., Friedman, 1b., Jones p., Chafets, c., McDonald lf., Kane ss., Lazinsk, rf., Broder cf., Stebbins rf., L. Slavkin ss. Grosvernordale, Bates 2b., Ravinelle ss., Johnson 1b., LaFontaine lf., Blanchette, c., Mandeville cf., Cordera p., Leouns rf. Ancoin 3b., umpires, Laflinck and Guinning.

Groevernordale 2 1 0 0 1 3 5 0 1—13
Colchester 0 1 1 0 0 0 0 4 1— 6

The Colchester team made several errors, which accounted for the large score.

The Fourth was one of the quietest that the town has ever known except for the occasional firing of fire crackers, the day would have been as an ordinary day. The traffic on the Norwich-Colchester turnpike and Hartford-New London turnpike was among the heaviest ever noted. There was a steady stream of cars from daybreak until late in the night. The driving through the borough was good. No arrests for violations of the rules of the road were made.

Hyman Slavkin, of Meriden, was at his home on Lebanon avenue, over the Fourth.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Bailey and child of New Britain, were guests of Mr. Bailey's parents, on South Main street, over Sunday.

There was a large attendance at the dance at Tip Top hall Saturday night.

Leo White of New Haven, was a guest of James O'Brien over Sunday.

Harry Cohen, who is working in New York is a guest of his parents on Pleasant street, for a few days' vacation.

Henry Keeney, of Manchester, Conn. was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Strong over the Fourth.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald K. Brown and Mrs. Bessie Kingsbury, of New York, have arrived at their summer home on Broadway.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dimmock, of Meriden, were visitor at Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Baker's Sunday.

Frank Case, of Norwich and Amos Case, of Berlin, were guests of relatives in town over Sunday.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

In the borough court Monday, Adelbert J. Needham was fined $1 and costs of $11.05 for failure to carry his auto registration with him. An accident at a blind corner in Stafford was responsible for calling state policeman Hulburt to the locality and upon investigation it was discovered that William Needham did not have his registration certificate with him.

Robert H. Fisk spent the Fourth and Sunday with his family at Pleasant View.

Albert Conto and Alfred Judge, both of Willimantic, were arrested by Officer Hulburt, early Saturday morning, the former for driving an automobile while intoxicated and the latter for intoxication and breach of the peace. They were released on bonds later in the day and will appear in the borough court Friday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Wytas of Orcuttville spent Sunday with relatives in South Coventry.

NEW LONDON MAN FINED IN BOROUGH COURT MONDAY

(Special to the Bulletin.)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, July 6.—Gideon Habrik, of New London was fined $10 and costs, a total of $26.27 by Judge Heald in the borough court Monday morning, for assault on Elias Shammy. Shammy and Habirik's father-in-law, Michael Josephjak have been at odds for some time over a right of way between their properties which adjoin on Wes Main street. Sunday evening, while Haberik was under the influence of liquor he went to Shammy's house where Shammy was sitting with his family on the veranda. After some words about putting a fence on the right of way, Haberik struck Shammy a blow under the eye which required the attention of a physician. A scuffle followed in which Shammy was dragged from the veranda and his clothing badly torn. Both men were locked up for the night to await the hearing Monday morning.

JEWETT CITY

"Hal" Chase can swim and dance; dive, run and play ball, and he tied the nuptial knot, Monday morning, bright and early for Harry Cuddy, of Providence, R. I., and Miss Lucy Curry, of Bridgeport, who showed up at Ashland club house, armed with the proper certificates and credentials, all O. K. "Hal" told the pair that there were a whole lot of clergymen around, that could do the job much better than he could, he being green and new at the marrying business. The pair were satisfied with "Hal." The man said he looked good to him, so did the woman. Meanwhile, they being exceedingly anxious, and having showed the color of coin, "Hal" sent out a hurry call for a copy of the necessary scriptures, or any part thereof. Witnesses arrived. L. M. Carpenter and Elizabeth Chase. They were administered the oath, the contracting couple swore that they were in their right minds, and that it was of their own free will and accord. At this point, "Hal" silently appeared through a secret door in the rear and tied the knot with neatness and dispatch. The man had the dust, too, and Bro. Chase is jingling the ducats in his jeans. Inquiry was made, whether or no, "Hal" exercised his justice of the peace prerogative, and gave the bride an osculatory salutation. "Hal" remains non-committal!

John Minski, who lives on the Nehemiah Prentice place, later known as the La Pointe farm, takes the blue ribbon for an early potato crop. He is digging in a two-acre field of Irish cobblers, and is getting 100 bushels to the acre. Three acres of Green Mountain potatoes are looking fine; they are on level land, and in the fall will be dug by power.

It is contrary to the rules of The Bulletin to pay any attention to unsigned letters. Hence the writer of this column will not do it.

Everett Whipple, of Voluntown, got up one of his famous mid-night dinners on the Fourth. His guests were Adam Rojeski, Frank Bush, Everett Sharkey and M. F. Shea, all of Jewett City. The guests report: "Some time and some feed."

Barber shops will close Thursdays, 1 to 6, beginning the 9th.—Adv.

The quick, clear-headed action of a man in the uniform of the United States army, Sunday afternoon, resulted in saving the life of a small boy and a baby in a carriage. As the man in an automobile came up the hill from the North Main street borough line, a small boy, at the junction of North Main street and Brown avenue, ran into the road. A lightning twist of the steering wheel, and the army man's machine mounted the curb on the west side of the road. On the sidewalk was a woman wheeling a baby. The driver, although he nearly wrecked his big machine the first time, gave another twist and lunged into the gutter. The forward wheel struck the carriage a glancing blow and the baby was thrown out, and, in an instant was grabbed up by the mother, unhurt. The army man looked around to see what was next and waited until Officer Veglard arrived and secured the necessary data. The child and the baby were the children of Albert Bassette, of Jewett City. The man driving the car was Erik Jessen, 28 Leonard street, Groton. He had with him in the car, his wife and two children. The local police consider Jessen entirely without fault or blame.

Sam Schlieffer, cousin of Ben, was the "Mystery Man" in the parade Saturday. Wayland Stetson was Uncle Sam in F. H. Gilbert's float. Emma Dearnley rode in the Baptist church float and carried the Ladies' Aid society banner. Lemuel Green is the Scout leader of the local Boy Scouts. The Polish society that turned out so well in the parade, was accompanied by an escort of 30 girls in regalia.

All sorts of complimentary mention is being heard about Saturday's grand display of fireworks. There was not a common piece among them, and no two alike. The aerial bombs were magnificent, some of the antics of the snappers, liberated when the bomb exploded high in the air, kept the thousands of spectators shouting with laughter. The last one shot up was in the 5 for $100 class. All say, far better this 50-minute display than all night of pin-wheels and Roman candles.

In the opening game of the Junior baseball league, Monday, at Ashland Park, the Grays defeated Ashland 6 to 0, in a very fast and interesting game before a large gallery. The lineups: for the Grays, F. Liberty, p., Leidman, c., C. Liberty, 3b., Ritchle, 1b., Lachapelle, cf., Bakanoski, ss., Duff, lf., A. Liberty, 2b., Wakley, rf, for Ashland, Pizzs, 3b., Bolier, p., Missoshik, 1b., Storey, 2b., Slonski, ss., C. D. Liberty, lf., C. Roberts, 3b., ss., S. Roberts, rf., Walter, cf. Bolier pitched a good game but had loose support. F. Liberty, pitching for the Grays, struck out ten Ashland men and only allowed them 4 hits, one a three bagger by Bolier. Three double plays were pulled off by the teams, two by the Grays and one by Ashland. The next game will be Wednesday at Ashland Park between the Ashland and Slater teams.

Perley E. Melvin, 9 E. Main, will let garage with cement floor and lights.—adv.

TO RESTORE FAMOUS FORT IN NORTHWEST

HELENA, Mont. July 6—(AP)—Fort Union, recorded by the Montana State Historical Society as the first fort to be established above the mouth of the Yellowstone river and one of the best known in the northwest, is to be restored to portray to visitors its part in the historic records of the west, if plans of citizens of Montana, North Dakota and the Great Northern railroad materialize.

President Ralph Budd of the railway, Secretary David Hilger of the Montana Historical Society and other interested citizens visited the spot late in May and located the old blockhouse bastions and other indications which Mr. Hilger believes will, with the aid of some very detailed descriptions and pictures in the society's library, permit an exact reproduction of the old fort. The owner of nine acres of land which includes the site of the fort has offered to donate this property if the purpose can be accomplished. The United States government will be asked to cooperate. It is estimated that the cost will be $25,000.

Our Butter-and-Cheese Diet

The American people are eating a quarter of a pound more creamery butter per capita per year than formerly. At least, that was the record for 1924 as against 1923, according to an analysis of farm products just published by the United States department of agriculture. In fact, all the products of the dairy show a marked per capita increase in consumption. A gives a total of 4.2 pounds a year for each person, which is rather a startling showing. Very few of us would guess offhand that the average family in America consumes about 21 cheese a year. The average butter consumption is seventeen and a quarter pounds per capita, or 85 pounds for the family of five, or a little more than a pound and a half a week. Thus the great American cow, 25,000,000 of her, makes a butter contribution of more than 1,000,000,000 pounds and adds to this a little matter of 418,000,000 pounds of cheese.

THE CIRCUS-DAY PARADE.

Oh, the Circus-Day parade! How the bugles played and played!
And how the glossy horses tossed their
flossy manes and neighed,
As the rattle and the rhyme of the tenor-
drummer's time
Filled all the hungry hearts of us with melody sublime!

How the grand band-wagon shone with a splendor all its own,
And glittered with a glory that our dreams had never known!
And how the boys behind, high and low of every kind,
Marched in unconscious capture, with a rapture undefined!

How the horsemen, two and two, with their plumes of white and blue,
And crimson, gold and purple, nodding
by at me and you,
Waved the banners that they bore, as the Knights in days of yore,
Till our glad eyes gleamed and glistened like the spangles that they wore!

How the graceless-graceful stride of the elephant was eyed,
And the capers of the little horse that cantered at his side!
How the shambling camels, tame to the plaudits of their fame,
With listless eyes came silent, masticat-
ing as they came.

How the cages jolted past with each wagon battened fast,
And the mystery within it only hinted of at last
From the little grated square in the rear, and moving there
The snout of some strange animal that sniffed the outer air!

And, last of all, The Clown, making mirth for all the town,
With his lips curved ever upward and his eyebrows ever down,
And his chief attention paid to the little mule that played
A tattoo on the dashboard with his heels, in the parade.

bugles played and played!
And how the glossy horses tossed their
flossy manes and neighed.
As the rattle and the rhyme of the tenor-
drummer's time
Filled all the hungry hearts of us with melody sublime!

—James Whitcomb Riley.

ONCE ON A TIME.

Once on a time I used to dream
Strange spirits moved about my way,
And I should catch a vagrant gleam,
Of pixy or of fay;
Their lives were mingled with my own,
We met, we roamed, so near they drew;
And now I know from a child had grown,
I was—and found my dream was true.

For one is clad in coat of fur,
And one is decked in feathers gay;
And one, whose whim, will prefer
A sober suit of Quaker gray;
This one's your servant from his birth,
And that a Princess you must please,
And that one loves to wake your mirth,
And that one likes to share your ease.

Oh gracious creatures, tiny souls;
You seem so near, so far away,
Yet beside the cloudland round us rolls
We love you better every day.

—Margaret Benson.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Aviator—It's all off. The propeller is broken and we'll fall 6,000 feet.

Sleeping Beauty—I hope we don't fall in water. I can't swim a stroke.—Cap'n Buccaneer.

Prudence—Prudence told me that she broke shone at the prom last night.
Imogene—That was reflected glory—her dress was lit.—V. M. I. Sniper.

Did you ever catch your husband asleep?
Only once?
What did you do to him?
Married him.—Hamilton Royal Gaboon.

What did you tip that boy so handsomely when he gave you your coat?
I looked at the coat he gave me.—Yale Record.

Hubby—What, another new dress? Good Heavens! After my asking you yesterday to be economical.
Wifey—Well, am I not saving on our food bill? I don't mind being economical, John, but I do object to looking economical.—Stray Stories.

"Oh, mamma," exclaimed her little four-year-old, all out of breath, "I've just been playing with the Goodwin children and they have the measles. Now can I eat all the candy I want to? 'Cause, you know, I'm going to be sick, anyway."—Exchange.

"Where is the electrical department?" asked the flapper.
"Just walk this way, miss," said the hardware clerk, who was bow-legged.
"You fresh young thing," said the girl, "I'd die first."—Good Hardware.

Mother was busy, cleaning a chicken for the family dinner.
Little Dorothy watched the process with keen interest, especially when the insides were being taken out of the fowl.
"Mother," asked the child, finally, "now what are you looking for in there?"—The Progressive Grocer.

MEN!—Read This Advertisement to your Profit! This Factory End Sale Will Help You Economize. Don't Miss It.

THE PORTEOUS & MITCHELL CO.

NOTE: Some of the Greatest Savings of the Factory End Sale Are in the Departments Devoted to Wearing Apparel for Women and Children.

Our Annual Factory End Sale

Will Begin Wednesday Morning, July 8th, At 8:30

The Basis For This Sale

This Factory End Sale is a regular feature of our Store policy, fixed in our business calendar because it renders a genuine service to the public.

In June, when prices are at low ebb in the wholesale market—our buyers go into the market and secure merchandise that is up to our standards of requirements—and the result of our efforts is contained in this page advertisement of extraordinary values.

At the same time we clear our own stocks of goods that are of the same grade and character as the market offerings. That is the policy back of the Factory End Sale—the reason why this sale excels all other Sales of the year in big savings.

Then, come Wednesday if you can—and get YOUR first pick. All goods go on Sale Wednesday. But Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be lucky days too. With stocks as large as ours there is enough for many days' active selling.

Read carefully this page advertisement, then make out a shopping list of the things you expect to buy—and plan to visit the entire store from floor to floor.

JUDGE WOLFE DENIES RECLAMATION PETITION

A reclamation petition by the Downingtown Manufacturing company, East Downington, Pa., which was presented in the superior court, has been denied by Judge Isaac Wolfe. The petition asked that Receiver Frank W. Browning of the Uncas Paper Board company be directed to deliver to the petitioner certain machinery or that the court pass an order for him to pay the sum of $32,976.76, which it was claimed was the amount of rentals now due.

In his memorandum of decision Judge Wolfe says:

I am satisfied that the instrument in question although styled a lease, is in legal effect a conditional bill of sale and comes clearly within the rules laid down in Wilcox vs. Howe Co., 70 C., 220, and in Hine vs. Roberts, 48 C., 267.

The instrument, although recorded, was never acknowledged as the statute requires. The agreed facts show that the articles of machinery furnished by the petitioner were different parts of a paper making machine then owned by the Uncas Paper Board Co., and upon receipt were attached thereto; also a duplex cutting machine. No one not having intimate knowledge of the contents of the instrument in question, could possibly know that certain parts of such machine had been sold under either a lease or conditional bill of sale.

At the time of the appointment of the receiver all of the personal property of the Uncas Paper Board Company, including the machinery in question, was under attachment, in a creditor's suit of such company.

An examination of the instrument shows that although described as part of the rental price, the payments provided have all the earmarks of a conditional sale, a payment being required on the signing of the contract and before even possession is given of the machinery, which is very unlike a lease. Payments are thereafter to be made in instalments, and when the payments are fully made the lessee may purchase the machinery for the sum of one dollar.

Of course "may," as thus used, gives the lessee the right to do so and makes it an obligation to perform on the part of the lessor. The purpose of the instrument is to have the subject matter of the contract to ultimately pass, for an agreed price from the Darwinstown Manufacturing Company to the Uncas Paper Board Company on the performance by it of certain conditions.

"While the contract was in form one renting and hiring, it was rightly regarded by the parties as a conditional sale."

Under the circumstances in this case the receiver is not the personal representative of the corporation, but he is the representative of the creditors, and therefore because of the failure of the petitioner to comply with the conditional sales statutes, the sale, as to the receiver, is an absolute sale.

The petition is therefore denied.

FIVE BRIGHTEST PLANETS TO BE SEEN IN JULY

Shortly after sunset during this month the five brightest planets—Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn—all will be above the horizon at the same time for the greater part of the month.

On the evening of July 10, says a bulletin from the American Nature association, Mercury, Venus and Mars will appear so near together that they might almost be mistaken for a triple star, although in fact Mercury will be about 105,000,000 miles from the earth, Venus 146,000,000 miles and Mars 239,000,000 miles.

Mars is increasing its distance from the earth and is drawing in toward the sun so that it will be increasingly difficult to find it in the twilight. Mercury and Venus now are approaching the earth.

Mercury will reach its greatest eastern elongation on July 28 when it will be more than 27 degrees east of the sun. This, the American Nature association points out, is within a degree of its greatest possible distance from the sun and great enough to enable it to be picked up easily in the twilight after sunset.

Anyone watching these three planets this month with the aid of a small telescope or field glasses might imagine they were playing tag or running a race up the northwestern sky after sunset. All three will move eastward during July from Cancer into Leo but all will be moving at different speeds with respect to each other and the earth. Mars, the slow-moving one of the trio, will be at the beginning of the month farther east and higher in the western sky than the other two but the other two planets will pass it on July 19. Saturn, which has been above the horizon in the evening hours for some time, has been moving slowly westward, but on July 13 it becomes stationary, as viewed from the earth and then begins to swing slowly backward toward Libra to the east. Jupiter, now rising over in the southeast in Sagittarius, will be in opposition to the sun, or on the meridian due south, at midnight on July 10. It will then rise at sunset and be in view all night. On this date Mercury, Venus and Mars will set about an hour and a half after the sun.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MOTOR ISSUES SEND STOCK PRICES UPWARD

NEW YORK, July 8.—(AP)—Resumption of trading after the double holiday disclosed that speculators for the advance were again in control of the price movement in the stock market, the general list swinging upward under the leadership of the motor and merchandising issues, several of which were lifted to new peak prices for the year. Absence of many traders and the curtailment of public buying because of the vacation season failed to have much effort on the volume of business which exceeded one million shares.

Bullish sentiment was created by the gradual return to normal monetary conditions; the market's ability to withstand the shocks of an earthquake and a large stock exchange failure last week; a stiffening of basic commodity prices, particularly copper and steel; indications of a number series of favorable June railroad earnings statements as a result of heavy car loadings by the principal carriers, and reports that the largest creditors of the distressed stock exchange firm had assented to plan of reorganization which would involve little, if any ultimate loss to customers.

Mack trucks was the sensational feature of the day running up nine points to a record top at 158, apparently at the expense of an overcrowded short interest, and then yielding to 155 3-4 on profit taking. Packard touched a new top at 36 1-8; Moon at 34 3-4; Studebaker at 49 7-8 and Pierce Arrow at 25 1-8; while White, Stepp and Hudson advanced to within a point of their year's maximum prices. White showing a gain of two points on the day. Montgomery Ward was the most active feature of the merchandising section, also being boosted nearly three points to a record top at 59 1-4 in reflection of high current earnings. McCrory Stores B. crossed 98 to a new peak and substantial gains were recorded by Woolworth, Sears Roebuck and Kinney.

Lively Rate Advance In Wheat

CHICAGO, July 6—(A. P.)—Announcement of a liberal reduction in the United States visible supply of wheat helped to bring about a lively rate advance in the wheat market today. Closing prices on wheat were firm at the day's top level, 1 1-4 to 2 1-2c net higher, September 1.41 3-4 to 1.41 3-4 and December 1.43 to 1.43 1-4. Corn finished unchanged to 1c lower, oats at 5-8 to 7-8c gain and provisions varying from unchanged figured to a rise of 11c.

Wheat values showed an upward trend from the outset. The fact that the Canadian government crop report indicated a yield of considerable less volume this season than official estimates of late had called for was largely responsible for initial gains in price here. Besides, the action of foreign markets since Friday counted as a stimulus to buyers and so too did reports of sultry weather in Minnesota and the Dakotas, where possible damage from black rust is still a serious danger. There were also special reports at hand telling of crop deterioration in the Red river valley.

Favorable weather for the progress of the new corn crop tended to ease down the corn market. In the late dealings, though, the upward swing of wheat led to

FARM COLLEGE EDITORS TO CONVENE AT RALEIGH

Raleigh, N. C., July 7.—(AP)—The thirteenth annual conference of the American Association of Agricultural College Editors, to be held at Raleigh, July 7-8, will bring delegates from every section of the United States. Sessions will be held at the North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering. The program as announced by F. H. Jeter, of Raleigh, secretary-treasurer, covers a wide range. Prominent agricultural college editors from many states will participate in the discussions.

Reuben Brigham, of Washington, president of the association; W. B. Kirkwood, of St. Paul, Minn., is vice-president, and the executive committee is composed of J. E. McClintock, of Columbus, Ohio, and J. Kinghorn, of Fort Collins, Colorado.

Delegates will be welcomed by Eugene E. Culbreth, mayor of Raleigh, and Dr. E. C. Brooks, president of States College.

There will be several exhibits on display during the conference. The editor submitting the best agricultural article will be awarded a blue ribbon prize. The judges will be Dr. C. B. Smith, of the Office of Extension Work, Washington; Russel Lord, of Farm and Fireside, New York; and C. A. Cobb, of the Southern Ruralist, Atlanta, Ga.

The program will include an excursion to the Sand Hill Section of North Carolina for an inspection of fruit growing enterprises there.

TELLS OF HUMANS OF 50,000 B. C.

Heidelberg, July 7. —)AP)—The ideas of mankind 50,000 years ago, was the subject of a discourse by Professor Bern of Bonn University at the Congress of German Philologists. About 50,000 B. C. the art of the glacial period began to flourish in Europe said the speaker. This art he asserted, had its origin somewhere around 50,000 B. C. He claims that it has been fairly well established that 40,000 B. C., or thereabouts, the Neanderthal beings were superceded by a race resembling that of the present day.

This race had a well-defined cult of the dead. These early progenitors of our present race firmly believed in an existence after death. It has been clearly proved that they feared the dead, as their limbs frequently were broken before burial to prevent them from harming the living, according to the speaker.

Yale Lecturer at Berlin

Berlin, July 7.—Prof. E. M. Borchard, of Yale, recently opened a lecture course at the Berlin University. He said in his opinion his chief task consisted of re-establishing international scientific relations and preparing the way for the resumption of German American exchange of professorships such as existed before the war.

In China a wife is never seen by her husband before marriage. In this country some wives seldom see their husbands after marriage.

The council now has 418 members which entitles them to 4 deleretes at the convention to be held on the 50th anniversary of the founding of the order at Holyoke Mass., on October 13th. It is expected that over 500 delegates will be present at the convention. The delegates named from Council Gagnon are Joseph C. Marsan, alternate, Joseph Gauvin; Joseph O. Tellier, Sr. alternate, Albert Simineau; Frank Mathieu; alternate, Albert Frechette; Armand Lippi, alternate, Alphonse Provost.

Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Piante of Three Rivers, Mass., have been guests of Mrs. Piante's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eziah Dezet of South C street.

Nicholas Lukoff, Miss Florence Lukoff and Peter Lukoff of South B street have been recent guests of friends in Hallville.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel L. Armitage of Norwich avenue have been spending a few days at Ocean Beach.

Miss Lillian Molleur of Providence street is spending a week in Hartford, where she is the guest of relatives.

UNPAID EMPLOYES OF CONTRACTOR SUE BUILDING OWNER FOR WAGES

The first of eight suits for foreclosure of mechanics liens against Schwartz Bros. of this city was on trial Monday before Judge C. B. Waller in the common pleas court in this city. In the suit on trial, David Giorge was the plaintiff, suing for $200 damages on a claim for wages as an employe of John Paracenti who was the contractor for a job for excavating rock and dirt and building walls for Schwartz Bros. in the rear of 80-82 Main street. All the suits are brought on similar claims mechanics liens for a total of about $966. As the contractor failed to pay the workmen, they placed the liens against the owners of the property. If the suit that was tried Monday brings a verdict for the plaintiff, this will forecast the result in the other suits. The excavation contract was entered into by Paracenti Sept. 15, 1924.

Testifying in the morning were Abner Schwartz, president of Schwartz Bros., Joseph Lahn, secretary of the company, Contractor Paracenti and several of his workmen.

Several of the workmen in their testimony stated that after they had been on the job for about three weeks they were going to strike when Joe Lann approached them and stated, "Boys, go back to work, I'll pay you in the end, when the job is finished." It is alleged that Lahn denied this. The workmen also stated that they demanded their wages of Lahn who refused to pay them.

Arguments were started in the afternoon after the termination of the evidence.

Following the arguments by Attorney J. J. Desmond for the defendants and Attorney John H. Barnes for the plaintiff, Judge Waller took the papers in the case and reserved his decision.

WOMAN'S BACK BROKEN IN COCHESTER ACCIDENT

Mrs. Minnie C. Johnson, of 35 Forest street, Hartford, whose back was broken in an automobile accident at Colchester Sunday died at the Hartford hospital Monday. She was riding in the car of her son, Victor H. Johnson, and in the accident she either was thrown from the car or fell out. She was found in a ditch after her son's machine had brought up against a fence. Alan Wickham, of New York, who was riding in the front seat, thought he saw Mrs. Johnson, who was alone on the rear seat, pitched out as the car hit the roadway.

Johnson himself described the accident as like to a car from Providence driven by Raymond F. Ford, swinging in front of him as he was descending Chamberlain's hill at Colchester. In trying to avoid the other car Johnson says he turned his car quickly and applied the brakes. A rear wheel crumpled, the car left the roadway, the brakes would not work and the machine struck a fence snapping off several posts.

Johnson says he turned to see if his mother was all right and she was missing from the seat. When the car stopped both he and Wickham, who were unhurt went to his mother's aid. She was brought to the Hartford hospital.

Ford had with him a party of four. As his machine was but slightly damaged in contact with Johnson's machine as the latter swung off the road he proceeded.

The Johnsons were on their way to New London.

COUNTY HOME CHILDREN INVITED TO 101 RANCH SHOW

Through Norwich lodge of Elks, the management of Miller Bros.' 101 Ranch is providing a pleasurable afternoon today (Tuesday) for the children at the county home on Smith avenue, Norwich.

An invitation has been given the children, with the matron, Miss Jessie Gibson and assistants, to be guests of the Miller Brothers at the performance at the Fair Ground. Nearly fifty of the older children of the home will make up the happy party, who will revel in the sights of real Indians, brave cowboys, camels, elephants, bands, desert sheiks and a thousand and one attractions which go to make up the show—for East and West combine, in this mammoth aggregation.

Every member of Norwich lodge of Elks is as pleased over the generous invitation from the Miller management as are the delighted children themselves.

FIXES PARKING PLAN AT NEW HAVEN STATION

The promised action by the New Haven railroad to make the space at the station available for parking was carried out Monday when an announcement was made by R. M. Smith, superintendent, of the terms upon which parking at the station space will be allowed.

The announcement is published in The Bulletin this (Tuesday) morning, stating that a fee of 25 cents is to be charged. This nominal sum takes care of the expense to the railroad of having some one on hand to manage the parking space.

There will be satisfaction in learning that some workable plan has been reached by which this space can be used. Mayor Waters, the common council and the Chamber of Commerce have been working towards this end ever since the railroad put its general closing order into effect.

169TH INFANTRY IS IN CAMP AT NIANTIC

Crowding two special trains of 15 cars each the longest that has ever traveled the Valley branch, the 169th Infantry, C. N. G., commanded by Col. L. Gordon Hunter, comprising troops from Hartford and vicinity, arrived in Camp Niantic Sunday morning to find their tents ready, the company streets marked out and even the company kitchens and headquarters buildings in place. All that was necessary was to fill the bedticks with straw and the regiment was ready for business. Captain J. D. Pettibone with an advance detail and 13 trucks had created the camp, and was down at the station to meet the trains when they arrived.

Friday, July 10, has been set aside as Governor's day, when there will be an exhibition of howitzer and machine gun work at Giants Neck in the morning, followed by a luncheon to the governor in the officers' mess. The afternoon will be devoted to military evolutions of various kinds, closing with regimental review.

MEASURING PURCHASING POWER IN STATE OF CONNECTICUT

How the purchasing power of the people in the state of Connecticut compares with that in New York, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Illinois, California and all the other states will be authoritatively shown in the report of an investigation now being completed by the National Bureau of Economic Research, 474 West 24th street, New York.

In addition to showing the changes in total cash income received by the inhabitants in each state from year to year, the bureau's forthcoming report will indicate the changes in the buying capacity of these cash dollars in respect to various kinds of commodities.

Useful Results Expected

By furnishing more scientific data than is now available, the bureau's work is expected to have a beneficial result in helping to eliminate some of the wastes now caused by misdirected selling efforts; to make taxation issues clearer; and to aid all who are desirous of understanding national economic conditions.

Entitled "Income in Various States, Its Amount and Distribution, 1919, 1920 and 1921," this report will give the results of an investigation which has required more than two years' work by Dr. Willford I. King; Mr. Maurice Leven, and a corps of assistants—all under the general direction of Dr. Edwin F. Gay, Professor of Economic History at Harvard University, and Dr. Wesley C. Mitchell, Professor of Economics at Columbia University, who are the co-directors of the research staff of the National Bureau of Economic Research.

Preliminary examination of the material already worked up indicates that the forthcoming report will cover more than 300 printed pages. It will include not only a study of income from the national point of view, but a detailed description of the economic status of the people in each of the 48 states and in the District of Columbia.

Under the bureau's by-laws, all reports of its research staff must be submitted, for critical comment and review, to a board of directors, who represent all the important factors in society which view economic problems from divergent angles. In this way all danger of personal opinion or bias entering into the findings is eliminated, and facts and statistical conclusions only are presented in the final report.

One of the most important parts of the report will deal with the economic phenomena of the post war boom and reaction. Up till now there has been no single place the answers to such questions as;

Was there an immense increase in the income of the people of the United States in 1919 and 1920, and a tremendous drop in 1921? If so, were the changes real? Did they affect the ability of the people to buy goods, or were they merely changes in the nominal values, resulting from fluctuations in the purchasing power of the dollar?

Light on Agricultural Situation

Another important section will show how the agricultural interests of the United States actually fared when business collapsed in the latter part of 1921. Included in these findings will be the answers to such questions as:

In which states did the farmers borrow most heavily from the banks?

What are the chief sources of farm income in each state?

What are the major farm expenses?

In which states is the welfare of the farmer the dominant factor?

Other interesting problems which these data are expected to solve are:

Did the panic and boom effect the owner of the nation's industries or was the brunt borne by the employes?

Who suffered most, salaried employes or wage earners?

How did the distribution of income among the different states change between the prosperous year of 1919 and the depression period of 1921?

How does population growth affect volume of construction in different parts of the United States?

Many Sources of Information

Since the issuance of the bureau's first report on the subject of income in the United States, more than three years ago, many additional sources of information have been found, a number of new collections of statistical data have become available, and several improved methods of utilizing the material on hand have been devised. For these reasons, most of Dr. King's time and that of his assistants has since 1922 been spent in improving the estimates of income for the years 1909 to 1918, and in extending the figures to cover 1921.

Income as used in this report is defined as the sum of those kinds of individual book incomes commonly accounted for in terms of money. If every individual kept an account set of private accounts, and thereby arrived at his net money income for the year, and if all these net incomes were added together, the resulting totals would be those which this report will attempt to approximate.

Facts Relate to 40,000,000 Persons

These figures should not be confused with tax returns. They involve research far more comprehensive than merely classifications based upon Internal Revenue Department documents. They represent as nearly as possible, the actual incomes earned, received by or imputed to every income earner or income receiver in the United States. The determination of this "actual income" requires the study of the facts relating to the income of over 40,000,000 people. Tax data cover less than 7,000,000 and then owing to exemptions do not give a true picture of even that fraction of income receivers.

REPORTS MANAGEMENT OF MYSTIC MFG. RECEIVERSHIP

A statement of the way he has managed the receivership of the Mystic Manufacturing Co. from Feb. 9, 1924 to June 17, 1925 has been presented in the superior court by the receiver, W. Z. White, and has been approved by Judge Waller.

Receiver White's statement is as follows:

On Feb 9, 1924, I was appointed temporary receiver of the Mystic Mfg. Co. by Judge Christopher L. Avery of the superior court of New London county and was confirmed as permanent receiver on March 7, 1924.

This company was incorporated for $250,000, and has bonds outstanding to the amount of $190,000 (secured by a first mortgage on the company's two mills at Mystic, Conn., and Ashaway, R. I.). At the time of the receivership the Mystic mill had 56 looms, which had been running on part time and the Ashaway mill had 36 looms, which had been idle for quite a few months.

Immediately upon my appointment I arranged to give up practically all the work upon which I was engaged in order to devote my full time to the receivership and for over a year I was at the mill, directing operations or out of town on business for the mill.

The same day I was appointed and before I could reach the mill to take possession of the assets, the Chautauqua Worsted Mills had replevined a large quantity of yarn in the mill which they claimed they shipped on an incorrect financial statement and from the very beginning the receivership had been involved in litigation which required the constant attention of both the counsel and the receiver.

The mill has taken orders for spring delivery and it was necessary to complete these orders or be liable for damages as practically all of our customers had received sample pieces and were absolutely dependent upon the mill to make delivery. I therefore took complete charge of the running of the mill, accepted the resignation of the former manager and several other of the mill employes, reducing the overhead charges about $15,000 a year and devoted all my time in an attempt to put the mill back on a paying basis. For the first few months the mill did fairly well but due to the fact that the Chautauqua Worsted Mills refused to ship further yarn, I lost the account of S. Stein & Co., our largest customer, and that seriously curtailed the production of the mill. In addition to losing the Stein account, business conditions in the textile industry in 1924 were the worst they have been in 15 years and practically every woolen and worsted mill in the east experienced large losses.

I took numerous trips to New York to try to book new business for the mill and tried to get out a line of women's wear which would keep us running until the market for men's fancy worsted was revived, but soon after we started on the women's wear that market also went to pieces and after a consultation with Judge Waller I decided to close the mill down, which I did on Nov. 1st.

Before the receivership, a creditors' committee was formed and the receiver and his counsel kept fully informed of the situation through numerous meetings which were held from time to time. Toward the latter part of July, 1924, the receiver and the committee decided it would be for the best interest of all parties to try to sell the mill if a purchaser could be obtained and the committee recommended in a letter to the creditors that they would agree to such a sale and would accept a settlement of ten cents on the dollar.

I had numerous conferences with possible purchasers, but all the negotiations fell through on account of the large mortgage of $190,000 which was considered by these possible purchasers too large an obligation to assume.

It finally came down to the point of either allowing the bondholders to foreclose or attempt to interest local capital in organizing a new company to take over the equity in the mill as it was manifestly impossible for the receiver to pay the carrying charges on this property for any considerable length of time as these charges amounted to between three and four thousand dollars a month.

I was finally able to sell the equity under a court order to the Mystic Worsted Mills Inc., who took over the Mystic Mill as of Dec. 1, 1924, and I was later able to find a purchaser for the Ashaway Mill which sale was consummated in April 1925.

One of the assets taken over by the receiver was a claim against the government for cancellation of war contracts and a suit had been instituted in the court of claims.

I prepared the detailed account in support of this claim involving an amount of about $35,000 and I have been in constant touch with the developments both in Washington and Mystic. The preparation of this claim as well as the large amount of accounting work in connection with this receivership was personally handled by me as receiver and the estate was therefore saved the expense of employing outside public accountants.

Class Picnic Arranged

The annual picnic of the Haviland class of the United church will be held Thursday morning at Mrs. Eva Tefft's, Trading Cove. A large number of members are expected to go to join in the program arranged for the day.

SEASON IS BEGINNING IN NORWICH PLAYGROUNDS

This week will ushed in the playground season of 1925. Instructors and playground commission alike anticipate the most successful season in the history of Norwich. Anticipation will blossom into realization if the residents of Norwich will pledge their hearty cooperation during the coming summer months.

Allied with Superintendent Earl E. Brigham this year is a most competent corps of workers. As a special feature of 1925 four new offices have been established; department of handicraft, department of dramatics, official playground referee, and department of calisthenics and swimming.

Several new faces grace this year's playground staff yet all these new men and women come with the finest of recommendations.

One most important suburb, Greeneville, can count itself lucky in having a second season under the auspices of Edward Sullivan and his assistant, Miss Celina Bowen, both veterans of last year.

Miss Bowen is a graduate of the Willimantic Normal school. The fact that she has chosen teaching as a career is a recommendation in itself. As her work of last season so well proved, Miss Bowen is wholeheartedly interested in her playground. A native of Greeneville she has always recognized the wisdom of the slogan, "Greeneville for Greeneville."

Basing the decision on services received the recreation commission very wisely chose Coach Sullivan to guide the destiny of the Greeneville playground center for another term. Mr. Sullivan is a junior at Holy Cross college, Worcester, Mass. For two years he was connected with the managerial staff of the Holy Cross A. A., an organization which boasts of the finest college baseball team in the country. These two years filled as they were with intimate association with some of America's best college athletes, have brought Mr. Sullivan much in the way of athletic wisdom. A close follower of athletes, Coach Sullivan's work has been best exhibited through the medium of his baseball team of the past season.

At Lake street this year will be Terrence Finnegan and Miss Irene Werth. Miss Werth has come to the work from Willimantic Normal school. Although new to the playground movement she has given sufficient evidence of her charming personality and ready ability to indicate her competentness.

Terrence Finnegan for the past year has been a student at St. Mary's Theological Seminary, Baltimore, Md. Mr. Finnegan, while "prepping" at St. Thomas' Seminary, Hartford, displayed many proofs of his athletic ability. More than once has this young man earned the "coveted" S. T. S. on diamond and basket ball floor. The children of State street have welcomed him with open arms; Lake street has already begun to appreciate the merits of her "Ted."

The people of the West Side will be glad to hear of the reappointment of Matthew J. Sheridan as head coach of the Elizabeth street playground. Miss Margaret Shugrue, his able assistant of last year, will again fill the same capacity.

For the past year Miss Shugrue has been studying physical education at Dr. Arnold's Gymnastic school, New Haven. Miss Shugrue needs no recommendation. Two years of service have convinced the children of Elizabeth street that they are indeed fortunate in having Miss Shugrue as a teacher and friend.

The testimony of one season alone has been sufficient to assume the commission of the rare ability and forceful personality of Matthew J. Sheridan, who possesses that most sought after "knack" of properly handling boys. His great success last year on track and field will bear this witness.

Mr. Sheridan is a senior at Holy Cross college. As ascholar of high rank, he has always displayed a dominating personality and a passion for organization. On the gridiron Mr. Sheridan had displayed much athletic prowess, being prominent in class athletics while at college.

The East Side will again see the familiar face of Miss Viola Walz. Miss Walz successful completion of the 1921 season could but give proof of earnest effort and endeavor in behalf of her native district.

Miss Catherine Farrell is not a stranger to Hobart avenue have served experience on her grounds have served only to the advantage of her playground. Anyone who has seen any of her domestic work on exhibit, will readily agree that she exercises a magic spell over hte singers, needles and crochet thread of her pupils.

Miss Eleanor Counihan has been appointed to manage the Thamesville playground. Although unusued to playground work, Miss Counihan wants nothing of the qualities requisite in a competent teacher.

In the Falls district Miss Eunice Taft, of Greeneville, has been appointed as successor to Miss Mary O'Neill. As regards Miss Taft's capabilities as playground instructress, if the combined effect of personality and popularity of this talented amateur actress count for aught, is amply equipped for the work.

Miss Justine Morrison, of New Haven and Norwich, has returned as a playground worker, Miss Morrison, during Mr. Bruce's regime as playground supervisor, was rated as one of Norwich's best woman directors. Aided as she is by her experience in the art of pedagogy, Miss Morrison can look forward to a very happy summer at the Laurel Hill grounds.

As a specialist of handicraft, the playground association has chosen Mrs. Clarence Smith. Mrs. Smith, past master as she is in her chosen line, promises to fire her work with all the zeal of real interest and devotion.

The authority on dramatics this year will be Miss Catherine Dodd. Miss Dodd is well qulified to fill the post as she has had two years of experience on the Lake street ground.

To cope with the need of daily practise in calisthenics on the playgrounds, the commission has this year appointed Charles Sage as special instructor in this form of endeavor. Along with calisthenics Mr. Sage promises very interesting classes in swimming and diving.

As an athlete Mr. Sage has already given good proof of himself. In the athletic annals of the N. F. A. are traced the achievement of "Charlie" on gridiron and track. For the past three years Instructor Sage has been a student at Temple university, Philadelphia, where he has been majoring in physical education.

To mitigate the conditions, close bordering on riot, which were quite prevalent at inter-playground athletic contests in the past, a new position has been created that of official playground referee and umpire. John P. Murphy, formerly of the Elizabeth street playgrounds, has been appointed to fill the requirements of this new position.

As coach of the Elizabeth street senior baseball team of 1924 which tied for hte championship, Mr. Murphy has gained much experience, in handling of playground contests.

Mr. Brigham feels that with the establishing of a neutral play center the Academy campus, much bitter rivalry which naturally occurs when one playground team visits its rival's grounds, will be eliminated. The recreation commission wish it clearly understood that the official referee, placed as he is on a neutral ground, is absolutely unpartisan and consequently the barbs of personal enemies should not be launched at him because of past services to another playground.

SICK WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Can Be Carried Comfortably Over The Critical Period by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound —Note Mrs. Headden's Case

Macon, Georgia. — "During the Change of Life I suffered with my whole right side and could not lie on my left side. I was in bed about two months and could not get up only as my son would lift me. After doctoring without relief a man who was rooming with us told my son that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured his mother at the Change of Life, so I began taking your medicine. After taking it for two weeks I could get out of my bed by myself. I am now 53 years old and in better health and stronger than ever in my life. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to many suffering women, young and old, and you may use my name anywhere as long as you please. I will be glad to answer any letters sent to me." — Mrs. F. B. HEADDEN, 5 Holt Avenue, Macon, Georgia.

In a recent country-wide canvass of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, over 200,000 replies were received and 98 out of every 100 reported they had been benefited by its use. Sold by druggists everywhere.

CZECHO-SLOVAKIA READY TO DISCUSS U. S. WAR DEBT

Has Joined Other European Nations In Assuring United States Of Its Willingness To Negotiate For Debt Refunding—Washington Advised That Note Will Be Dispatched Soon By Prague Government With Regard To Its Obligations To This Country—Total Debt To This Country Totals $90,000,000 Or More.

WASHINGTON, July 7—(A. P.)—Czecho-Slovakia has joined France, Belgium, Italy and Esthonia in assuring the United States of its willingness to refund its debt.

The state department has been informally advised by the legation here that a few days an official note would be dispatched by the Prague government announcing full acknowledgement of its post war reconstruction obligations and its readiness to enter negotiations for a settlement.

In addition to the acknowledged debt, amounting to about $80,000,000 a further amount of about $10,000,000 is due the United States for expenses incurred by this government in the transportation of Czecho Slovak troops from Siberia to their country in 1919 and 1920. (The amount of the latter debt has not been definitely agreed upon, but the Czecho-Slovaks government is understood to be ready to negotiate a settlement for the larger amount now and apply the same terms to the smaller sum as soon as its amount is fixed.

LIQUOR LIMIT CASE TO COURT OF APPEALS

WASHINGTON, July 7—(A. P.)—Conflict of contentions in two federal court decisions has promoted the department of justice to take to the circuit court of appeals for determination the question how far off the American shores, coastguard officers may seize vessels for carrying liquor.

The case which will be appealed is that involving the American steamer Underwriter, while hwas ordered released by Federal Judge Thomas of the district court of Connecticut, on the ground that coastguard and customs officials were not authorized to board and search vessels beyond the 12-mile limit prescribed in the tariff act.

That decision was in direct contrast to one rendered by Federal Judge Hutchinson of the southern district of Texas in the case of the British vessel Panama, in which it was held that the coast guard did have the right to search and seize vessels beyond the 12-mile limit. Judge Hutchinson further held that a vessel may be forfeited none district for an offense in another.

Under the liquor treaties between the United States and several foreign countries, vessels of the treaty nations suspected of carrying liquor may be searched an hour's sailing distance from shore, with no definite limitation prescribed.

THREE LARGE TOBACCO SHEDS BLOWN DOWN

WINDSOR, Conn., July 7—(A. P.)—A wind, hail and thunderstorm which swept over the north part of this town late today left damage in its wake estimated at several thousands of dollars. New Haven's Ward Row Gets Into Court Defense Moves To Dissolve Injunction Against Republican Town Committee—Court Adjourns Until Friday.

BRIDGEPORT, July 7.—(AP)—Judge John R. Booth, sitting in chambers, heard today testimony on the part of appellants and most of the arguments in the injunction proceedings of Hugh F. Reilly, who claims the chairmanship of the 27th ward republican committee of New Haven and whom the republican town committee refused to seat, against the republican town committee of that city, over the status of a ward committee alleged to have been elected at a ward caucus on the evening of May 6. At the conclusion of the lengthy arguments, a motion to dissolve the injunction was offered. Judge Booth said he would rule on the motion by Thursday noon. If the court rules against dissolving the injunction, the hearing will be continued on Friday morning when about 15 witnesses are scheduled to be heard as to the alleged "rump" caucus which elected two committees, both of which the town committee refused to recognize.

Reilly was on the stand this afternoon, and was cross-examined by Attorney Samuel A. Persky, for the town committee. Reilly testified that he had been elected chairman of the ward committee after the committee had been elected, and that after the caucus he named Mrs. Mary Brunno, vice chairman of the ward.

Attorney Persky demanded to know, "who was Mrs. Bruno appointed by?" And after Reilly made various statements, the attorney appealed to Judge Booth to compel a direct answer, and Reilly said the appointment was "by seven members of the ward committee."

The testimony presented by the appellants contended that the ward caucus had been regularly called under an order of the town chairman, and that Reilly had been elected chairman, and a committee chosen which was unfavorable to the predominant republican organization in New Haven. The town committee after hearing that there had been a contest in the 27th ward, appointed a committee of credentials, which in turn reported that there had been no legal election, and another call for a ward caucus was issued for June 27, Judge Booth was informed.

Judge Leonard J. Nickerson issued an injunction against the holding of the second caucus on the application of Reilly, on the ground that the election of May 6, was conducted in accordance with the town committee rules and the republican state committees' rules, and that the committee as chosen was duly qualified and legally elected.

At the cross-examination of Reilly, Attorney Persky offered a motion to dissolve the injunction. He contended that courts of equity could not interfere in a political organization, which must be controlled by the party itself.

Attorney Milton C. Isbell, of Ansonia, for the appellants, replied that since 1900 courts had often seen fit to take jurisdiction in regulating political parties.

A recess was taken until Friday.

EVOLUTION CONTEST "A DUEL TO THE DEATH"

DAYTON, Tenn., July 7.—(AP)—The contest between evolution and christianity is "a duel to the death," William Jennings Bryan declared tonight in an address at a dinner given in his honor by the Progressive Dayton Club in the dining room of the hotel Aqua.

"It has been in the past a death grapple in the dark," said Mr. Bryan, who arrived here today in preparation for the trial of John T. Scopes, charged with violating the Tennessee statute against teaching evolution in the public schools.

"From this time on it will be a death grapple in the light."

Mr. Bryan associated with counsel for the prosecution, was guest of the club which two weeks ago entertained Clarence Darrow of defense counsel. The fundamentalist leader was introduced tonight by Wallace Haggard, of the prosecution counsel. A welcome to Dayton was extended by John L. Godsey, of defense.

Actor Shot By Chorus Girl Wife

Allen Davis, Understudy To The Leading Man In "White Cargo" In Serious Condition At New York Hospital.

NEW YORK, July 7.—(AP)—Allen Davis, 26, understudy to the leading man in the play White Cargo, was shot in the shoulder and head tonight by his chorus girl wife, in an apartment where he was dining with two friends. He was taken to the Polyclinic hospital in a serious condition.

Mrs. Davis, known professionally as Edith Parker, entered the the apartment as her husband was dining with Melville Anderson and Harry Wagstaff Gribble, playwright.

"I want to see my husband alone," she said.

Anderson and Gribble invited her to dine with them, but she again requested to see her husband alone. Passing through the kitchenette into a bedroom, she and Davis held a brief conversation.

A few seconds later Anderson and Gribble heard reports of a revolver. Mrs. Davis returned to the dining room and, eluding the two men, ran to the street. In running down the steps of the house she lost the heel of one of her shoes.

Detectives Owens, Leech and Woods, of the Broadway squad, passing in an automobile, saw the woman running and stopped her. When they learned the cause of her flight they arrested her and she was held charged with felonious assault.

The actor was placed under the care of Dr. Thomas Russell, who recently operated on Earl Sande, the jockey. An immediate operation was ordered.

Anderson and Gribble were at a loss to account for Mrs. Davis' motive in shooting her husband. After the shooting and Mrs. Davis' flight, the injured man crawled on his hands and knees into the dining room. Anderson and Gribble applied first-aid treatment until the arrival of an automobile, in which he was taken to the hospital.

At the police station Mrs. Davis refused to talk.

MAN KILLED WHEN BOLT HIT TREE

BOSTON, July 7.—(AP)—One death, a number of injuries and thousands of dollars worth of property damage had been reported through eastern Massachusetts early tonight from a series of severe thunder storms which brought relief from the heat which sent the thermometer to 95 at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

A motorcyclist, who sought refuge under a tree in Medford when a terrific storm swept down the Mystic river valley was killed when a bolt struck the tree. In Watertown a standing trolley was struck, but it was said no passengers were injured.

In greater Boston the suburban districts felt the greatest force of the storms and many buildings were reported struck. Numerous small fires were started, telephone and electric light wires failed and street and sidewalks were washed out or submerged by a two hour downpour that reached cloudburst proportions in many sections.

TWO WOMEN HURT IN SHELTON AUTO CRASH

SHELTON, July 7.—(AP)—In a crash between the Packard coupe of Walter B. Lasher, president of the American Chain Company of Bridgeport, and a small truck, loaded with sand, on Howe avenue, Shelton, yesterday afternoon, the Misses Margery and Maxine Wright, who were riding on the truck, were quite badly lacerated and bruised. Both cars were proceeding up Howe avenue, which at this point is wide and straightaway, and just why Mr. Lasher drove his machine into the rear of the truck will be explained in the Shelton Police court next Monday morning.

The two injured young girls are the daughters of Howard Wright, proprietor of Wright's Garage, and owner of the truck. It was being driven by Francis Sullivan, who was also injured in the collision and later collapsed. Mr. Lasher escaped uninjured. Both machines were badly wrecked.

LOUNSBURY'S ESTATE MAY TOTAL TWO MILLIONS

RIDGEFIELD, Conn., July 7.—(AP)—Although the hearing scheduled for this afternoon before Probate Judge Scott, on the admission of the will of the late former Governor Phineas C. Lounsbury, was continued for two weeks, a copy of the will was made public here today. The original will is still sealed, and will not be opened until the hearing is held, it was stated.

The will was drawn Feb. 8, 1921, and a codicil, the date of which appears on the copy as "December, 1925," was added. Collector of the Port Harvey P. Bissell was one of the witnesses to the codicil.

The will disposes of an estate that is variously estimated at from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000.

PRES. COOLIDGE AIMS AT GENERAL TAX REDUCTION

Relief Legislation Will Be Presented To Next Session Of Congress—President Aims At Big Slash In Surtax Rates—May Sanction Maximum Surtax Rate As Low As 12 Per Cent—Present 40 Per Cent Rate Prevents Proper Development Of Business And Cuts Down Possible Government Revenue.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 7.—(A. P.)—General relief for all tax payers in legislation to be undertaken at the next session of congress is the aim of President Coolidge. He wants particular emphasis centered, however, on a slash in the surtax rates.

Mr. Coolidge who urged adoption of the Mellon plan proposing a maximum surtax rate of 25 per cent. in the last tax reduction fight in prepared, if experts ask for it, to sanction a maximum surtax rate even as low as 12 per cent. He will leave formulation of a bill in the hands of the house ways and means committee and treasury officials.

Present surtax rates with a maximum of 40 per cent. prevent a proper development of business as well as cutting down the amount of possible revenue to the government, the president believes. He thinks money is being withdrawn from enterprises to non-taxable investments as a means of evading the higher tax rates.

While desiring relief also for the small taxpayers the president is not prepared to outline a definite programme. The rate of two per cent. on incomes under $4,000 now applies.

SPLAIN AWAITING ORDERS ON MOVIE TAX LAW

NEW HAVEN, July 7.—(AP)—Tomorrow will mark a "crisis point" in the controversy over the application of the new motion picture tax and censorship law, which is to be the subject of a hearing before a special United States court here Friday. According to the ruling of Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett, any picture exhibited in the state tomorrow and subsequently is presumed to have been shipped into the state after July 1, when the new law went into effect.

That there will be a violation of the law, under this interpretation, was certain tonight, because not a single application for registration of a motion picture has been made at the office here of John J. Splain, special agent of the tax comoissioner, under the new law. According to the new law application for registration of films to be exhibited in the state must be made at the office of the tax commissioner, or the local office, seven days prior to the date on which it is proposed to exhibit the picture.

Mr. Splain said he would not make any move towards enforcement of the law unless he received orders from the tax commissioner's office in Hartford. He had not received any orders to this effect tonight, he said.

It is believed that the motion picture men are refraining from complying with the provisions of the new law in order to get a test case into the courts.

GRAIN MARKETING CO. WILL BE DISSOLVED

CHICAGO, July 7.—(A. P.)—The $26,000,000 Grain Marketing company, the largest farmer co-operative project ever attempted, will be dissolved banker creditors here were notified today.

The properties, valued at $16,407,000 will be returned to the grain companies comprising the merger, which had for its object the eventful control of the company by farmer producers. None of the parties concerned, either banker creditors or farmer stockholders, will lose money through the dissolution.

The company was incorporated a year ago as a co-operative, under provisions of recent agricultural legislation. Four old line grain companies proposed to lease their properties to the co-operative and participate on a temporary basis as a board of managers.

The operators were also holders of $40,000,000 worth of stock, given in exchange for an advance of working capital, which was to be retired when an equivalent amount of stock was sold to farmers. Failure of the company to persuade enough farmers to buy stock within the time allowed under the contract for retirement of the $4,000,000 of stock was held responsible for the impending dissolution.

The impending dissolution was disclosed suddenly while officers and counsel of the company were issuing reassuring statements about its affairs.

It was at first indicated that officers and directors of the company hoped for aid from a financing syndicate in meeting the obligations to the merger companies, which were originally to have been met by sale of stock to farmers. Officers of the co-operative denied they knew anything about the dissolution and would not admit that banker-creditors had taken any action.

The financial and agricultural world was startled a year ago by the announcement that the J. Rosenbaum Grain Corporation, Rosenbaum Brothers and the Armour Grain Company, all members of the Chicago Board of Trade, and the Davis-Noland-Merrill Company of Kansas City, Mo., had merged as the basis for a huge co-operative venture.

A special grain marketing committee of the American Farm Bureau Federation, after deliberation, approved a plan and officers of the federation became incorporators of the co-operative company.

The company signed a contract leasing the elevators and Gray Silver, West Virginia Apple Grower, and Washington Lobbyist for the American Farm Bureau Federation, resigned to become president of the co-operative and J. W. Coverdale of Iowa, secretary of the American Farm Bureau Federation became secretary of the corporation while O. E. Bradfute of Ohio, president of the farm organization, became a director of the co-operative.

OWNERS PREPARE TO MEET MINE WORKERS

PHILADELPHIA, July 7.—(A. P.)—Anthracite operators met here today preliminary to meeting the representatives of the hard coal mine workers in joint wage conference at Atlantic City on Thursday. After the meeting it was announced that the mine owners would have nothing to make public until Thursday's meeting at the seashore. Not even a list of those present was authorized.

It was learned, however, that today's conference was for the purpose of completing the operators' plan for meeting the United Mine Workers in the first session at this session, according to present arrangements, the miners will formally present their demands formulated at a tri-district convention in Scranton last week. These include a ten per cent. increase in contract rates, $1.00 a day increase for men paid by the day and complete recognition of the union which carries with it the check-off whereby the union dues are collected at the mines. The operators are expected to reject the demands as presented, after which it is probable the question of drafting a new wage agreement will be placed in the hands of a small subcommittee. The present wage contracts expire August 31.

BRIDGEPORT MAN IS PROSTRATED BY HEAT

BRIDGEPORT, July 7—(A. P.)—One case of heat prostration thus far is the toll of the current spell of humid weather under which the city lies. Morris Pache, 50, an employe in the garage of the Huber Ice Cream company's factory 500 Seaview avenue, collapsed in the building at about 4 this afternoon. The city ambulance doctor upon arrival, treated Pache for heat prostration, and advised taking him to the hospital, but at his request he was taken to his home in Sylvan avenue.

WILLIMANTIC

The weekly luncheon of the Willimantic Rotary Club was held in the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday noon, with President John F. Ahern, in charge. With the beginning of the warm weather the entertainment program was omitted and this practice will be continued until September, with the exception of an evening meeting to be held at Scotland Grange, July 28 and another night luncheon to be held sometime in August. Guests of the club were Attorney Howard Bradford of the Putnam Club and Carl Ericsson, Rotarian of Ridgefield, N. J., and director of Camp Tunxis, Branford. Valentine L. Murphy was given a welcome, after an absence of a few weeks due to illness. President Ahern called for the organization of a paper instrument band but when it was discovered that the horns were not in the building the perspective bandsmen revolved into a choral club. The singers were: Dr. M. D. Rhorer, Aime J. Martineau, Frank H. Fish, Lou Kingsbury, Albert Smith, Jim Fullerton, P. D. Donahue, Roland Jordan, Jim Mustard and Gerard Loiselle.

Harry Standish spoke in regard to the inter-city meeting at Jewett City, July 16, and a number of the members signified their intention of going. Jerry Sullivan brought up the matter of an eleven year old boy, crippled, who needs financial backing for an operation at Hartford. At a board of directors meeting which followed the luncheon it was voted to bear the expense of the hospital board for four weeks, further action to be taken later, if necessary. The directors also voted to pay the expenses of a young high school athlete who is ill and will be sent to a farm to recuperate. The young mans expenses will be paid for six weeks.

A committee of three, consisting of President John Ahern, Secretary Gerard E. Lowell and Past President Harry W. Standish was named as a membership committee, to make a preliminary survey to lay the ground work for new classifications. Adjournment was taken at 1:40 o'clock.

The funeral of Mrs. Julia A. Rice widow of Ex-Mayor Daniel P. Rice, was held from her home, 205 Summer street, Tuesday morning. In a solemn mass of sequiem, at St. Joseph's church at nine o'clock, Rev. Hubert E. Quinn, the pastor, was celebrant, Rev. Dennis F. Mugan of South Coventry, was deacon and Rev. Paul Cardinal, was sub-deacon. Hundreds of friends attended the services, as an evidence of the high esteem in which Mrs. Rice was held. There were beautiful flowers. Mrs. Edmund R. Porteous was at the organ, as accompanist to a trio, Mrs. Henry Mathieu, Miss L. Monica McKeon and Mrs. [illegible], "Abide With Me" was sung and at the offertory Miss McKeon rendered, "Pie Jesu." The waiting hymn was "Thy Will Be Done" by Mrs. Mathieu. "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung as a recessional. Rev. Father Bartlewski read the committal service at the grave in the St. Joseph's cemetery. The bearers were, John Hurley, James McDonald, William Dunn, William Jenkins, Edward Grienheimer and Carl Schiller, a delegation of the St. Anne's Charitable Society of which Mrs. Dunn was a member attended. Arrangements were in charge of Hollourey Brothers.

The charges of running down and injuring injuries to Frank Larkham and evading responsibility by not making known his identity, were noted, in the continued case of Charles Deschener, which was disposed of in police court Tuesday morning. Deschener pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving on the evidence of Larkham, who stated that the man was driving quickly when he was struck down on Jackson street. Larkham's hands were bandaged and there were bruises on his face. Judge Fenn imposed a fine of $25 and costs, remitting $15 of the fine. Deschener paid a total of $16.5.

Howard W. Green was charged with non-support, in the police court, Tuesday morning. His wife from whom he has been separated for some time, was the complainant. Evidence brought out the fact that Green had been regularly paying $14 a week toward the support of their four children, who are at the Gilbert Home in Windham. The case was nolled on the payment of the costs of the court, amounting to $5.

An innovation in the street building of the city is the laying of subterranean gutters at the intersection of Bank and Meadow streets, so that the water will flow beneath the street level, under concrete gutters. In the past, Meadow street, where it intersects Bank street has been like a section of a scenic Railway giving unwary automobilists a jouncing which often sent them to the top of the car, when driven over at any rate of speed exceeding three miles per hour. With the new underground gutters the street will be leveled off so that one can drive right along without danger of a broken neck.

That the day turned out hot Tuesday, goes without saying. Everyone was fully aware of it especially those who can make the scale hand jump around to the quarter of twelve position on time pieces.

Mrs. Cora A. Chase Thompson, 69, wife of Burt G. Thompson, of 275 Prospect street, this city died at a Hartford hospital Tuesday morning about four o'clock. Mrs. Thompson was widely known here and a host of friends were shocked at the news of her death. She leaves, besides her husband a son, Harold Thompson of Hartford; a daughter, Mrs. Helen Mason of Queenstown, Md., and a sister, Miss Ida Davidson of this city. She was born May 22, 1856, a daughter of James B. and Martha Savage Davidson, and at the age of five was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Chase of Springfield, Mass.

Funeral services for Mrs. Delia A. Robinson were held at the North Windham church at two o'clock Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Joan H. Knott officiating. During the services the Temple quartet of Hartford sang, "Lead, Kindly Light," and "Nearer My God To Thee." The bearers were, John Burnham, Leslie Harrison, Robert Bates, Myron Lyon. Burial was in the North Windham cemetery, Avery and Van Zandt had charge of the arrangements.

The funeral services for Captain George Wood Shepard were held at 62 North street at one o'clock Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock of the Congregational church, officiated. There was a large attendance of friends. Burial was in Central Village cemetery. Arrangements were in charge of Avery and Van Zandt.

SAMUEL GOMPERS' SUCCESSOR ADDRESSED THREAD STRIKERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, July 7.—William Greene, president of the national order of the American Federation of Labor, and successor to the late Samuel J. Gompers, delivered an address, Tuesday, before a gathering of hundreds of strikers and their friends from an open platform at the newly-erected tent city on the Capen lot off the North Windham-Willimantic highway. Marking the official opening of the canvas homes of the evicted strikers of the American Thread company, a big parade of strikers and various building and trades unions was held. Braving a scorching sun, men and women, a number accompanied by children, marched two miles from upper Main street down the concrete pavement through the business section past the Thread company mills on lower Main street and down Natchaug street to the rows of tents pitched on the bank of Natchaug river.

The marchers were led by local union officials, the American flag being carried by William Lutton. Then came the B. P. O. E. band and Chapman's Continental Fife and Drum Corps, under Leader Captain Tifft. The long line moved over its route, followed up by automobiles bearing President Green, President Thomas F. McMahon of the United Textile Workers of America and President O'Meara of the State Federation.

Seated on the platform during the speaking were the several members of the executive board of the U. T. W. of A., and a number of national organizers. State President O'Meara introduced the speakers, first calling upon President McMahon, who in convincing language gave a comprehensive outline of the reasons for the calling of the strike of the 2,500 operatives of the Thread company. "It is," he said, "due to the arbitrary manner in which the board of directors of the American Thread company cut the wages by ten per cent., in the face of a profitable year (1924) when a minimum ten per cent. dividend was declared and $1,880,000 was added to their reserve fund." He continued to state that this profit was made while the company operated its mills only half of the year. Willimantic, he said, was a coining field for the company and the average wage was $20 per week.

President Greene, an enthusiastic and animated speaker, struck a responsive note in opening his remarks when he called out, in his official capacity, the greetings of five million united workers, who were watching with intense interest the history-making movement of the Willimantic strikers. He personally congratulated them on their solidarity. The keynote of his address was that it was unjustifiable for any corporation to reduce wages in order to enter the competitive market on the grounds that economy in production to eliminate an average of 30 per cent. in waste would not only enable the concern to thrive, but its increase in profits would warrant an increase, rather than a decrease in wages. "I quote Secretary Hoover, in stating the above," said President Green, "and I quote Judge Gary, of the steel industry, when I say that for a big corporation to slash its wages is economic and moral suicide while waste goes on and the cost of living increases, rather than decreases."

"There are reasons why a cut in wages is untimely," he continued, "is the cost of living down? Are rents lower? Are the demands of society less? Does the undertaker charge less? No, is the answer to all these questions. It may be possible that there is a downward trend to lower living standards but let them start at the proper place. They chose labor, but now the world is learning that labor represents the minute men of better living who will never take a backward step."

President Greene concluded by telling something of his career. He was a coal miner in Virginia for fifteen years and has been a member of the United Mine Workers of America for thirty-five years. Local city officials occupying seats on the platform were Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton, City Clerk James Schley, Donohue and Aldermen James J. Lee and William E. Jackson.

None of the tents are occupied at present and will not be, unless it becomes necessary. The evicted families have found housing in tenements located in various parts of the city.

The Tented City is an ideal place. Pitched near the river and in a level meadow a sharp breeze whips through the field on the hottest days. Running city water has been connected to the grounds.

BOLTON

Rev. Frederick Balcom supplied the pulpit at the Congregational church Sunday morning. Communion service was celebrated at that time. Following the usual service a church meeting was held and a call extended to Rev. Mr. Jones to become a pastor of the local church. Mr. Jones is now taking a post-graduate course at the Hartford Theological seminary.

Mrs. Bliss was elected a member of the standing committee to fill the vacancy caused by Mrs. Wolf moving from town.

Colton Bliss led the Christian Endeavor service Sunday evening, the subject was What Makes the Nation Great.

Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Thayer and two children returned Tuesday the 7th from a two weeks' vacation spent out of town.

Miss Ruth Prior has returned from a fortnight's visit with friends in Orange, Mass.

Miss Ida Holbrook, Mrs. R. S. Carrier and Miss Gertrude Carrier of Manchester recently visited Miss Holbrook's cousin, Mrs. William C. White.

The night of July third was well celebrated in town, the ringing of the church and school bells, the firing of cannon and cannon crackers proclaimed to all the date. The next morning showed much hard work had been accomplished over night, board walks being moved into other resting places old wagons were lifted to high places and a variety of work accomplished.

Mrs. O. W. Burt of North Haven who has been visiting in Thompsville, called on local friends last week.

All who are interested in music at the local Congregational church have been invited to meet at the home of Mrs. Clarabell Trishman, Thursday evening of this week.

Kenneth Prior of Springfield spent the week end with his mother Mrs. Henry Prior.

MANSFIELD CENTER

Rev. Edward Huntington Smith of Ingtai, China, who is at home on furlough after two periods of seven years each in the mission fields of that country, preached both here and at Spring Hill Sunday morning, bringing an encouraging report of the work in China.

Miss Amy Hawkins, the new president of the Christian Endeavor Society, invited the society to hold its business meeting and a social at her home Tuesday evening.

Among Fourth of July guests in town were Mr. and Mrs. Willis Homer and son, Porter of Toledo, Ohio and Mr. Homer's parents, from Bridgeport, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Wyman; Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Marshall and two children of South Manchester, at Mr. and Mrs. G. Clausson's; Mr. and Mrs. Uren of New Haven at the home of their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Dreesen and Mr. Dreesen, Jesse Inman of New York at the home of his parents and Mr. and Mrs. Warren C. Chaplin with Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Chapin at the family home.

Mr. and Mrs. Adrien Reed and five children of Mamaroneck, N. Y., are visiting Mrs. Reed's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George L. James.

Alfred Oden and family have been at the shore for a few days.

GOSHEN

Two hundred campers from New York city have arrived to enjoy eight weeks at camp Mooween.

The most unusual sight noted at nearly the noon hour July 3rd, was the flight of the mammoth airship Shenandoah, to the eastward. All workers in the hayfield stopped to witness the huge didigble.

Al Fargo has bought the James Kenyon farm, on the Scott Hill road.

People have enjoyed the fine Fourth of July celebration in Fitchville. In the evening there was the largest number of people ever seen on Goshen Hill, at the community picnic. Many popular selections were played by the South Windham band. There was a patriotic address, spiced with humor, by Rev. Stanley Sellick, pastor of the center church, Lebanon; also a recitation by Red Moon, a highly educated Indian girl from the Seminole tribe, southern Florida. She also described her people of the southland. The fireworks, a closing feature, were pronounced A.-No. 1.

The different numbers of the evenings fine entertainment received encores from an appreciative audience of over 600.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Fox with Mrs. George Moore of East Hartford spent the fourth with friends here.

On the ocean of life many a woman sails under false colors.

July 7. Samuel H. Davis to Howard C. Buck of Hartford, lot No. 6, Revised plot of Misquamicut Park. Samuel H. Davis to Ruth E. Mead of Providence, lot, No. 10, Revised plot of Misquamicut Park, near Watch Hill.

A Cadillac sedan of Elisha W. Browning, Boston Neck road, Narragansett Pier, was being operated down Franklin street Monday afternoon, about 4:30 o'clock when a door became opened. In reaching to close it the control of the car was lost and the automobile crashed into a stone wall, knocking it down on the property of Margaret M. Foley. Police Thomas E. Brown visited the place for investigation.

The funeral service for James M. Blake, was held Monday afternoon at two o'clock at the home of his nephew, Alexander M. Blake, Sr. at 9 Spruce street, Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, rector of Christ Episcopal church, officiated.

Burial was in River Bend cemetery. The bearers were nephews, Alexander M. Blake, Sr., Francis G. Haswell, Alexander M. Blake, Jr., Sidney Blake, Robert Blake, and George Morgan of New York. A delegation of members of Franklin lodge, No. 20, F. and A. M., including Worshipful Master Frederick N. Robinson, attended.

The funeral of Louis A. Colla was held Tuesday morning at 8:30 o'clock from his home at 9 Liberty street. Requiem high mass was celebrated at St. Michael's church at 9 o'clock by Rev. J. J. eKane. During the service, C. Leo Higgins sang "Thy Will Be Done," and Miss Theresa McMahon sang "Pie Jesu." Relatives and friends were present from New York city, Hoboken, N. J., eastern Pennsylvania, West Hoboken, N. J., Plainfield, N. J., and Norwich, Conn.

Burial was in St. Michael's old cemetery where committal service was read by Fr. Keane. The bearers were Fred LaFountaines, Stanley Hayes, Bray and John Foley.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Stedman and son, were week end guests of Mr. Stedman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stedman, in Westerly. Mr. Stedman returned the first of the week to his home, West New York, N. J., while his family remained for a longer visit.

Dr. C. P. Atwood and Dr. H. S Atwood returned Monday night from week end automobile visit to Lee, Mass.

Car loads of crushed stone have been spread in the new driveway approach to the west shelter of the Westerly station of the New Haven road. In the center of the circular drive loam has been spread and a flower bed will be maintained there.

Monday the work of oiling Granite street from the juncture of Broad and Elm street was begun, a force of highway workmen spreading gravel over the freshly oiled surface. Automobile traffic had to proceed with extreme caution.

Work on the new building for the United Theaters on Canal street has proceeded so far that in the north store of the block, the iron having been completed, the wooden floor joists were laid and a temporary wooden floor laid. From the weight of hollow tile placed on the cement sidewalk, the cement gave way Monday morning with a road as the tile slid into the cellar, missing a workman engaged there, but breaking the steel square we had been using.

A pretty party was held recently at Plainfield Community House, the guests being a number of little girls who have been meeting there each week for Brownie work, under the direction of Edith Birtwistle. The "Brownies" present were: Ursula Gobille, Savilla and Betty Holmes, Wattie and Dorothy Babcock, Mary Driscoll, Celia Obberman, Katherine Driscoll, Ellen Babcock, Olive Heneault and Hope Peterson. "Brownie" Mary Driscoll and "Brownie" Dorothy Babcock helped serve the ice-cream, cake and lemonade, which helped to make the party a real one. The Brownies will resume their work in the Fall.

At the July meeting of the Westerly Town Council Monday morning Dr. John Champlin appeared before the council in response to a letter received by him from George Carmichael, secretary of the Rhode Island State Board of Public Utilities, relative to a vote passed by the town councilmen and forwarded to the Utilities board in which complaint was made that a 10-cent extra toll charge for telephone calls between Westerly and Watch Hill from May 1 to Nov. 1, was not covered by their rates, and asked why the toll was made.

Dr. Champlin, president and general manager of the Westerly Automatic Telephone Company, stated that the toll charge was found in schedule 12, "T" of tolls. He told the council that the telephone company had been put to increasing expense in putting up telephone cables to Watch Hill, the last one being a 100-pair cable.

President Champlin presented figures showing that there were 185 subscribers in the Watch Hill exchange, as compared with the 1700 in Westerly.

At the end of the long explanation it developed that the Watch Hill subscribers paid $42 a year rental as compared with $32 per year charged Westerly house subscribers. Mr. Champlin said that the 10-cent toll added to incoming and outgoing calls from Watch Hill added to such a revenue to the receipts of the telephone company that if it were cancelled it would mean an increased telephone charge to Westerly subscribers.

Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr. asked President Champlin concerning the income of the Westerly Telephone Company, its capital stock, and rates of dividend. He learned that the company was capitalized at $200,000. He asked if $175,000 were not outstanding and if $25,000 had not recently been issued.

Mr Champlin said that the dividend rate was 8 per cent.

At the conclusion of the lengthy argument, in which Council President Campbell asked Dr. Champlin, after he had made a lengthy defense for his company, "Have you got any stock for sale?" Dr. Champlin stated that the rates of the Westerly Automatic Telephone company had been approved by the Rhode Island Public Utility Commission and again in 1917.

As presented by Councilman G. B. Utter it was voted:

That since Charles J. Butler wishes to be relieved of his duties as a member of the board of highway commissioners of Westerly, and he has served faithfully and diligently as a member of that board since it was established in 1916, not only as a member but as chairman.

During that time and under his direction the town of Westerly has undertaken a system of modern highway construction and maintenance, and since Mr. Butler's medical advisers have found it necessary for him to retire from all active duties outside of his own personal affairs, the Town Council expressed the appreciation of the pepole of Westerly for the services rendered by Mr. Butler during all these years, hoped that Mr Butler may so regain his health so that he may again serve the people of the community whenever called, and his resignation was accepted to take effect immediately.

Councilman Utter then named Harvey C. Perry as a highway commissioner to fill the vacancy and he was voted elected.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Daly of New York are spending their vacation at Joseph Daley's, in Westerly.

Mr. and Mrs. William McCormick of Pittsfield, Mass., are guests of J. A. Daly in Westerly for two weeks.

John F. Foltz of Summerville, N. Y. has returned after a visit over the Fourth with his sisters in Pawcatuck.

Miss Helen M. Fulte of Pawcatuck has gone to New Britain to be the guest of her brother, Frank Fulte.

FRED W. PHILIP HAS FINGERS BADLY INJURED

(Special to the Bulletin.)

Westerly, R. I., July 7.—Fred W. Philip, 18, son of Fred D. Philip, while at work in a carding machine at the Ashaway Woolen company, in Ashaway, about 4:15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, caught his left hand. Dr. Michael H. Scanlon of Westerly who was called, found that the little finger, which he had a ring on was terribly smashed and Philip will probably lose two-thirds of the next finger and one-half of the finger next to that. Dr. Scanlon took him in his automobile to the Lawrence Memorial hospital, New London.

A huge working diorama of the thermal regions of Rotorua is a new feature in the New Zealand pavilion at Wembley this year. In this panorama the miniature geysers spout, the cliffs steam and the mud pools boil exactly as they do it at Rotorua. Realism has been carried to the length of bringing the mud used at Wembley from the very spot in New Zealand portrayed on the diorama. Other illuminated dioramas depict well known scenic attractions in New Zealand, such as the Wangasui river, the stalactite caves of Waitomo, the Alps of New Zealand and the fjords.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The one case before the Killingly town court Tuesday was that in which a personal tax delinquent was prosecuted. As was done last year, a campaign of haling delinquents before the court and obliging them to pay as others pay, is again underway. Those who owe personal taxes and have not paid them need not be surprised if they are summoned to court and required to pay not only the taxes they owe, but also the costs of prosecution.

Tuesday morning, the funeral of Albert J. Chenail was held from his home on Water street, with funeral services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Ralph Brunitt, Frank Chenail, Joseph Chenail, Joseph Charron, Joseph Sauret and Frank Chenail. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

That people hereabouts are in numbers of instances not too sure that New England will not be visited by a disastrous earthquake is evidenced by the boom that has developed in earthquake insurance. This is a sort of protection seldom sought in this area in the past, but a tremor here a few months ago and recent tremblors in the northwest and at Santa Barbara have stirred the canny to seek protection through insurance against the possibility of disaster in this area.

The public playground plan of a few years ago for Danielson's children, appears to have petered out entirely. This is largely due to the fact that there is such a great amount of space suitable for playing about the borough that but a few children can be interested in devoting away their time at an established playground.

Mrs. Cristine C. Barnum, widow of Gen. Dr. H. S. Barnum, died Tuesday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John R. Pratt, in Brooklyn. Mrs. Barnum became seriously ill Sunday afternoon and passed away early Tuesday morning.

A red reflector, warning at night of a dangerous curve at the head of Reynolds street, would be appreciated by persons coming toward Danielson, especially those who are unfamiliar with the highway. Accidents have indicated the need of such a warning.

Once again, as has become usual in recent summer periods, protests are coming in from owners who object to motoring parties camping on their premises, building fires and strewing waste materials about. Some land owners are trying to avert damage to their properties by posting signs prohibiting camping and picnic parties, because of the danger of fire. In other places such campers are welcomed, but this is a matter for the motorist to ascertain before occupying land.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Dyer Potter and Mr. and Mrs. J. Kimball Hargraves of Brooklyn are at Shapleigh, Me., for a vacation.

Miss James Moran is at Winnisconti L. to remain during the summer season.

Supt. W. E. Parker of Killingly schools has called for Friday evening of this week, at his office, a meeting of the special committee appointed by the town some time ago to investigate and report as to Killingly's need of additional school facilities.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney W. Bard and their children, Robert and Elizabeth, have returned from a motor trip to Albany. Returning they traveled the Albany King highway and crossed the new bridge over the Hudson at Bear mountain. Miss Amy Potter, of Brooklyn, made the return trip with them as far as New Haven, where she is attending Yale summer school.

In the sun in Danielson Tuesday afternoon some thermometers showed readings as high as 98 degrees, but the extreme heat was tempered by a fresh breeze from the south.

It is of interest that there are no reports of anyone suffering more than minor injuries or burns from the use of fireworks of any kind in Danielson on the Fourth. Such records were not written a few years ago, and the world is again thankful that things have changed.

Night Officer John Gilbert does a valuable service for the public, and especially for the New Haven road, in protecting motorists each night from the possibility of being knocked into eternity by a Bar Harbor express, at the Main street crossing. This crossing has no gate-tender on duty after 9 p. m., but Dayville, with a tenth of the traffic, has one all night.

Lester Arnold of Boston, long resident in Danielson, is visiting friends here.

Recent rains have not contributed in great degree to raise waters of the ponds and reservoirs near East Killingly above the abnormally low level at which they have remained for months and months.

H. J. Barnett is to leave within a few days for Kent, O., to run back a large new motor bus to be put in a through service that Mr. Barnett is figuring out for the route between Providence and Willimantic.

Residents here are complaining that western firms are pestering them by forwarding through the mails without an order to do so various kinds of merchandise. When returned this merchandise is not accepted by the shippers, but demands for payments come in. The attention of postal authorities will be called to the matter.

Some hitch appears to have developed that is delaying the giving of band concerts at Davis park, as was announced, weeks ago, would be done during the summer period.

Harry Magoon is arranging to spend his vacation in one of the lake regions of Maine, and will depart for the north within a few days.

Eugene C. Martel of Providence was a visitor with friends in Danielson Tuesday.

The Hummocks, destroyed by fire at Wakefield, R. I., was a favorite resort of numbers of people from Danielson and surrounding towns.

As is usually the case, Tax Collector James R. Walsh is having trouble in collecting property taxes from a number of heavy taxpayers as well as from some who do not pay so heavily. Interest is being charged on these overdue taxes.

COLCHESTER

The following notice has been issued: In hot weather, especially, it is important to weigh the baby frequently, and to practice care and regularity in feeding, and common sense in dressing. Small babies should show a fairly steady gain in weight. Even during hot weather. Much worry, and often sickness, may be prevented by keeping the children under a doctor's observation. This may be done at the Well Child conference, when once a month a doctor is on hand to consult with mothers and to examine babies and small children. A weight record card is given each mother on which the growth may be noted month by month. The next conference will be held Thursday afternoon, July 9th from 2 to 4 o'clock in Grange Hall, Colchester.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Graham Brothers Again Move Into Larger Factory

Following closely the information that Graham Brothers produced more 1 1-2-ton trucks than any other manufacturer during the first quarter of 1925, and ranked second in the 1-ton and 1 1-2-ton fields combined, comes the announcement that their Detroit factory has again found it necessary to take greatly enlarged space.

On June 18, it is also announced, Graham Brothers opened a new Pacific coast plan in Stockton, California. Including Graham Brothers, Canada, Ltd., this gives them four factories.

The rapidity of Graham Brothers' growth is clearly indicated by the repeated increases in their space requirements—which have much more than doubled each year since 1921.

The first Detroit plant, in 1921, had 13,000 square feet. During 1923 this was increased to 27,000 and during 1923 to 40,000. In May, 1923, they moved into a plant of 60,000 square feet, more advantageously located with respect to Dodge Brothers from whom they obtain the engine of their trucks. Soon, still more space was required. First, 36,000, then 50,000 more square feet were added, and on June 1st, 1925, another move gave them 250,000 square feet.

Graham Brothers now have a space under one roof 400 feet by 600 feet in a steel and concrete building which was erected by Dodge Brothers during the winter of 1917 as an ordnance plant for the manufacture of recoil mechanism for 155 millimeter French heavy guns.

The new plant has been laid out for direct flow of materials, units and parts from the receiving docks through the various departments and stockrooms to the assembly line without any retracing or unnecessary handling.

Materials from the railroad cars are unloaded on covered platforms 400 feet long by 40 feet wide and conveyed down an isle 24 feet wide by 540 feet long. The passage is timed at 30 proper stockrooms or departments.

At the extreme end of this aisle and at right angles to it is the frame assembly line. While the frame travels a distance of 100 feet, wrong side up, on a conveyor, the necessary brackets are hot riveted in place and the springs and front and rear axles are attached.

The frame is then taken by a small overhead conveyor, turned right side up, carried through an enamel spray and then through an enamel oven 200 feet long. The passage is time at 30 minutes and the temperature is carefully conroled o insure propter baking of the durable lustrous enamel.

As the frame emerges from the oven it is picked up by another overhead conveyor which takes it around a right angle turn and places it upon the final assembly conveyor. This conveyor is 400 feet long and travels about 4 feet per minute to produce 150 trucks per 9 hour day.

During the first 100 feet the wheels with tires are mounted on the axles. Then the chassis, still moved by the long chain, rolls onward on its own wheels. With the regularity of clockwork the various units are placed in position and the various bolts and nuts are securely tightened with special pneumatic wrenches.

Inspection of the assembly line in full swing show clearly how, with increased production and adoption of the assembly methods of Dodge Brothers, it is possible for Graham to deliver such exceptional truck value at a low price.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace

Tearing along with the driving action of a bolt of lightning, but with as many unexpected twists in it as a mystic maize, "Smooth As Satin," Evelyn Brent's new starring vehicle, opened at the Palace Theatre Monday for its first showing in this locality.

"Smooth as Satin" is an adaptation by Arthur Statter of Bayard Veiller's famous stage play "The Chatterbox." It gives Miss Brent a splendid role which she interprets even more skillfully than usually, and that is saying a lot when one remembers that dramatic acting is her forte with particular emphasis on crook melodrama.

Ralph Ince was again behind the camera directing the star, and the power and sympathy of his work is at all times in evidence. The story has been transposed to the screen with fine understanding of the requirements of the broader field, and the cast is excellent throughout.

Miss Brent takes the part of a girl whose environment has been such that she steals as naturally as she breathes. She is protected from the police by a quixotic young safe-breaker, who takes a long term in prison for his chivalry, but some time later the girl manages to effect his escape and the two are married. Their career of crime and their eventual regeneration are enlivened with many unusual situations, and plenty of comedy leavens the many tense moments of the production.

Bread Theater

Enticement a First National attraction, opened yesterday at the Bread theater for a two day run, and delighted audiences with its appealing love story and thrilling situations. These two elements have been combined with rare skill by Director George Archainbaud, with the result that Enticement, in the estimation of the writer, is one of the outstanding pictures of the year.

In producing the photoplay, the Thomas H. Ince Corporation assembled a cast that shines with unusual brilliance in enacting this powerful tale, which is based on the novel by Clive Arden.

Mary Astor plays the part of the girl who does not find either her husband, or the man who used to be her "pal," capable of fulfilling the desires of her nature.

Clive Brook, the distinguished and gifted actor, who came from England not long ago and has won the hearts of the movie fans, essays the role of the husband.

Ian Keith is seen as "the other man," a singer and dreamer, who was able to put honor above love.

Enticement is a story full of romance, drama and glorious settings. The characters are American, but the story shifts from a little town in Switzerland to Paris and London, and backgrounds of rare beauty have been achieved by the director.

Here is a picture that should make screen history, for the tale it unfolds is one that grips the intellect and warms the heart. There is an irresistible appeal in the story of a girl who did not know that she loved or was loved until fate had drawn a line of demarcation between her and happiness; of the husband who forgave in spite of the suspicions which he manfully tried to down; and of the third party of the triangle, who made the supreme sacrifice of which a man is capable in order to thwart fate's cruel hand. We advise you not to miss this engrossing love story.

The cast includes Louise Dresser, Vera Lewis, Edgar Noron, Mathilde Comont and Russell Powell.

Broadway Theater

One of the finest programs of the summer season will be ushered into the Broadway theater tomorrow and is sure to delight the large crowds that are expected. The vaudeville is unusually good and the surrounding picture program will make the show an outstanding one.

Pedestrians who constantly dodge automobiles are soon to have an opportunity to take a few lessons from Raymond Griffith, who claims he is an expert.

Griffith gives these lessons in The Night Club, his latest Paramount picture, which opens on tomorrow at the Broadway theater.

Several of the scenes show Griffith in a Spanish town pursued by a car driven by Vera Reynolds. Miss Reynolds losses control of her machine and it chases Griffith all over the street. So save himself from being run down he emulates the climbing feats of a monkey and leaping to a street lamp suspended from an arch, pulls himself to a safe position just as the car dashes beneath him. As he drops from the street lamp the machine charges toward him again and he does some very creditable sprinting and dodging. He is certain to have the full sympathy of the thousands who walk and dodge.

The Night Club was adopted from William de Mille's stage play, After Five. The production was directed for Paramount by Paul Iribe and Frank Urson, who made Forty Winks Players featured with Griffith and Miss Reynolds include Wallace Beery and Louise Fazenda.

DEFENSE DAY RESULTS

It takes time to get the detailed report of the response that was made throughout the country on Defense day, but the preliminary report indicates that it was a success in spite of the objections that were raised to it, the short time in which arrangements could be made and the fact that it came this year on a Saturday when many were desirous of getting away for the week end.

According to figures given out by Major General Hines the test brought a response in round numbers of 15,- [illegible]. There are some corps areas where the response appears to have been greater than in others. The reasons for this, the study of the detailed reports will show and will provide the basis for action in correcting conditions.

Of no little importance in addition to the defense test was the effect of the change in Defense day. What was done last year on Armistice day was now shifted to Fourth of July because of a desire to do away with any more holidays, and the belief prevailed that there was no better time than Independence day for bringing out the patriotic response of the nation's farmes in case of emergency. That the day fell upon Saturday presented the chance for certain objectors because it interfered with week [illegible] which had been previously [illegible] some consideration will be given that in studying the results. It seems fair to presume that even with such handicaps as were experienced this year the combining of Defense day with Independence day was a success.

[illegible] was, as in the case of Connecticut which held its muster on Field [illegible] what can be expected in the way of an emergency response, and that when [illegible] states be allowed to fix their own dates for such a test there would probably be nothing lacking in results. The value of Defense day was recognition throughout the country as most valuable as an inventory of what we are prepared to do for our own protection in the event of a sudden call to take defensive measures.

UNNECESSARY TAXATION

Jacob Pfeiffer of Akron, Ohio, recently published an article in which he pointed out that the concern of which he is the head pays 23 kinds of taxes. He did not regard his company as an isolated case, but similar to many others. He considers it too much and he feels that there should be a change made in order to obtain the much needed relief the proposal is made that the national organization be formed to be known as the Taxpayers' Union. All citizens of the country will be eligible to membership, which membership will furnish the support for the necessary experts who will [illegible] the budget, research, legal, publicity and other department for the sole purpose of reducing unnecessary taxes.

Some of the objects of the organization are set forth as follows:

To reduce and eliminate unnecessary taxation.

To inform its members how unnecessary and impractical tax laws tend to destroy property, liberty and taxation itself.

To inform members various taxes affect their daily life.

To inform its members why certain taxes should be repealed or amended.

To report to its members proposed laws and explain their purpose and effect as determined by economical experts.

To explain to its members how taxes, direct and indirect, affect wages and the prices of all men and women.

To explain how public money is spent in a useless, unnecessary and extravagant manner, and to render other service to the members in connection with the question of taxation.

Anything that concerns taxation with a view to stopping unnecessary taxes, or bringing about a reduction in taxes, seldom fails to arouse interest. This is an effort which is to be countrywide. It should have no difficulty in eliciting support and arousing interest in a question where so many are deeply concerned. Just how much success it will have can best be told after it gets into operation. It plans to deal with a big subject and to wrestle with an unpopular condition.

PUTTING DOWN THE RIFFS

Not what can be considered as satisfactory results are being obtained by the French in their struggle with the Riffians in northern Africa. This is indicated by the decision which has been made to send General Naulin to take charge of the forces and change the character of the campaign that has been made.

[illegible] has been disposed to stand on the defensive without taking the offensive. This attitude has been taken for the purpose of causing as little antagonism among the tribesmen as possible. But it has failed to accomplish all that was desired or to deal effectively with the Riffians. They have been making inroads with their particular type of guerilla warfare, and they have been getting, as planned, certain additions from the tribesmen over whom the French have supervision. France recognizes the situation and realizes that it must look to its prestige before it is too late.

Efforts have been made to come to an understanding with the Spanish concerning joint action, or the pursuit of the Riffs into Spanish territory, but without anything tangible being accomplished so far as known. Spain has been put in its corner by the Riffians and now the latter are doing their best to treat France in the same manner.

France has no desire for a war. It is not in a position to finance one, but neither can it sit idly by and be humiliated in the exercise of its authority. That is why it has been able to overcome the objections to the fighting which have developed at home. It is like a cat in a corner which must either fight or admit that it cannot discharge the responsibilities which the other nations have placed upon it to govern its portion of Morocco and maintain peace.

The sending of General Naulin to Morocco indicates that France has recognized that there can be no further delay, that it must face the situation and put the rebels in their place in order to regain the prestige that it formerly held and which it is expected to have in order to successfully administer the government.

SAFETY AND SANITY NEEDED

Safety and sanity in regard to the observance of the Fourth has long since received general recognition. The idea hasn't been followed to the point where the number of accidents, the fatalities or the property loss can be regarded as at the proper minimum on the nation's anniversary. For such reduction as has been made there is cause for thanksgiving and the hope is that it will continue in the right direction.

But safety and sanity seems to be quite as much needed in connection with the driving of automobiles as in the celebration of Independence day. The death list of eight on that day from motor vehicle accidents gives emphasis to that need. It is a day when highways are bound to be crowded with machines, but that furnishes no justification for carelessness. Rather does it present the necessity for using greater care, for giving closer attention to the danger spots and of giving careful consideration to the safety of those whose fate is in the hands of the driver.

The motor vehicle accident record of the Fourth is a distressing one. It is true that Connecticut did not lead the list for there were other states where many more fatalities occurred, but eight deaths in automobile accidents in this state on one day are too many. It serves to accentuate the need for giving more thought to the safety of others as well as self, to being in condition to properly handle a car when on the highway and to paying proper attention to the known conditions which are continually crying out for an observance of the simplest rules of safety. There can be none too strong a demand for greater safety and more sanity on the highways at all times.

PAYING THE DEBTS

Within the next few months it appears likely that arrangements will be completed for the funding of their war debts to this country by most of the nations of Europe. This is only what should be, but there are those among the nationals of this country, or at least some of them, who strongly resent the idea of making any payments. They take the view that we are able to give this money to the various countries and that because of this we ought to do it. That would permit the war torn countries to get promptly on their feet and to overcome more quickly the distress and disorder that followed the war.

Such reasoning might be carried along a little further and the claim made that much as the American dollars had been so helpful in the last war for the financing of the struggle and the successful outcome the United States ought to establish a fund, for the nations of Europe to draw upon any time they get into difficulties and thus provide a perpetual pool for the encouragement of war.

While the criticisms of this country in seeking repayment may not be the expression of the particular government it indicates how deep seated had become the idea of debt cancellation by this country. Cancellation would do nothing but nullify the good effects with the horrible results of the war should have in behalf of future peace. Those who find it easy to get someone else to finance a war are not likely to hesitate when it comes to future decisions. When wars have to be paid for there is a good chance that that very process will develop thoughts concerning the advisability of disposing of international problems in a different manner.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Did those N. Y. waiters, at their banquet costing $30 a plate, tip at the rate of ten per cent?

Perhaps it would have been better for the Chinese if mah jong had never been taken away from them.

The man on the corner says: "It is different to pick a vaccination spot these days that cannot be seen."

In some states the authorities are arresting speeders. In Rhode Island they are to penalize if you don't speed.

The slight increase in lynchings for the first half of 1925 doesn't augur well for the making of 1926 a lynchless year.

Prof. Foye of Wesleyan says New England has had no [illegible] since the ice age. Malaria sufferers are of course eliminated.

Having a family and unsteady employment were reasons a speeding motorcyclist gave for asking leniency in Boston, but he never considered those sufficient reasons for obeying the law.

THE SEWING CIRCLE

"I presume," said the fluffy-haired blond, placidly, "that as an unprejudiced outside observer I could tell you more about the psychology of matrimony than most of you have ever observed for yourselves."

She went on with her darning, while the sewing circle gasped with astonishment.

"Wait," said the black-haired member with jade beads, laughing nervously. "Throw something at her, somebody, before she tells us anything more. If I had to hear the plain truth about matrimony today something awful might happen."

"Oh, cheer up," said the fluffy-haired blond, crisply. "I haven't got any grudge against matrimony. I'm not an old maid as a matter of principle—it's merely a personal taste. Marriage is a grand old institution, of course, but the trouble is there are so many horrid people these days who hang their horridnesses on it for an excuse, whereas in reality they would be just as horrid if they were single. Am I clear?"

"Oh absolutely," said the black-haired member with jade beads, in a relieved voice. "I've often wondered if that sad affair of the Browns, for instance, wasn't something of the sort. And yet he seemed so devoted."

"Exactly," agreed the fluffy-haired blond. "Much too devoted, if you know what I mean. I've seen that man posing in public like a hero of fiction. Why when they dined out together he would hang around in the hall at the foot of the stairs until some one asked him what he was looking for, and then he would say, 'Oh, not looking for anything—just waiting for my little wife.'"

The sewing circle chuckled.

"When you see a man doing that sort of thing," added the fluffy-haired blond, "you watch out for him."

"Does your theory work both ways?" inquired the young matron with the auburn wave, interested. "Because George told me this morning that I was a silly dumb-bell."

"George is an old peach," said the fluffy-haired blond, indulgently. "What had you done to disturb him?"

"Oh, he was not disturbed," said the young matron. "He came back from the station and missed his train ot ask if I had understood that he was only joking. But what became of the Browns, anyway?"

The fluffy-haired blond shook her head. "I lost track of them," she said. "They moved to Toledo or somewhere."

"Yes, it was Toledo," said the black headed member, thoughtfully. "My sister lives there. The Browns separated shortly after they moved. But this is gossip, girls," she added, with dismay.

"Gossip?" said the young matron, scornfully. "Not at all. 'Psychology' is the word, as Celeste says. And she is quite right about it, too. When you hear a man calling his wife 'dearest' at a bridge party, you can sniff the divorce courts."

The youngest and newest member, silent until this moment, heaved a deep and happy sigh. All eyes turned upon her.

"I am so relieved at what you say," she explained innocently. "It has bothered me sometimes that my husband never calls me those nice names when any one is listening, but if you all think—"

The sewing circle laughed outright.

"My dear," said the fluffy-haired blond, "the next time you sit down to count over your blessings, check off an honorable mention for the fact that you are not married to a Rupert of Hentzau."—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Suggests Comfort Station on Square

Mr. Editor: I read with interest in today's Letter to the Editor about improvements in our city. I would like to suggest that we build one up to date comfort station right on the square, underground, about the style they have on Weybosset St., Providence. I believe we could build one without any expense to taxpayers and with bootleggers money. Our police court collects enough in big fines and last time they had trouble deciding what to do with all the money. As all corner saloons are gone there is no public place to step aside. Wouldn't that be just nice for ladies and gents, strangers and visitors? Let's hear more about it.

Yours for improvement.
DAVID SMITH.

The Postman Passing By

Mr. Editor: Does every son and daughter away from home write to their mothers regularly and often?

Does every son and daughter realize the sad look of disappointment as the postman passes her by?

If every one who has living parents could only know how a letter is looked and longed for and could feel the disappointment when the postman passes by, they would stop and take a few minutes and write to their mother.

Perhaps we are all well and life is running along in a groove, still our mothers would like to know how all the little homely things of life are. Don't you think that our mothers are prouder of our promotion than we are, and if we have had bad luck, they feel sorry about it and are sure it wasn't our fault.

Our mothers are with us for such a short time, and when they are gone we have so long to wish we had written. Too often after weeks or months of silence comes a message saying "Your mother is dead." While we are making the journey to see her laid away, we have time for many bitter reflections, but that will not remove the ache that was in that lonely mother's heart. Many have made that sad journey in years past and while they may have written often, still it was sad to look the last on that patient old face. Many mothers watch the postman passing by and wonder why their children do not write.

The Tendency Today

Mr. Editor: When the world went off its balance during and after the war and a strange civilization seemed to be "advancing backwards," many asked "what is the matter with the churches"—and much ink was spilled endeavoring to prove that the church had ceased to function. It takes more than a leader to make a church—but a greater responsibility rests upon the leader or head of the church. We pay in money, labor and moral support, and other interests, for the purpose of guidance into spiritual uplift, and it now occurs to the majority that our money has been mostly wasted. What is meant by this, is better illustrated by the remarks of a life-long pious lady who when asked how she liked the sermon, remarked: "They are crucifying our lord afresh and I know not where they have laid Him." There will be only a few of the masses who will ever grow into that faith, for the Christ and the Bible are seemingly in the hands of a superficial, godless and soulless age.

No man can serve both God and Mammon. Our churches are reaching out after material things and so fog the minds of all, that spiritual things have to take second place, and gradually matters have been growing from bad to worse, that in order to get out to services over a quorum, the leaderships have to announce (often a week in advance) a moving picture—a supper—mixed with a sleight of hand performance, etc., and now the latest attraction is a contest in cross-word puzzles. With but few exceptions every mind is on the material, and forgetting that all this is going on in a house dedicated to God—for spiritual uplift.

Where will this sort of thing lead us to? The question may be answered thus: To the recreation parks, seashore resorts, auto drives and divers other places, distracting thought and mind, from the spiritual. There is a time and place, and everyone should encourage recreation of an uplifting character but to "make God's house a house of merchandise and associate with it all manner of amusements, defeats the purpose for which it was made."

There is no longer in the church, men or women who practice the Golden Rule, or go to church and forget all else but God and commune inately with Him. Rather men and women go today to display their new frocks, automobiles and invariably criticize one another. There are few exceptions, and after years of observation and personal contact with the "elite," you will find my answer and opinion that the majority of church members were in the 23rd chapter of Matthew, 13 to 25 verses inclusive.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dudley Field Malone, who is expected to figure conspicuously in the defense of John T. Scopes when the latter is placed on trial for alleged violation of the Tennessee law prohibiting teaching of evolution in the schools, is a clever and resourceful Irish-American lawyer who first attracted attention as a city attorney of New York. Then he was called to Washington to serve in the Department of State under Mr. Bryan, but held the job only a few months, inasmuch as president Wilson selected him for the post of Collector of the Port of New York, which position he resigned in 1917 because of differences of opinion with the president over treatment of militant suffragists in Washington. In the Wilson presidential campaigns he proved himself an effective campaign orater. During the past few years, since his retirement from official life, he has been a busy divorce lawyer in Paris.

Stories That Recall Others

Learning to Drive

The roadster was new, the girl at the wheel was a novice, and her companion knew only scraps of information he had heard from other drivers. The girl drove down a rocky hill road and into a small country village, and turned the car with some difficulty in the space before the little store. Then she settled back to await the passing of a one horse buggy, not desiring to pass it on the hill.

After a few minutes wait during which the proprietor of the store had appeared to gaze in mild interest at the car and its occupants, the buggy failed to appear and she sent her companion into the street beyond the dilapidated building to see whether the vehicle was approaching. When he returned and climbed back into the car the storekeeper slowly ambled to the end of the porch of his store, next to the roadway and gazed in the same direction as the young man had.

"Say," the young woman remarked as she turned the car up the hill a few seconds later, the buggy having driven safely by, "I'll bet that old fellow thought a circus parade was coming."

Roman Numerals

John had not been going to school very long when one afternoon he rushed into the house and said to his mother in great excitement:

"Oh, mother, you will be so glad; we learned the nicest things today, human numerals."

As the mother seemed rather dense, he added:

"Why, you know when they take letters and make figures."

Then it dawned on her mind that he had bee nlearning Roman numerals.

Some men would rather be right than president, but there are others who never make an effort to be either.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Digger the Badger's Story

Each day it is to me more clear.
How fear must always father fear.
—Digger the Badger.

"Fear very often is a good thing," began Digger the Badger.

Peter Rabbit shook his head. "I can't agree to that, Mr. Badger," said he. "It makes one feel so dreadfully uncomfortable."

"But it often keeps you out of real trouble," declared Digger. "The one who is most fearful is the one most difficult to catch. Just take my own case. I never was much of a hand to be afraid. Even from the time I was a little fellow I was a good fighter. I guess I was too good a fighter. Anyway, before I was half grown there was no one of whom I was afraid out there in the Far West with the exception of Howler he Wolf. I wasn't really afraid of him, because I felt smart enough to keep out of his way. It was a bad state to be in. Yes, sir, it was so. Not being afraid I grew careless. I didn't keep watch. And so it happened that one day one of those two-legged creatures called men surprised me so far from my home that I couldn't get back."

"What did you do?" asked Peter breathlessly.

"I started to dig in," replied Digger. "You should have seen the way I made the sand fly. But before I could get down out of the reach that two-legged creature got me by the tail. I thought he would pull it out by the roots. Yes, sir, I certainly thought I was going to lose my tail. But I was perfectly willing to lose it if losing it would help me to escape. However, the roots of my tail held, and that two legged creature held, and finally some water was brought and poured into the hole which I had dug and then I had to let go and he pulled out. Something was thrown over my head and I was wrapped up in it and made helpless. Then I was carried away.

"I was put in a box lined with that stuff called wire, and then carried away on a long journey. When the journey ended, I was in a place called a park where there were every so many other people in fur, all kept prisoners."

Peter nodded. "I know," said he. "It was," agreed Digger. "I must Man Coyote was kept in."

"It was," agreed Digger. "I must confess that I was very well treated. Never in my life did I have so much to eat, and I didn't have to work for it. They put me in a big cage with a stone floor and a perfectly comfortable house in which to sleep and keep out of sight. But there wasn't any place to dig. Oh, how I did miss digging! I used to look at these claws of mine and wonder how it would feel to drive them into the ground and make the sand fly out behind me. I grew and grew until I was as big as I am now, and all the time I never once forgot that I was a prisoner. Neither did I forget that it was my own fault.

"Feeling the way I did, of course I was always watching for a chance to escape. That was all I thought about. That and my food. I didn't intend to miss any chance. I tried the wires of that cage every day. But for a long, long, long time nothing happened. Then one day when a two-legged creature was cleaning out my pen he didn't close the gate tight. I pushed against it with my nose and it swung open. You should have seen me get out of there. I may have short legs, but I tell you, Peter Rabbit, I made the most of them that time. Not far away was a little house with a hole under it. I was under there before he missed me, and I stayed under traveled until night. Evry night I traveled until I was tired. So at last I reached the Green Meadows, and here I am."

"What did you do?" asked Peter breathlessly.

PROSTRATED BY HEAT
IN FRANKLIN SQUARE

Many people in this city, Tuesday; expecting to attend the circus of the 101 Ranch Wild West show, J. H. Osborne, aged 70, of Franklin, was prostrated by the heat while standing in front of Chapman's jewelry store on Franklin square and suddenly fell to the sidewalk.

Two men standing nearby rushed into a drug store and obtained water to revive the man but were unsuccessful in their attempts. Mr. Osborne was then carried into Mara's drug store and Dr. Clarence Thompson was called. Dr. Thompson soon revived the man and he was conveyed to his home by a willing stranger. A few days rest will be necessary to regain his strength.

DROWNED IN POND AT MILL IN PINEVILLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, July 7—Arthur Miller, 25, journeyed to his death when he came to Pineville, above Ballouville, from New York, Tuesday morning. He came to this town on a vacation trip, arriving in a motor car at 4 a. m. with a friend, Joseph Pardo, also of Brooklyn, N. Y. At about one o'clock p. m. his body was lying under about 20 feet of water, just above the dam near the Pineville mill. He had drowned while bathing.

Miller and his brother-in-law, Albert Kissino of Ballouville, and Pardo made up a trio of bathers seeking relief from the heat. Miller was not a proficient swimmer and is believed to have unexpectedly stepped into water beyond his depth. His cries and the cries of his companions for help attracted the attention of roofers in the employ of a Norwich concern who were working on the roof of the mill and of George LaBelle, who happened along at the end of his dinner hour. In their haste to aid Miller the roofers slid down a rope from the mill roof. Diving for the body was not successful on account of the depth of the water and the body was not recovered until a boat and grappling irons had been brought into use. LaBelle and one of the roofers had dived into the water repeatedly without removing their clothing in an effort to bring the body to the surface before life became extinct. After Dr. George M. Burroughs, medical examiner, had viewed the body, it was removed by L. E. Kennedy to his undertaking rooms here.

Mrs. Miller was notified of the tragedy at the miller home, 126 Palmetto St., New York. The couple, married about six years ago, have two children, Florence 5, and Arthur 3. Before her marriage Mrs. Miller was Miss Florence Kissino.

Three Norwich men, James Carney, Jack Tennant and George Slattery, employes of the estate of C. E. Whitaker of this city, were at work on a roofing job on the Attawaugan Co. mill, when they noticed the man in the water. According to the story told by one of the trio, the man was paddling dog-paw, and Slattery remarked "That man can't swim." Just then Miller went under. He came up once and shouted for help, but sank once more and did not come to the surface again.

The three roofers sprang to the rescue at once, Carney sliding down a rope for about 50 feet to the ground and the othe rtwo hurrying down the ladder. All three dived repeatedly after the body without success, and when the grappling irons were secured it was Tennant who helped LaBelle to pull the body from the water.

WELL KNOWN NORWICH MAN IS TO ENTER BUSINESS AT MIAMI

William F. Hill, who for forty-five years has been a resident of this city, has transferred his business activities to Miami, Florida, and is now on his way there by automobile. He is accompanied by his son Andrew, his son's wife, their son William and Mrs Hill's brother, Joseph Petrone.

Mr. Hill sees in Miami the land of opportunity and he is going there to see what it holds for him. His son preceded him last December and has recently been back for a stay before returning definitely to the Florida city.

Mr. Hill, who was born in Nashua, N. H., came to this city from Providence forty-five years ago to be employed as a machinist in the old Hopkins & Allen pistol shop. He was prominent in the old days of Norwich baseball, playing third base on teams when the games were played on what is now the Chelsea parade. He is a Democrat in politics and has served the city as tax collector and as Yantic cemetery superintendent. For a number of years past he has been in the real estate business in which he has achieved much success and he was the leading spirit in the Thermos campaign in 1912, earning the title of "General" for his activities in this big civic effort by which $75,000 was donated to bring the Thermos company to this city. As an advisor to the late Judge John M. Thayer, Mr. Hill was largely responsible for Judge Thayer's purchase of the Franklin square property upon which the Judge subsequently erected the Thayer building, one of the fine modern office buildings of the city.

Mr. Hill's host of friends in this city will regret his decision to locate elsewhere but will wish for him the largest measure of success possible in his new field.

WEDDING
Boynton-Baldwin.

Miss Edna May Baldwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Baldwin, of 21 Russell road, and Raymond Curtis Boynton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Boynton, of 57 Division street, were united in marriage Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride.

The double ring service was used by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church. The bride was given away by her father and was attended by Mrs. Paul V. Chivers as matron of honor while Mr. Chivers was best man. The bridal party entered the living room to the music of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, played by Miss Elisabeth Boynton, sister of the groom, and just before the marriage service Mr. Chivers rendered O Promise Me. The ceremony took place beneath an arch of rambler roses and an attractive background was arranged by the use of ferns, palms and flowering plants. The bride was charmingly gowned in orchid georgette over peach satin, trimmed with silver lace. Her shower bouquet was of Columbia roses. The matron of honor was gowned in canary crepe heavily trimmed with silver beads. Her bouquet was of sweet peas.

The gift of the bride to the groom was a gold piece, and to her matron of honor an aquamarine bracelet, and to Miss Boynton a sapphire bracelet. The gift of the groom to the bride was a string of pearls and to the best man a gold piece.

Following the ceremony a reception was held, attended by over 50 guests, and a buffet luncheon was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Boynton left early in the evening on their wedding tour through the White Mountains, to include a stop at Mt. Washington. Mrs. Boynton wore a white ensemble suit with hat to match. Upon their return they will reside with the bride's parents on Russell road.

The bride received many beautiful gifts of china, silverware, cut glass and substantial checks. She is well known in Norwich and has been employed as a stenographer at the state hospital. The groom is a registered pharmacist and is employed with Utley & Jones.

Wedding guests from out of town included friends and relatives from Greenport, L. I., Fall River, Mass., Willimantic, Moosup, Baltic and Taftville.

All nuisances were abated. Number stores, markets, bakeries and restaurants inspected, 132; tenements and premises placarded and quarantined, 97; tenements and premises fumigated (including death or removal of T. B. patients), 107; number samples water taken for analysis, 8.

GOT INTO DIFFICULTY OVER NUMBER PLATES

An automobile driven by Richard A. Grimes of Quaker Hill knocked down a small boy on West Main street Tuesday night, with only slight injuries to the boy, but it developed complication for Mr. Grimes as it was disclosed that he was driving a car for which he had just traded another and he was taking the usual chance in such cases of driving the new car home with number plates from the old one on it, before the transfer had been recorded. He was accordingly summoned to appear in the city court on the charge of driving an unlicensed car.

The small boy who was injured was Nicholas Kondulos, 8, of 15 North High street. It was reported that he ran out from behind a machine that was parked along the curb. He received an abrasion of the right knee and foot and a bump on his head. The accident happened as Grimes was driving up hill between Thames and High street.

Grimes was obliged to leave his machine in a garage here overnight.

FUNERAL
Mrs. Frank D. Chesebro.

Funeral services for Mrs. Frank D. Chesebro were held at 2:30 o'clock, Tuesday afternoon, at the home of her daughter, Mrs Frank H. Gifford, of Plain Hill road, relatives and friends attending from out of town. There were many beautiful floral tributes.

The service was conducted by Rev. Frank Fuller, who also conducted the committal service at the grave in Maplewood cemetery. The bearers were Morris and Richard Raymond, Mr. Rogers and Charles Perkins. Arrangements were by Church & Allen.

After the first kiss a young man wonders why he wasted so much time.

101 RANCH GIVES WILD WEST PERFORMANCE

Tuesday was circus day in Norwich and the day was a typical one, hot and sultry, but this could not keep the hundreds of people from turning out to see the mammoth street parade and the afternoon and evening performances at the fair grounds.

Miller Brothers 101 Ranch Wild West show paid Norwich a visit for the first time in many years and they were welcomed by the people, the shows being fairly patronized in the afternoon and a good crowd in the evening.

As advertised, the big street parade took place about noon, resplendent in color as the ever-popular circus wagons passed by accompanied by bands of cowboys and cowgirls, Cossacks, Indians and Mexicans. The parade was a colorful affair with elephants and camels adding the Far East touch to the Wild West atmosphere.

The wild west and far east show in the big arena at the fair grounds started promptly in the afternoon and evening, the night show being given before a large house. The opening spectacle, Arabia, brought into view the riders and actors and actresses who during the show gave thrill after thrill as they took their chances with the slipping bronchos to perform difficult feats on horseback while at full gallop. The riding of the Cossacks, cowboys, cowgirls and Indians was exceptionally good.

One of the features of the show was the drill by a troupe of Zouaves dressed in red uniforms and white leggins and carrying rifles. Their fast drilling and difficult executions were carried out without a break and their charge of the fort and scaling of the high walls, while night rockets made the scene more like a real battle, evoked applause from the delighted audience.

The elephants were well trained and went through their paces without a break under the direction of the women trainers. Dogs and ponies in the acts worked without a mishap and the dancing horses mounted by cowgirls earned the applause given at the conclusion of their acts.

As a trick feature the Cowboy's bucking Ford, the front wheels of which never touched the ground, proved a laugh getter, as did the mule which refused to move even when the Jewish clown argued with it.

Crack shooting by women mounted on charging white steeds, revolver shooting while spinning a lasso and clever work with the rope in lassoing four horses at one time also gained applause.

Another troupe which met instant approval was the Arabian troupe, clever pyramid work and fast tumbling acts being their feature. The closing scenes, the stage coach, in which a number of passengers were badly injured recently at Brockton, and the attack on the covered wagons by the Indians, with rescue by troopers gave opportunity for brilliant riding, which was most accomplished by all participants in the show.

During the afternoon performances Silver Tip Baker, crack cowpuncher and rider, had a nasty spill when his mount slipped and fell carrying the rider to the ground and rolling directly over him. Baker was picked up by other cowboys and taken to the tent, while other acts kept the unwritten rule of the circus; "The show must go on." At first it was feared that Baker was seriously injured but an X-ray disclosed no bones broken, but that the shoulder ligaments had been torn. The spirit of the circus was shown when Baker went back into the arena for the night show and carried out his part in the bucking broncho show.

The circus arrived shortly before six o'clock in the morning and made quick work of setting up the big tents at the fairgrounds. Similar systematic work at night got the show out of the grounds soon after the last act had gone on and the trains pulled out of Norwich in the early morning headed for New Haven where they are to perform today (Wednesday).

COUNTY HOME CHILDREN ENJOYED WILD WEST

Fifty children from the county home on Smith avenue, in charge of Miss Jessie Gibson, matron, and her assistants, enjoyed the 101 Ranch Wild West show at the Norwich fairgrounds, Tuesday afternoon. The children enjoyed the show from start to finish and were assigned seats near the reserved seat section where they commanded an excellent view of the entire performance.

The treat for the children was arranged by Miller Bros. and the Norwich lodge of Elks, the latter organization taking care of transportation of the children to and from the circus.

AUTOMOBILE IS STOLEN DURING WILD WEST

The Chevrolet touring car, Connecticut registry N-2368, owned by Stella Jacobik of Norwich Town, was stolen Tuesday night from the fairgrounds while the owner and party were enjoying Miller Brothers 101 Ranch Wild West show. The car had been parked inside the fairgrounds and the theft was not discovered until after the evening performance.

The police were notified of the theft but at an early hour Wednesday morning the car had not been recovered.

FINDS NO BLAME ATTACHING TO O'NEIL

In a finding issued Tuesday, Coroner J. J. Desmond absolves William F. O'Neil of this city of any criminal negligence in causing the death of James Cummings, 60, who was killed on the night, June 26, on the Colchester road when he was struck by O'Neil's machine.

The coroner's finding follows:

That said Cummings died in the town of Colchester, in said county on the 26th of June, 1925, from injuries sustained by him when he was struck by an automobile operated by William F. O'Neil, of the town of Norwich in said county.

On said 26th day of June, 1925, said James Cummings was taken, at his request, into a Ford touring car at said Colchester, operated by Jacob Dachuk, of said Colchester who was on his way from Colchester to Fitchville, in the town of Bozrah, in said county, on the Norwich-Colchester road; when they reached a point on said road about 3 or 4 miles from Colchester, Dachuk stopped his car because its lights went out, and parked it on the left hand side of the road outside of the travelled portion of the road; both men got out of the car, at this place; Cummings then walked on towards Fitchville, and Dachuk went to the front end of his car to try to make his lights burn; whilst he was thus engaged, said William F. O'Neil, operating his Cadillac sedan automobile, and travelling southeastwardly on said road, on his way from Hartford to Norwich, passed the parked Ford car at about 30:40 p. m., going at a rate of about 30 to 35 miles an hour; soon after he had passed the Ford car the decedent ran out from O'Neil's left hand side of the road, waving his arms, and darted in front of O'Neil's machine, which struck, and fatally injured him; O'Neil was on his right hand side of the road when he saw Cummings running towards his car, and he applied his brakes immediately, but was unable to stop his car until after it had struck Cummings.

O'Neil then brought his machine to a stop, and turned it about so that its headlights would bear on the injured man, got out of the car and went to Cummings, examined him, and ascertained that he was dead; O'Neil then went back to the Dachuk car, and found Dachuk working at its lamps; he asked Dachuk to help him put the dead man into the Cadillac, but Dachuk refused; then O'Neil went back, moved the body out of the roadway, drove to the nearest house, which was some distance back towards Colchester, and there notified the state police at the Groton barracks, of the accident; meanwhile Officer Hugh McAvoy of the Norwich police force, came along on his way toward Norwich and O'Neil told him of the accident, and McAvoy remained with the body whilst O'Neil went to said house to telephone the state police; when O'Neil returned to the place of the accident, he found Constable Riley, of Colchester there, and to him he also made a statement of the accident. Soon after this Dr. Cyrus G. Pendleton the medical examiner of the town of Colchester arrived, examined the body, and had it removed; and O'Neil went on to Norwich in his car, with Officer McAvoy.

Whilst O'Neil was driving away to reach a telephone, after the accident, Dachuk drove his Ford touring car, which was still without headlights, back to Colchester, obtained permission to leave it in a farm yard, near the road, and walked back to his home in Colchester.

After the accident, O'Neil, when he went back to the parked Ford car, asked Dachuk who the man was that had been killed, and Dachuk replied that he did not know, that there was no man with him; it appears that Dachuk was not acquainted with Cummings, but it was not true that Cummings had not been with Dachuk in his car; Dachuk, when testifying, under oath, in the inquest, admitted he had so stated to O'Neil, as aforesaid, but explained that he had denied that Cummings was in his car with him, belivng that, as he had no public service license, he might be prosecuted for taking Cummings into his car. Dachuk is a Pole, and understands and speaks English very little. Cummings was employed as caretaker at Wowen Camp, a summer camp for boys in said Lebanon. From the evidence, it appears probable that Cummings, on seeing the lights of the O'Neil machine, tried to attracs O'Neil's attention, to get a ride with him, as Cummings was intending to go to Fitchville, or Bozrahville, and that Cummings perhaps blinded by the headlights of O'Neil's car, ran in front of it, not perceiving that he was passing into its course; and it was impossible for O'Neil to stop his car before it struck the decedent. This accident was not due to any want of due care on O'Neil's part.

I am satisfied and find that the death of said James Cummings was not caused by the criminal act, omission, or carelessness of any other person or persons.

MISSIN GBOY FOUND IN HUCKLEBERRY PATCH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., July 7—William F. Hartican, Jr., three year old son of a Westport, Mass., business man, whose disappearance from the family's summer home, "Faraway Farm," near North Stonington, Conn., last night, started a search by 00 volunteers, Boy Scout sand a posse of state police, was found tonight about 6 o'clock. He was exhausted from a night's wandering through swamps and woodland.

Clarence Palmer of North Stonington, who had made up one of the 100 volunteer searchers, found the boy in a huckleberry patch, where he was unconcernedly picking the fruit. He was guided to the little fellow when he heard the boy's cries.

Mr. Palmer was a short distance from the general searching party, who were following police dogs, which had been trailing the course of the boy's wanderings. It was found that the boy had wandered about a mile and a half from his home through swamps and woodland and that Monday night he had slept under a tree near the huckleberry patch.

He appeared not to be wanting for slep or food, after his wanderings of about 24 hours, and it was later learned that he had eaten a plentiful supply of huckleberries, so much that he was sick at his stomach twice. When interrogated he said that he was running away from home.

The boy's parents were notified of his recovery by L. M. Crandall, manager of the Norwich Commercial school, who had been in North Stonington at the time.

NEW HAVEN TO OBSERVE 10TH ANNIVERSARY OF EASTERN LEAGUE

NEW HAVEN, July 7.—(A. P.)—Announcement was made today by President George M. Weiss, of the New Haven club that Wednesday, July 29, had been set aside for New Haven's observance of the tenth anniversary of the founding of the Eastern league.

The plans call for the staging of the regularly scheduled game between New Haven and Bridgeport, augmented by an attraction that will bring together men who helped to make the Eastern league the compact circuit it is today.

The afternoon will be given over to old-timers—players who performed in the old Connecticut league as members of the New Haven and rival clubs and who will come back to engage in one more battle amid familiar surroundings.

Heading the list of veteran stars to appear will be Freddy Parent, one of the best shortstops New Haven ever had. He was a member of the late Sheriff Reilly's champ club of 1899 which boasted many stars including Fitzmaurice and Lucia who may return for the game.

Jim Canavan, who is now residing in New Bedford, is planning to come to New Haven and hold down the first sack for an inning or two. He managed and owned the New Haven club after the Reilly-Connie Miller regime.

Other favorites who are expected to appear are Bill Carrick, pitcher and manager; Phil Corcoran, one of the star pitchers in the old Connecticut league; Harry Hope, who caught for New Haven for several years; Tommy Corcoran, John Bunyan, Kid Sherwood, and Jerry Connell, who managed the New Haven team for the late George Cameron.

Bill Luby, one of the hardest hitters in the old Connecticut league and who is now corporation counsel in Meriden, also is expected to return for the game. Pop Foster, another heavy hitter, of former days, Hi Ladd, Harry Noyes, and Al O'Dell, the latter a member of the Bridgeport fire department, also are expected to come back.

James Lawlis, high commissioner of baseball, has been invited to attend and has stated that he will make every effort possible to be present.

HENLINE'S HOMER WINS GAME FOR PHILLIES

PHILADELPHIA, July 7.—(AP)—Cincinnati split even in a double header with Philadelphia today, winning the first game, 4 to 0, and losing the second, 4 to 3. Rube Bressler gave his left ankle a bad wrench in the first game when he fell over Catcher Wilson while scoring in the second inning. He was carried off the field and sent to a hospital to have an x-ray taken of the injury. Henline's home run in the third inning of the second game gave the Phillies their winning run. Score:

TWO JAPANESE WIN IMPRESSIVE VICTORIES

EAST PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 7.—(A. P.)—William T. Tilden 2nd, won two love set matches at the Rhode Island State Lawn Tennis Championships, Agawan Hunt club today, making his thir datraight for the tourney by defeating Carl Pfaffman, former Harvard captain of Boston and T. Broadhurst of Australia, 6-0, 6-0, in his opening round yesterday he trimmed Alec Persons of Worcester by a like score. This makes 51 consecutive games that the champion has won as he eliminated Carl Fischer of Cynwyd, Pa., former Rhode Island state champion, in the finals of the Nassau county.

Tilden has rarely if ever played more "perfect" tennis than he displayed today, as both opponents made a combined total of but 25 points. Paired with "Sandy" Weiner of Philadelphia, Tilden also won his opening doubles match against Malcolm T. Mull and D. M. Hill, Jr., Wabash, Mass., 6-2, 6-1.

W. W. Ingraham of Providence and Harvard upset the dope by defeating Nathaniel W. Niles of Boston, who was one of the seeded players 8-6, 6-0.

M. Fukuda of Japan was eliminated by the veteran F. C. Baggs of New York, 6-3, 6-3. The other Japs, Zenzo Shimizu and T. Karada won impressive victories over Louis Russell L. Dana of Pawtucket former state champion, and Louise Thalheimer, of the University of Texas, former intercollegiate doubles champion, by identical scores, 6-1, 6-2. National intercollegiate champion Edward Chandler of California easily defeated W. O. Sears, Hartford, 6-0, 6-3.

BERESFORD AND HOOVER MAY CONTEST FOR CUP

PHILADELPHIA, July 7.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Gold Cup committee today cabled Jack Beresford, Jr., the British oarsmen, appealing to his "British sportsmanship" to row Walter M. Hoover, Philadelphia, for the amateur rowing championship of the world.

The committee met today and after receiving official word from England that Beresford had resigned the cup to Hoover and would be presented to the Philadelphian on Thursday, sent this cable to Beresford:

"Your correspondence clearly accepted cup in good faith. Hoover's trip to England made in same spirit. Appeal to your British sportsmanship for immediate contest. Cable answer."

Beresford holds the cup by virtue of winning the singles event at the last Olympic games. Last spring Hoover by eliminating other Americans in trials here won the right to challenge for the cup and left for England more than a month ago at the expense of the gold cup committee. Hoover entered the diamond sculls contest and was eliminated by Beresford, after which announcement was made in England that Beresford would not row Hoover for the cup.

"RABBIT" MARANVILLE TO PILOT CHICAGO CUBS

CHICAGO, July 7.—(A. P.)—Walter J. (Rabbit) Maranville, appointed manager of the Chicago Cubs today, succeeding William Killifer, becomes one of the grand young playing managers in the major leagues. The new pilot of the Cubs, one of the greatest shortstops in the game, joins with Bucky Harris, manager of the world's championship Washington club, and Rogers Hornsby, pilot of the St. Louis Cardinals and Dave Bancroft of the Boston Nationals, in making up the group of youthful playing managers.

Harris is the youngest with Hornsby next on the list, and Bancroft a year younger than the "Rabbit."

Maranville will be 34 years old next November and gets into the limelight as a manager after 14 years of professional baseball. Although Maranville has been rated as a veteran for several years, he is not particularly old as baseball ages go. He was born November 11, 1891.

KID MILLER'S ANSWER TO COULON'S CHALLENGE

If suitable arrangements can be made, I will fight Young Coulon of Taftville, is Kid Miller's reply to the Taftville Boy's challenge. The Kid has lost no time in answering Coulon's challenge and it appears that he is just as anxious to mix it up as Coulon, but where or when he does not say. Coulon, on the other hand, is ready to fight Miller in about two weeks, in which time he expects to do some strenuous training, in order to be in the pink of condition, when he meets Miller.

There is no need to say that, if this bout goes through, it will be a good one, for these boys have had a chip on their shoulder for some time, it is said, and the quicker they come together, the better. For some time past Miller has ben on the Pacific, where, he says, he has learned a number of good pointers, which he plans to use to good advantage on Coulon, if they meet.

TAFTVILLE A. A. PLAYS PICKED TEAM TONIGHT

For the twilight game Wednesday evening at the Providence street grounds, Manager Troland's Taftville A. A. team will play a picked team composed of a fast bunch of ballstossers. The team is under the management of Ray Geer, a Taftville boy, and from all reports a good game is expecter, when these two local teams meet. The game is to be called at :30 sharp.

Manager Geer's lineup will be as follows: Jim Murphy c, Dark Horse p, Joubert 1b, Buster Murphy 2b, Normandin ss, Smith 3b, Lefty Dona, cf, Ray Geer rf and Stanley lf. Manager Troland announces his lineup as follows: Eccleston c, Lefty Dugas p, Adam Dugas 1b, Cardle 2b, Mills ss, Ray Yerrington 3b, Leo Jarvis cf, Lloyd Jarvis cf and Duffy rf.

Roy will do the umpiring on the bases while John Murphy will call the balls and strikes.

GIANTS REDUCE PIRATES' LEAD TO ONE GAME

NEW YORK, July 7.—(AP)—Giants and Pirates, old enemies in baseball, today settled down to a rigorous five-game test, New York taking the first combat, 7 to 6, and creeping up to within one full game of the pace-setting club from Pittsburgh.

Successive home runs by Moore and Cuyler in the first inning threatened a troublesome day for young Kent Greenfield, McGraw's choice for mound duty, but he steadied and his mates delivered the victory with thirteen base blows showered upon Aldridge, Sheehan and the veteran Babe Adams. Among them were a home run to the left field stands by Frisch and two doubles and a single by Young.

Three lightning double plays, one of them in the ninth with Artie Nehf in the box, saved the Giants. Carey barely missed Terry's double in the fifth which tied the game, when he attempted to spear the ball with his gloved hand after a long run. Frisch and Wilson of the Giants and Traynor of the Pirates, cut down hits with sensational fielding. Score:

CHICAGO WINS WITH MARANVILLE AS MANAGER

NEW YORK, July 7.—(AP)—Rabbit Maranville, making his debut as the manager of the Chicago Cubs, led his team to a victory over Brooklyn today, 10 to 5. In the sixth inning the Cubs broke a two-two tie when they staged a rally which netted seven runs. Tiny Osborne started for the Robins but gave way to a pinch hitter in the eighth and Oeschger finished the game. Cooper started for the Cubs but was knocked off the mound in the eighth and relieved by Guy Bush who halted a dangerous rally. Score:

SHADE SIGNS ARTICLES TO MEET CHAMPIONS IN DECISION FIGHT

NEW YORK, July 7.—(A. P.)—Dave Shade today threw down the gauntlet to champions of three divisions—Mickey Walker, Harry Greb and Paul Berlenbach—by signing articles to meet any one of the trio at the Polo Grounds in a decision fight September 3 or 18.

Under a ruling of the New York state athletic commission, Walker, the welterweight champion, is called upon this summer to defend his title against the California fighter. Should Matchmaker Jimmy De Forest of the Polo Grounds A. C., who secured Shade's name to a contract today, fail to obtain Walker's consent to a match, however, effort will be made to pit the Pacific Coast champion against Middleweight Champion Greb or Light-Heavyweight Champion Berlenbach.

If De Forest fails to obtain anyone of the three, Leo P. Flynn, manager of Shade, said today he would consent to a return match between the Californian and Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo, N. Y., the sensational middleweight knocked out in three rounds by Shade at the Italian Hospital fund show last week.

In connection with the attempt to line up Shade and Walker, Flynn was requested today by the boxing board to appear at a meeting next Thursday to discuss arrangements for a bout. The commissioners declared they would notify Walker to be present at the same time.

The board approved a card of fights on July 15 at the Metropolitan Velodrome, in the feature match of which Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, bantamweight champion, will box Eddie Shea of Chicago.

RAIN HALTS TWILEAGUE GAME IN THIRD INNING

The game last evening between Hallville and Yantic was called off in the third inning owing to rain much to the disappointment of the large crowd that had gathered to witness the game. Right up until the time the umpire took a hand in it, the game was going in great shape with the Yantic team leading 2 to 1, and should have been good had the heavens held off for a short while.

The game tonight will no doubt make up for it as two of the best teams in the league are slated to play. Both the Palace team and the Eastern Conn. Power team are traveling at a fast clip and are proving real pennant contenders.

The Palace team with three victories and one defeat are close on the league leading Centrals' heels and will play hard tonight to stay there, as a defeat tonight would be a mean set back.

While the E. C. P. isn't as far up the ladder as the Palace team, since they have strengthened they have won two games and are capable of giving the best of them a run and its hard telling what they will do to the Palace boys. In their infield they have three boys who have played great ball in college circles this season. Chick Stanley was well up in the batting order at the University of Washington, while Bill Ringland played at Tufts, and Whitney had a big season at Middlebury. The remainder of the lineup includes Cormier, Davis, Big Ed Harris, the three Hull boys, Simcox and Roy Fillmore. In all probability Simcox will do the twirling with Cormier behind the bat.

The Palace team will lineup as follows: Hamil of the State Hospital, catch, Mike Morin or Buck Shahan, pitch, Mulcahy at first, Morin at second, Nap Simcox at short, Chip Dugas on third and Shea, Jackson, Keenan and Ed. Moran in the outfield.

Hank Morin will do the umpiring.

The big surprise of the season comes tomorrow night when Manager Oney of the St. Joseph's announces the lineup of his entirely new team.

ARMY-NAVY CONTEST AT POLO GROUNDS

NEW YORK, July 7.—(A. P.)—The Polo Grounds and the Yankee Stadium rivals in baseball, boxing and musical extravaganzas, are jockeying for positions in a struggle for possession of the choicest of the coming season's football plums.

The blue ribbon classic of the gridiron, the Army-Navy contest will be fought at the Yankee Stadium as well as the Penn State-Georgia Tech intersectional battle.

New York University, coached by its new mentor, John P. (Chick) Meehan, will face Rutgers and Fordham in the Bronx amphitheatre with a possibility that the New York University-Columbia game will also be transferred from Baker Field if the interest warrants.

DRAKE BESTS BISHOP IN PITCHING BATTLE

BRIDGEPORT, July 7—(A. P.)—Frank Wotell's triple followed by Army's single in the eleventh, broke up a pitching duel between Jimmy Bishop and Leon Drake here this afternoon, Bridgeport winning one to nothing.

Manager Wilhelm was chased by Umpire Conroy for protesting a decision at third base. The fielding of Wotell, Burke and Helgeth stood out. Score:

Waterbury ..... 000 000 000 0)—0
Bridgeport ..... 000 000 00x 01—1

Two base hits, Yordy, Wotell. Three base hit, Wotell.

Open Air Fight Postponed.

Philadelphia, July 7.—(A. P.)—Rain tonight caused a postponement until tomorrow night of the open air fights at Shibe Park. Lew Tendler, Philadelphia, and Joe Dundee, Baltimore, were to have met in the feature bouts.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Night golf by electric illumination has been tried successfully in Bermuda.

It must have been something of a novelty for John McGraw's players when the Pirates forced them to release their long-standing hold on first place.

With the exception of the Canadian open championship, Jim Barnes now has captured about all of the major titles open to the professional golfer.

The Longueuil Boating Club of Montreal, which was organized in 1867 and incorporated in 1892, is one of the oldest rowing organizations in the Dominion.

The new Coney Island Stadium, where some of the best boxing shows in the metropolitan district are being held, has a seating capacity of nearly 25,000.

The first American to win the Diamond Sculls at Henley, which event is considered to carry with it the world's amateur sculling championship, was E. H. Ten Eyck of Worcester, Mass., who won the famous trophy in 1897.

One of the sensations of the polo season in England has been the appearance of a 17-year-old boy, who has started with an official handicap of 2, while many men of long experience in the game have not risen to the dignity of a handicap at all. The youthful wonder is the son of Earl Hopping, the former American player who is now entirely indentified with English polo.

The biggest gathering of royalty ever present at one time at the race-meeting at Ascot was in 1815, the "Peace Year" following the Napoleonic wars. The King of Prussia, gorgeously uniformed, and attended by a retinue of German princes, was the central figure of a procession that included the Czar of Russia, the Prince Regent, his brother Duke of York, Queen Charlotte, and Blucher, the hero of Waterloo, who was greeted with even more thunderous applause than any other individual.

LOWLY BRAVES WIN TWO GAMES FROM CARDINALS

BOSTON, July 7.—(AP)—The Boston Braves ran their string of victories to five by thumping the St. Louis Cardinals in a double header today, 7 to 4 and 8 to 2. Jess Barnes held the visitors to seven hits in the opener and Kyle Graham let them down with a like number of safeties in the second game. Dernie Neis, Braves center fielder, hit the ball far over the left field fence in the fourth inning of the first game, the second time in the history of the park that this feat has been accomplished. BROWNS TAKE DOUBLE HEADER FROM YANKEES

ST. LOUIS, July 7.—(A. P.)—The Browns won a double header from the Yankees today, taking the first game 13 to 2 and the second 6 to 5. Batting rallies in the fifth and seventh innings of the initial contest enabled the Browns to win. The Yankees hits were scattered.

Harry Rice, outfielder brought in the winning Brownie run in the ninth frame of the second game after Earl Combs, outfielder, hit for the circuit in the Yankees' half of the inning with one man on and tied the score. The score:

A NEW LONDON SUMMER COTTAGER MUST ANSWER FOR POLICE DOG'S ACTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 7—Harry Brightman, Hartford auto salesman, who is spending the summer with his family at 66 Park street, Ocean Beach, was today ordered to appear in the police court tomorrow morning and answer a charge of violation of the state law, in harboring a vicious dog. Brightman owns a good-sized police dog, which he brought here from Hartford and ever since Brightman took up his abode at the shore resort some of his neighbors have constantly complained to the authorities because of the dog having attacked them and other pedestrians. Brightman was recently served with notice by Dog Warden John Sweezy to keep the dog under restraint.

Four motorists were in the police court today for violation of the parking ordinance. That they were there was attributable to carelessness for there are signs in abundance in all the restricted sections that forbids the parking of cars.

Francis D. Medbury, of Mystic, stopped on Church street to deliver eggs, and farm produce and pulled up to the curbing right where there was a forbidding sign. The automobile was tagged by Officer Clyde Murphy and Medbury answered in court.

Mrs. Pauline Strong, a summer resident drove to the curbing on Main street and left her car with the rear wheels hanging over on the street railway tracks. She admitted that she was the offender, but said she was thoughtless.

Jacob Egosian parked on the north side of state street and went to do some business elsewhere. When he returned he found a tag ordering him into court. All the offenders escaped the imposition of judgment, but judge Tinker said that the violation of the parking ordinance must stop.

Thomas Zondiros was fined $10 because he quarreled with a customer over the purchase of bananas. The row was a heated one, but the offended customer apparently thought satisfaction came from the prosecution of Zondiros to a means of getting it.

Archibald S. MacFarlane has sold a house and lot on Georgianna street to Hazen and Arvilla M. Lewis.

Catharine Lacey has sold a house and lot at Ocean Beach to Patrick J. Clifford.

Elizabeth Cherkasky, administratrix of the estate of Benjamin Cherkasky, has sold a dwelling, corner of Summer and Wall streets to Concetta Portera.

Mrs. Arnold Clemens, (Beth Keeney) whose marriage took place two weeks ago and who was reappointed assistant town clerk at the meeting of the board last evening, resumed her duties today. Mr. and Mrs. Clemens resumed their wedding trip a few weeks ago.

Mrs. Nellie Edgcomb, of 83 Willetts avenue this afternoon reported to the police that her son George K. Edgcomb had been missing from home since last Wednesday. While the police were attempting to obtain a clue as to where the young man had gone, Mrs. Edgcomb informed the authorities that her son had been located in New Haven.

Miss Bertha Byk, of New York, who had been visiting relatives here, died on Saturday at Home Memorial hospital. The funeral was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at 41 Shapley street, services being conducted by Rabbi Silberstein. The body was forwarded to New York for burial. Miss Byk was a sister of Mrs. Benj. Spitz, a former resident of New London.

Owen F. Coffey, 58, a former well known employe of the freight service of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, died suddenly last night at his residence, 372 Main street. He is survived by his wife and five children, Owen F. Coffey Jr., Katherine N. Coffey, Mrs. Margaret M. Tinker and James M. and Edmund R. Coffey. Three brothers, Patrick H., and Thomas F. Coffey of Stonington, and William E. Coffey Gardner, Me., also survive. Mr. Coffey was a member of Thames river lodge 696, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. He was born in Groton Jan. 9, 1863, and had resided in New London about 30 years, during which time he had been in the employ of the railroad.

Mr. Coffey had been a sufferer from a weakened condition of the heart about eight years and although he had been under the care of a physician, his death was not anticipated. He returned to his home last evening from a visit with his daughter, Mrs. Margaret M. Tinker, on Pleasant street, and a short time afterward suffered a heart attack and expired almost immediately.

George Babcock, of 57 Federal street, janitor in the employ of James Hislop & Co., who suffered severe lacerations of the head two weeks ago while attending a picture performance at the Crown theatre when a section of the ceiling collapsed, was able to leave Lawrence hospital this afternoon and return home. Other patients dismissed were Mrs. John E. Haviland, of Niantic; Mrs. William Terry, 389 Bayonet street; Charles Hunt, 26 Blackhall street; Mrs. Benjamin Packer, 78 Truman street, and Arthur Martin, Graniteville. The last named suffered a fractured leg several weeks ago when the motorcycle he was riding along Bank street was wrecked, being struck by an automobile operated by Louis Izzovitch, of Squire street.

There is no change today in the condition of Lawrence Vera Jr., 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Vera, Uncasville, who is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital suffering from a bullet wound in his neck. The bullet struck the child while he was walking in Montville Saturday with his mother and was fired by a careless celebrator of the holiday. It has not been decided whether the child will recover.

The funeral of Antone Alfiero, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Casper Alfiero, 37 Orchard street, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Raymond O'Callahan. Former associates of the youth acted as bearers. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The condition of Peter Grillo, who is under treatment at Lawrence hospital, is reported today as being worse and doubts are entertained of his recovery.

Like the third person in the explosion, Joseph Alfiero, Peter Grillo sustained second degree burns about the face, head, arms and neck. The elder Alfiero, is holding his own.

The condition of John Moriarty, 53, of 50 Howard street, an employe for a number of years at the mill of Palmer Brothers, who attempted suicide yesterday forenoon by slashing his throat with a razor, remains unchanged today at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. Moriarty had been drinking heavily prior to the commission of his attempt at self-destruction.

Information from the members of the National Guard who left here Sunday for camp in Pennsylvania is to the effect that they reached their destination all right, but that they have not as yet got settled in the camp and that there is little that can be said about the camp or how the stay will be enjoyed.

New London lodge of Elks is arranging for an out of doors picnic that is expected to be the real thing.

Owners of concessions at Ocean Beach are said to have made up in business since last Friday all that they missed in the fortnight of cool weather preceding that time. Business has been really good at the beach the past four days and the concessionists are expecting to clean up after all. They did not have that opinion a week ago.

Groton people who come to New London by way of the ferryboat and return by the same route declare that there are but few minutes during the day when trains are not on the tracks at the station or moving over the rails in going to and from the station. People going over the crossing must keep eyes open and ears in the same condition if they are to escape injury. There never was a time when so many trains were moving on the New Haven railroad as are moved there every day. The business of the road has increased greatly during the past two years.

There is a bet of here that the New London customs house shelters more liquor than any repository in the state. Some heavy seizures were made in the Sound and in adjacent waters and the liquor was all brought to the customs house here. Some of it was transferred elsewhere, but by no means all of it was taken away. There was no place at which it could be so conveniently stored and so quickly handled as at New London. The coast guard station being located here the liquor can be loaded upon ships of that branch of the service and transferred to any point at a day's notice. A large quantity of ale seized here some time ago was destroyed, but even some of that got away from the government and did not meet with destruction. No one can say for a certainty outside the inner circle just how much liquor is in storage here, but that it is a large quantity is reasonably certain. It was claimed at one time that the government was to dispose of most of the seized liquors to hospitals and similar institutions, but so far as is known no such disposition has been made of the liquor that was stored in the customs house in this city.

An effort is to be made here to secure funds for relief of the people of the near east. Miss Edith S. Dudley, field representative, is in the city and is organizing committees that will do the work of raising the money that New London is expected to contribute. It is possible that she has a task on hand, but that remains to be seen. New London has always been generous in such undertakings and it is likely that reputation will still characterize the city.

Walter Williams, 108 Freeman street, Fall River, Mass., came to New London today and this afternoon he started shopping. He visited the five and ten cent store and during his touring left on the counter his pocketbook, containing a small sum of money and a ticket for New York. When he returned to claim his purse and its contents the pocketbook was missing. Williams reported his loss to the police.

An automobile owned and driven by Mrs. John R. Smith, of Windsor, Conn., and a machine owned and operated by Windsor T. Jacques, an insurance agent, were in collision tonight on Bank street. Both cars were damaged.

Miss Betty Gray, 162 Pequot avenue, is entertaining the Misses Violet and Arlene Gray, of Hartford.

Judson Johnson is spending a few days with his brother, Walter Johnson, in Jewett City.

Arthur Tyler, of Hartford, was fined $25 and costs in the Waterford town court, late yesterday, by Judge Frederick Dimmock, when charged with reckless driving. The accused was arrested last Saturday following his operating his automobile at a fast rate of speed between Jordan cemetery and the Golden Spur.

Edward Savinello, of New Haven, also drew a fine of $50 on a charge of reckless driving. Savinello was apprehended by State Policeman Henry Albright and his conduct toward the officer, which was surly, undoubtedly brought about the severe penalty.

COAST GUARDSMAN HELD CHARGED WITH MURDER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 7—Edward Hagener, about 22, alias Albert Gorman, a member of the United States Coast Guard and stationed at Fort Trumbull, was taken into custody this morning, on a warrant issued by the authorities of Chester, Pa., charging Hagener with murder.

Hagener, it is alleged, participated in a robbery at Chester several months ago and in a fight to make a get-away killed the man he is alleged to have robbed. Hagener then came to New London where he enlisted in the coast guard under the alias. Recently the authorities of Chester obtained information that Hagener was in the coast guard service here. Early this morning H. L. Sprout, attorney for the city of Chester; William Mullen, county detective at Chester; Howard W. Anderson, city detective and Alfred E. Hughes, Troop F., and William Davis, Troop E., of the Pennsylvania state police, came to New London in search of the fugitive. The officers visited the police station and made known their information.

Acting Lieutenant James D. Gaffney accompanied the officers to the United States coast guard station where it was revealed that Hagener was under enlistment there, but he was absent on shore liberty. The officers remained at the reservation until 4 o'clock when the fugitive appeared there and was taken into custody by the military authorities. This afternoon the treasury department at Washington issued instructions for the turning over of Hagener to the civic authorities and this evening he was taken back to Chester for trial.

JEWETT CITY

Up from the south the other day came Swift and Co.'s dressed beef and pork products truck, loaded down with choicest meats.

In the long drive from Norwich some of the boxes had shifted a bit on the top tier. Opposite the Wallace home, in Sylvandale, one of the big cartons fell and out into the street slipped a couple of nice long ribs of roasting pork. On went the truck, but their stayed the ribs. Presently, Miss Margaret Wallace came out of her front door, and at once saw the juicy roasts. Miss Wallace rescued the dinner for ten and returned them to the driver of the truck. His finances at that moment forbade a reward, but his gallant intentions were evident, for when next he drove up he stopped at the gate of the Wallace home and left two savory and bulky bundles. When the packages were opened there were disclosed two of the finest brand of Westphalian sugar cured hams; one from the company, a recognition and another from the driver, agreeable to an unwritten law.

In connection with the manufacture of the K. of C. float, the littering of "Santa Maria" was done by the Sisters of the Holy Ghost, of the local convent. Dennis Sullivan painted the emblems and Fred Walton the ship.

One of the pleasing features of the 4th of July celebration, was the distribution of thousands of roses along the line of march from Lisbon bridge to Tracy square, by Mrs. George A. Ross.

George W. Carden of Yantic is spending a week with his aunt, Mrs. John T. Stewart. Saturday's guests were Mrs. Elizabeth Kingsley of Norwich Town, Miss Grace Carden of Yantic and Miss Freda Bower of Taftville.

Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Masse and children of Fall River have been guests at Wilfred LaChapelle's and Louis Masse's.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman B. Parkhurst have as their guest for the summer, Alston Eagar, Jr. of North Adams. Miss Janet Dibble spent last week there, and Mr. and Mrs. Alston Eagar and daughter Sibyl of North Adams were guests Sunday.

The Pachaug Ladies' Aid Society is to meet at Mrs. Arba Browning's Thursday afternoon.

That those who wish may attend Chautauqua, the Baptist church, will omit its accustomed Wednesday evening meeting.

Mrs. George B. Hatch, of Green's Farms, Conn., is the guest of her brother E. F. Burleson.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Burleson are to receive a visit from Mrs. E. F. Burleson and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Meyer, the trip to Schenectady will be taken by automobile.

The chairmen of the floats committee and the warden of the borough of Jewett City have added the letters, received with no signature, to those already noted. These letters all have to do with the dissatisfaction of some resident of Mechanic street, relative to the parade routing on the Fourth. It is a perfectly natural question to ask especially as the final plans included Mechanic street. Good and sufficient reasons could be stated by the marshal of the day. But, neither the board of borough government, nor the Float committee, nor this paper will give notice to the requests of anonymous letters.

FATHER AND DAUGHTER HAVE SAME FUNERAL SERVICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

CENTRAL VILLAGE

A boy named Cornell, living in Rhode Island, while visiting his grandfather, Wm. Cornell, on Black Hill was riding with two other children on a horse's back. The animal started to run and the boys, taking fright, jumped or fell off. One, a four-year old had his thigh broken below the hip. The father of the boy placed the little fellow in an automobile and took him to Dr. Houston near Washington. The doctor had him placed in the Rhode Island hospital. The break is a bad one.

Geo. W. Shepard, who died Saturday in So. Scituate, Mass., was an old resident of these parts. He was a Captain in the Civil war and always had a genine military bearing. He joined the A. O. U. W. in Central Village, July 9, 1883 and retained his membership to his death.

William Eaglesham, 62, gate tender at Central Village died at 9:45 Sunday night, at his boarding place, the Pike House, Mrs. Eaglesham, rushed to Dr. Gardner's house at a few minutes before, saying Mr. Eaglesham had fallen in a faint. The doctor responded within a few minutes but the man was dead, having died without a struggle apparently. Dr. Adams, medical examiner was called. Indigestion and heart disease was apparently the cause of his death.

CHAPLIN

THE "GO" SIGN.

Sometimes I get to thinkin' Life is like a Traffic Cop
Who tells you when you ought to go and when you've got to stop—
There's folks that won't admit it, but I guess they really know
That it's best to keep on movin' when the sign says "Go!"

There's work enough to furnish every mother's son a share,
So get your pick and shovel 'cause there
ain't no time to spare,
And the Cop ain't got no patience with the man that's movin' slow—
Better keep up with the traffic when the sign says "Go!"

Don't waste your time a cussin' 'cause
you're snubbed again by Luck,
Remember his twin brother who goes by the name of Pluck—
Say, there's a little feller that you really ought to know,
And you'll find him right beside you when
the sign says "Go!"

When some guy walks around you in his brand new coat and pants
And that and tie to match 'em—has he had a better chance?
Well it's two to one he hasn't, and besides you wouldn't know
If you don't keep on movin' when the sign says "Go!"

Perhaps he got the business that you set and wished you had
But you didn't go and get it 'cause you'd feelin' kinda bad—
Are you gonna pet a stomachache and lose your share of "dough"
'Cause you lag behind the others when
the sign says "Go!"

To keep your peace with Work you've got to lock him in the eye
And never bat an eyelid, but agree to do or die!
Then you'll have no grounds for worry and no blame for movin' slow,
And be smilin' from the front ranks
when the sign says "Go!"

It's well to bear in mind the fact that this old Traffic Cop
Someday is gonna turn his sign for you and bid you stop—
And where you'll spend your latter days and what you'll have to show Depends on how you're movin' when the sign says "Go!"

—Lola F. Echard.

NATURE.

As a fond mother, when the day is o'er,
Leads by the hand her little child to bed,
Half-willing, half reluctant to be led,
And leave his broken playthings on the floor,
Still gazing at them through the open door,
Nor wholly reassured and comforted
By promises of other in their stead,
Which, though more splendid, may
please him more;
So Nature deals with us, and takes away
Our playthings, one by one, and by the hand
Leads us to rest so gently, that we go
Scarce knowing if we wish to go or stay,
Being too full of sleep to understand How far the unknown transcends the what we know.

—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

I think Gail dresses so quietly.

You wouldn't if you heard him when he lost his collar button last night.—Denver University Parrakeet.

The Woman — In the battle of tongues a woman can hold her own.

The Man—Yes: but why doesn't she?—Answers, London.

Bridget—The missus discharged me today.

Norah—What for?

Bridget—Shure, because she knew tomorrow would be too late.—Boston Transcript.

Aren't you going in?

I see the bathers have to hang on the ropes.

Yes.

I get enough straphanging at home.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Vegetarian's Husband — Do you know, my dear, I really think we ought to have a bit of meat once in a while? Three times last night I caught myself whimnying!—The Progressive Grocer.

I hear your mother-in-law is dead.

Yes. I accidentally shot her.

My; that's too bad. How did it happen?

She stepped in front of my wife just as I fired.—Stanford University Chapparral.

"Are you sure that I shall recover? I have heard that doctors sometimes give wrong diagnoses and have treated patients for pneumonia who afterwards died of typhoid fever.

You've been woefully misinformed. If I treat a man for pneumonia, he dies of pneumonia.—Whiz Bang.

Acquitted? What yo' mean, judge?"

The old negro who had been accused of stealing a watch looked doubtful.

Acquited? What yo' mean, judge?"

"I mean," answered the judge, "you are acquitted."

The negro looked more confused than ever. "Judge" he asked, "does dat mean I have to gib de watch back?"—Good Hardware.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Within the last few years Palestine has made great progress in the cultivation of tobacco.

Denmark has the most telephones in proportion to the population of any of the countries of Europe.

Nearly 3,000,000 fowls were inspected for tuberculosis in the United States during the last spring.

Bones discovered in sediments of volcanic ash in Townsend valley, Montana, show that tapirs and rhinoceroses once inhabited that region.

Automobiles in Jerusalem are being made to replace their horns with bells, due to the dislike of the authorities for harsh sounding horns or sirens.

Cattle men in New Zealand are treating hay with double citrate of iron and ammonia in order to prevent the "bush sickness" or "iron hunger" disease among cattle due to lack of iron in the diet.

An important discovery of jade in South Africa has been reported from a farm near the town of Brits in the Transvaal. The stone is formed in the various shades of blue, white, pink and green, and in quantities large enough to warrant commercial exploitation. The discovery was made during prospecting operations for chrome iron. A company has been formed with headquarters in Johannesburg, and has obtained permission from the government to bring in Chinese jade experts as cutters and polishers so that the jade may be marketed as beads and art ornaments.

The tsetse fly, which in Africa carries the germ of sleeping sickness, deadly to men and cattle, has been found in Colorado. But there is no cause for alarm, for the flies have been dead and buried for 1,000,000 or 200,000 years and are now known only by their fossil remains preserved in rock deposits near the foot of Pike's peak. Strange to say fossil hunting expedition under the direction of Prof. T. D. A. Cockerell, of the University of Colorado, have been unable to find evidence that house flies, stable flies of blue-bottle flies plagued the early mammals, including ancestors of the horse, that lived in Colorado in those ancient times. But four species of tsetse flies have been found although they are representatives of a genus no longer existing in the western hemisphere.

Sky medicine for the children

"VACATION time is here and the long summer lies ahead—two months of freedom for the children.

"Don't be afraid to fill them up on sky medicine. Take them out in the family bus and let them range the hills! Let them climb like so many little bears—go berrying—learn for themselves something of the great pageant of the out-of-doors.

"Then, when the winter comes, the youngsters will be fortified against disease, kept warm with the splendid fire of good health.

"Beyond any town the hills loom up, and wherever you go, whenever the long road invites you and the kiddies, remember how dependably and economically Socony Gasoline and Motor Oil will take you there and back again.

"There's health in the motor ride—longer life and happier."

STOCK PRICES GO TO NEW HIGH LEVEL

NEW YORK, July 7—(A. P.)—Stimulated by pool activity in a wide assortment of motors and specialties, stock prices surged upward again today with about thirty issues elevated to new high prices for the year. The demand for stocks spread over a broad list with net gains of one to four points quite common at the close, and the day's sales running well over one and one-quarter of million shares.

Specialists for the advance found plenty of ammunition for their campaign, and were aided by the apparent scarcity in the floating supply of many issues. Reports that President Coolidge favored a general reduction of income taxes, publication of bank statements showing record breaking deposits and resources, easy money rates and stiffening commodity prices all served to create bullish sentiment.

Motors responded to reports of largely increased earnings by the principal manufacturing companies. Studebaker, General Motors, Packard, Hudson, Moon and Pierce Arrow common and prior preferred all broke through to new peak prices, the last named soaring 6 1-2 points to 179 1-2 as against a low of 55 earlier in the year. U. S. Rubber first preferred, also advanced a point to a new maximum. Goodrich moved up 1 3-8 and the other tire stocks improved fractionally.

Special buying movements, based on individual developments, accounted for the strength of the many specialties which were boosted to the highest prices of the year. Certain-teed Products sold at the highest price in three years on the announcement that foreign business was running substantially ahead of 1924 and indications that 1925 profits will double those of last year when $4.95 a share was earned on the common stock. Foundation Company was run up to 131 on reports of large foreign contracts. American Ice, Fleischman, Continental Can, Household Products, United Drug and U. S. Hoffman Machinery all were bid up to new 1925 tops in reflection of large current earnings.

Reports of record breaking chain store and mail order sales stimulated the demand for those issues. Montgomery Ward, McCrory Stores B, and Woolworth all breaking their previous top prices. Recent strength of Simmons Company was explained by the publication of the semi-annual report showing that the first half year's profits cover the full year's dividend on the preferred and three quarterly dividends on the common with indications of increased profits in the second half as a result of the heavy sales of the company's new models.

INCREASED WHEAT BUYING

CHICAGO, July 7—(A. P.)—Increased export buying, together with fresh misgivings relative to possible serious damage from black rust had much to do with a sharp late upturn in wheat values today and even a bigger upturn in rye. Closing quotations on wheat were strong, 2 7-8 to 4 1-2c net higher, September 1.44 7-8 to 1.45 and December 1.46 1-8 to 146 1-4 with rye at 3 3-4 to 5 1-40c advance, corn 3-8c to 3 3 -8c up oats showing 1c to 1 7-8c gains and provisions unchanged to 5c lower.

Active buying of future deliveries became a notable feature of the wheat market near the end of the day after it was known that new export purchases would amount to 1,000,000 bushels or more of wheat and 360,000 bushels of rye.

Advices telling of black rust development were received from a wide extent of spring wheat territory northwest.

Corn and oats rose with wheat. Kansas reports said corn in some sections had been burnt up by hot weather. Export purchases of 650,000 bushels of oats were made, and Illinois points told of oats harvest operations being delayed by rain.

Lower prices on hogs made the provision market easy.

BOND PRICES IN UPWARD TREND

NEW YORK, July 7—(A. P.)—Rising prices and expending activity marked today's bond trading, which was featured by a quickened demand for public utility and semi-speculative railroad issues. Buying was stimulated by the definite return of easier money conditions which was reflected in the strength of United States government bonds. The treasury 4 1-4 S established a new high record at 108.12.

One of the largest railroad bond issues of the year has been arranged for tomorrow when Kuhn, Loeb and company will offer $40,000,000 Central Pacific 35 year five per cent bonds at 93 to yield about 5 1-3 per cent. The bonds are a direct obligation of the Central Pacific Railway company and will be guaranteed by the Southern Pacific company.

High yielding railroad liens commanded speculative favor in the day's trading, being influenced by a combination of favorable earnings and mercer reports. Among the most active issues were "Katy" adjustment 5'S, and refunding 4'S, Peoria and Eastern income 4'S, and several of the junior St. Paul liens.

Leading an upward movement in the oils, Sinclair Consolidated Oil 6'S, rallied almost 3 points. Pan-American and other convertible issues kept pace with advances in the shares of thes companies. Wilson and company obligations were among the other strong spots in the industrial group.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, July 7.—(AP)—Strength and activity of the public utility issues featured the upward movements in today's curb market oils failed to participate extensively in the advance, despite encouraging trade reports, although Vacuum, Humble and a few others moved up a point or so.

Merger possibilities and large current earnings formed the basis for the heavy accumulation of the Power and Light stocks. American Super-Power "B" one of the most active duplicated its high of 40 1-2, Associated Gas and Electric touched a new top at 36 1-2 and United Light and Power, American Power and Light and National Power & Light closed 2 to 6 points above yesterday's final quotations.

Film stocks were the strong and active features of the industrial list. Fox was run up to a new top at 56 and aPthe attained the record figure on 93 3-8, both reacting from their continued heavy on realizing. Coal stocks showed substantial gains despite threats of another anthracite miner's suspension.

NORWICH TOWN

The mid-week service for conference and prayer, of the First Congregational church, Thursday evening in the chapel, will be in charge of one of the deacons. At this church next Sunday morning, Rev. Charles E. Reeves will have charge of the morning worship and will deliver the sermon. The regular choir is to have a vacation for several Sundays, during which a chorus choir comprising a number of members from the Young People's Christian Endeavor society will provide the singing.

Rev. and Mrs. Gurdon F. Bailey and daughters, Miss Marion L. Bailey and Miss Louise P. Bailey, are passing a few weeks at their cottage at East Beach, Quonochontaug, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. House, of Town street, returned Sunday evening from a motor trip to Bridgeport, where they visited over the holiday and week end at the home of Mr. House's grandmother, Mrs. Ella House. When returning Sunday afternoon a call was made at the home of Mr. House's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard House, of Stratford.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanton W. Brown and daughter, Miss Theodora Brown, of Washington avenue, were motor guests Sunday afternoon, of Mrs. Charles F. Geer, of West Town street, when a visit was made to the rose gardens at Elizabeth park, Hartford. From there they motored out to Wethersfield, also visited the Pierce gardens at Cromwell, where they saw some beautiful roses. Returning home the party stopped for a brief time in Middletown, reaching Norwich Town by way of Colchester in the early evening.

Mrs. Charles F. Geer had as callers, Tuesday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Chandler and little son, of Dixon, Iowa, who recently motored to New London to visit Mrs. Chandler's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geer, making the journey in five days. Mrs. Chandler, who is a niece of Mrs. Charles F. Geer, with her family continued to Franklin to call on former neighbors and friends. Mr. Chandler, after several days' vacation, will return to his home in the west. Mrs. Chandler and child are to spend the summer in New London, at the home of the former's parents.

THROUGH TROLLEY SERVICE TO OCEAN BEACH

Commencing on Wednesday of this week the Connecticut company will inaugurate a through trolley service to Ocean Beach and return daily. This service will be subject to weather conditions for on stormy days the trolleys will not be run clear through to the beach. The first trolley for Ocean Beach will leave daily from Norwich at 11.15 o'clock, eastern standard time, 12.15 o'clock daylight time, and will be operated every hour thereafter until 6.15 standard time, 7.15 daylight time. The first car from Ocean Beach through to Norwich will leave from there at 12.45 p. m. standard time, 1.45 p. m. daylight time, and every half hour from then until 7.45 p. m., standard time, 8.15 daylight time. This service will have changing at New London as has been necessary for so many years and will be greatly appreciated by trolley patrons.

Pet Maltese Cat Killed.

Chubby, a beautiful large maltese cat belonging to Mrs. Herman Pukallus of West Main street was struck and almost instantly killed by an automobile speeding by the house Monday evening. Chubby had four, big double paws and was exceptionally intelligent, having been in the family nine years. His death is very keenly felt as he has been a great pet.

CITY GAS AND ELECTRIC DEPT. MADE HIGH RECORD IN PAST YEAR

A net profit of $169,618.38 for the year ending April 30, 1925 is reported for the city gas and electric plant by the gas and electric commissioners in their 21st annual report, the biggest year of business and largest net profit in the history of the plant under city management and ownership. It exceeds by about $10,000 the mark made in the preceding year, which was the high mark up to that time.

President James L. Case said Tuesday night that economies and increased efficiency in operation together with the growth in business accounted for the fine showing, which is very gratifying to the commission, coupled as it has been with a decrease in rates during the year and large expenditures at the plant. Both the gas and the electrical side of the plant show increased business for the year.

The commission made its report Monday night to the common council, signed by James L. Case, president; Samuel Goldberg, vice-president, J. A. Desmond, secretary, and Joseph P. Connor.

Commission's Report.

The report of the commission is as follows:

The board of gas and electrical commissioners of the city of Norwich beg to submit for your consideration and approval, the 21st annual report of the operations of the department for the year ending April 30, 1925.

In accordance with a plan inaugurated by the commissioners in 1924 we have attached hereto, and made a part of this report, the annual report of General Charles W. Taggart to us, for a similar period. We most respectfully request your consideration and study of the same.

It has been the aim of your board of commissioners to keep the plant in the best possible physical condition, as well as to make the necessary extensions and improvements for the benefit of the service as rapidly as sufficient funds have been available therefore. The wisdom of such a policy which has been pursued, particularly in recent years, has been fully demonstrated during these recent months, for three offers to purchase the plant were submitted to you as follows:

From the Eastern Connecticut Power company, $1,692,896.96; Central Connecticut Power company, $2,250,000.00; Fitkin & Company, $3,000,000.00.

Inasmuch as the legislature of the state of Connecticut refused to allow the city to accept any one of these offers, they were necessarily declined.

No other event in the history of the department has caused the citizens of Norwich to familiarize themselves to such a degree with the actual conditions, value, and future prospects of the business, for as a result of the discussion as to the advisability of accepting any one of the above offers, many citizens availed themselves of the opportunity of securing a first hand knowledge of actual conditions.

By virtue of legislative enactment, a sum not to exceed one half of the department's net earnings for each fiscal year may be hereafter paid into the general city treasury for general use and benefit, and a sum of $40,000. was taken from the earnings of the year ending April 30, 1925, and paid into the general treasury for such purpose.

The action of the commissioners in making possible the new ornamental street lighting system on Main street, from Burnham square to Washington square, and from Shannon corner to the city hall, has met with enthusiastic approval, and it is to be hoped that further extensions of this system may be made in the coming year.

Your commissioners fully realize the great responsibility which has been entrusted to them, and we desire to assure you of our purpose to so conduct the affairs of the department as to not only win the approval of experts from without, but of the vast majority of our fellow citizens as well.

Our purpose for the ensuing year is to give efficient service at the lowest possible cost, but such a result can only be obtained by securing sympathetic co-operation of every citizen.

We desire to express our appreciation to you for the courtesies we have received during the past year, and to assure you that we most respectfully ask for a continuance of the same.

Report By Supt. Taggart.

Supt. Charles W. Taggart in his report to the commissioners says:

I am submitting herewith a report covering the operation of the city's gas and electrical department for the fiscal year ending April 30th. I trust that the results as herein set forth will meet with your approval.

SURPLUS—After charging off operating expense, interest on bonds, and writing off depreciation as required by statute, there remains a surplus of $169,618.38 from the year's operation.

SINKING FUND—During the past year $20,000 has been placed in the sinking fund. This, with the interest earned, gives a total of $104,178.54 with which to care for bonds when they come due. A schedule of the investments of these funds is shown on page . We have included in our estimate for the coming year the sum of $40,000 as an addition to this fund.

PLANT IMPROVEMENT—During the past year we have added in the gas plant a new washer cooler, which is a very material aid in delivering properly purified gas to our distribution system; a new positive pressure blower has also been installed for use on the water gas sets.

ORNAMENTAL LIGHTING SYSTEM—The results of our efforts in this direction were consummated on November 11th when the ornamental street lighting system was put into service. We trust that the system has met the expectations of all who were interested in the project. It is my recommendation that another portion of the business district be illuminated in this manner. Probably Franklin street to Boswell avenue, West Main street from Washington square to Thames square and North Main street from Preston Bridge to Central avenue would be the sections to be next given attention.

ELECTROLYSIS SURVEY—Last year was the first year in which a survey of this kind was made covering the entire underground structures of the public utilities in Norwich. The preliminary survey was completed during the past year and the recommendations of the committee having the matter in charge are now being carried out. The committee will be continued and inspections and tests made from time to time as may seem best. The committee consisting of Mr. E. H. Ewgrit of the Southern New England Telephone company, Mr. P. W. Rhipple of the Connecticut company, Mr. J. J. Corkery of the water department and Mr. C. W. Taggart of the gas and electrical department. Mr. King G. Kellogg, consulting electrolysis engineer, representing the water department and the gas and electrical department in this work.

ELECTRIC DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM—Work on the improvement of the distribution system is still being vigorously carried on. With the completion of the work now under way between Washington square and Burnham square a marked improvement should be noted in the appearance of the system.

GENERAL—During the fall and winter months a Better Home Lighting contest was conducted by the lighting educational committee who represented the entire electrical industry of the United States and the Dominion of Canada. This contest was conducted through the schools of the country. Some 200 students in the local schools entered the contest. Three hundred dollars was awarded to the successful contestants locally. This contest was entirely educational in character and it has been generally conceded that the contest was of much value in teaching how to use light. I feel that more of this work should be done and more money expended in this way for educational purposes.

The success of the public utility is greatly dependent upon the loyalty of its employes in their work, the good will of the people and the co-operation of all interested. I trust that the present fine spirit will continue, as it becomes more necessary as the business expands and our problems increase.

I wish to take this opportunity to express my appreciation to the present board of gas and electrical commissioners, as well as to those who have served on the commission in the past, and to the city officials for the support they have given in my work.

DEFECTIVE VISION IN MANY SCHOOL CHILDREN

One child out of every 11 in the public schools of American cities and one of every seven in the schools of the rural districts in the United States have seriously defective vision as to be handicapped in their school work, says a report presented to the National Education Association in session at Indianapolis, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

The report entitled "Conserving the Sight of School Children," "is the result of more than a year's study by the Joint Committee on Health Problems in Education of the National Education Association and the American Medical Association, with co-operation of the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness.

The study, conducted under the direction of Dr. Thomas D. Wood of Columbia university as chairman, extended into 375 cities and rural districts including every state in the Union. It was participated in by the school authorities and health officials of all these communities and by nearly 100 of the most eminent ophthalmologists of the United States. The report, covering 50 printed pages, will be brought to the attention of every city, state and county superintendent of schools.

The investigators found that during the year of this study approximately 5,000,000 school children received eye examinations and that an average of about 13 percent of these were found to have defective vision. This figure, says the report, suggests that considerable progress in eyesight conservation has been made in schools since previous studies and this progress has resulted in decreased percentages of eye defects.

Rural districts generally reported a larger percent of defective vision than city districts. It seems likely, says the report, that this is due to such differing factors as conditions under which the tests were obtained, bad illumination in rural schools and homes, and the smaller number of corrections of visual defects provided for rural children.

"The problem facing school administrators today," declares this report, "is to find effective means of remedying the handicap of defective vision of one-eighth of the 24,000,000 school children. This is important not only to secure greater efficiency in acquiring an education, but to conserve vision for greater helpfulness in adult life and in old age."

The report reveals that in only 17 states is the examination of the eyes of school children compulsory, that in 14 other states it is merely permissive, and that of the 17 states requiring eye examinations very few specify the portion of school population to be examined or the frequency with which such examinations should be made.

Recommendations in the report follow:

As it is likely that teachers, nurses and other non-medical school examiners will make many of the eye inspections for some time to come, it is most desirable that the school personnel be carefully instructed in the best methods of conserving sight.

The eyes of all pupils should be examined yearly under the best possible conditions by the most skilled persons available.

Every teacher should be trained to report to the health division of the schools any abnormal eye condition which may be discovered.

There is need for a uniform model law for the examination of the eyes of school children in all states and cities of the United States.

Greater emphasis must be placed on conserving childrens vision, especially from the standpoint of finding and correcting the faulty conditions of vision, providing properly lighted class and work rooms, making special provisions through conservation of vision clauses for those having seriously defective eyesight.

While the care of the physical well-being of the child as far as his school life is concerned, is a duty which devolves upon teachers, nurses, school physicians, and other school personnel, this fact is in no sense to imply that parents are to be relieved of their duties.

PRESTON CITY LIBRARY FUTURE LOOKS BRIGHT

The Preston City library has been undergoing much needed repairs and more are needed, as walls are stained, ceilings need refinishing and paint is needed for the outside of the building.

The community canvass, which was made in the spring, resulted in a collection of $136.75, C. C. Pendleton giving $100, the Preston City Grange $25 and the rest collected.

By consent of Mrs. Boswell, the trustees at the annual meeting voted to use $100 of the $200 of the Charles F. Boswell fund for this emergency. The sum of $21 has been used and $79 has been reserved to pay the librarian for regular and extra work in arranging the hundreds of books received from Judge Prentice, which will soon be on the shelves and ready for use.

Expenses for the various materials for the repair of the library and the placing of cement steps up to the library amounted to $122.25. A bequest of $2,500 willed to the Preston Free Public Library, by Judge Samuel Prentice, has been received and deposited.

Correspondence has been attended to and the check will be free from inheritance tax. The future of the library seems exceptionally bright at the present time and Preston City people have reason to be proud of their library, one of the best in the smaller towns of the state.

Postponed West End Meeting.

The meeting of the West End Community association which was to have been held Tuesday night at Elizabeth street school was postponed because of the circus. The meeting is to be held next Tuesday evening at the recreation grounds of the association, Lucas lot, at the city line.

BLODGETT HOLDS UP MOVIE TAX LAW ENFORCEMENT

State Tax Commissioner Announces Enforcement Suspension Pending Decision On Constitionality of New Law—Proceedings Instituted In U. S. District Court By Two Film Producing Corporations—All Motion Picture Operators Will Be Required To Keep Accurate Records of All Films Shown During Suspension Period—If Law Is Declared Constitutional State Will Collect Back Taxes.

HARTFORD, July 8—(A. P.)—Enforcement of the new motion picture tax and censorship law, which was to have begun today, was suspended by State Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett, this evening, pending determination of the question as to its constitutionality raised in the United States district court by two film producing corporations. The commissioner's decision followed a conference which he had with Attorney General Healy and Arthur L. Shipman, special counsel appointed by the latter to represent the state in the proceedings instituted by the producers.

[illegible] no attempt will be made by State Motion Picture Agent John J. [illegible], of New Haven, to collect the [illegible] of $1 a reel imposed on motion [illegible] shown in Connecticut [illegible] for the time being, all motion picture operators will be required to keep an exact record of all films shown in their theatres, giving length of the films and the nature of the pictures. If the law should be declared to be constitutional, the state tax will be collected from each theatre on the basis of the record kept by the operator there. In the meantime, however, no arrests will be made for failure to pay the tax.

Frederick M. Holden, of counsel for the producers denied today that he had agreed with Mr. Shipman not to oppose a postponement of the hearing on the constitutionality of the law scheduled to be held at New Haven, Friday before Federal Judges Rogers, Goddard and Thatcher. "Neither Mr. Wickersham nor I have made any such agreement," said Mr. Holden. "On the contrary, we are determined to press for an immediate hearing on the matter. There has had ample time to prepare briefs." Mr. Shipman was quoted by newspapers as having said that the agreement on a postponement, subject to the approval of the judges, had been reached. Affidavits which Mr. Holden presented of the producers' counsel in support of their bills of complaint were furnished Mr. Shipman today.

State Motion Picture Agent Spiegel attended the conference between Tax Commissioner Blodgett and the state's attorneys this morning.

The June 30 ax tax commission issued a statement issued by Mr. Blodgett tonight said. "I announced through the Associated Press to the papers of the state that the examination of pictures from films delivered to exhibitors prior to June 30 [illegible] on one to payment of a tax [illegible] ission, and that on and after [illegible] exhibitors and picture [illegible] operators would be responsible [illegible] to the extent that they exhibited [illegible] which has not been registered and the tax thereon paid.

[illegible] the third day of July, 1925, the tax commissioner and other state officials concerned in the administration of Connecticut law were cited to appear in the United States district court for the district of Connecticut to answer to certain legal proceedings there commenced for the purpose of procuring an injunction to restrain the state from the execution of this law. Pending the outcome of this litigation I am advised by the attorney general of the state, and counsel representing the state of Connecticut and its officials, to withhold the prosecution in the criminal court of exhibitors or moving picture operators and to refrain from taking any action which will cause the forfeiture of the license of any operator of moving picture machines, provided, however, motion picture machine operators, pending the decision of the United States district court in the matter referred to, are hereby required to kep a true and exact record of all films delivered to them for exhibition which do not bear on the container thereof a serial number with the receipt of the tax commissioner or his agent in plain and legible form. This record shall contain the following information: The name of the producer and the distributor, the number of reels, the length of each reel in feet, and whether the same is a comedy, drama or photoplay, and the date when each such film was delivered to the operator of the machine for exhibition. The failure of any motion picture machine operator to keep such data as is here required will subject him to forfeiture of his license to operate under the provisions of said statute, and other penalties prescribed by the law.

"The provisions of said chapter 177 do not require payment of any tax on reels commonly called news reels and which portray current events, or reels which show pictures of a strictly scientific character and are intended for the use of the learned professions or reels for the exhibition of pictures for the promotion of educational, charitable, religious and patriotic purposes, or for the instruction of employes by employers of labor. However, the record required to be kept must be complete as to all reels whether exempt from taxation or not.

"A faithful compliance with these regulations pending the decision of said court will greatly assist in the proper administration of this law. The co-operation of exhibitors and motion picture machine operators and strict compliance with the regulations herein contained are very respectfully invited."

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

$150,000 FIRE LOSS AT ALEXANDRIA, VA.

WASHINGTON, July 8—(A. P.)—Paul Morton, city manager of Alexander, Va., and twenty five volunteer firemen were overcome by smoke while fighting a fire there today, which destroyed a warehouse. Damage was estimated at $150,000.

To Modify Wave Lengths.

GENEVA, July 8.—(A. P.)—The technical committee on radio telephony under the auspices of the League of Nations today concluded its preliminary labors and decided to make several modifications in the European wave lengths, although recognizing the necessity for retaining the older and important stations on the existing wave lengths.

DEATH OF BARONESS IN ACCIDENTAL FALL

NEW YORK, July 8—(A. P.)—Official investigation into the death of Baroness Helen Zur Muehlen was closed tonight with the announcement of District Attorney Banton that he was convinced she fell accidentally from the window of her apartment in the Ritz Carlton hotel early today.

The baroness, formerly Miss Helen Carruthers, of San Antonio, Texas, had planned to sail today on the Cunard liner Berengaria to join her husband in Java, where he is stationed in the Dutch diplomatic service. Her companion, Mrs. Suzanne Walen who came here with her a few weeks ago, occupied the steamship suite which had been reserved for them, when the liner sailed today.

James M. Thompson, an advertising solicitor, Lester Conly, of a Fifth avenue concern, and Mrs. Walen were questioned by the police, about the farewell party they attended with the baroness prior to the accident. Three empty whiskey bottles were found in the apartment by the police and investigation disclosed there had been drinking at the party.

The report, made by the police said that the Baroness was guest of honor at a dinner party of eight persons which ended about 10.30 o'clock last night.

Thompson and Conly later joined Mrs. Walen and the baroness in the latter's apartment. They were grouped about a table chatting when the hostess, commenting on the heat, walked into her bedroom and to an open window.

None of those present saw her fall, the first hint of the tragedy being the crash of the body, five stories below.

The baroness and Mrs. Walen had been intimate friends for several years as were their husbands both of whom are coffee planters with extensive holdings in Java.

PRESIDENT RECEIVES GROUP OF VISITORS

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 8.—(A. P.)—Invigorating cool breezes and cooler weather aided President Coolidge in spending real vacation hours today at his summer home at White Court.

For the first time since coming here two weeks ago the president shook hands today with a group of visitors—members of the Oxford-Cambridge and Yale-Harvard track teams who will meet on the field next Saturday. After posing for a picture with the combined teams Mr. Coolidge was given a "hip-hip-hooray for the president," led by D. G. A. Lowe, captain of the English squad.

Otherwise it was a day of restful consideration was given this morning to mail, and this afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge took Rob Roy, the white collie, with them on a brief visit to the marine camp near by, where Paul Pry, the capricious Airdale of the president has been quartered for training.

INVESTIGATING SOIL UNDER PICKWICK CLUB

BOSTON, July 8.—(AP)—Floodlights under which the bodies of 43 victims of the Pickwick club building collapsed here July 4, were recovered, again were established at the scene of the disaster tonight while engineers were digging below the foundation of the building in order to report to the grand jury in the morning the condition of the soil on which the structure rested.

A 200-pound block of concrete underpinning of the building is being analyzed at the government arsenal at Watertown. Another four-ton block was removed today and sent to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology where it will be examined by Prof. Edward Miller and Maj. Albert F. Smith, mechanical engineering experts, appointed to make a separate investigation by President Stratton of the Institute at the request of Mayor Curley.

KRAUSER MAKES THIRD ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE

CHICAGO, July 8.—(AP)—Walter Krauser, who fatally stabbed Bernard Grant, his alleged accomplice in the murder of a policeman, in the county jail a few weeks ago, was believed insane today after jail guards told of a third attempt made last night, to commit suicide.

Following the slaying of Grant, a knife was found concealed in Krauser's cell, and the same night he attempted to burn himself to death by setting fire to his mattress. Last night Krauser started to tear up the mattress in his cell. He was removed to bare quarters but a short time later was found unconscious, suspended by a rope made from strips of his clothing.

ASSOCIATE SECRETARY OF CHURCH COUNCIL

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(AP)—The commission on international justice and good will of the Federal Council of Churches announced the appointment today of the Rev. Walter W. Van Kirk, of the Boston Methodist Episcopal church, of Lynn, Mass., as associate secretary. He will assist Dr. Sidney L. Gulick.

AMBASSADOR HERRICK SAILS FROM FRANCE

HAVRE, France, July 8—(A. P.)—The American ambassador, Myron T. Herrick, sailed today on the liner Paris for his annual vacation in the United States. With him went "Abdel-Krim," a lanky wirehaired terrier whose bearded jowl and congenital grumpiness are said to give a striking resemblance to the Riffian chief.

Killed by Chicago Gangsters

Tony Genna, Shot Down On Street, Is Third Member of His Family Killed By Assassins' Bullets.

CHICAGO, July 8.—(AP)—Chicago gangland ran amuck again today and Tony Genna of the notorious gang of gunmen and beer runners fell the victim of assassins' bullets, the third member of his family to be killed in the past six weeks.

Tony's death came in the midst of a relentless police war against Chicago gangsters, which started a few weeks ago when Michael Conn, Tony's brother, was shot to death after members of his gang had staged a battle with policemen, killing two officers and wounding a third. A few weeks previous Angelo Genna, another brother was murdered.

Tony, 29 years old and the wealthiest of the six Genna brothers, apparently was lured to his death. For half an hour he paced nervously up and down before the grocery store of a friend in the heart of "little Italy." Then as a big closed car drew up to the curb he advanced with hand extended to greet the two occupants who stepped from the car and walked toward him.

As Tony clasped the hand of one, the other fired five bullets into his body and both fled, tossing the pistol away. Tony died a few hours later in a hospital.

Two minutes before he died Tony broke the iron rule of silence that has prevailed in Chicago gangland where men live and die by the gun to settle their feuds.

"You're dying Tony, you have just a few minutes to live," a police officer told him. "Tell us who shot you."

Tony shook his head.

"I'll get them when I get better," he said. Then apparently recognizing that he was about to die, he gasped, "Cavallere" and dropped back on his cot.

Tonight hundreds of police were combing the city for a man of that name with whom Tony is reported to have quarreled several weeks ago. In addition a dozen gangsters were in custody, relatives of the Gennas were held and scores of other members of the underworld were sought.

Sam Genna, reputed one of the toughest members of the Genna gang, cracked under the strain as he saw his brother die.

"Please Captain," he begged of a police officer, "protect me. First it's Angelo, then it's Mike, now it's Tony, and next it will be me. Protect me."

He was taken to a secret hiding place. Another brother, is in Sicily now, and the sixth of the brothers, Pete, is being sought by the police.

Chicago's recent gangland warfare started last December when Dion O'Banion, powerful gangster and gunman and foe of the Gennas was shot down in his flower shop which he used as a cloak of respectability for liquor operations. Like the slayers of Tony Genna, O'Banion's assassin walked toward him and shot him down as he greeted them.

Since then half a dozen gangsters have been killed in swift succession, first one and then another faction taking its toll of revenge for some real or fancied wrong.

ROCKEFELLER OBSERVES HIS 86TH BIRTHDAY

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., July 8—(A. P.)—John D. Rockefeller today celebrated his eighty-sixth birthday at his Pocantico Hills estate, playing golf in the morning, cutting a huge birthday cake at a dinner party to his son, daughter-in-law and children and listening to a band concert and an organ concert in the afternoon.

The band concert, which rumor said was practiced by John D. Rockefeller Jr., was the only event of the day which the oil magnate had not planned. Although there was always a band at the estate of former birthdays, this year Mr. Rockefeller had not engaged one, and the arrival of the musicians was a surprise to him.

In the morning Mr. Rockefeller read the New York newspapers, which contained stories about his birthday. At an early hour telegrams from friends in many parts of the country began to arrive and continued to come in all day.

With some friends from Tarrytown, Mr. Rockefeller went out at 10.30 and played his regular round of golf.

Dinner, at one o'clock, was the liveliest event of the day. The last course was the birthday cake, which Mr. Rockefeller cut and distributed to his grandchildren.

Shortly after dinner a band arrived and, as it was raining hard, the concert was held in the mansion. Mr. Rockefeller enjoyed the music, and a little later a second concert, on the organ, was given by the Rev. John M. Furman, of Loving School. In the evening, after reading the afternoon papers, Mr. Rockefeller retired early.

THREE MEN HURT WHEN AUTO TURNED OVER

NEW HAVEN, July 8.—(AP)—As the result of their automobile turning over on the Orange center road in Orange tonight, three men, all residents of Waterbury, are in Grace hospital here suffering from lacerations and a general shaking up.

They are Henry Orsine, a watch maker, of Walnut street extension; Philip Leonardi, of Bishop rear street, also a watch maker, and Alfred Tasta, of 21 High street, a tailor. It is believed that their machine skidded on the wet pavement.

Orsine suffered abrasions about the face, Leonardi was treated for lacerations on his face and legs and Tasta suffered lacerations on his legs and forehead.

THREE MORE HEAT DEATHS IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, July 8.—(AP)—Although breezes and showers brought relief today from the torrid temperatures which have gripped the city since Monday, three deaths occurred from the heat, bringing the total since the wave began to four deaths and nine prostrations.

Tomorrow it was predicted, will be fair and warmer. Both the temperature and the humidity fluctuated erratically today, and while the high mark of the mercury was 80 degrees, the humidity, which reached a maximum of 98, in some measure counteracted the effect of the cooler weather.

Two Killed and Over Score Hurt

Victims Buried Under Mass of Debris When Terrific Wind And Rain Storm Tore Off Roof of Pavilion.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 8.—(AP)—Two persons were killed and at least 25 others injured here tonight when a wind and rain storm, striking with the force of a tornado, tore the roof off a section of a pavilion at Lake Harriet and buried nearly a score under the debris.

As the wind rushed through the city, the floor in a South Minneapolis cafe gave way beneath a half dozen dinner guests, throwing them into the basement. None was seriously hurt, however. Store fronts were caved in by the wind, several houses damaged, trees uprooted and traffic was tied up by flooded streets as the sewers were unable to carry off a heavy rain. Basements of many homes were flooded.

The wind blew the roof off the Flesler drug store, bulged out the four walls, smashed all the plate glass and scattered drugs and sundries over the street. Two houses were wrecked while a third was twisted about on its foundation, the roof blown off and nearly every window smashed.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH FACES FINANCIAL CRISIS

NEW YORK, July 8.—(AP)—Warning of an imminent financial crisis in the Presbyterian church, growing out of a $1,240,000 indebtedness at the close of the last fiscal year, and threatening curtailment of missionary and charitable projects, was sounded in a statement today by Rev. James G Bailey, field director of the Presbyterian general council's committee on program and field activities.

Unless $12,000,000 is raised by its 10,000 churches, with 1,800,000 communicant members, the denomination is faced with "sore embarrassment and disaster," Rev. Mr. Bailey said in his report.

Giving $12,000,000 as the absolute minimum if further deficits are to be prevented and existing debts paid, the general council today announced that a budget of $15,000,000, already approved by the general assembly for the current year, actually was necessary to offset further retreat in church charitable endeavors.

To prevent further retrenchment and embarrassment arising from lack of funds, the general council urged that the gifts of church members for missionary and benevolent causes, averaging $5.84 last year, be raised this year to $8.02.

COPYRIGHT LAW MAY BE REVISED

NEW YORK, July 8.—(A. P.)—A report on recommendations for revising the present federal copyright law, made today by the committee on copyright revision at a meeting of groups interested in the enactment of a new law by the next congress, showed that conflicting interests have failed so far to agree on a new bill.

Frederick W. Hume, chairman of the committee, said that of the 74 sections of the Perkins bill, which failed to get further than the committee room during the last session of congress there is no essential difference on 51 sections, with slight disagreement on 13 sections. Mr. Hume expressed hope for agreement on the remaining ten sections.

"There does not seem to be much hope of reconciling the American Library Association to the prohibition of the importation section agreed upon by other interests in that group," it was stated in the report. "However, we have several months in which to complete agreement on a bill and much may be accomplished in that time."

There have been no conference on restriction of radio or on public performance for profit. Opportunity for discussion by these interests will be arranged soon, it was announced.

WILL INSIST UPON FIXED LIQUOR LIMIT

PARIS, July 8.—(AP)— Deputy Pierre Valude, reporter of the chamber committee on merchant marine, has prepared an article to be published by "The Journal of the Merchant Marine," in which he asserts that the French parliament is disposed to give the United States the right to search vessels for liquor even forty miles off shore, provided a definite limit is established.

The committee has been considering modification of the treaty signed at Washington June 30, 1924, by Secretary Hughes and Ambassador Jusserand, designed to prevent the illegal importation of intoxicating liquor, in which the search limit is fixed at one hour's steaming distance. M. Valuds declares that the French parliament is all ready to extend the limit much beyond the three or twelve miles sanctioned by the present international law, but insists upon the principle of a fixed limit.

Under the "one hour's steaming distance" provision, M. Valude asserts, French nationals, who might contest the legality of a search, "would be obliged to defend themselves before American courts, which, as everyone knows, are not gentle towards adversaries of their nationals."

MERIDEN MAN SUICIDES BY SLASHING THROAT

MERIDEN, July 8.—(AP)—Brooding because his landlady asked him last Sunday to leave the room he had occupied several years, John Janar, aged 36, today committed suicide by slashing his throat at the home of a friend who had thrown open his home to him.

After cutting himself with a razor and a pocket knife, Janar walked down two flights of stairs to await the ambulance and, before lapsing into unconsciousness, mumbled a "good-bye" to a group of small children. He died from loss of blood soon after reaching the hospital.

FRANCE AND SPAIN TO JOIN FORCES AGAINST RIFFIANS

Will Conduct A Combined Land Blockade of The Moroccan Rebel Zone—New Agreement Supplements Sea Blockade Accord Signed Recently—Aim of Land Blockade Is To Prevent Arms, Ammunition And Food Stuffs From Reaching Rebel Tribesmen—Agreement Providing For Political Cooperation In Morocco Will Probably Be Signed Today At Madrid Conference.

MADRID, July 8.—(AP)—France and Spain today signed an agreement to conduct a combined land blockade of the Moroccan rebel zone. The agreement, which supplements the sea blockade accord signed recently, was effected by the delegates of the Franco-Spanish conference on Morocco at a session here this morning.

Louis Malvy, head of the French delegation, announced that a third accord, providing for French and Spanish political co-operation in Morocco, and considered the most important of the entire conference, would be signed tomorrow.

General Gomes Jordana of Spain, who is president of the conference, declared that "the accord signed today provides for the blockading of the land orders, to prevent traffic in arms, ammunition, foodstuffs and other commodities needed by the rebels, and to suppress suspicious manoeuvers." He confirmed the French announcement that the political agreement would be signed tomorrow, "if the French government by then has replied to some details of the agreement."

General Jordana ended his remarks saying: "I am satisfied, as the fundamental question of the conference already has been passed."

SPANISH FORCES STORM BENI AMDRAN HEIGHTS

TETUAN, Spanish Morocco, July 8.—(AP)—Spanish forces, assisted by aerial squadrons, have stormed the heights of Beni Ambran, dislodging the tribesmen from this strategic point of vantage. Following their success the Spaniards returned to their base after establishing the new positions on the heights to prevent the enemy from returning.

REGULAR ARMY OFFICER IS REPORTED MISSING

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(A. P.)—Disappearance of Captain Robert M. Connell, regular army officer, formerly assigned as national guard instructor at Lancaster, Pa., was reported today at the war department.

No trace of the missing officer has been found, despite investigation by the Baltimore corps area headquarters, Lancaster police, and war department officials, since he was ordered transferred from Lancaster to Fort Hancock, N. J., more than three months ago.

Captain Connell was born in Maryland.

The war department some time ago received a report that Captain Connell had failed to appear at Fort Hancock. Officials believed then that the captain had met with some accident or had been unduly delayed. But concern for his safety has grown, and the investigation has been extended.

War department records fail to show that Captain Connell had any living relative at the time he entered army service.

The case is among the strangest in army peace time annals, Captain Connell's service, the records show, has been excellent and because of his unusually good rating, Major General Hall, judge advocate general, has recommended that the law which requires the army to drop from its rolls the names of officers who are absent without leave or explanation for a period of 90 days should be disregarded in this case, at least for a brief additional time.

SOUTH AFRICAN MINE WORK BILL REJECTED

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, July 8.—(A. P.)—The Hertzog government suffered an uncomfortable reverse today when the senate rejected the mine work bill legalizing the ban on the employment of Asiatics in certain capacities in the mines and thus putting up a definite color ban throughout the union.

The bill aroused much opposition because of its alleged injustice and the provocation such a law might give to agitators in the country.

General Smuts, former premier of South Africa, who bitterly opposed the bill when it was before the legislative assembly, charged Premier Hertzog with bringing the hatred of the whole of Asia down on the government's head. The bill he said, would embarrass rather than establish white civilization in South Africa.

The bill successfully weathered the storm in the legislative assembly, but senatorial opposition to the measure rejected the bill.

COURTS SENT TWENTY CHILDREN TO COUNTY HOMES

HARTFORD, July 8.—(AP)—Twenty children were committed to county temporary homes by courts throughout the state during June, and disposition was made of eighteen others, whose commitment was sought, in accordance with plans presented to the courts by the bureau of child welfare, according to the bureau's monthly summary. Twenty-four applications for children were received from families other than relatives and twelve approved family homes were put into use during the month. There are now 982 family homes occupied by children under the care of the bureau.

There are 1,138 placed-out children in the bureau's care. The number of licensed family boarding homes at the end of the month was 209. Supervisory visits were made on 214 children who are in approved homes, and bureau workers made 1,923 visits to and in behalf of children during the month.

CHORUS GIRL WIFE HELD IN $10,000 BAIL

NEW YORK, July 8.—(AP)—Mrs. Edith Parker Davis, 22-year-old Broadway chorus girl, who last night shot her husband, Allen Davis, an actor, was held in $10,000 bail today, after her attorney had filed habeas corpus proceedings for her release. She had spent more than twelve hours in jail.

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Davis had been held without bail on a charge of felonious assault and an added charge of illegal possession of weapons, pending the outcome of her husband's condition. He is in a hospital slowly recovering from two bullet wounds fired by the woman as he talked with her in the bedroom of an apartment of a man friend.

BRYAN TALKS OF JURIES AND MINORITIES

MORGAN SPRINGS, Tenn., July 8—(A. P.)—Speaking at a dinner given in his honor by fellow lawyers connected with the prosecution of John T. Scopes William Jennings Bryan here tonight talked of juries and minorities.

"As to the trial before a jury, some of the city papers have ridiculed the idea of trying a scientific question before a jury as if it were possible, or even wise, to try such a question before a jury of scientists," he said. "A scientist is an expert and may be called as a witness but no one would ever think of selecting a jury of scientists to try even a scientific question.

Our faith in the jury system rests upon the same foundation as our faith in popular government.

"No matter what the case is, a jury is considered competent to decide questions of fact and there is no reason why this question should not be tried before a jury whether it is tried in this state or any other state.

"Another point worth while for the public to know is that this case raises an entirely new question: can a minority use the courts to force its ideas upon the schools?

"The evolutionists, if they were in a majority in Tennessee, could elect a legislature on this issue and repeal the law but admittedly in a minority, they have not suggested such action. On the contrary, they are relying upon the courts to force their ideas upon the schools regardless of the opposition of the parents, taxpayers or voters.

"The students under Mr. Scopes were not investigating. They were simply asked to accept evolutionary views as set forth by the text book and as interpreted by Scopes. This law simply prohibits the evolutionists from using the public schools for the purpose of substituting their kind of religion for the religion of the masses."

GERMAN EXCHANGES CLOSE THEIR DOORS

BERLIN, July 8.—(A. P.)—German exchanges ceased to operate today by reason of the action taken by the bourse committee in protest against the government's delay in enacting a definite regulation programme and also against the decision of the revaluation committee of the richstag to differentiate between old and new holders of paper mark state loans.

The committee was further prompted to close the Berlin exchange by the consideration that thereby wholesale dumping of pre-war securities on the market would be stopped. A movement in this direction having begun as soon as the reichstag committee's action became known.

Frankfort, Cologne, Hamburg, Dresden and Hanover followed Berlin's lead in closing their exchanges.

The bourse committee decided to make representations at once to the cabinet. It is authoritatively stated in financial circles that the committee will make plain to the government that it must not continue to bend to political parties, but must formulate definite proposals and adhere to them.

TWENTY-FIVE TEACHERS TO BE RETIRED

HARTFORD, July 8.—(AP)—Applications of 26 members of the State Teachers' association for retiring allowances were approved at a meeting of the state teachers' retirement board Tuesday. The average length of service of those retired was thirty-seven years and the average age at retirement was sixty-five years. Monthly retiring allowances averaged $42.43. The oldest teacher whose application was approved is eighty years old and her term of service, also the longest, is fifty-six and one-half years.

The pension reserve fund, including the $108,052.98 added for the twenty-five newly retired members, now amounts to $668,433.66. This reserve is computed according to insurance tables and is sufficient to pay the retired teacher the amount of her pension as long as she lives. There are now 189 teachers on the retired list.

GOLF IS BLAMED FOR THIS DIVORCE

DES MOINES, Iowa, July 8—(A. P.)—Happiness reigned in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford E. Hinshaw of this city until they took up golf. Mrs. Hinshaw in a suit for divorce today said her husband imposed "unheard of cruelties" upon her on the golf course. He would kick her ball off the course every time she made a good approach, she said, especially when she reached the green in less strikes than he did.

Judge Utterback granted Mrs. Hinshaw the divorce and $50 a month alimony.

DEFENSE STYLES BRYAN'S ADDRESS "A CHALLENGE"

DAYTON, Tenn., July 8.—(AP)—Arrival of Judge John R. T. Rauliston, of Dayton, today to preside at the trial of John T. Scopes, who must answer Friday to a charge of teaching evolution in the public schools of Tennessee in violation of a state law, marked another step in the progress of events leading to the actual opening of the trial.

Clarence Darrow, defense lawyer, will reach Dayton tomorrow afternoon about the same time Dudley Field Malone and Arthur Garfield Hays, other defense attorneys, arrive in Chattanooga.

Another member of the prosecution staff expected tomorrow is William Jennings Bryan, Jr., who is en route from Los Angeles.

Thomas Scopes, father of the defendant, came from Paducah, Ky., to attend his son's trial, announcing soon after his arrival late today that he had been warned by John Thomas Scopes to "fight shy of reporters."

John Randolph Neal issued a statement for defense counsel today in which he said that the defense considered Mr. Bryan's address to the Dayton Progressive club last night a challenge to the defense to put "the truth or lack of the truth of the theory of evolution" on trial. This challenge said Dr. Neal, would be accepted. Mr. Bryan made no comment when he read Dr. Neal's statement.

Judge Rauliston came to Dayton, accompanied by Mrs. Rauliston, by automobile from his home in Winchester, 100 miles away.

Soon after his arrival he contented himself with assuring Dayton informally that he was glad to be here and was prepared to preside at the "eyo-citing case" if the task required "all summer."

A statement by the judge that "coats off" would be the rule in the courtroom, gained him applause. He added, however, that smoking would not be permitted.

Judge Rauliston's arrival brought the information that greatly increased mail deliveries have not been confined to Dayton. He said that he had received many letters offering him free advice in the conduct of the case.

One letter, he said, spoke of the earlier having read the judge's "erroneous charge" to the grand jury and assuring him that he was satisfied that his ancestors enriched themselves by depriving the Tennessee Indians of their property through illegal measures.

ACTION ON McCLINTOCK WILL IS POSTPONED

CHICAGO, July 8.—(AP)—Under an agreement between counsel, action to probate the will of Billy McClintock, the whose death William D. Shepherd was tried and acquitted, has been postponed until July 13. The will was scheduled for action tomorrow.

WILL TAKE OVER GRAIN COMPANY'S OPEN CONTRACTS

CHICAGO, July 8.—(AP)—Dissolution of the Grain Marketing company, $26,000,000 concern, and the largest farmer co-operative venture ever attempted apparently became certain today.

The Armour Grain company, the largest of the four old line grain companies that merged to form the co-operative which, was to have been controlled and owned by farmers, and Rosenbaum Brothers, another of the vendor companies, applied for the right to do business under their own names on the Chicago board of trade again. The permission was granted.

The Armour company will take over all of the Grain Marketing company's open contracts, amounting to about 3,000,000 bushels of grain.

Banker creditors yesterday announced that the properties merged to form the co-operative were to be turned back to the old line companies which were parties to the merger, but officials of the Grain Marketing company emphatically denied that such was the plan and declared that the co-operative would be able to meet obligations amounting to $4,000,000 on July 28.

FEW FARMERS INTERESTED IN GRAIN MARKETING CO.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 8.—(AP)—Dissolution of the $26,000,000 Grain Marketing company of Chicago was hailed today by the Indiana Farm Bureau federation in a statement by William Stahl, editor of the federation's official publication, as a victory "for true co-operative marketing."

Stahl declared "the collapse will react in favor of true co-operative marketing of farm products," and reiterated the opposition of the Indiana organization to the project because "it violated every principle of sound co-operative marketing."

"The regrettable part is the tendency of many to label the death of the company as the death of a farmers' co-operative. A glance at the company's makeup will disclose that only a few farmers were interested in the company."

SEVERE STORM SWEEPS OVER PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, July 8.—(AP)—A severe electric storm which swept over Philadelphia today caused the death of one man, did considerable property damage and sent the temperature down 19 degrees from a maximum of 91. The cooling breezes that followed the storm brought welcome relief from the intense heat of the last four days.

An estimated loss of $10,000 was caused when lightning struck a naphthalene storehouse of a local gas company. Fire followed and the building was destroyed. One fireman was slightly injured when a truck overturned on its way to the blaze.

WILLIMANTIC

Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones of Mansfield gave one of his interesting lectures on "My One Hundred Minute Trip Around the World," at the weekly meeting of the Willimantic Exchange club held in the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday noon. The president, Dr. Clarence E. Simonds presided for the first time. Mr. Jones' lecture was illustrated and his explanations made even more graphic and realistic the beautiful scenes displayed on the screen.

The plan of the lecture was cleverly laid on experiences of his own, starting with the tour of the world and ending with his arrival in Mansfield Center.

A vote was taken to hold one evening meeting each month. A sum of money was voted to defray the expenses of a boy who is at camp for the summer. Dr. R. C. White had charge of the program for th emeeting. Secretary Robert H. Fenton read the minutes.

The president's reception for the members of St. Peter's School and their friends was held Monday evening at The Rectory, Hebron, by Rev. and Mrs. T. D. Martin. An informal program was carried out. Mr. Martin sang "My Ain Folk," and "Bonnie Sweet Bessie," accompanied at the piano by Dean Austin Warren. A reading, "A Scandal in the Duke of Brunswick's Days," by Jane Taylor, followed, given by Miss Helen Gilbert. The dean, accompanied by Benjamin Bleau, sang a group of negro spirituals.

The first lecture Tuesday morning was given on Church History by Rev. Delmar Markle, rector of St. James' Church, Fair Haven. The lecture covered the period of church history up to the time of the Council of Nicea. The second lecture in Dr. Bissell's course on 17th Century Poetry followed and completed the study of the poetry of John Donne. Preceding evening Tuesday afternoon, the first meeting of the course in personal soundness was held, under the direction of Dean Warren. The discussion took on the form of a forum on the interesting topic of self-control and was held on Miss Pendleton's verandа. A question box was established and is to be open to the general public. The instructors in charge will answer to the best of their ability all reasonable questions on the subject of personal soundness, or any of the humanistic topics.

The high speed of a Packard roadster came to an abrupt ending, Tuesday evening when the machine struck head on into the stone abuttment of the treacherous Andover railroad underpass, where many accidents have occurred. The three occupants, a man and two women were injured somewhat but the extent of their hurts and their names had not fully been established Wednesday, the three travelers having boarded the Hartford-Providence bus, going to Hartford, before Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink had arrived. Sergeant Russell J. Harmon and Officer Harrison Holburt of the Stafford Springs barracks were notified and an investigation was started. The machine bore New York registry numbers 2-K-2753 and a search is being made for the driver who will be brought before the Andover town court to answer to a charge of reckless driving. Before the state policemen arrived, a wrecking car from a company in Hartford appeared, to haul the damaged machine away; but Sheriff Frink was of a different opinion and a hot argument was on when the officers appeared. The machine is now in Sheriff Frink's garage. The huge motor in the machine was pushed back into the body about six inches. The front of the car and one wheel were demolished.

Michael F. Lynch of Glastonbury, was presented on three charges for violations of the automobile laws in the Andover town court, Tuesday night. To reckless driving and operating a motor vehicle without a license, Lynch pleaded guilty but refused to admit that he was operating a machine while under the influence of liquor. The last charge was nolled by Justice of the Peace Charles A. Faulkner, who imposed a fine of $25 and costs for reckless driving and $10 and costs for not having a driver's license. The assessment of $23.60 was paid. Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink of Andover made the arrest, when, from his veranda, he saw Lynch drive along the highway in a reckless manner. The Sheriff's trusty steed, a Ford, was quickly put into commission and at Andover Village Lynch was overtaken. Lynch and Thomas Halpin, part owner of the car, and also of Glastonbury are visitors in Hop River. Lynch went out and it is alleged that after he had a few drinks he started off on a wild ride and he succeeded in attracting attention.

Rev. Charles G. Johnson, pastor of the Congregational church in South Coventry will board the Norwegian-American Line steamer Stavangerfjord, at Brooklyn, N. Y., and travel to Bergen, Norway. From this point he will resume his cruise to Molde, the City of Roses and then on to Trondhjem, the ancient capital with both modern and historic attractions. The thousand islands, the great fjords, and a northern route into the Arctic Circle as far north as the North Wall of Europe will bring the voyagers into the region of the midnight sun of the Arctic. Arctic towns, glaciers and Lapp encampments will then be visited and the trip will conclude with two weeks' stay at the birthplace of Mr. Johnson, in southern Norway. He will leave Oslo August 25th for New York.

Mrs. Eva Brousseau Trahan, 45, died at her home, 115 Card street Wednesday morning after a long illness. Mrs. Trahan was born in Westport, Mass., July, 1880, the daughter of Louis and Marie Cardinal Brousseau. She was a fond and devoted mother, a considerate neighbor and active in the church work of St. Mary's parish, being a member of St. Anne Society. She leaves besides her husband, Omerl Trahan, six children, Herman, Leo, Calvin, Blanche, Doris and Anita; her mother, Mrs. Marie Brousseau, of Niantic; five sisters; Mrs. J. E. Genereux of Randolph, Mass., Mrs. L. R. Giard of Worcester, Mass.

As State Policemen Harmon and Hulburt were driving along on their motorcycles in response to a summons to the wrecking of a Packard roadster, at the Andover underpass Tuesday evening, a young man on a motorcycle speeded out of the road leading to Columbia Green and turning in front of the officers, started off on the Hartford road with a daredevil wave of his hand for the officers to step on it. The officers did and the chase continued for a number of miles to the second underpass in Andover, when they drove within speaking distance and called a halt. The young man, a resident of Manchester, was much surprised but this failed to excuse him and his motorcycle was placed in the custody of Sheriff Frink of Andover, while awaiting a court hearing in the town of Columbia.

The roof and veranda at the home of Albert E. Anthony, in Mansfield Center was struck by lightning during Tuesday evening's storm causing damage which was settled to the amount of $75 by insurance adjustment.

The summer issue of directories of the Southern New England Telephone Company are ready for delivery. At the local office Manager A. Linn Weatherhead stated that a total of 4,599 directories are being sent out; 3,648 are for Willimantic and immediate vicinity, 603 for Stafford Springs and 229 for Lebanon. A change is being made in the system of delivery due to the increase in postal rates which have brought the cost of mailing a directory from 4 cents to 7 cents. All directories to outlying districts will be mailed as in the past, but those for Willimantic proper will be delivered by contract to effect a saving in the distribution.

Mrs. Joseph Lefebvre of Spring street and Mrs. Celia Roquin are entertaining their sister, Sister Mary Herondina of St. Joseph's Parochial school, Tacoma, Wash., who will remain here for two weeks. Sister Herondina was Miss Florida Bergeron, of this city, leaving Willimantic about twenty-seven years ago to become a nun. She was professed in the Order of St. Francis, the mother house of which is in Philadelphia. She is a graduate of St. Joseph's parochial school, this city. She will celebrate her silver jubilee this week.

Eddy John, local grocer has brought civil action against Jessie and Charles R. Ellis of Chapman street to recover damages of two hundred dollars. Constable Joseph Peck served attachment on real estate owned by the defendants and the case is returnable in the September term of the Windham county superior court.

Mrs. Mary Kapinos was returned for another ninety day visit to Brooklyn Jail, Wednesday morning, when Judge Foss of the police court found the woman guilty of being a common drunkard. She was arrested by Officer Leo Piche when she became boisterous on the street.

Lively bidding was the rule at the auction of the contents of the Johnson livery stable on North street here Wednesday, Auctioneer C. E. Macfarlane doing the selling.

Louis and Leda Lachappelle, of Sprague, have been made defendants in a civil suit brought by Joseph A. and Mariah V. Tremblay. Damages of sixty dollars are claimed. The case will be heard before a Justice of the Peace, July 23.

Brief Local Notes

JEWETT CITY

At the annual meeting of the directors of the Jewett City Savings bank, held Wednesday afternoon, the following officers were elecgted:

President, Arthur M. Brown; vice presidents, Daniel L. Phillips, John H. Tracy; secretary and treasurer, Frank E. Robinson; assistant secretary and treasurer, Walter E. Hyde; directors, Frank E. Robinson, Adelbert R. Young, Albertus C. Burdick, Alex McNicol, Lloyd G. Buckingham, Fred L. Kanahan, Earl E. Gilbert; auditors, Lewis M. Carpenter and George H. Prior. The deposits July 1st amounted to $2,016,348.31, a gain in twelve months of $33,552.58. The bank has 3,000 depositors.

William Magel caught a small-mouthed black bass in Ashland pond Wednesday afternoon. Two hours later it weighed 5 pounds and 2 ounces.

Returning motorists are speaking of the beautiful roses they have had opportunity to admire, during recent trips extending out a few miles beyond the borough boundaries. Some entwining fine rustic bowers, but more often adorning a fence or rambling wall. One woman is telling of another flower, the common, (as ancient as it is common), yellow tiger lily. Nobody now-a-days even thinks of cultivating this familiar garden lily.

As one walks or rides, along New England roads, that are to be found in local outlying districts, this one-time queen of the farm-house garden, will be met with at every turn. Rank of growth, and with not much claim to beauty, this lily has little charm with which to challenge the admiration of the passer-by. On a cross road leading off from Stone Hill where people seldom go, one soon may see a tumbled ruin of which was once a country home. A slanting post or sagging rafter is still to be made out, and there today, thriving beside the great stone door step, and even among the bits of crumbling plaster within the cellar walls, is a great bed of tiger lilies all in bloom, telling the story of some flower-lover's care in the forgotten summer time, of another age.

After the regular dividend has been paid for October, 1925, this bank will pay dividends every three months, beginning Jan. 1, 1926, to our depositors in our savings department. Jewett City Trust Co.—adv.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Alley and daughter, Loretta, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Dominick and their daughter and Miss Marion Jeffers, are off on a six weeks' automobile trip to Frankfort, Maine.

Although June had sixteen days when there were traces of precipitation, yet Giswold's hay crop was reported Wednesday to be a little below the normal yield.

Prime huckleberries retailed by pickers who went from door to door Wednesday brought 30 cents per quart. Records show that in 1890 they sold three quarts for a quarter. The observant citizen remarks that to pick three quarts for 25 cents, one must be either a 100 per cent. philanthropist or a 50 per cent. fool.

A friend of The Bulletin, who gazed with admiration, not to say wonder, at the Tadpole pond lily display last week, has sent the following clipping from The Bulletin of Aug. 11, 1884:

Two Miles of Pond Lilies.

The New York Tribune has a dispatch from Norwich which says:

One of the most remarkable sights in this part of the state lies for a mile on either side of the Norwich & Worcester railroad, four miles above here. It is Tadpole and is a sea of pond lilies nearly two miles square. The place is visited by hundreds daily. Observant travelers who are familiar with nature's rarest beauty on both sides of the Atlantic say they have seen nothing like its wealth of lily bloom, either at home or abroad.

Along in the early 90's this famous pond may be said to have been in its prime. The pond has not the clear patches of open water it had thirty years ago. Much of its area, notably in the western pond, has grown up to button-bush. In 1891, two men came here from some mid-western city, where there is even today, a great seed establishment. Teams were secured at Bailey's stable, and root gathering trips were made to Tadpole pond. Local men were hired, and worked with great chisels, having a ten-foot long handle, and grappling hooks, resembling long scissors, operated like a quahaug digger, in four days the gang filled a freight car. They were billed out of here as commercial roots. Plenty of those great main mud tubers were as big as a stove pipe, covered with warts and joints. One sample weighed 33 pounds, on J. E. Leonard's grain scales.

Beginning Jan. 1, 1926, the Jewett City Savings bank will pay dividends quarterly.—Adv.

It is unhealthy to race with motor vehicles on the state road in this section. The state police and local officers are instructed to stop it. Fred Smith, Jr., and Leo Urvant were handed a fine of $25 and costs, amounting to $26.37, in Judge John T. Barry's court, Wednesday, for fast driving.

It speaks well for the patrons of Chautauqua to learn that two valuable umbrellas left in the tent, Thursday evening, were carried home by other people, who hunted up the owners, Wednesday.

Mrs. Edward Wyatt, of Jewett City, was driving her automobile in Greeneville, Wednesday, having her little son Ernest as a passenger. A machine in front stopped short, according to witnesses, with no warning hand to indicate the intention of the driver. Mrs. Wyatt's car struck the car in front a glancing blow as she attempted to avoid the collision. The little boy was thrown out to the street. One arm was injured. A physician was called and today (Thursday) an x-ray will be taken to ascertain if the forearm bone is cracked. There was little damage to either machine.

LIBERTY HILL

The annual business meeting at the church rooms, Thursday afternoon, electing officers and voting on the disposition they will make of the money in the treasury.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Earl James and Mr. and Mrs. Robert James and their families, were with Mr. and Mrs. John James in Willimantic the Fourth and had a fine shore dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Saul Machtel entertained friends from New York, Saturday.

Liberty Hill was well represented at the circus in Willimantic Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Davoll and Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Davoll motored to Hebron, Sunday afternoon, and called on Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smith. Mrs. Smith was formerly Miss Annie Palmer, of Chestnut Hill.

The church voted, Sunday, to join with the three other churches in town in a picnic at Mohegan park, Norwich, July 29.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kinnaird, had as week-end guests their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kinnaird, of New Haven.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Harrison and son and daughter and Mrs. Harrison's father, Carl A. Lewis, of East Haven, called on their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. J. George Clark, Friday, on their way to Hampton where they visited Mrs. Harrsion's brother and family, John Lewis, over the Fourth.

Mrs. Sarah S. Clarke, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Abell, in New Britain, the past month, has returned to her home here.

Communion was observed at the church, Sunday.

The C. E. meeting was well attended, Sunday evening, and was led by Everett C. Payson, the subject being, What Makes a Nation Great? The principal answer was "by obeying the laws."

Horace Foote entertained, Sunday, Clarence Freize and George Wyman. They were formerly employed by Mr Foote.

Charles Winchester, of Hartford, was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Goodrich. Saturday, they motored to New London and took dinner with Mrs. Goodrich's parents, and spent the afternoon at the beach.

The picnic on the Fourth at Horace Foote's was well attended. A bountiful dinner was served, including ice cream and lemonade. The chief enjoyment was firing at a target which was under the supervision of Fred W. Loomis and Rev. L. L. Harris, who loaded the guns and showed the children, old and young, how to aim and fire and saw that no one was harmed.

Charles E. Goodrich will exhibit their pet dog, Beauty, Nomid Kennels, of the Cocker Spaniel breed, at the dog show in New London, July 11.

ROCKVILLE

The Loyal Workers served a salad supper in the parish house, Thursday, which was well attended, Ashaway, Westerly, Stamford, and New York city, being represented. Music was furnished by the Ashaway Boy Scout band who were in camp at the Boy Scout farm at Yawgoo pond, where a large delegation of scouts have been in attendance since the opening day.

Miss Lottie J. Burdick, of Stamford, Conn. has been the guest of relatives and friends here the past week, leaving Sunday night for Quonochontaug beach.

During a thunder storm Monday evening of last week, lightning struck Centerville mill, setting fire to some cotton in cans. The blaze was discovered and extinguished in time to prevent any serious damage.

Mrs. Mary Rogers and daughter, Miss Ella Rogers have moved to their new home at Centerville, purchased from Frank H. Saunders.

Mrs. Addison McLearn and nephew, Harris Browning, of Westerly, called on relatives here one day last week.

Miss Sylvia W. Lanphear of Westerly visited over the week end with Mrs. Carlton Irish.

Mrs. Myrtle Burdick and daughter, Miss Maida Burdick of Stamford, Conn., called on relatives here Sunday.

Miss Annie Stillman and friends, from Providence, called on Mrs. B. L. Kenyon Sunday.

Mrs. Jennie Clough of Providence is a guest of Mrs. J. Palmer Greene.

Mrs. Annie B. Kenyon and son Leslie and Miss Lottie J. Burdick spent Saturday afternoon and evening with Mrs. Kenyon's mother, Mrs. Mary P. Barber at Woody Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Lewis of Woody Hill spent the Fourth with Mrs. Lewis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Erlo G. Barber, at Woodcrest.

Mrs. Lulu Palmer returned Saturday from a week with Mrs. Emogene Woodmansee at Lord's Point.

Arthur G. Burdick, of New London, and Edwin Burdick of Westerly called on relatives here Sunday.

LIBERTY HILL BARN STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, July 9—E. Seiderman of Liberty Hill got a severe nervous shock, a large barn in which he was working and its contents of eight cows, eight horses, several tons of newly stored hay and farming implements were destroyed, at 6:30 o'clock last evening when lightning struck the structure during the severe electrical storm. The Seiderman farm is located about half a mile south of the center of Liberty Hill, on the road to Lebanon Center. Mr. Seiderman had just started milking, when with a deafening crash the bolt struck the roof and worked down through the building throwing Seiderman to the floor. Mrs. Seiderman had been looking out of a window and states that simultaneous with the crash the entire roof of the barn burst into flames. There was no hope of saving any of the contents and the stock. Mr. Seiderman rushed out of the barn in a delirious condition and the assistance of three men was necessary to hold him to his bed, while awaiting the arrival of Dr. F. E. Wilcox of this city. He was still suffering from paralysis in some parts of his body Wednesday but had fully regained his senses. Mrs. Seiderman had quickly notified neighbors, Leslie Clark and Second Selectman Everett C. Payson who spread the alarm and a volunteer squad, organized a fire brigade and fought for some time to save the flames from enveloping the house.

FRECKLES

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckleface, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable concern that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any drug or department store and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength Othine as this strength is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove your freckles.

Made as women asked—

"As exquisite as French soaps

"WE can't use imported soap—it's too wickedly extravagant. But oh, it's so delicious—do make us a soap as heavenly as the finest French soaps—but not so costly", women urged us.

And we mad Lux Toilet Form!

Made it just as women said to—"as exquisite as French soaps". Made it by the tried and treasured method France uses for her finest toilet soaps—quite differently from the white soaps you are used to.

A true "savon de toilette"—your Lux Toilet Form! Satin smooth, rich, firm, wearing like imported soap.

Giving, every time you use it, that adorable, faintly fragrant lather that makes you feel so exquisite—you feel "soignee", delicious, as expensive French soaps used to make you! And you can use Lux Toilet Form all the time—for both toilet and bath. Order some today. Ten cents. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Massachusetts.

It's Great to Own and Drive a Car Everyone Admires!

"That's the new Jewett Coach!" You hear it wherever you go. Admiration greets this great car on every hand. Because of its beauty of line and color. Because of its advanced features of design. Because its every detail bespeaks genuine quality.

The Greatest Jewett Ever Built!

Think of a Coach at $1260 with the Jewett chassis—unchanged!—the famous Jewett motor that idles you smoothly through thickest traffic. Then whisks you away to over sixty in seconds. Remarkable? Yes—Jewett owners expect and get remarkable results. Jewett Coach will outperform any car within $500 of its price!

Jewett Coach is built to ride in—300 miles a day if you like—without fatigue! The truth is—it's the roomiest Coach we've seen. There's room to stretch and relax. Room to get in—and get out—without disturbing those in front. Seat backs are tilted just right. Seats are packed with springy comfort.

And it's the easiest parking, steering, driving Coach you ever touched. Gears shift with velvet smoothness. Clashing and grinding is impossible. The novice swiftly becomes expert at the wheel of Jewett Coach.

Beyond the striking beauty of Jewett Coach—beyond its championship performance—greater even than its advanced engineering—is the following fact:

Consider It Well!

Paige has put the experience of fifteen years of building into the Coach—sacrificing nothing to achieve low price—improving the quality for which Jewett cars are justly respected. This fact alone more than justifies the enthusiasm that has greeted Jewett Coach—nationally!

Drive this great car yourself. Prove its value for yourself—as no one can tell you. Just phone for a demonstration. (57-J)

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Warden Walter Anderson has in mind a plan for the placing of red glass prisms in Reynolds street, at its intersection with Broad street, as a warning to proceed very carefully at this danger point. Permission of the state highway department will be required before the installation can be made. The traffic across Broad street at this point is very heavy because Reynolds street is part of the trunk line highway to Providence. Accidents have occurred and there is constant danger of other accidents.

Samuel Rosoff, well known in Danielson, has been elected a director and treasurer of the L. A. W. Acceptance corporation of Worcester, the directorate of which is represented in Danielson by John F. Lewis. Until recently Mr. Rosoff was head of the Rosoff Motor Sales company of Putnam. Although he has had eight years' practical experience, Mr. Rosoff is still a young man. He is a native of Springfield and a graduate of the schools of that city.

Wednesday morning, the body of Arthur Miller, 25, drowned Tuesday at Pineville, was forwarded to Brooklyn, N. Y., where funeral services will be held and burial will take place. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements. There is a theory that Mr. Miller's untimely end may in a measure have been due to the fact that he was seized with cramps. He was not a good swimmer, but it is believed his chances of escaping from the deep water in which he found himself were reduced by a cramp seizure.

On and after August 1 the borough's new regulation relative to construction of buildings will be effective. The regulation provides that no building shall be erected within the borough without a permit having been first obtained in writing from the warden and court of burgesses. Every permit issued shall specify that the roof shall be covered with combustible material. Violation of this regulation will be punished by a fine of $15 for each week any building is maintained in violation of the law.

If there is a new rule in Rhode Island requiring traffic to move on main trunk lines at a speed of not less than 35 miles an hour, numbers of motorists from Danielson who have been in that state within a few days have found no one enforcing the rule. Traffic appears to move along about the same as it has in the past, and very few cars have been noted traveling at as high a speed as 35 miles an hour. The report that cars must be kept going at not less than 35 miles an hour on main trunk lines has frightened many timid drivers into keeping out of the neighboring state.

Swarthmore Chautauqua opened its 1925 season on the school grounds at Church street, Wednesday, with entertainments afternoon and evening. Following the usual formal opening ceremonies there was a concert in the afternoon by the Sorority Singers, a musical attraction presenting a varied program that included college songs, costume numbers, playlogs, readings, solos, group numbers and specialties. The Junior Chautauqua gathering also featured the opening afternoon. In the evening the Sorority Singers were again heard, with Charles R. Taggart, humorist and musical humorist, as an added feature. Audiences of the day were well pleased with the entertainments, indicative of a fine and well-balanced series of programs for the Chautauqua period.

It has been said frequently of late that there are few available home building sites in Danielson's central section. While this is hardly true, house lots on many streets near the center of the borough are available only in limited number. This has caused someone to visualize the opening up of an area that with proper energy and foresight can be developed into one of the fine residential sections of Danielson. The area referred to lies east of Broad street, and its eventual opening appears to be forecasted by the acceptance by the town of L'Homme street, a thoroughfare that heads into the section referred to.

A matter of real importance confronts the members of a special committee of the town when they meet, Friday evening, with Supt. W. E. Parker, to consider the need of increased school facilities in Killingly. It is a fact that a congested condition exists at Killingly High school. It is a fact that some of the other schools of the town are not properly ventilated or lighted and that, in some cases, there is opportunity for other improvements. Outside of the erection of a school building in Goodyear, Killingly has not since 1907—when Killingly High school was built—given serious consideration to its school facilities, as to being abreast of the times in appointments and requirements. The time has come when a committee of the town will review with careful consideration the present facilities, what demand is placed upon them and their adequateness to meet this demand. The report of the committee, which likely will be ready for presentation at the annual town meeting in October, will be awaited with interest. Killingly's population has increased materially in the past twenty years, the enrollment at the high school is larger than ever before and promises further growth. With the report of an able committee before it, the town should be able to decide what it cares to do to remedy any shortcoming that may be noted. Killingly has a record of liberality in educational matters that forecasts its paying heed to such improved school facilities as may be recommended for it.

PUTNAM

The following were elected trustees of the Day Kimball hospital at the annual meeting of the corporators Wednesday:

Silas M. Wheelock, L. E. Smith, Archie Macdonald, jr., Whitman Danielson, Ray C. Bosworth, all of Pequot, John P. Grosvenor of Pomfret and Lorne N. Greig of Dayville. The terms of the first three had expired. W. I. Bullard and Luther M. Keith and resigned, and two other vacancies were caused by the deaths of Dr. Joseph C. Hoppin of Pomfret and John A. Judge.

The report of Charles H. Brown, treasurer, showed a balance on hand on June 30, 1924, of $5,104.94, receipts from various sources during the year of $57,904.51, and cash on hand at the present date of $5,196.8., plus a deposit in the First National bank now in the hands of a receiver, of $1,012.82.

Charles H. Brown was re-elected treasurer and F. W. Seward secretary.

H. W. Bowen presented a report of the Nurses Home fund which would have amounted today to about $21,000 but for the collapse of the First National bank in which about two thirds of the original amount had been deposited. Of this sum $7,504 had been repaid by the receiver and the fund today is $17,711.55, with the addition of whatever additional dividends may be paid by the receiver. The following resolution offered by Mr. Bowen was adopted:

"That the by laws of the hospital corporation be changed so as to read: that no investments of funds belonging to the Day Kimball hospital shall be made without the advice and consent of a majority of the trustees attending such meeting when an investment is considered."

The following recommendation of Mr. Bowen was also adopted: "That the Nurses' Home fund be kept entirely apart from the other funds of the Hospital and that future investments of the fund shall be made in stocks of the leading New York City banks."

At the meeting of trustees held later Marcus Kimball was re-elected president.

The S. O. S. sign was out at Pomfret hall, when a group of amateur players presented the farce, "The Arrival of Kitty," to a most appreciative audience. Every role was well interpreted, from the Kitties in duplicate to the poodle that came all the way from Newport to do her bit. So overwhelming was the demand for a repetition that the farce was given again at the same place Tuesday evening with a reduced admission price. More than $500 was cleared for the purchase of the refrigerating plant for the Day Kimball hospital. Before the publication of the alleged legacy of $250,000 this seemed a great sum. If it is dwarfed a little by that news, it is to be said that this is cash in hand, not a will in possible litigation. Moreover, in any case even $250,000 has its limitations and the Day Kimball's needs are many.

Mrs. Elmira Perry, who has been a resident of this city for the past 18 years, left Wednesday for Springfield, Mass., where she will make her home. Her daughter, Miss Hazel Perry, is a student in Bay Path Institute.

Mrs. Alonzo Skinner of Farrows street is improving slowly at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester, after undergoing a serious operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Barrett of Senexit road have been entertaining their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Florenz Orjeins and son and Mr. Guirard of Long Island City, N. Y.

Camp Woodstock, the Y. M. C. A. camp for Windham, Tolland and Hartford counties, was dedicated Sunday, at Black Pond, Woodstock Valley. There was a fine program and there were many visitors at the camp on this day. The camp has had several fine gifts this season including the Holman Henry Hall building, the new lodges, the infirmary and the new athletic field. The program for Sunday included songs as well as addresses. The exercises began at 4:30 in the afternoon and dinner was served at 6 o'clock. The program follows:

At the New Dining Hall: John H. Corbett, Director of Camp Woodstock, presiding; singing, "Come Thou Almighty King"; "Camp Woodstock Dedicated to serve the boys and girls of Hartford, Tolland and Windham Counties", Ernest W. Robinson, chairman of the Trustees; presenting of the Holman Henry Hall building, acceptance of the building, Ernest W. Robinson; acceptance of the building for the boys, Sherwood Mercer; prayer, Rev. David P. Hatch, Woodstock; "The Purpose and Object of those who have given to Camp Woodstock, Rev. Edwin Sundt, South Willington; singing, "O Worship the King, All Glorious Above;" the new lodges, The Gift of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Gladding, of Thompson; the infirmary, The gift of Dr. and Mrs. G. T. Sloan, of South Manchester; the new athletic field, the gift of S. Harold Green, of Plainfield; "What these gifts mean to Camp Woodstock" Elmer T. Tuleness, Hartford County Y. M. C. A. secretary; singing, "O Beautiful for Spacious Skies"; benediction, Rev. Edwin Sundt, South Willington.

The officers of the camp are: Ernest W. Robinson, president; Henry R. Buck, W. E. Moss, vice presidents; Philip M. Howe, secretary; Albert H. Williams, treasurer.

At Providence Tuesday, fourteen inter-state bus permits were granted by the Public Utilities Commission, under which service will be provided to Putnam, Boston, Worcester, Springfield, Hartford, Willimantic and other points. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Jones and ten children, who had living apartments in the South Main street block that was burned Saturday morning, have not yet found a permanent home. The children, the youngest but a few months old, are distributed in several places.

Mrs. Julia Rice Dunn, widow of Mayor Daniel P. Dunn of Willimantic, who died there Sunday was well known to many people in Putnam where, prior to her husband's death, she was a frequent visitor.

Rev. F. F. Eshbay, who has resigned the pastorate of the First Baptist church of Willimantic, to accept a call to Rockville Center, L. I., is known to the Baptists of Putnam, having preached here in exchange with local pastors.

STATE'S ATTORNEY SEARLS IS CRITICALLY ILL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, July 8—Charles E. Searls, State's Attorney is dangerously ill at his home in Thompson and it is feared that he cannot recover. He has been ill for the past three months. He was 79 years old on his last birthday. It has seemed impossible for him to recover his lost strength.

During the January term of criminal court, at which Judge Newell Jennings presided, Mr. Searls conducted the hearings and made an argument of some length in the case where Charles Berzuk was the defendant. The accused was sent to state prison for from three to four years for violation of the liquor laws. Indications of Mr. Searls failing health was noticed during the court sessions, but he read from his law books, even the notations in fine type, without the aid of glasses. He has been state's attorney for nearly twenty-five years, is widely known and has a high reputation among the judges and lawyers of the state.

Mr. Searls was engaged as counsel by George E. Coffin, receiver of the First National Bank when he took charge of that institution in August of 1924. There has been a very great amount of legal work and important decisions to make in connection with the affairs of the bank.

The Great and Genuine Economy Its Owners Know

The good-will and satisfaction so evident throughout Hudson's enormous ownership results simply from the conviction of hundreds of thousands of individuals that they have the "World's Greatest Buy". The economy Hudson owners praise is not only in the big saving of first cost; they know, also, the greatest of all operating economies—faultless service for months on end with rarely any need whatever for attention and at a minimum expense for service.

Throughout Hudson's long-time policy of giving greatest value for the money, this is the lowest price, the finest Hudson, the greatest value Hudson ever offered. Only Hudson's exclusive advantages of the famous patented Super-Six principle combined with the world's largest production of 6-cylinder cars make it possible. By greater margins than ever before it is today the "World's Greatest Buy."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed-Theatre

Can a girl be in love without knowing it?

One answer to that question can be found in "Enticement," which is now playing at the Breed Theatre. This First National attraction, which was produced by the Thomas H. Ince Corporation and directed by George Archainbaud, is based on the best seller by Clive Arden.

The part of Leonore, the heroine, is portrayed by Mary Astor, who invests it with startling fidelity and appeal. Leonore for many years had found pleasure in the company of Val, but she grew to womanhood without trying to analyze her feelings toward him. Val knew that he loved her, but Leonore's unaffected innocence regarding matters of the heart stilled the passionate outpourings which trembled constantly on his lips.

Then came a tremendous climax. Leonore and Val became involved in complications innocent enough, but scandalous in the eyes of the world. The girl became a woman overnight. Now she knew that she had always loved Val. But she did not marry him. The denouement of their romance is one of the most startling scenes ever pictured on the screen.

Miss Astor, Ian Keith and Clive Brook are the featured members of the cast, which also includes Louise Dresser, Edgar Norton, Vera Lewis, Lillian Langdon, Roland Bottomley and Aileen Manning.

Broadway Theatre

One of the finest programs of the season opens at the Broadway theatre today for a run of three days which is going to make everyone sit up and take notice and attend this program.

The opening vaudeville offering features Ellen Harvey "Art on the Wire" who is said to be one of the most competent women in her line of endeavor.

Evans and Carter call themselves "Two Historians" who are character singing comedians. It is something new in vaudeville and something which you are going to enjoy.

Francis and Hayes have a very pleasing offering consisting of new tunes and steps done in a way to make them popular.

Taylor and Bobbe in "Can You Imagine That" who present a maximum of fun, music, song and dance. You'll agree that they are a clever pair of artists.

The phonograph artist, who is now recording for Edison and Gennett companies featuring his number "Battleship Kate" will be seen in the closing offering with his company of five players. His offering is entitled "The Acme of Syncopation" and is one of the cleverest offerings ever seen in this city for some time. One feature is the playing of two and three Bb clarinets at the same time.

The Paramount picture "The Night Club," based on the stage play, "After Five," by William de Mille, will be the feature at the Broadway Theatre today to remain for three days.

"The Night Club," directed by Frank Urson and Paul Iribe, the screen's sole "team" who made "Changing Husbands" and "Forty Winks," features Raymond Griffith, the funny fellow with the high hat; Vera Reynolds, Wallace Beery and Louise Fazenda.

If you laughed at Ray Griffith in "Miss Bluebeard" this one will tumble you right out of your seat.

Palace Theatre,

The main feature of the bill at the Palace Theatre will be the drawing of the Ford car which has been the talk of the town this past week.

Two things must be done in order to win—First there are twenty merchants listed in the ad today with coupons, a purchase of 50 cents or over entitles the purchaser to one coupon. By coming to the Palace tonight each person will receive a numbered ticket. The person holding the winning number must also present the coupon received from the store, and present both to the committee on the stage in order to be eligible to win the car.

Manager McEvoy advises that if you have not already received a coupon from any of the stores to hurry and get one as it is quite important you have one and be in the Palace theatre tonight.

The play will be "Ann" presented by the Augustin Stock Co. A play full of comedy and sure to please everybody. The feature picture will be Reginald Denny in I'll Show You the Town.

The picture starts at 7.00 o'clock, doors open at 6.30. There will be no reserved seats.

The government of Afghanistan has introduced a new system of coinage which has for its unit the amania, a silver coin worth approximately the same as the Kabuli rupee (about 16 cents.) The name of the new coin is derived from Amanulla, the name of the present ameer of Afghanistan. In addition to the amania there will be coined half-amania pieces and nickel coins of smaller denominations. According to press reports the required silver has been purchased in India through a German firm and the nickel through an Italian firm. The manufacturing stamps have been imported from Europe.

THE PRESIDENT AND TAXES

President Coolidge has said [illegible] in behalf of tax reduction [illegible] with what he has said [illegible] he has been a firm advocate [illegible] thereon and giving relief [illegible] taxpayers all along the line. [illegible] no object in connection [illegible] policy of economy and re- [illegible] expenditures. The fruits [illegible] plan have already been experi- [illegible] a manner to call forth ap- [illegible] and he proposes to see that [illegible] is continued.

[illegible] too early to know de- [illegible] what sort of a cut can be [illegible] about creating a deficit. What- [illegible] done should be in keeping with [illegible] and figures. It would be fo- [illegible] estimate such a huge reduction [illegible] and react at another time. [illegible] the treasury in a hole would [illegible] from good business. But when [illegible] amendment sets forth a policy that [illegible] a general reduction, a cutting [illegible] for the little fellow, the mid- [illegible] and the big fellow all in [illegible] of better conditions there's [illegible] reason to believe that it will get [illegible] endorsement.

[illegible] the experiences with the high [illegible] these is a growing feeling [illegible] they should be reduced. They [illegible] have been cut lower last year [illegible] administration plan been [illegible] Now the president has indi- [illegible] that he will again urge a sub- [illegible] cash and he is ready to ap- [illegible] most anything in the way of [illegible] if the situation will be found [illegible] He is also on sound ground [illegible] urges the cutting of the fed- [illegible] inheritance tax to the point of [illegible] elimination. This would be done [illegible] but this is a taxation [illegible] that may well be left to [illegible] states. Where existing conditions [illegible] are in need of reform.

[illegible] reduction is going to be one of [illegible] important matters before the next [illegible] session of congress. In view of the [illegible] discussion and the preparations that [illegible] will take place there is much import- [illegible] to be attached to the position [illegible] the president has taken upon [illegible] question.

FIGHTING VANDALISM

[illegible] much sympathy can be express- [illegible] for those who engage in vandalism, [illegible] whether it takes the form of destruc- [illegible] tion or of disfigurement. It displays [illegible] a cowardly kind of sentiment and [illegible] often an utter disregard for [illegible] decency and outlays of others.

[illegible] authorities at Gettysburg [illegible] park are conducting a cam- [illegible] for the purpose of putting a [illegible] to the practice of writing names [illegible] initials on monuments which have been [illegible] erected to the memory of the veterans [illegible] of the civil war. It is not the first time [illegible] that it has been necessary, but now [illegible] a move is being followed up by [illegible] locating those who can be found into [illegible] to answer for their deeds.

[illegible] such a step should have its good [illegible] in giving such individuals [illegible] to understand that they are actually [illegible] damage and to impress upon [illegible] who engage in such disfigure- [illegible] more or less thoughtlessly that [illegible] are engaged in a matter which [illegible] serious consequences.

[illegible] boy who cuts his initials [illegible] top of his desk at school little [illegible] is given to what is ac- [illegible] being done. Writing on memo- [illegible] seems like that irresistible [illegible] on the part of some people [illegible] public places with their [illegible] and addresses. Such publicity [illegible] may not be made in a spirit [illegible] advertisement and yet there is the [illegible] for others to follow and there [illegible] are too many who are seek- [illegible] it nothing much higher in the way of [illegible] fame. The satisfaction in having [illegible] carved under those conditions [illegible] completely obliterates all thoughts [illegible] of the bad lesson set and the harm [illegible] done.

[illegible] government accorded memorials [illegible] public buildings in too many in- [illegible] stances, regardless of the vigilance of [illegible] authorities, is much the same as [illegible] disregard for the rights of prop- [illegible] erty along the highways and on private [illegible] property. Wanton destruction and self [illegible] disfiguration call for the adoption of [illegible] measures that will bring greater re- [illegible] spect for both public and private [illegible] property. The vandal seldom gets [illegible] more than he deserves in the way of [illegible] punishment.

AMUNDSEN'S TEST

Experience is a great teacher. It has always been so and there's no reason to suspect that it will be other- [illegible] It is easy to picture how things [illegible] would be accomplished if everything [illegible] went according to expectations, but it [illegible] is decidedly another thing to get those [illegible] results in actual practice.

Amundsen was confident he could get to the north pole through the use of an airplane. He has been a strong advocate of going by air into the [illegible] region. It was a plausible proposi- [illegible] tion if everything ——— all right and good landing places could be found, but the little "if" occupied a bigger position than was really accorded it.

What Amundsen thought about the use of airplanes, even those specially constructed for such a trip, was entirely different before he set out than it is now after he has gone through the attempt to carry out his ideas. He hasn't lost faith in the flying machine but he appears to be convinced that it is not the kind of a machine that should be employed for polar explorations. Because of his experiences and narrow escape he leans toward a dirigible, which would permit of observations without necessitating a landing place. And yet this doesn't take into consideration the temptation that would prevail while hovering over the north pole, for instance, to set foot upon that much sought place.

Before Amundsen goes into the far north again it is probable that he will have a chance to study the results obtained by MacMillan in the use of airplanes on his trip. They go from a base that will not be as far off as was Amundsen's and they will be in touch with their ships at all times by wireless. They are not in search of the pole but conditions which they will encounter must be of much the same character. Thus while Amundsen is disposed to consider his experience with the raiplane as sufficient to discourage him in future efforts of that character it is possible that he may modify his views after MacMillan has had a chance to test out his manner of employing planes in that region.

Amundsen didn't get to the pole but he tested out one of his pet ideas on the best way to get there.

SELLING CONNECTICUT

From time to time representatives of the New England states have gotten together for the purpose of discussing common problems and doing something for the states individually and this section of the country as a unit.

With the idea of helping Connecticut and the other New England states industrially preparations are being made for a swing around the country by those business men of the state who want to combine a business and pleasure trip of unusual character. The purpose is to travel by special train and spend a month in not only seeing some of the wonders and delightful places of our own country but at the same time giving Connecticut the benefit of the ad[illegible] that would accrue therefrom. The aim is to "sell Connecticut to the rest of the country from a business standpoint" and it needs no extended argument to bring home to the business men of the state the value of such an undertaking.

It is a plan in which there are large possibilities, one in which as many Connecticut business men can join as desire and which is being sponsored by the state chamber of commerce for the good of the state.

It was not so long ago that Americans chartered a ship to bring about a better trade relationship with South American countries. It opened the eyes of the Americans and gave the South Americans a valuable insight into the United States market. With a similar purpose the Connecticut "coast to coast special" should be welcomed for the opportunities it offers for displaying Connecticut business and enterprise to the rest of the country. It may be an experiment but it appears to have large possibilities.

STUDYING WAR DISEASE

As the result of his experiences on the war industries board, Bernard M. Baruch believes that it is possible to place a further check upon war by taking the profit out of it. With that object in view he gives a quarter of a million to the Walter Hines Page school of international relations at Johns Hopkins university for research work looking to that end.

It is a commendable act. Mr. Baruch apparently believes that there are large possibilities at stake. At least he is willing to give of his wealth that it may be determined what causes the disruption of world peace and to give special attention to determining what part war profits, or the expectations of them, play in such connection.

Where there is a war it is inevitable that the demand for war materials will make business for certain lines of industry, and where production is obtained under war conditions prices are invariably pushed upward. War profits are at times fabulous. If there could be such manipulation of conditions as to assure those profits there are those who would not hesitate. The prospects would outweigh all consideration for humanity, and yet if labor factories and resources were drafted quite the same as soldiers are the incentive for war on the part of the war profiteers would disappear.

Mr. Baruch believes that this is a matter which deserves careful and thorough study and it is impossible to conceive that it will do otherwise than be in a good cause whatever the outcome of the research may be. He is to be commended for backing up his ideas by providing funds for such an effort.

"My child has a new craze," the harrassed mother of the 15-year-old Roberta informed her visiting friend.

"It's always something. Last year, if you recall, she had intense desire to become a Red Cross nurse, and insisted on wearing flowing veils and a white bandage on her sleeve. And now its the movie craze."

"They all have that," supplied the visitor calmly.

"Not like Roberta. It seems to me that she gets everything in the biggest doses. She goes to the movies once a week, which is all I permit, and thank goodness I took a firm stand on that point. But her impersonations! It doesn't seem to matter to her 15-year-old mind just how many favorites she has.

"A few weeks ago, after seeing a play that was taken in the land of the midnight sun, she came home and dashed to her room with a wild gleam in her eye. I caught her standing before the mirror with her chestnut brown hair bound with a blue ribbon. Supposed to be the Viking style, no doubt. Only the heroine in the picture wore hers in two long, golden braids down her back. But that didn't seem to bother Roberta much.

"The next time she went to a show there was a Spanish play—or maybe it was South American. Anyway, I was startled at 2 o'clock the following afternoon to hear a peculiar sound coming from Roberta's room. I couldn't exactly define it, but it was sort of a clicky sound, if you know what I mean.

"I peeped in, and there was that child with an old red shawl draped around her and a cheap pair of castanets that she must have bought that morning. Also a red rose off my last year's summer hat. And, worst of all—my rouge was spread generously upon her cheeks. I dare say she thought she looked like a perfect senorita."

"And again her medium-colored hair and blue eyes didn't bother her much," interrupted the visitor.

"No, they didn't. But the worst shock was just yesterday when she suddenly developed a fondness for Carlo Carmelino. Instead of raving about him the way her friends do, she decided she might as well imitate him, too."

"It's the sincerest praise," murmured the visitor.

"What is?"

"Imitation."

"Oh! Well, she praised him all right then. That child almost disrupted the combined family wardrobe to impersonate him. A pair of her little brother's short trousers, tight and ending at the knees; an old Eton jacquette of mine that I'd saved for years because of its beautiful lace; a pair of my high heeled slippers, to which she pinned some glittering buckles from the 10-cent store; a tricornered hat, with a plume that her father wears when they have a parade night at lodge—and an improvised sword that I recognized immediately as my new carving knife."

"Mercy!" gasped the visitor.

"She was going through all sorts of idiotic motions before the glass."

"Fencing, no doubt."

"No doubt," assented Roberta's mother dryly. "Really, I don't see anything so funny about it, Laura. I think it's terrible for the child to act like that. When I was her age I had my schoolwork and my books."

"Yes, you had your books," interrupted the visitor mirthfully. "And you acted out every one of them. One day you were Rebecca of Ivanhoe, flashing disdainful eyes at poor me, who had been pressed into service as the terrifying Bois Guilbert. And another time I distinctly remember watching you spend an entire afternoon practicing how to faint gracefully. I guess you were reading Lydia Languish then. And still another time," went on the caller relentlessly, "if my memory serves me right—"

But Roberta's mother rose hurriedly as she heard her daughter's footsteps.

"My dear Laura, you must be starved. Here I've been talking away. I'll make some tea immediately. Maybe Roberta will join us."

"As Dolly Madison or the bashful young man who wrecked her tea set?" queried the visitor, sotto voce.—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Answers Rev. Panizzoli

Mr. Editor: It is with the deepest regret for this action that I am writing concerning the utterances of Rev. V. Panizzoli, as printed in the pages of the Bulletin. A religious controversy is ever a source of rancor and enmity, and is to be avoided whenever possible. But as a sincere lover of truth, I feel it necessary to answer this gentleman with truth that he appears to hold in supreme disregard.

In the first place, the earlier of Mr. Panizzoli's letters was a deliberate and unprovoked attack upon the Catholic church, with no conceivable motive, save a desire to air certain theories and vaporings and a more or less laudable ambition to see his name in print. Moreover, his logic is amazing because of the utter lack of it. In one breath he accuses Mr. Ouimet of prejudice in matching acknowledgedly biased historians with gentlemen of more truthful tendencies, and in the next refusing to accept any authorities except self chosen writers, who, accidentally, no doubt, have always been known as inimical to Catholicity.

The reverend gentleman quotes words and figures to prove the corruption of the Roman church, and the numerous clear eyed martyrs to their convictions who have abandoned it for a purer light. Admitting in advance the proverbial fact that comparisons are odious, can we, in justice, consider the more obscure personages of his proof as representative or on a par with the converts to Catholicism? He has mentioned Murri, Minocchi, Perosi and others; yet I do not consider myself culpably ignorant when I fail to recognize these pioneers of thought as international figures or yet household demigods.

On the other hand, it is possible that names of Cardinals Newman and Manning, the former the greatest ecclesiastic of modern days in England, the latter scarcely less renowned? Or Gilbert Chesterton, without a peer in the realm of letters? Or Joyce Kilmer, one of America's greatest poets? The most bitter foe of Rome can hardly class the foregoing as morons. Yet they possessing this perfect truth of Protestantism, gladly relinquished it for the church of Peter.

I consider it strategically weak of Mr. Panizzoli to attempt the glaring blunder of introducing the name of Martin Luther as a bona fide rival of Catholicity. It would be as logically correct to class in the same plane the recalcitrant child and the disciplining parent. Fair minded Protestants abhor the name of Martin Luther. It was not the love of God or truth which prompted his leaving the Church. It was an outlaw incompatibility with organized authority, chafing under discipline, unholy desire for power, and the opportunity to gratify his sensual appetite. I state this without fear of error and defy Mr. Panizzoli to prove this otherwise. And again, I can scarcely deem it correct to say that Luther left when he was summarily excommunicated.

And since the Church's history is "blacker than a dozen chimney sweeps," since it is this enemy to progress and education, since its glaring contradictions are so apparent, why is it that it stands today alone in an unbroken dynasty? Why has not this interior vice, this canker of iniquity proved a means of self-destruction? Why is it, then that the Roman Catholic church, alone, today, has as communicants the largest number of adherents of any Christian sect in the world? Its members cannot all be dunces, Mr. Panizzoli to the contrary notwithstanding. And why the paradox of falsity in the church, and yet the influx into its ranks every year that far outnumber the stragglers that fall by the wayside.

I need not answer the charge that the church is the enemy of education; the history of the church is the refutation of that falsehood, as Mr. Ouimet has in part revealed. But why claim that the renaissance was the offspring of the reformation? Does not Mr. Panizzoli, the logician, perceive the post hoc, ergo propter hoc fallacy? It would be as valid to claim that because a canine in Dundee wagged its tail, Santa Barbara celebrated with the earthquake.

Consider the leaders through the ages in the arts, statesmanship, the sciences—the majority are Catholics. And neglecting all the rest of the church, in the Society of Jesus, or, as they are known, the Jesuits, the records number the names of men who have done more for the world socially, politically, and morally, than the entire coterie of the disciples of Luther.

A few more facts: "The church has ever been an enemy to progress." What is meant by progress? If he means the radical Godless, law defying spirit rampant today, I admit this charge and glory in the fact. But if he means a bar in the advance of man in proving himself better and finer in his relation to himself, his neighbor, and his God, I deny without reservation the accusation.

A prominent American and a non Catholic, whose name I will furnish, if desired, said recently, "The Catholic church is the only power today that can save the world from the encroachment of socialism and the consequent ruin." I am sorry this does not jibe with the Panizzolian hypothesis.

And lastly, uncourteous, or otherwise, perhaps due to an error, Mr. Panizzoli has used for proof a deliberate and unsubstantiated falsehood. "The first pope—came all centuries after Christ." The first Pope was Peter whom Christ Himself made leader and pope of His church, Linus second, Cletus third, Clement fourth, and down in an unbroken line for nearly a score of centuries, through persecution, schism, heresy, and trial, intact, divine, and glorious. I challenge a denial, Mr. Panizzoli.

I should advise the reverend gentleman to confine his uncalled for remarks to the four walls of his study; or if he must write, indulge in fact rather than misplaced fiction. It is rather a super Herculean task for a man, even one of the ability of Mr. Panizzoli to overthrow a foundation that has withstood the assaults of far mightier forces than the reverend gentleman's logic. In fact, I may quote from one whose authority even the sage of Norwich dare not question, "Upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell will not prevail against it."

Verbum sat.

Answering Other Points

Mr. Editor: The following are the rest of the points in Mr. Ouimet's letter about which I said that I would have something to say.

If those philosophers that I mentioned were not enough to prove the opposition of the church to the progress of the world, I will name some more. Who persecuted and burned the Waldenslans? Who burned at stake Rinaldo da Brescia, Giordano Bruno, Girolamo Savonarola? Who persecuted Paolo Sarpi the great historian of the Council of Trent?

Galileo was not persecuted by the church because he insisted on claiming connection between his discoveries and the Scriptures, but rather the church, since she had based her theory of the universe on the Scriptures and on the traditions of the church fathers, felt that his discoveries would throw down her whole system and dogmas. Since she was never for progress nor ready to give in whenever people have showed and proved things to be different from the way she believed them, she persecuted all those who opposed her.

During the medieval time she had all the power and monopolized all knowledge. Instead of giving personal liberty to men she gave them her dogmas which enslaved their minds. Instead of feeding them on love and truth she fed them on hatred and intolerance. Science, philosophy, religion and politics belong to men, they are their patrimony and no man or any institution has any right to monopolize them. With Galileo the darkness of medieval age disappeared, the old dogmas and education system were done away. A new era began.

Was Columbus encouraged by the church? Before that great body of the dignitaries and monks of the church at Salamanca, he was utterly opposed. He was called visionary, dull and pedantic, and many other names. They opposed him on the same ground that later on Galileo was opposed. The Scriptures and the church fathers had established the theory that the earth was flat, therefore, no one should have dared to affirm the contrary. Amerigo Vespucci did not discover any thing. He was a thief for he took the glory and honor which belonged to Columbus.

Was Dante a product and a son of the church in the true sense of the term? Who persecuted and condemned him? The church banished him from his wife and four children and from home and kept him in exile during the last 20 years of his life. He wrote his immortal epic poem, the Divine Comedy, in the vernacular Italian instead of the language of the church, Latin. If Mr. Ouimet has read it he can recall whom Dante put in the purgatory and hell, what he had to say about evil, caused by the authority of the pope and the corruption and paganism of the church.

Mr. Gattini a member of the first Italian parliament, speaking about the relation of the pope with Italy, said: "What has the pope done for the Italian civilization? Is it the free press; the free trade with other nations; nationalism; the proclamation of the duty of man; free thought and free conscience? TO all these things the pope has forever been the negation."

It is not my way of thinking that the church should have made every one in Italy highly educated, but it is the sense of justice that requires she should have done so. Every institution is judged by what she produces; every government is judged by what kind of civilization it gives to its citizens. The pope having been an autocrat, the king of most Italy is judged by the illiteracy he gave to the people. There is a good illustration of this between northern and southern Italy. In the north which the pope was never able to control, the house of Savoy fostered education; in the south where the pope reigned for centuries illiteracy prevailed.

Whether Mr. Ouimet wishes to admit those statistics I gave to be true or not, the evidences of the people who come from those countries are sufficient to prove my case.

What shall we say about the mighty act of the suppression of the press? With the downfall of the western empire in the 5th century and the separation of the eastern and western churches in the 11th century the pope assumed the ecclesiastical supremacy in the west. Censorship and prohibition were applied with great vigor and severity. The Council of Trent restated with intensified vigor the law of suppressing reformatory writings and other books which were not sanctioned by the church. The legislation so enacted is known in the literature of canon law as Index Tridentinus (the Index of Trent). That index condemned all works of non-Roman Catholics, all books except the ancient classics. Limited privilege was given for reading the Bible in the vernacular by special hierarchical permission in each case. The rule of Leo X was reaffirmed forbidding publication of books without previous censorship and approval of the hierarchy, and adequate penalties were prescribed for violation of the index.

The Tridentine Index remained virtually unchanged for more than three centuries till abrogated by Leo XIII, January 25, 1897, which stood as the papal law of prohibition and censorship till the Codex Juris Canonici came into force nearly seven years ago by the statute of Benedict XV known as Providentissima.

The invention of printing in the 15th century so increased the production of books as to quicken the papal incentive for suppression as voiced in the Council of Trent and in the statute of Leo XIII and in Title 26 of the new Codex Juris Canonici.

The papal law of suppression operates in two distinct forms. (1) It authorize examination of a book before published with a view to decide whether or not it may be published. (2) It may condemn a book already published.

Innocent VIII, Alexander VI and Leo X enacted laws requiring all printers as well as authors to submit all books to the hierarchy for censorship before daring to print them. The Canon 1384 of the Codex Juris Canonici extends the whole prohibition and censorship to daily papers, periodicals and other publications in general. So does the hierarchy endeavor by its statute law to exclude from Roman Catholics every kind of literature that could possibly tend to liberalize their intelligence or free them from the mental slavery that has so benighted all papal lands.

The Canon 1385 of the Codex reads in part as follows: Without previous ecclesiastical approval even laymen are not allowed to publish: (1) The books of Holy Scriptures or annotations and commentaries of the same. (2) Books treating of Sacred Scriptures, theology, church history, canon law, natural theology, ethics and other sciences concerning religion and morals.

Where is the education sacred and profane that the Church of Rome has always fostered? With such heavy shackles that the papal law enslaves the Roman Catholic mind, excluding it from contact with the progressive scholarship of the modern world, do we wonder if, in the 20th century, illiteracy still covers the lands where the Curia has its nest?

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Roy P. Wilcox, who has announced his candidacy for the seat in the United States senate left vacant by the death of Senator Robert M. La Follette, is a prominent lawyer of Eau Claire who in recent years has attained a statewide reputation in republican politics in Wisconsin. Mr. Wilcox first attracted more local attention in public affairs while a member of the state senate during the period of the late war. He consistently stood for unequivocal assertion of Americanism and complete dissociation of his party from any alliance with the sympathizers with Germany. In 1918 he stood as a pro-war, loyal candidate for the republican nomination for the governship of his state. The high standing which Mr. Wilcox enjoys in his chosen profession has been evidenced recently by his election to the presidency of the Wisconsin Bar Association.

From Small Beginnings

Michel Sedaine the Stone Mason the Originator of Comic Opera.

So many of the things to which we are accustomed seem so natural that it is hard to think of a time when such things did not exist. Comic opera is firmly established, and seems to us to have existed from all time. In many respects, however, modern comic owes its beginning to the work of a French dramatist, Michel Sedaine, who rose from the poverty-stricken condition of an ordinary stone cutter to a place in the first rank of dramatists. His comic operas, Playing the Dance, The King and the Farmer, and Aline, Queen of Colconda, are the ancestors of the comic opera of today.

Like so many other great men, Michel Sedaine was unfortunate in his childhood and youth. When his father died and left him a mere boy without money and without prospects in life, to make his way in the world or to starve, as fate would have it, he had to enter into the life of a common laborer. Anyone who saw the boy in those days would have never foretold that he would become one of the most highly honored men in all France.

Sedaine's father had been an architect, and it was naturally to some work in connection with that profession that the boy turned first. He was not old enough nor skilled enough to do any of the work of an architect; he was strong enough to work helping the stone-cutters and the stone-layers as they erected the walls of buildings.

From his father Michel Sedaine had inherited a taste for learning, and so, instead of idling in the hours when he was not actively at work on buildings, he studied books in the hope that he might become as proficient as his father had been. An architect observed the patient way in which the boy worked, noticed and taught him architecture. Then, in addition to his work and his studies the youth attempted to write, doing this with such good results that by the time he was 31 he would publish a book, largely consisting of songs. Six years later he wrote a comic opera, and from then on wrote others. His work made increasingly successful. He made himself familiar with the needs of the stage, wrote more and more successful works, and finally wrote serious plays. He achieved so much popularity, that he was elevated to membership in the French Academy.

Stories That Recall Others

Daddy's Work

Little Buddy said to an older friend of his: "Say, do you know that my cat died last night?"

His friend cager to start a conversation, said: "What happened to her?"

Buddy quickly replied: "My daddy died it."

Collar Buttons Broke

The head of the household had met with an accident, resulting in the breaking of his collarbone. The news had reached his home and one of the youngest members of the family, just old enough to walk, toddled out of the house and joined his friends.

"Daddy's got both collar buttons broke and they took him to the hospital," he said.

Rodent Control Work

The tremendous scope of rodent-control work can be seen from a report to the Biological Survey, United States department of agriculture, of what was accomplished in Arizona in a single month. Rodent-control campaigns in this state in April were directed against prairie dogs, pocket gophers, and rabbits. About 12,000 rodents a day were killed, or 360,000, approximately, for the month. Nearly 80,000 acres of infested lands were treated with about 8,000 quarts of poisoned bait by 379 cooperating farmers and stockmen. No matter how conservative the estimate of the value per acre of ridding lands of rodent pests, it must be evident that the results are worth thousands of dollars to the landowners.

AUTOMOBILE DRIVER PAYS FINE IN CITY COURT

Richard A. Grimes of Quaker Hill paid a fine of $10 and $10.50 costs in the city court Wednesday morning on the charge of driving an automobile without proper registration. He traded cars Tuesday night with a Norwich dealer in second hand machines and shifted the number plates in order to take his newly acquired car home. While driving up the West Main street hill between Thames and High street a small boy ran into the path of the machine, was struck and slightly hurt. When the accident was reported, it was revealed that Grimes was operating the car before the transfer of the registration had been recorded with the motor vehicle department.

OBITUARY.

William McKelvey.

News of the sudden death of William McKelvey, at his home in Poquetanuck, at 2 o'clock Wednesday morning came as a shock to his many friends in that village and in Norwich where he was well known. Death was caused by angina pectoris.

Mr. McKelvey was born in Carlisle, England, July 22, 1839, but came to this country when a boy of 15 years and had made his home in Poquetanuck for the past 30 years. For many years he was employed as a mill operative and was a most capable and efficient workman. He had led a retired life since 1909.

Mr. McKelvey is survived by his wife and four children, William H. McKelvey of Poquetanuck, John F. McKelvey of Maine, Miss. Annie P. McKelvey and Mrs. John H. Taylor, both of Poquetanuck. Four grandchildren also survive, Mrs. Julian L. Williams of Norwich and Miss Olive E. McKelvey of Poquetanuck, Lawrence and Miss Hilda McKelvey of Maine.

Mr. McKelvey was a man of likeable qualities and during his long residence in Poquetanuck had made many friends who learned of his death with sorrow.

Mrs. Frederick J. Dyer.

Following a serious illness of about one week, the death of Annie M., wife of Frederick J. Dyer of 30 Hedge avenue, occurred Tuesday in Conant hospital, Boston, Mass.

Mrs. Dyer was born in Westbury, Wiltshire, England, and came to this country when a young girl. Most of her life was spent in this city where she had gained a wide circle of friends who learned of her death with profound sorrow. Mrs. Dyer was a member of the United Congregational church and was active in church work while health permitted.

Surviving her besides her husband are six children, Mrs. J. Frank Darling of New York, George H. Dyer of New London, Dr. William O. Dyer of Plymouth, Mass., Lillian, Dorothy and Charles Dyer of Norwich. There are also three grandchildren.

Bernard Hynds.

The death of Bernard Hynds, of 110 Central avenue, occurred Wednesday morning. He was a well known carpenter of this city.

Mr. Hynes was born in Ireland and came to this country when six months old, and has resided here ever since. He was a valued member of the carpenters' union of this city, and was a member of St. Mary's Memorial church. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Nellie Birkery, two sons, Thomas and James, and one daughter, Mrs. William O'Brien, of this city. He also leaves one sister, Sister M. Assisium of Thompsonville, this state. There are several grandchildren and nieces and nephews.

William C. Wilcox.

William C. Wilcox, 58, of Providence, a native of Mystic, died Monday in the Newport, R. I., hospital.

Mr. Wilcox was born Nov. 24, 1867, the son of Thomas Pendleton and Angeline Wilcox, and resided in Mystic for many years. He was a marine engineer and was employed for several years on the tugs owned by the Chappell company of New London. Mr. Wilcox was a member of Stonington lodge, No. 26, I. O. O. F.

Besides his wife, who was Miss Emma Pray, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Arthur Knaus and Mrs. Herman Sargent, and one granddaughter of Providence; four brothers, George, Thomas and Henry Wilcox, of Mystic, and Frank, of Providence, and one sister, Miss Lavinia Wilcox, of Mystic.

Thomas W. Bradford.

At Canterbury, Wednesday, Thomas W. Bradford, 88, died from infirmities resulting from age. Mr. Bradford was a member of a family prominent in the history of the town of Canterbury.

Richard W. Starr.

Richard W. Starr died at his home on State street, Guilford, Tuesday evening, after an illness of several weeks. He was 77 years of age. He leaves his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Florence Starr Brown of this city; two sons, George H. Starr of Hartford, and four grandchildren. He was at one time a resident of Hartford, being employed at the Hartford retreat.

TELLS ROTARY FAVORED SITE FOR RESERVOIR IS DEEP RIVER BROOK

Mayor Milo R. Waters, who was the current topics speaker before the Rotary club at its weekly luncheon meeting, Wednesday at the Wauregan house, told the members that the site favored for the new reservoir for the city is on Deep River brook in the town of Bozrah, through which the present water supply would be doubled.

Mayor Waters spoke as follows:

Water may not be an interesting subject to all the members of this club but it will surely be a current topic among the people of Norwich during the next year. Two years ago I called the attention of the common council to the danger of a water famine in this city if we should have two successive dry seasons. A year ago last month our reservoirs were full and water was running to waste over the spillways. Steps were taken at once to save this waste of water by raising the dam at Stony Brook five feet which would impound an additional 100,000,000 gallons of water or about one month's supply for the city. As the rains had ceased and an abnormally dry season had set in, we learned by experience that an increased storage capacity would not help us if we did not have the water to store. In November the situation became acute and steps were taken at once to install a pumping station on Trading Cove brook. The operation of this pumping station was delayed by legal objections on the part of some of our citizens and when we started pumping on December 23rd, less than one month's supply remained in our reservoirs. This pump has supplied us with an average of 2,000,000 gallons of water a day at a cost for operation of $100 a day. It was operated continuously from December 23rd to June 30th. Our reservoirs today stand just about the same as they did one year ago. Stony Brook is full to the old high water mark and Fairview some three feet down. With an average rainfall in October we may be able to get along without using the pump this fall but it does not seem likely. The fact remains that we have a dependable supply of only 3,000,000 gallons of water a day and we are using over 4,000,000 gallons a day.

With the knowledge of these facts, authorization was obtained from the general assembly for a bond issue of $1,500,000 to be used only if the citizens decided in city meeting to procure an additional reservoir and water shed.

It is expected that the board of water commissioners will soon present to the council for their aproval a proposed new reservoir on the Deep River brook in the town of Bozrah. A forty-foot dam will give us storage capacity of over a billion gallons of water doubling our present capacity with a daily dependable flow of 5,000,000 gallons of water and an additional water shed of eight and one-half square miles. Our water commissioners have examined personally and have engineers' reports on. I think every possible source of water supply in this vicinity including Pease Brook, Gardner Lake and Broad Brook and have found no other source of supply with an abundance of water, within a reasonable distance, with an elevation that will provide the people on top of the highest hills in our city with plenty of water for domestic use and for protection against fire. I wish to leave this thought in your mind that if Norwich is to continue to grow an abundance of water must be provided for domestic and industrial use and for fire protection.

Rotary Inter-city Meeting

President J. Nelson Weymouth opened the meeting, the blessing was asked by Herbert B. Cary and Dr. Hugh B. Campbell was songleader. Treasurer Clarence Spear reported a lively sale of tickets for the Rotary inter-city meeting next week at Jewett City in which athletic events will play a prominent part. Arrangements for the baseball game were placed in the hands of E. LaRue Bliven.

Discussed Community Chest

Following the talk by Mayor Waters, there was a discussion of the subject of a community chest, it being understood that no action was to be taken by Rotary at the present time, but it is expected later to have a Rotary committee join with committees from other organizations to investigate further the idea of a community chest.

Many questions were answered about the operation of the community chest. A resume of what has been done in Plainfield, N. J., was read showing that in the six years under the community chest the number of contributors has been practically doubled (from 4400 to 8800), the plan being considered there the best plan yet devised for handling organized charity and proving of great benefit to the community. The chest for 1925 amounts to $136,000, distributed on the budget system among 13 different charities.

Worcester has found the chest a most satisfactory plan. It was raised with some difficulty the first year but went easier the second year. Hartford also reports good results. In New London a survey made by the chamber of commerce reported 227 questionnaires in favor with very few against, and in the country practically no city having adopted the chest has ever gone back to its former method. The New London chest goes into operation the first of next January.

The method of handling the community chest is by an incorporated association with trustees elected by the corporators and necessary committees working under an efficient office organization.

CONSIDERABLE UNEMPLOYMENT IS SHOWN IN STATE

The five free public employment bureaus, operated throughout the state by the state department of labor, reported a total of 4,714 applications for employment and 3,807 applications for help during June, according to the bureau's monthly report. Situations secured numbered 3,376. Of all the applicants for employment, 71.6 per cent. were supplied with situations, and 88.6 per cent. of those applying were furnished with help.

At the Hartford employment office 963 men and 317 women applied for employment. Applications for help were received for 702 men and 256 women. Employment was secured at this office for 646 men and 227 women. The percentages of the number securing employment and the number securing help are slightly lower than the percentages for May.

In Norwich, 200 applications for help were received and 200 situations were secured, while 338 applied for work. New Haven reported 896 applications for employment, 575 applications for help and 823 situations secured. Bridgeport's applications for work totalled 1,121, with 973 applications for help and 926 situations secured. The Waterbury office secured 555 situations, while 1,106 applied for work and 801 applied for help.

NORWICH RADIO CLUB MOVES TO NEW QUARTERS

The Norwich Radio club has moved from the Thayer building into their new quarters in the May building on Franklin square. The club will occupy the entire front on the third floor, the three large rooms giving them an ideal location for future activities. One of the rooms will be converted into a general meeting room, another for a lounging room and the third will be used as an experimental room, where amateur receiving sets transmitting sets and all types of experimental apparatus will be set up as soon as possible.

Work on the new quarters is already well under way and when completed will give the club the finest quarters it has occupied since its organization soon after radio became a thing of interest to many Norwich people.

Upon completion of the quarters and the installation of all apparatus a reception meeting is to be held for members and their guests, making the celebration one of the finest in the annals of the club.

BON VOYAGE GREETINGS TO MRS. A. N. FOSTER

Mrs. A. N. Foster was tendered a farewell party this week at the home of Miss Beatrice Green of 30 Penobscot street by members of the Universalist Young People's union. There was entertainment consisting of games and music. Refreshments were served, and Mrs. Foster was presented a beautiful leather arm bag in recognition of her work for the union during the past months.

Mrs. Foster is to leave for England on Saturday evening, to return in September. While in England she is to deliver a series of lectures on Sunday school work.

Celebrated Her 88th Birthday.

Mrs. M. V. B. Crawford celebrated her 88th birthday Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Carrie Carlough of Station 16, Waterford. Mrs. Crawford received many presents, some coming from California, Arizona and Ohio, and also two birthday cakes. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Crawford, Morton Crawford, Hugh Crawford and Edna Crawford of Groton, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Goss of Niantic, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Fox of Uncasville, Miss Emma Crawford of Uncasville, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Carlough and daughter of Milford, Miss Nellie Ostrander of Paterson, N. J., Irene Chapman of Waterford, Mrs. Carrie Carlough and Fred Carlough.

Experience is that something which everybody gets after it is too late to make use of it.

NORWICH MEN IMPROVING IN FORT WRIGHT HOSPITAL

The condition of the four Norwich men who were injured on Friday, July 3, in an automobile accident at Fishers Island, and who have been patients since then at Fort Wright hospital, continues to improve. Andrew Lablanc of Greeneville, the most seriously injured of the four is resting more comfortably and is now expected to recover, being able to sit up in bed for a brief period daily. At first no hope was held for his recovery from a fractured skull, but doctors now believe he will recover.

John Asher of 116 Main street, suffering a broken leg is improving nicely as is Roscoe Zigura of 16 Silver street, who suffered broken ribs, a badly torn ear and other bruises.

Henry Nelson of 715 Boswell avenue, with internal injuries and badly torn right ear is also on the improved list.

They will probably be able to return home within a few days with the exception of Leblanc and Asher, whose condition makes it impossible to remove them from the hospital for some time yet. All were workmen in the employ of William C. Young of Uncasville.

BOY THROWN OUT IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

The automobile owned and driven by Arthur Vars of 12 Yantic street, was run into on North Main street, near the corner of Fourth, Wednesday afternoon about 3.45 o'clock by a machine driven by Mrs. Margaret J. Wyatt of 112 Main street, Jewett City, who was accompanied by her husband, John E. Wyatt, and her small son.

The Vars machine was hit just as the driver was starting up and the force of the blow sent it around the corner into Fourth street, while the Wyatt car shot across to the other side of North Main street before it came to a stop. The small boy in the Wyatt car was thrown out into the cement pavement, but suffered only a sprained left elbow and a severe shaking up. He was attended by Dr. Paul F. Gadle and the drivers reported the accident at police headquarters.

The Vars machine had a mudguard and tire damaged and the Wyatt car had a mudguard badly bent.

GAVE BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR JAMES MURPHY

Mrs. Josephine Ward, of 95 Fourth street, was hostess Wednesday evening for a birthday party given in honor of James Murphy. A number of friends were present and the evening passed pleasantly with games and music. Miss Betty Gilman and Master Junior Duro favored with recitations which were well received.

Refreshments of sandwiches, cake, fruit and candy were served in the dining room where the table was prettily decorated with pink and white. In the center of the table was the birthday cake, twenty pink candles being set in as many pink roses, making a most attractive setting. The guest of honor received a number of fine presents and made a brief response to thank his friends for the delightful evening and thought expressed through their gifts.

Mrs. Ward was assisted in serving by Mrs. Lula Palmer of Grove street and Miss Annie B. Ward of Trading Cove.

SUBSCRIPTION BRIDGE BY FAITH TRUMBULL CHAPTER

A delightful subscription bridge party was given by Faith Trumbull chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Wednesday afternoon at the home of Dr. and Mrs Harry E. Higgins on Sachem Terrace. There were 27 tables in play and dainty refreshments were served. The prizes were won by Mrs. Carl G. Johnson, Mrs. Frank L. Crowell, Miss Marion Bailey, Mrs. George A. Keppler, Mrs. Herbert L. Knox and Miss Myra Parker. The affair was arranged by the ways and means committe, Mrs. Samuel L. Smiley, chairman.

STARTING FROM NOANK ON LABRADOR VOYAGE

A voyage that is unique is expected to begin from Noank today (Thursday) when George G. Williams of Farmington will sail from there on a trip to Battle Harbor, Labrador. Mr. Williams is to make the voyage in the Nanu, a 34 foot craft, beam nine feet ten inches, drawing two feet of water. In this craft, equipped with a sixty-five horsepower gasoline engine Mr. Williams will explore the bays and harbors of northernmost Labrador and will hunt the ptarmigan, willow grouse and the caribou.

It will be his eighth trip to the north country but his first in a boat the size of the Nanu.

The trip is unusual for Mr. Williams in that he is taking but two men as crew. These are his skipper, Captain Charles Jenssen, and George Jerrett, of Brigus, Newfoundland, whom Mr. Williams brought down from Newfoundland in 1923, and who has since been studying electrical engineering in Philadelphia. Jerrett has never spent a summer away from Newfoundland.

It was through his very good friend, Dr. William Grenfell, that Mr. Williams first felt the lure of Labrador, and in 1913 he made his first trip to that outpost of civilization.

When the Nanu sails out into Long Island sound, she will head for Battle Harbor, Labrador, about 1,000 miles north. The craft is expected to make Battle Harbor in about two weeks. The Nanu is well provisioned for the trip, almost every spare inch of room being taken up with food. After reaching Labrador the party will live on their fishing and hunting. No radio is being taken along, but Mr. Williams does not expect ever to be out of touch with the world for more than two weeks, as there are a number of wireless stations along the coast and he will not for long be entirely out of communication with Battle Harbor, at which place he can telegraph, and will receive his mail.

Mr. Williams refuses to get excited about the trip and states that it is purely a sporting proposition and that he is looking forward to a great deal of hunting and fishing. He also hopes to explore many uncharted bays that the larger boats he has voyaged in before were unable to navigate. He does not consider that there is any element of danger connected with this trip and plans a leisurely journey, expecting to return about October 20.

The Nanu is a cruiser of the Atlantic sea skiff type, which Mr. Williams had especially built for this trip. He has had the cabin extended further back than usually is the case in such boats, to make room for two pullman berths. The craft carries a coal range and Captain Jenssen will have charge of the galley. Food being taken on the trip includes canned goods, bacon, ham, eggs and water. The Nanu carries two extra staterooms forward. The Nanu with her gasoline engine is the first boat of the kind that Mr. Williams has driven north, though he has had engines in his two schooners and sloop used for previous voyages.

The ultimate destination of the party is Cape Chidley, the northermost tip of Labrador and about 700 miles north of Battle Harbor. On the way to this place many side trips will be taken to explore rivers and to renew acquaintances formed on previous visits. As the Nanu approaches northern Labrador the high mountains of this section will make their appearance. They reach a height of 6,000 feet above sea level here. Dotting the bleak coast will be found the Moravian missions at Hopedale, Rama and Nain.

Sailing up the Maine coast, past Nova Scotia, then to Cape Breton, and along the shore to Newfoundland the party will probably reach Cape Chidley in August. A stop of some days will be made at a camp which Mr. Williams maintains at an inland spot twenty-five miles from the nearest Hudson Bay post.

The Nanu will fly the American flag and the flag of the New York Yacht club, of which Mr. Williams is a member, when it sets forth Thursday. The good wishes of all sportsmen will follow the travelers. That their expectations of exploring territory unknown to the white men may be realized is the hope of all interested.

ESCAPED IN FOG AFTER AUTOMOBILE CRASH

A new Chrysler coach, owned and driven by John G. Murray of Waterbury, was run into in the fog about 1 o'clock this (Thursday) morning on Broadway near Park church by another machine that drove away and escaped in the fog.

Murray was going towards Yantic and the car that hit him was coming in the opposite direction. He reported that he pulled in to the right curb because he saw another machine coming, when a touring car with two men in it jammed into his machine, crushing the left rear mud guard, denting the body, taking off a hub cap and breaking glass on his machine. The touring car drove off and turned into Rockwell street, disappearing in the fog, although he chased after it. He reported to the police but their efforts to find the offending machine were not successful.

LIVESTOCK LOST IN LEBANON BARN FIRE

LEBANON, Conn., July 8.—(AP)—A barn with 12 cows, two calves, four horses, forty tons of hay owned by Zyman Federman on the Liberty Hill, was struck by lightning and burned during last night's storm. The storm made telephone wires useless and no aid could be summoned to save property. Mr. Federman who had just completed haying and had closed the barn door was made unconscious by the bolt. The loss was between $8,000 and $9,000.

FUNERAL

Harvey L. Muzzey.

Funeral services for Harvey L. Muzzey, whose death occurred Sunday at the home of his daughter in Providence, were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the parlors of Church & Allen, 15 Main street. The service was conducted by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church, and during the service Mrs. Helena M. T. Church rendered Lead Kindly Light and Sweet Bye and Bye.

Burial was in Maplewood cemetery, where the committal service was read by Rev. Mr. Ricketts. The bearers were Chester Smith of Providence, son-in law; Otto Mush, Clarence Brown and Frank A. Bill.

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the service and many beautiful floral pieces.

Headed by Miss Agnes G. Deans, superintending nurse, a party of 106 nurses from various parts of the country sailed on the Cunarder Caronia Wednesday noon from New York, to attend the convention of the International Council of Nurses at Helsingfors, Finland, this month.

In the party were Mrs. Witter K. Tingley and Miss Agnes McKenna, also Miss Yvonne H. Belanger, R. N., of Taftville.

WIL LSTUDY LEAGUE AND WORLD COURT

Flood E. Reed, headmaster of Wheeler school, North Stonington, sailed on the S. S. Ryndam Saturday for ten weeks abroad. He is being sent to Europe by a supporter of the Non-Partisan league to study the League of Nations and world court at work.

Mr. Reed will land at Plymouth about July 14. After a short tour of England he plans to meet in Paris a group of Americans interested in the same mission. From there they will go together to Geneva, where Mr. Reed will remain for six weeks, returning to North Stonington in time for the opening of Wheeler school, September 16.

Rain Postponed Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Sunday school of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, scheduled to be held Wednesday, was postponed because of the rain and will take place today (Thursday) when a pleasant time is promised for all. The start from Norwich will be made from Franklin square at 8.45 o'clock by trolley and the return trip from Ocean Beach will be made to reach Norwich shortly after 6 o'clock in the evening.

The annual picnic of the Sunday school of the German Lutheran church will also be held today at Ocean Beach, making two local schools at the shore for the day.

Recovering From Injuries.

Mrs. Ernest J. Jones of 16 Bliss place, who was severely injured recently in an automobile accident at Nashua, N. H., while she was on her way home, with her husband, Dr. Jones, and their son James, from attending the latter's graduation exercises, has recovered enough so that she could be brought from the Nashua hospital to her home here Monday. While her complete recovery may be slow, it will be gratifying to her friends to know that this is assured.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Van Wagenen are on a trip of several weeks to California and to Lake Louise.

Miss Virginia Smith, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Smith, is at Camp Waukeela, Conway, N. H., for the season.

Miss Annie L. Ruggles, of Broad street is in London at present. She plans to sail for home July 18th, on the Atlantic transport Minnewaska, from London.

Miss Nancy E. Lucas and Miss Mary Crosby Lucas of Sachem street who are touring Germany just now, are to spend some time in England, sailing for home August 21st.

Invitations have been received by Norwich women golfers from the Shenecosset Club at Eastern Point for the women's annual invitation golf championship for the Griswold trophy, July 27 to 31.

Mrs. John M. King and children, of 96 Washington street are at Pleasure Beach for the month. The latter part of July they will leave Norwich for Baltimore, where Mrs. King has purchased a home, at 1904 Park avenue.

Fog having delayed their steamer the Olympic, Mr. and Mrs. Philip A. Johnson did not reach New York until Wednesday morning, on their return from a stay of about six weeks in England, with a brief visit to France. Mr. Johnson's father, Oliver L. Johnson accompanied them up from New York during the afternoon.

ALCOHOL PERMITS IN STATE ALL HELD UP

Orders to hold up all applications for basic permits to use alcohol in Connecticut until a federal prohibition enforcement administrator for the second district has been designated, have been received by Frank T. Putney, federal prohibition director for this state. It is the first intimation that Mr. Putney has heard officially of the proposed reorganization of federal prohibition enforcement activities, by which it is planned to combine Connecticut and the eastern and southern districts of New York as the second district.

As a result of it, applications for basic permits, of which slightly more than 2,000 are expected from physicians, druggists, manufacturers (of toilet articles and so forth) and dealers, all over the state, are being kept in the Hartford office. The applications are for permission to handle alcohol during the calendar year 1926 and must be supplemented by a specific permit in each case where a withdrawal is necessary. The duty of the federal director for the state is to forward to his superiors in the department, heretofore in Washington, a notation with each application whether or not he recommends that the application be granted.

IMMIGRATION INSPECTORS SAIL FOR EUROPE

NEW YORK, July 8.—(A. P.)—Seven United States immigration inspectors sailed today for Plymouth on the steamship George Washington to visit British ports of debarkation and to discuss with American consuls examinations of prospective immigrants, with a view to weeding out undesirables who would later be rejected at Ellis Island.

The inspectors will visit the ports of London, Glasgow, Belfast, Plymouth, Southampton, Liverpool and Queenstown.

STATE CONDEMNED 217 CATTLE LAST MONTH

HARTFORD, July 8.—(AP)—Of the total of 3,093 head of cattle tested by the domestic animals department during June, 217 were condemned, according to the monthly report of Commissioner J. M. Whittlesey. Importations into the state included 1,939 for breeding and dairy purposes. Eleven permits for importation were issued during the month and certificates were issued to owners of eighty five tuberculin tested herds.

Four hundred swine were given a single treatment for hog cholera and 826 were given a double treatment. One herd of infected swine were found. A total of 51,946 chicken were imported into the state for immediate slaughter, while thirty three permits for importation were issued.

WOMEN BORN 1873 TO 1881

Now Is the Critical Time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will Help You Safely Through

Convoy, Ohio.—"During the Change of Life I was weak and run-down and could hardly do my work. By reading your advertisements I found out about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has straightened me right out and made me feel like a new woman. By the time I had taken eight bottles I was well and could do my housework on the farm without trouble. I recommended it to my daughter-in-law after her second baby was born and it did her a wonderful lot of good. I told her to try it and if it didn't help her I would pay for it, and before she had taken one bottle she said to me, 'You won't have to pay for it! It is helping me wonderfully!' And she took three bottles of it. You can use my testimonial if you wish."—Mrs. ELSIE ACKERMAN, Convoy, Ohio.

Consider carefully Mrs. Ackerman's letter. Her experience ought to help you. She tells of the trials of middle age and the wonderful results she obtained from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

SCHOOL OF NURSING

The school of nursing connected with the William W. Backus Hospital in Norwich, Conn., is now registering students for the September classes. This school is registered in Connecticut and the course of instruction is two years and four months given in a general hospital of 90 beds. Students must be graduates of grammar school and have one year of high school work. A new nurses' residence opened this year affords each student all of the comforts and conveniences of home.

For circular of information address, Superintendent of Training School.

SPENCER MUST SERVE EIGHT YEAR SENTENCE

KANSAS CITY, Kansas, July 8.—(A. P.)—The revenge of J. Frank Norfleet, Texas ranchman and pursuer of seven men who fleeced him of $46,000 in 1919, was consummated here today when Judge Kimbrough Stone, in federal court, denied W. B. Spencer, a permanent writ of habeas corpus. This decision will permit Texas authorities to return Spencer to Texas to serve an eight year sentence imposed on his conviction of the swindle.

Spencer was the last of the seven men whom Norfleet had hunted down. All of the others are imprisoned. To accomplish his revenge Norfleet travelled many thousands of miles throughout the United States.

DROP COMPLAINT AGAINST SETH THOMAS CLOCK CO.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(A. P.)—Dismissal of its complaint against the Seth Thomas Clock Company of New York was announced tonight by the federal trade commission.

The complaint charged the company with maintaining a standard resale price for its products. The commission entered into a stipulation with the company under which the complaint was dismissed without prejudice.

TWENTY-EIGHT DIVORCES GRANTED IN PROVIDENCE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 8.—(A. P.)—Twenty eight divorces and one seperate support petition were granted here today, making a total of 391 decrees granted since the term of court opened Monday. Three judges are hearing uncontested petitions and two of those which are being contested. Two of the petitions today were denied while six more were hied open for production of further testimony.

WORTHY HARVESTER BEATS GORDON DILLON IN THE GRAND CIRCUIT

CLEVELAND, July 8—(A. P.)—Under a masterful drive by Marvin Childs, Omaha, Worthy Harvester, an outsider in the betting today defeated Gordon Dillon, odds-on favorite, in the Fasig Sweepstake, first race for three year old trotters in the grand circuit this ——.

Childs kept his gelding off the fast pace, and took the first and third heats, the second going to Gordon Dillon, which led all the way. The favorite tired in the other heats. After making a break in the first heat and trailing far out of it for a quarter of a mile, driver W. B. Garrison sent him to the front, and Gordon Dillon trotted the last half in 1:02 2-5, finishing third only heads behind Worthy Harvester and Lucille Wright.

Tennis, driven by Tom Berry, Flemington, N. J., furnished another upset when he defeated Dr. Strongworthy, odds-on favorite in the 2:12 trot in straight heats.

The junior drivers' race the secondary feature, developed into the prettiest racing of the North Randall meeting. Two boys, relatives of Grand Circuit drivers, kept their horses well bunched, the event going to Czarina Gale, driven by Eugene Edman, son of Fred Edman, after three heats.

Norman Grattan and Lily the Great made it a double win for the meeting by winning the 2:12 pace and 2:19 pace respectively. It was the first start of Norman Grattan for James Gleason, Williamsport, Pa., who purchased him one week at a price reported at approximately $10,000.

Announcement was made that W. T. Crozier, Hartford, Conn., had been suspended for the remainder of the meeting for an unsatisfactory drive yesterday.

BATTLING THOMAS TO FIGHT BILLY NOLAN

Robert E. Pellerin, promoter for Battling Thomas, the black demon and challenger of the world at 160 pounds, announces the arrangement of a bout with Smiling Billy Nolan, 165 pounds of New York city. The fight is scheduled to take place at Bradford, R. I., Friday, July 31.

Battling Thomas, middleweight, recently returned with his promoter from New York, where he was promised fights at two prominent New York clubs in the fall. Thomas will probably be remembered by some of the older sport fans, as he came here several years ago to train Ted Russell, when Russell was entering the fighting game.

BATTLING THOMAS

Thomas handles a mean pair of mitts, is clever on his feet, and is a heady fighter. His defensive and offensive tactics are keen and his ability as a fighter may be seen by the following men he has fought and won referee's decisions: Butch O'Hagen, George Robinson, Joe Eagan, Jamaica Kid, Jimmy Kelly, Dixie Kid and none other but Panama Joe Gans.

Young Baker of Sterling, who is a coming boxer, is also under the wing of Promoter Pellerin and will be seen in a preliminary bout at the Bradford show.

SENATORS HIT FABER HARD AND WIN, 10 TO 2

ANNOUNCE RELEASE OF PITCHER TO WORCESTER

BOSTON, July 8, (A P)—The Boston Braves management announced late today the release of Pitcher Foster H. Edwards to the Worcester club of the Eastern League. Edwards came to the Braves from Dartmouth college last month.

The management announced at the same time the outright purchase of A. L. Hood of the Portsmouth club of the Virginia League to report immediately. He will be used at second base. Hood proved a sensation in the Virginia League by his home run hitting, clouting 13 and batting for a record of .353.

TIGERS WIN DOUBLE BILL FROM BOSTON

DETROIT, July 8, (A P)—The Detroit Tigers won both ends of a double header from the Boston Red Sox here today, the first game 5 to 0 and the second 5 to 2.

Excellent pitching enabled the Tigers to win the first game, the veteran Dauss allowing the invaders only six hits, thereby winning his sixth consecutive game. It was the first shutout victory scored by Detroit this season.

In the second game the Tigers piled up an early lead and Stoner had little difficulty in holding the Red Sox in check while his mates batted Ruffing and Fuhr freely.

Heilmann hit two home runs, in each game lacing out the first ball pitched to him in the sixth inning for a home run. Todt of Boston made an unassisted double play in the first game. Score:

CARDS WIN 5 TO 4 GAME FROM BRAVES

BOSTON, July 8, (A P)—Boston's winning streak of five games was broken today when the St. Louis Cardinals scored five runs in the early innings and won out 5 to 4. Mails shut out the Braves until the ninth when a four run rally started by pinch hitters fell one short. Two brilliant stops by Bell in this same inning undoubtedly saved Mails from defeat.

Manager Rogers Hornsby was in uniform after being laid up with a leg injury but did not get into the game. The score:

COLLEGE ATHLETES PAY PRES. COOLIDGE VISIT

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 8 (A P)—College athletes of two nations here preparing for the international track meet at the stadium on Saturday interrupted their training today long enough to pay a visit to President Coolidge at the summer white house at Swampscott. It was agreed later that the Harvard-Yale and Oxford-Cambridge squads would work out together today and tomorrow in order that the men might become better acquainted.

Since the English team arrived Sunday there had been little time for fraternizing and Capt. Douglas Lowe and his team mates had no opportunity to improve their acquaintance with their American rivals. Although both squads have made their headquarters at Swampscott they had their meals apart and worked at the stadium at different hours.

YALE DROPS BOWLING AND RIFLE TEAMS

NEW HAVEN, July 8, (A P)—Two minor sports, bowling and rifle, which have required telegraphic exchange of scores, will not hereafter be recognized at Yale, it was announced by Harold F. Woodcock, general manager of the Yale Athletic association today. The reasons given are that competition is by telegraph and the keen interest manifested in 19 other branches of sport under jurisdiction of the association is lacking.

Action of the association will mean that Yale will withdraw from the intercollegiate bowling association. There is no association of university rifle teams so in this instance Yale merely drops out of competition.

COULON MERRY AT MILLER'S ACCEPTANCE

Young Coulon of Taftville was hilarious to say the least, when he was informed of the acceptance of his challenge by Kid Miller of Norwich, and to make the cheese more binding, he said, he would give the Kid five pounds in weight. Young Coulon weighs in at about 115 pounds, which would allow the Kid to come in at about 115 pounds Young Coulon also said that he would fight Miller with the agreement that the winner take all and the sooner they meet the better he would like it. It now remains in the hands of the promoters to fix the date, place and other incidents that precede the staging of a fight.

Mad Play Wins $5,000 Handicap

NEW YORK, July 8 (A P)—Mad Play, with Jockey Fator up won the $5,000 Empire City handicap, the feature event at the Empire City track today. The Rancocas entry was a 7 to 20 favorite. Marconi was second and Bright Steel, third. The time for the mile and a quarter 2.08.

MUCH INTEREST MANIFESTED IN ST. JOSEPH'S-NUGGETS GAME TONIGHT

Rain, rain, go away, come again some other day, are the words that are on the lips of the many fans that have been disappointed during the past two days, since St. Peter opened the gates and started to send down an abundant supply of rain which has spoiled two perfectly good ball games in succession. On Tuesday night with Hallville and Yantic tied up in a close game the old boy started to do his stuff in the third inning, and kept it up all during the night and yesterday, so that if the E. C. P. and Palace team attempted to play last night they would have had to use skids.

But as the old saying goes, every cloud has a silver lining and tonight the fans will have an opportunity to take a peak at it when the St. Josephs team meets George Madden's Nuggetts. No doubt to a lot of people this announcement doesn't mean a thing, but all the twilight leaguers and red hot baseball fans can read this and weep, for St. Josephs tonight "Tony" West of the State Hospital or "Spike" Liberty of Ashland will pitch, Allard of the State Hospital will catch, Zemke of the State Hospital will play first, "Dinty" Moore of the State Hospital will play second and "Nap" Liberty and LeClair, both of Ashland, will complete the infield while the idle pitcher, Koslowski and Bush will play the outfield. When the St. Josephs team was given power to strengthen, Mgr. Oney claimed that he had a surprise in store for the local baseball world and it must be admitted that he has made good and no doubt there will be many pulling for him and his new team during their climb from the cellar to the top of the heap. These boys are coming into the league with a handicap of four straight defeats being left to them by the old team and they deserve every possible bit of encouragement during the remainder of the season.

While the St. Josephs team looks good on paper the Nuggets shouldn't be taken lightly as Madden has under his wing a bunch of youngsters that have made every team that they met so far this season step and are capable of making even Mgr. Oney's new troupe step alvey. Every game that they have played has either been won or lost by close scores and they have always sent the fans away well satisfied with their playing.

The Nuggets will probably lineup as follows: Hindricks catch, Jarvis or Greene pitch, Burke at first, Carlin on second, Guillette on short, Leo Jarvis on third and "Ken" Fox, "Rel" Lesserman and N. E. Body in the outfield. It must be noticed that old foxy George still uses the name N. E. Body in his lineup and its hard telling what kind of a stunt he will pull off. "Hank" Morin will do the umpiring.

Tomorrow night the league leading Centrals and Hallville will play off a postponed game.

TAFTVILLE A. A. TO PLAY FORT TRUMBULL SATURDAY

At the Providence street grounds Saturday afternoon Taftville A. A. team will cross bats with the Fort Trumbull nine, Manager Gadbois says that he is bringing down the pick of the guns in hopes of breaking the winning streak of the Taftville team.

For the Fort Trumbull team Dwyer will probably be chosen for the mound duty, while Lloyd Jarvis will pitch for the Taftville team. Lloyd is yet to taste defeat at the hand of the opposing teams, for he has not lost a game for Taftville since he joined with the team. With Lloyd pitching Manager Troland feels confident that the visitors will receive the short end of the score.

In the Taftville lineup will be seen Eccleston c, Adam Dugas 1 b, Cardie 2 b, Yerrington s s, Leo Jarvis 1 f, Gauthier 3 b, Duffy c f, Courbois or Lefty Dugas r f.

WEST ENDS OPPOSE FITCHVILLE SUNDAY

The Fitchville baseball club will play the West Ends of Willimantic at 3 p. m. (d. s. t.) Sunday at the Cannon hill grounds, Fitchville. The Thread City outfit is composed of the best amateur players in the strike center and several college men home on vacation, and has yet to lose a game this season. With victories over Lebanon, Colchester and other well known nines the visitors expect to take the measure of Manager Sullivan's ball tossers. Standish and McManus will be Fitchville's battery for this important contest.

POSTPONED GAME TO BE PLAYED THIS EVENING

Rain postponed the twilight game between Taftville A. A. and Ray Geer's All Stars on Wednesday evening at the Providence street grounds, the infield being a miniature pond. The game will be played on Friday evening at 6.30 o'clock and the All Stars will lineup as follows: Jim Murphy c, A Dark Horse p, Joubert 1d, Murphy 2b, Smith 3b, Normandin ss, Dona cf, Stanley lf, and Geer rf. Manager Troland will use the same lineup as in preceding games with Lefty Dugas on the mound and Eccleston behind the bat.

WORCESTER WINS GAME IN OPENING INNING

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 8 (A P) A bunting attack in the first inning, coupled with Lehr's wildness, gave Worcester six runs here today, enough to beat Springfield by 6 to 2. After the first inning Lehr allowed only three hits and no runs, while Anderson also was invincible after the second. Herrera's double in the ninth gave him his 100th hit of the season. Score:

Worcester .. [illegible] 6 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—6
Springfield .. [illegible] 0 2 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—2

ALBANY REGAINS FIRST PLACE IN EASTERN

ALBANY, July 8, (A P)—Albany defeated New Haven 3 to 2 today and regained first place in the Eastern league. Both Colwell, of Albany and Morrell, of New Haven pitched good ball. The hitting of Belanger and catches by Emmerich and Miller were features. Belanger has hit safely on his last seven trips to the plate. Score. New Haven .. [illegible] 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 1 0—2
Albany .. [illegible] 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 x—3

Two base hits, Belanger, Emmerich. Genin. Three base hits, Munn, Belanger. Home run, Gleason.

Rain Postpones Bouts.

PHILADELPHIA, July 8, (A P)—The bouts scheduled for Shibe park tonight between Lew Tendler and Joe Dundee and Jack Delaney, and Tommy Loughran have been postponed on account of rain.

Hallville vs. Lake Street

At the Lake street playgrounds Saturday afternoon the Lake Street Juniors play the Hallville team. Smith will pitch for the local nine and Drew will catch.

BERESFORD TO ROW HOOVER FOR TROPHY

LONDON, July 8—(A. P.)—Jack Beresford, Jr., winner of the classic Diamond Sculls in the recent Henley Regatta and also holder of the Philadelphia gold challenge cup which he won at the Olympic games in Paris last year, has decided to take the water against Walter M. Hoover, his American challenger for the latter trophy.

Beresford reconsidered his decision not to defend the cup in his answer to a cabled request from the cup committee in Philadelphia appealing to his "British sportsmanship" to meet Hoover, who went to England for the express purpose of competing for the Philadelphia trophy. American oarsmen consider it emblematic of the world's amateur sculling championship.

The British sculler will enter the contest wit hHoover with the understanding that, if victorious, he will return the cup to the United States, as he intends to uphold the decision of English rowing authorities that the Diamond Sculls represents the world's championship.

IN The decision today has cleared up the misunderstanding which arose when Beresford, after winning the Diamond Sculls, declared that he would not meet the American oarsman for the challenge cup, but intended to send it back to the United States without competition.

Beresford explained to the Associated Press that he had taken this action on the understanding he had been declared world's champion amateur sculler by the English governing body on the sport, and that he did not want to start any disputes by entering for another race which was looked for, in England at any rate, as a rival to the Henley blue ribbon event.

After meeting with the British rowing authorities today Beresford said, "the authorities have no objection to me racing Hoover, so I am to meet him tomorrow to arrange the details. I think I am right in sending the cup to America even if I win it.

"The race really should not be under the auspices of the Thames Rowing Club, but should be staged by a more representative body. However, I could not refuse the sporting appeal for the race."

HAGEN WILL COMPETE AT YONKERS' CLUB

NEW YORK, July 8.—(AP)—Walter Hagen, former American and British open golf champion, expects to return from western Canada in time to participate in the metropolitan open championship at the Grassy Sprain Club in Yonkers, N. Y., July 16 and 17, it was learned today.

With Jim Barnes, who recently captured the British open title, and MacDonald Smith, returned from their European invasion the field will be exceptional. Willie McFarlane, who became American king at Worcester, Mass., in June, after a bitter duel with Bobby Jones, also will be among the starters.

Hagen is displaying his usual skill in his Canadian tour and two days ago negotiated the Regina Country Club course in a par 70, the first time that it has been accomplished.

WILHELM SIGNS CHRISTY FOR SHORTSTOP POSITION

BRIDGEPORT, July 8.—(AP)—Manager Wilhelm, of the Bridgeport Eastern league club announced tonight that he had signed Bob Christy, fomer Pittsfield player, to fill the shortstop position on the local team. The berth was made vacant due to the absence of Joe Rodrigues, who quit the team yesterday.

Rodrigues had been fined $300 for his actions and suspended for the remainder of the season. Manager Wilhelm refused to trade the Cuban to Hartford yesterday, announcing that he was on the suspended list to stay.

Outfielder Dick O'Connor who played with Des Moines in the Western league last season, joined the club today.

HOBOKEN LAD SIGNS CONTRACT WITH BOSTON

BOSTON, July 8.—(AP)—Harold C. Neubauer of Hoboken, N. J., a graduate of Brown University last month, has signed a contract to pitch for the Boston Red Sox, Secretary Price in making this announcement today from Detroit said that Neubauer would report at once. In his four years of pitching at Brown, Neubauer attained a record of 23 wins and seven losses. He is a right hander.

N. Y. FIREMEN BEAT DETROIT SMOKE EATERS

NEW YORK, July 8.—(AP)—New York's firemen discarded their rubber coats today and defeated the smake eaters from Detroit in a baseball game at the Yankee stadium, 8 to 4. There was one casualty when John A. Weisling of the New York squad grasped a bat too near the nozzle in an attempt to bunt and suffered a broken wrist from a pitched ball.

MRS. MATHEWSON DENIES HUSBAND HAS RELAPSE

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., July 8—(A. P.)—Reports widely circulated today that Christy Mathewson, president of the Boston National League baseball club, had suffered a relapse and was in a serious condition were branded as "absolutely untrue" tonight by his wife

"There is no foundation in reports of his serious illness," Mrs. Mathewson said. You can quote me as saying that these reports are absolutely untrue." Mrs. Mathewson said that her husband had been visiting Saranac Lake at various times for treatment, during the past five years.

Challenge

The Jewett City Speed Boys are without games for this Saturday and Sunday. The team is made up of young men between 18 and 20 years of age and will give a good account of itself.

We would like to hear from the Rosedales or Bearcats for a game on Saturday in Jewett City, and the Valants for Sunday's game, also in Jewett City. If challenge is accepted answer through this paper giving your phone number or write to John Harris, North Main street, Jewett City.

H. M. S. WISTARIA'S COMMANDER BIDS FAREWELL TO NEW LONDONERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 8—Commander P. S. W. King and officers of H. M. S. Wistaria held a reception aboard the British war craft at the state pier this afternoon, the affair being the nature of a farewell as the Wistaria will clear from the harbor tomorrow or Friday after a stay here of eight dys. Guests of Commander King and his officers were city officials, members of the city council and representatives of the navy and coast guard units at this port, besides many of the city's prominent residents.

There is a row on at Ocean Beach and it may continue a long time, unless Harry Brightman takes a German police dog he owns away from the beach, as he says he will do. Dogs are prone to bark, as everyone realizes who has had experience with them or is in the vicinity where they are sheltered. The bigger the dog the bigger the bark, it was claimed, when Brightman was prosecuted in court today that jealousy entered into this war, as well as the rights of others. Mr. Brightman claims that if he had consented to paint his property in the colors his neighbors had used there would have been no prosecution. But he is aesthetic and has his own ideas as to harmony and the blending of colors as they are placed upon real estate. Henry Wilson, a retired real estate speculator, set the ball rolling, when Brightman was called to answer for harboring a dog that was vicious and annoyed the neighbors of Brightman by barking at night, as well as by day. Mr. Wilson was very earnest when he told the court that the police pup was a nuisance and that he annoyed his sick wife to the verge of prostration. He also said the dog annoyed Mrs. Wilson, but though he frightened her the dog did not injure her. Mr. Wilson was so exasperated that he had complained in writing to the police. Police Chief Pinney testified to the complaint and said he had warned Brightman to abate the nuisance occasioned by the dog. Then dog warden John W. Sweezy, was called to the beach. He didn't find that the dog was vicious as had been reported, but he warned Brightman that the dog could not be kept there unless chained so that his liberties would be restricted. Mr. Brightman pointed out that the dog was and had been chained, so Sweezy could not proceed farther in the case. Mr. Weimer claimed that the Brightman dog attacked him yesterday and frightened him so that he had not recovered his composure yet. He said the dog barked day and night. His daughter, Etta corroborated her father in this particular. She said the dog aroused her from slumber in the early morning.

Then Brightman had his turn as a witness. He testified that his neighbors wanted him to paint his property according to their ideas of colors, but he did not agree with them and would not comply with their request. Then they told him he would not be allowed to keep a dog at the beach. Brightman had an idea that as he had purchased the dog for $25 and the animal was to protect him and his property, that he had as much his rights in owning and keeping the dog. He denied that the dog was a barker, and said the animal was kept in his sleeping room at night. He also denied that the dog had attacked anyone who was not a trespasser on the Brightman premises and pointed out that the dog by daytime was kept on a chain which did not allow him to get off the Brightman premises. It was impossible, he said, for the dog to jump on anyone who did not go upon the Brightman land. He denied the statements of Mr. Wilson that the dog was wild and said that Warden Sweezy saw the dog for the first time a few days ago, when the animal was most friendly with him and displayed no viciousness. He said he had brought eight neighbors to court to express their opinion as to whether the dog was a nuisance and as to whether the animal was vicious. All the neighbors were there and they helped the case of Brightman by affirming what he had said, in so far as they could. Irving Dean and his two daughters, Sadie and Lena were among the people Brightman called and so was Mrs. Vogel. They were not afraid of the dog and said the Brightman dog did not bark more than do dogs in general. Mr. Brightman disclosed that he was the owner of an extensive property at Hartford and that the dog was made use of as a protector for him. He agreed to take the dog back to Hartford with him and to bring him here only at the week-end, when he came for recreation. With that understanding the court continued the case till the 5th of August, to see how the tangle works out. The court said the case should never have been brought to the public attention it had received.

Four negro train riders were sent to jail to stay ten days each. They were found in a New Haven road freight car by officers of the road.

Tom Mahoney had a load of liquor aboard when he was at the railroad station yesterday on the way to Fishers Island and that led him to ask for money from people he met. Tom was allowed to get out of town on a suspension of judgment.

The Union Bank & Trust company, executors of the will of Mrs. Gertrude Pace, and Sheldon of Emma Pace Munro, and Lucian Pace Tetreault and Lucy M. Pinke have sold a house and lot on Howe street to Arthur J. Messer. Messer immediately transferred the property to his wife, Angelina Messer.

Harriet W. C. Newcomb and Elizabeth H. C. Armstrong have sold a building lot on Brainard street to Olive J. Wolfe.

Rose Tarnapol has sold a house and lot on Starr street to Mary Harnick.

A bicycle owned by Meyer Weinberg, 220 Montauk avenue, was damaged last night when an automobile owned and driven by Eli G. Remmert, 309 Crystal avenue, ran over the cycle in front of the residence, 342 Montauk avenue. Remmert declared that he did not observe the wheel as he started his car, as the cycle was lying in the gutter, while Weinberg declared that the cycle was resting against the curb.

The condition of Mrs. Michael J. Sullivan, of Alger place, who underwent a serious operation at Lawrence-Memorial hospital last week, is reported as improving rapidly and it is expected that Mrs. Sullivan will return to her home within a few days. Mrs. Sullivan is a daughter of Former Superintendent of State Police Thomas Egan and Mrs. Egan, of Hartford.

An automobile, owned and driven by Harold Kopp, of Waterford, and a commercial car owned and operated by Frederick Benway, also of Waterford, were in collision this afternoon on Bank street, near Truman street. Both cars were damaged, but not seriously. Each driver placed the responsibility for the crash on the other.

H. Land, 167 Bentley avenue, lodged complaint with the police late last night because of the alleged disturbance to him and other residents at the shore resort through noise at a club house opposite the Land residence. Patrolman Edward Riordan was assigned to the complaint and ordered occupants of the club house to refrain from playing musical instruments and singing during the early morning hours.

Felix Mandler, 15 Briggs street, complained to the police this afternoon, alleging that his wife was being annoyed because of neighbors slandering the woman. Mandler declared that the accusations against his wife were false and malicious. The police did not take the complaint of Mandler seriously.

Miss Anna Salego, of 28 West Coit street, John McCarthy, United States Coast Guard destroyer Erickson and Nolan Nesbit, United States Coast Guard destroyer Downes, were patients discharged today at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital.

The funeral service for Owen F. Coffey, veteran railroad freight flagman and conductor in the employ of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large gathering, including a delegation of members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, of which organization Mr. Coffey had been a member about 30 years. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Raymond O'Callahan. Members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen acted as bearers. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Hannah R. Douglas, 21 Garfield avenue, died late yesterday at the residence of relatives in Waterford, where she had been spending a few weeks. Mrs. Douglas was the widow of William Douglas. She is survived by two sons, Archibald Douglas, a conductor in the passenger service of the New Haven railroad, and Daniel W. Douglas, both of this city.

Robert M. Ackerman, 145 Federal street, of Boston, was arrested late this afternoon by Traffic Officer William Corcoran, charged with speeding and failing to reduce the speed of his automobile, when passing an intersecting street. Ackerman furnished a surety in Howard Palmer on his bond of $50 for appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. Ackerman was operating a high-powered machine through Main street, about 3:15 o'clock, when he was observed by Traffic Officer William Graham, who was on duty at the corner of Crystal avenue and Main streets. Ackerman dashed through Main street at a high rate of speed and was soon lost sight of. Officer Graham went to a signal box and communicated with the police station, asking for the arrest of Ackerman. Traffic Officer Corcoran, who was on duty at the corner of State and Bank streets, was instructed to be on the lookout for the speeders and hardly had he obtained the instructions than the car, a runabout, appeared. Ackerman was taken to the police station, where he was identified by Officer Graham and he was held for trial.

Robert N. Lowell, of High street, Noank, was arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officer John Courtney, charged with operating an automobile without having a license to do so. He will be given a hearing in the police court, tomorrow morning.

A force of men started work making repairs to the ceiling at the Crown theatre, a section of which collapsed during the progress of a motion picture show, two weeks ago, and which resulted in George Babcock, 57 Federal street, sustaining lacerations of the scalp. The repairs will occupy at least a fortnight to complete.

Schooner Freeling, a rum-runner, captured by the United States Coast Guard off this port, several weeks ago, was sold at public auction this afternoon to Attorney Louis Halle, of New York. The price paid by Halle was $1,600. The sale was conducted by Deputy United States Marshal John B. Doherty and was attended by about 25 prospective purchasers. Attorney Halle has appeared as counsel for a majority of rum-runners, who have been tried before United States commissioners here.

Announcement is made of the approaching wedding of Frank B. Leighton, of Caribou, Me., and Miss Elizabeth M. Mallon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Mallon, of 11 Masonic street. Miss Mallon is employed as telephone operator at the submarine base.

George A. Edgerton, of Atlantic, Mass., formerly of New London, where he was employed many years as cashier of the Adams Express company, is spending a few days with his son, Frederick W. Edgerton, of Granite street.

TAXI OPERATOR TAKEN TO GROTON BY STATE POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 8.—A court trial and one which borders on the sensational, may be revealed, by one or more prosecutions in the Groton town court within a day or two, it was revealed this evening, when state police, stationed at the Groton barracks, began an investigation to determine the exploits of taxicab parties starting and ending in the borough the past few weeks.

The officers came to New London shortly after 8 o'clock and took charge of one of the public service operators, with a stand at the Union station. The operator was taken to Groton and with the information the officers expect to secure through an interrogation of the driver, one or more arrests, it is understood, will take place. The taxi operator has been carrying certain passengers of late and to determine the identity of these passengers in order to obtain the real charges by which it is hoped to obtain a prosecution in the borough court, the driver is to be given a severe grilling within the next 24 or 48 hours.

The driver taken charge of tonight resides in Groton and was arrested several months ago when he was found in a disorderly house that was raided. He escaped prosecution at that time, because his story of simply being in the house waiting for his passengers to give him further orders, was believed by the raiding authorities, who were state police officers.

A Niagara of Bean Soup

The humble bean, target for gibes and jokes, at last has come into its own as the "hero" of a movie. The importance of this legume as food as stressed in the new United States department of agriculture educational motion picture, Beans or Beetles?

According to Department statisticians, a hamper containing the entire green bean crop of the United States, 105,000 tons, would be equal in circumference and height to the Capitol of the United States, and a bag containing all the dry beans grown in one year would be twice as large. If all the baked beans, canned and in cases, were piled case upon case they would make nine piles each equal in size to the Washington Monument. Another startling claim of the bean enthusiasts is that our crop would make enough bean soup to run Niagara Falls for more than three hours.

These interesting deductions are presented in the film by means of animated cartoons. The picture is intended to call attention to the ravages of the Mexican bean beetle, the "villain" of the story, and to inform bean growers of ways and means of protecting their crops against this insect.

Hands Across the Caribbean

"Hands across the sea," which usually means the Atlantic, has its counterpart in 'Hands across the Caribbean," " says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"One of the recent acts of neighborliness which is helping to cement the historic friendships between the United States and Latin America," continues the bulletin "is the loan by the United States to the Republic of Chile of a Public Health expert, Dr. John D. Long, Assistant Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service to aid in developing Chile's recently created ministry of Hygiene.

"The ministry was created following the 5th International Conference of American States held in Santiago, Chile, in 1923, when the data presented in regard to prevention of disease and reduction of the death rate greatly interested the Chilean authorities. Later, diplomatic channels were used to request Dr. Long's services, and he was assigned by the Surgeon General, Dr. H. S. Cummings, to be a sort of American 'Health Ambassador.' Dr. Long has made several visits to Chile and other Latin American countries in his capacity of vice director, Pan American Sanitary Bureau, and as a delegate to international conferences. He speaks Spanish fluently.

"During more than 25 years of experience in the Public Health Service, Dr. Long has served as chief quarantine officer for the Philippine government. He reorganized the health service there, introduced a visiting nurse system and accomplished much in bettering water supplies by means of artesian wells, in improving sewage disposal methods, especially in the rural districts and in initiating improvements in housing and living conditions.

"The request for an expert to help build up the Chilean public health service is only one of several steps being taken by Chile toward development of its governments; agencies with the help of American specialists. The republic recently engaged a financial and economic commission headed by Prof. Kemmerer of Princeton University to make a survey and recommendations in regard to the public finance of the country."

Why Call It a Coach?

THEY couldn't understand! "Why call it a coach—why confuse it with cheap closed cars?" asked the dealers at a recent Studebaker meeting. "Surely it would be better to name it the Special Six Coupe."

To be sure, the Special Six Coach is upholstered in fine quality of material—with high-grade carpeting—and heavy decorative door pulls to assist passengers in alighting.

To be sure, it is lacquer finished in two styles—beautiful Studebaker blue or a rich duotone finish of Wyandotte green-gray above and Ponca green-gray below.

And, furthermore, to get a coach as large and roomy you must pay more than $1,000 above the price of this car.

But the fact remains—that it carries the lowest price at which a fine closed car has ever been sold on the world-famous Special Six chassis.

It is a coach—in price alone. But in quality —a fine type of five-passenger coupe.

From the very beginning, the coach has been an effort towards economy on the part of automobile manufacturers. But, unlike other manufacturers, Studebaker has been able to build a coach without sacrifice in essential quality — and offer it to you at an accepted coach price.

The reason for sedan quality at coach price

Studebaker builds all of its own closed bodies —builds finer coaches than have been built before—and builds them at a lower cost—because there is no outside body-maker's profit to be included in the purchase price to you.

This Special Six Coach is built complete—both body and chassis—in Studebaker plants. It is a "one-profit" automobile.

In buying a closed car, do not underestimate the importance of engine and chassis. With extra weight to carry, these units become increasingly vital.

Plus—the Special Six Chassis

This fine coach body is especially designed for and mounted on the Special Six chassis which has contributed to the splendid reputation of Studebaker cars for dependability, endurance and reserve mileage.

Definite records show that many Studebakers have delivered from 125,000 to 200,000 miles of service. Up in the rugged country around Three Rivers, Quebec, there are eight Studebaker cars that have each traveled 100,000 miles or more.

In Stockton, Calif., one Studebaker car has piled up 138,000 miles over steep mountain grades and rough country roads with negligible upkeep—not a single major part has been purchased or repaired by reason of wear or accident.

So do not buy this Special Six Coach with the expectation that you'll have to trade it in at the end of a year or so. Instead, consider this your permanent investment in transportation. At the mileage when other cars are breaking up, this Studebaker Special Six Coach will just be breaking in.

Buy now—no need to delay

You may buy this Studebaker Special Six Coach today—or on any day of the year—with the confident assurance that no act of ours will stigmatize it as a "last year's model."

For Studebaker has discontinued the custom of presenting a new line of cars each year. Instead Studebaker will keep up-to-date all of the time—introducing new improvements and refinements as their merit is proved through practical use.

POETRY

THE CORAL GROVE.

Deep in the wave is a coral grove,
Where the purple mullet and gold-fish rove,
Where the sea-flower spreads its leaves of blue,
That never are wet with falling dew,
But in bright and changeful beauty shine,
Far down in the green and glassy brine.
The floor is of sand like the mountain drift
And the pearl-shells spangle the flinty snow;
From coral rocks to sea-plants lift
Their boughs, where the tides and billows flow;
The water is calm and still below,
For the winds and waves are absent there,
And the sands are bright as the stars that glow
In the motionless fields of upper air;
There with its waving blade of green,
The sea-flag streams through the silent water,
And the crimson leaf of the dulse is seen
To blush, like a banner bathed in slaughter:
There with a light and easy motion,
The fan-coral sweeps through the clear, deep sea;
And the yellow and scarlet tufts of ocean
Are bending like corn on the upland lea;
And life, in rare and beautiful forms,
Is sporting amid those bowers of stone,
And is safe, when the wrathful spirit of storms
Has made the top of the wave his own;
And when the ship from his fury flies,
Where the myriad voices of ocean roar,
When the wind-god frowns in the murky skies,
And demons are waiting the wreck on shore;
Then far below, in the peaceful sea,
The purple mullet and gold-fish rove,
Where the waters murmur tranquilly,
Through the bending twigs of the coral grove.

BRAHMA.

If the red slayer think he slays,
Or if the slain think he is slain,
They know not well the subtle ways
I keep, and pass, and turn again.

For or forget to me is near;
Shadow and sunlight are the same;
The vanished gods to me appear;
And one to me are shame and fame.

They reckon ill who leave me out;
When me they fly, I am the wings,
I am the doubter and the doubt,
And I the hymn the Brahmin sings.

The strong gods pine for my abode,
And pine in vain the sacred Seven;
But thou, meek lover of the good!
Find me, and turn thy back on heaven.

—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

How big is your home town, Al?

Oh, about the size of New York; but it isn't yet.—Exchange.

He—Do you believe in sports for girls?

She—Sure. Every girl ought to have one.—Washington Dirge.

How are you doing with your newsstand, boy?

Well, I started with nothin' an' I'm holdin' me own.—Good Hardware.

Cholly Sap—Do you ever think of me, Miss Madge?

Madge Cutting—Yes, but I'd hate to tell you what.—Boston Transcript.

Bill—Smith's grocery store was a failure until he employed that pretty young saleslady. All the sports of the town patronize it now.

Jack—That's what comes of having a counter-attraction.—The Progressive Grocer.

Smith—How's the liquor question in the west?

Jones (who has just returned)—No question at all. When anyone town I was in, the water had been turned off for a week and the inhabitants didn't know it until they had a fire.—Pelican (Cal.)

"Did you inform father you intend to marry me?" asked the girl with fluffy hair.

"Yes," answered the young man with large eyeglasses. "All he said was that he wasn't very well acquainted with me and he didn't see why I should tell him my troubles."—Washington Star.

A newly-landed Irish immigrant, seeing the date "MCMIV" on the portals of the Carnegie library exclaimed:

"What a wonderful country for the Irish! Just look at the foine home that man McMiv has gone and built for himself!"—Ohio State Journal.

Here is a MESSAGE to the Woman Who Desires a SLENDER FIGURE

"What a difference excess fat makes in a woman—By using SAN-GRI-NA I lost 30 lbs. and my friends all say how well I look again."—Writes Mrs. Zello, beautiful Chicago Woman.

Without injuring your health or having to diet or exercise, you can today easily take off 5 to 6 pounds a week with a French prescription conveniently put up in a small tablet called SAN-GRI-NA. Since SAN-GRI-NA has been introduced in America, it has met with such tremendous success that Doctors, Specialists, Nurses and even a former Health Commissioner, have thoroughly investigated it, and now exclusively recommend it to fat people as absolutely harmless and most effective. If you have been fat for years; if your case is most obstinate; if you have tried everything advertised without success; if you suffer from puffing, high blood pressure, tired feeling—simply do this:

Get a package of SAN-GRI-NA from any good druggist, (do not accept any imitation—you will save yourself from disappointment), take two small tablets before each meal, and watch your weight gradually go down and your health and appearance improve. Not only will SAN-GRI-NA do away with fat, but almost from the moment you start taking it you will feel a wonderful change in your entire system. Thousands of people have been benefited by SAN-GRI-NA, and are sending in most gratifying reports. These cases vary in reducing from 5 to 75 pounds or more in a remarkably short time; and many say that "almost immediately after taking SAN-GRI-NA they felt 100 per cent better." BEWARE OF IMITATIONS!

Prominent American Specialists, Doctors and Former Health Commissioner Exclusively Recommends

SAN-GRI-NA
FOR FAT PEOPLE

On sale at any good drug or department store. If your druggist does not carry San-Gri-Na in stock he can get it from his wholesaler or you can send a money order or check for $1.50 direct to the Scientific Research Laboratories, 1841 Broadway, N. Y. City.

CONTROL INSECTS IN VEGETABLE GARDEN

Now is the time of the year when diseases and insects must be controled if we wish to secure a good crop in the vegetable garden. If one would remember the reason for applying certain sprays they can get very satisfactory results by their proper application.

In case of blight, mildew and other bacterial diseases, one of the best-known methods of control is by applying Bordeaux mixture. This Bordeaux mixture may be bought commercially prepared, or the ingredients bought separately and mixed at home. Bordeaux lead and pyrox are some of the commercial preparations. If to be mixed at home, 5 pounds of blue vitriol, 5 pounds of lump lime or 7 pounds of hydrated lime, to 50 gallons of water is advised. Probably one will get better results by using hydrated lime, as it will stay in much easier than when lump lime is used. This mixture seems to adhere to the potato vine better than the mixture of hydrated lime and blue vitriol would.

When any eating insect to be controled, some form of poison could be used. It might be arsenate of lead, Paris green, or any form of metallic arsenate. In spray mixtures it is generally advisable to use about three pounds of arsenic if the spray contains 50 per cent. If the poison only contains about 20 per cent, then four pounds should be used to 50 gallons of water or mixed with 50 gallons of Bordeaux mixture.

If it is a sucking insect that is to be controled, some contact spray must be used. This may be tobacco leaf extract or any form of nicotine sulphate, kerosene emulsion or a soap spray. When using black leaf 40, it is generally advisable to use about one-half pint to 50 gallons of water or with 50 gallons of Bordeaux mixture. If the plants have a combination of these troubles it is better to combine the spray together. There are, however, certain combinations that will not mix and are dangerous to use if mixed.

The following are things to avoid: Never mix paris green with lime sulphur, soap or oil emulsion; do not mix oil emulsions with lime sulphur; zinc arsenate should not be used with soap emulsion or lime sulphur. When arsenate of lime or arsenate of soda is used they should not be combined with lime sulphur. You get an increase in efficiency, however, by combining paris green or arsenate of lead with Bordeaux mixture.

PROPER CALF FEEDING IN SUMMER TIME

In feeding calves in the summer time it is a difficult matter to keep them growing without any setback. A person wishes to have them grow as fast as possible, and in so doing often overfeeds them. Overfeeding is as bad as underfeeding. This is especially true of the Jerseys and Guernseys, because generally dairy calves are not fed whole milk during the first three weeks at least, and many times the milk of the Guernseys and Jerseys contain so much butter fat that it causes scours in the calf. It is, therefore, very advisable to feed less than 12 pounds of milk each day to this type of animal, rather than to feed more.

Holstein calves, because they are larger and because of the fact that their milk contains less butter fat, can handle probably up to 16 pounds of milk a day. The first day the calves should receive the mother's milk from an animal that is just recently freshened, because the first milk contains ingredients which are necessary for the calf to have for its first feed. If it is milked by hand the temperature of the milk should be 90 to 100 degrees when fed to the calf. It also pays to use a thermometer and not guess at it.

The calves should also be kept in a clean pen, as infection causes trouble. When the calves have reached three weeks, then one pound a day of skim milk can be substituted for the whole milk. This should be kept up until the calves are put entirely on skim milk. If the calf seems to become unthrifty during this period, it is better to put at least one-half of the whole milk into the skim milk until the calf becomes thrifty again.

Limewater is recommended and gives good results. This can be mixed up as follows: 1 pound of lime to 4 quarts of water, and a teacupful of milk. Calves also should have this mixture added to every 4 quarts.

Calves also should have clean, fresh water before them all the time. Once a week a small handful of salt should be given to each animal. Good, clean timothy should be put in a spreading rack, or in a bag hung up, so that the hay does not get into the litter and become spoiled.

After three weeks also a mixture of dry grain should be put into a box where they can get at it any time. Do not put grain in the skim milk or any other gruel. Feed it dry separately. This should be mixed up as follows: 1 pound of wheat bran, 1 pound of ground oats, one pound of cornmeal and one-half pound of linseed oil meal. When the calf gets to be six months old it should be watched closely and not allowed to eat too much grain. Four to six pounds of grain, according to size, will be sufficient to keep the animal growing in good shape.

NATURAL CROSSING IN OATS MAY AMOUNT TO 1 PER CENT

It has long been recognized that when two varieties of corn are grown in rows side by side a certain amount of natural crossing takes place. A row of white corn growing next to a row of yellow corn, for instance, will produce ears that have numerous yellow kernels. Also it has long been a general belief that the so-called close fertilized cereals, like wheat, oats, and barley, very rarely cross naturally; that is, a row of white oats, for instance growing beside a row of black oats would produce white kernels only. Artificial methods of crossing the two kinds of oats were necessarily resorted to when plant breeders desired a cross. Seedsmen, therefore, have grown plots of one strain of oats next to plots of another strain, feeling assured that each seed plat would remain pure.

Such is not the case, however, according to the United States department of agriculture. Experimental work with oats at Akron (Colo.) field station has shown that without doubt natural crosses do occur in oats the same as in corn, although to far less extent. The extent of natural crossing oats varied with the different varieties. It was greater in some selections than others from the same variety. The greatest percentage of natural crosses was observed in the Iowar variety, in which an average of nearly 1 per cent of crosses was found.

The natural crossing of oats is so small that it is of no particular significance to the average farmer even though he does grow his own seed oats. It is of importance, however, to the cereal investigator and nursery seed producers. The need for formulating better methods in plat and nursery technique in conducting experiments with oats is apparent if the factor of natural crossing is to be eliminated.

TREATMENT AND CARE OF LAYING PULLETS

Reports of pullet egg production are already coming in. Some have been reported laying as young as three months and three days. While maturity is an important factor in breeding, abnormally early production at the expense of growth is a mistake. Pullets hatched in February and March usually start laying in a shorter number of days and when smaller in size than pullets hatched and reared under the same conditions brought out during April and May. Larger eggs and better egg production will be obtained if the pullets do not mature and start laying until after they are five months old.

Retarding production must be done very carefully, as any method that checks growth will be only partially successful. Do not take away the mash. Continue feeding dry mash, but decrease or remove the beef scrap—depending on the seriousness of the situation. Feed heavily on scratch grain—particularly cracked corn. Whole oats may be kept before the pullets in hoppers continually.

Pullet roosting houses should be cool and well ventilated. If the pullets take to the trees, let them go—as the trees are by far the most comfortable place. Encourage pullets to roost early. Watch out for red mites!

Cockerels saved to be used as breeders next year should be placed in a yard by themselves where they will have abundant range and shade. If colony houses are not available, a few roosting poles under a tree will answer the purpose very satisfactorily. Two or three times the required number should be saved out, as some fall by the wayside, and many that look promising will not qualify at the beginning of the breeding season.

Poultrymen who are in the habit of shipping live birds to Bridgeport will be glad to know that the embargo on that city has finally been removed, this being the last of the shipping restrictions on live poultry due to fowl pest. There seems to be every evidence that fowl pest is completely cleaned up and eradicated; yet every poultryman should be continually on the lookout for its re-appearance, during the summer and fall, and immediately report any disease that may look at all suspicious.—By E. Jones, Storrs.

DATES OF POULTRYMEN

Every poultryman should jot down the following dates on his calendar, as these are events of importance. Frequently poultrymen who are operating with limited help feel that they cannot afford time to attend meetings, but remember this; it costs less to learn through the other fellow's experience than it does at home!

Friday, July 10th, New Haven County farm bureau poultry field meeting at Fred S. Barnes' in Clintonville, Conn. All day meeting.

Saturday, July 11th, Hartford county farm bureau poultry field meeting at Robert Darling's in Simsbury, Conn. All day meeting.

Monday, August 3rd, and Tuesday, August 4th, Connecticut Poultry Association meeting, held in connection with Farmers' week at the Connecticut college in Storrs, Conn.

Monday evening—Poultry banquet.

Tuesday — Educational program. Among other speakers, William H. Allen, formerly of this state, will be with us.

Monday, August 31st—to Friday, September 4th, inclusive—Connecticut Poultry Association field trip. This trip will be conducted through Massachusetts and New Hampshire, including some of the best breeding and winter broiler farms in the country as well as a day in the White Mountains. It is not often that one can get paid for time and travelling expenses while on a vacation; yet the poultry field trip offers this opportunity to poultrymen.

FOUR PENS TIED FOR WEEK IN EGG LAYING

The management of the Storrs laying contest and the breeders who are participating are both gratified at a jump of 111 eggs last week over the previous week's production. The total lay for the thirty-fifth week was an even 4900 eggs or a yield of exactly fifty per cent. Two pens of Barred Rocks owned by W. H. B. Kent of Cazenovia, N. Y., and Keewaydin Farm of Darien, Conn., and Hilltop Farm's pen of Leghorns from Suffield, Conn., all tied for first place with 54 eggs each. Purdue University's pen of Barred Rocks from Lafayette, Ind., was a close second for the week with a score of 53 eggs. F. S. Chapin's pen of Rhode Island Reds from Longmeadow, Mass., was an equally close third with a tally of 52 eggs. Hanson's Leghorn Farm at Corvallis, Ore., was in fourth position with a total of 50 eggs. Thus the six best pens for the week were separated by a margin of only four eggs.

There were changes among the leading pens in only two groups. In the Rhode Island Red class I. W. Mitchell of Wallingford, Conn., passed Fred H. Sampsen of Springfield, Mass., and thus moved up to fourth place. In the Leghorn class Hilltop Farm at Suffield, Massachusetts, moved up into third place instead of Hobart E. Rice of Barre, Massachusetts.

The following table shows the number of birds in each of the five classes in the Contest and the batting average of each group also the average for all breeds taken together:

100 White Rocks	.459
160—White Wyandottes	.432

SPRING HILL

At the service at the church Sunday Rev. Hamilton Smith, who is taking a vacation from his labors as missionary in China, gave a talk on his work in that country. Monday afternoon he and Mrs. Sith addressed mthe members of the Emma Gardiner Memorial Missionary society of the home of C. C. Davis, where they are staying.

A Junior C. E. society has been organized which holds meetings at the church at 6 o'clock Sunday evenings.

It was very quiet on the Fourth there being less than the usual amount of travel past here.

The unexpected explosion of a firecracker in the hands of Donald Hawkins resulted in a painful injury to his eyes, so that a physician was called to attend to it.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Cummings spent the Fourth at their summer home, with their daughter Mildred, of Staten Island.

Wallace Babcock spent the Fourth with his family; all took dinner with the Gardiner family.

Wayne Bellows and family were with his parents Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Bellows over the Fourth.

Misses Elsie and Clarice Deming were at their summer home over the Fourth.

Wayne Storrs, from a hospital in Willimantic took dinner with his family Saturday.

Mrs. R. B. Knapp and children of Bridgeport are visiting at the home of Judge L. J. Storrs.

Mrs. Stanley Marek is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Gardiner.

Mrs. Begg, from near Toronto, Can., is visiting her son, Robert, at the C. A. C. sheep farm.

Wright Gifford on leave of absence from camp Devens, spent Sunday at the home of C. C. Davis.

Several from this town attended the circus at Willimantic.

Misses Hazel and Lois Gillette spent last week at Groton Long Point.

Walter Cummings and family and Mrs. Avery and son from Webster, Mass., were recent visitors at the home of Mrs. E. F. Storrs.

Mrs. W. P. Wildes entertained her Sunday school class at Wildfern Tuesday.

Lemon Removes Lines, Wrinkles

Squeeze the juice of two lemons in a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents, shake well and you have the very mildest anti-wrinkle lotion to tighten relaxed skin so fine lines and gradicate crows-feet. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the skin at night. By morning most of the tell-tale wrinkles, tired lines and crows-feet are smoothed out, giving a more youthful contour to cheeks, chin, throat. It leaves the skin velvety soft, clear and fresh.

Beauty experts use this astringent lotion for enlarged pores, also to bleach and whiten sallow, tanned skin.

Mix this harmless lotion yourself since it acts best immediately after prepared.

STOCK PRICES MOVE TO HIGHER GROUND

NEW YORK, July 8. (A P)—Responding to favorable trade news and easier money rates, stock prices continued to move to higher ground in today's stock market despite intermittent profit taking which was particularly heavy in some of the motor shares. The day's sales again ran well over one and one quarter million shares, with 32 individual issues mounting to new high levels for the year.

Stiffening of commodity prices and publication of weekly trade reviews indicating that steel consumption this summer would run well above that of last year brought fresh buying into the steel shakes. United States steel common closed 117 to a new high on the movement; Vanadium was pushed up nearly 3 points to a new 1925 top at 34; Colorado fuel closed 2 5-8 higher at 44 5-8 and most of the others improved fractionally.

Reports of an increased export demand for copper and the rising tendency of non-ferrous metal prices generally stimulated activity in the mining spares. American Smelting moving up nearly 3 points to 107 3-4, the highest prices since 1917. American Smelting preferred, International Nickel preferred, Utah Copper and United States Smelting also broke through their previous peak prices.

Specialties especially those with favorable earnings prospects, were again bid up in spirited fashion under pool sponsorship. Among the many issues to exceed their previous high were American Safety Razor, American Radiator, American Chicle preferred, Certain-Teed Products, Continental Can, Du Pont, Electric Power Certificates, Goodrich Rubber, Household Products, International Railways of Central America, Metropolitan Edison preferred, Midland Steel products preferred, Robert Reis, United States Hoffman Machinery and Woolworth.

A brisk demand developed for the Virginia-Carolina Chemical issues, all of which attained new maximum quotations for the year, on reports of an early termination of the receivership. The common closed 3 points higher at 44 and the pre preferred showed a net 6 3-4 after selling as high as 7 1-2 each of 33-4 at 22 1-8 after having touched 23 1-2.

The traditional "selling of the good news following the announcement of the General Motors-Yellow Cab merger, and extensive liquidation inspired by the government of automobile price cuts, probably accounted for the heaviness of some of the motor issues. Net losses of a point or two were recorded by Mack Trucks, Chrysler Yellow Cab, and Pierce-Arrow common and preferred. General Motors touched a new top at 87 1-2 and then eased to 86 7-8 and was followed into new high ground by Packard and Paide-Detroit.

An increase in Corning crude prices, private estimates of a further reduction in domestic crude output last week and the sharp drop in Mexican production revived flagging interest in the oil shares, speculative enthusiasm was kept in check, however, by reports of a reduction in mid-continent gasoline prices.

Establishment of new high records by Wheeling and Lake Erie common and preferred was the feature of the rail group. New York Central and some of the other high grade issues lost ground on realizing. Call money renewed at four per cent. and then dropped to 3 3-4 with funds obtainable on the "outside market" as low as 3 1-2. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady.

Weakness of Norwegian Kroner, which fell back about one quarter of a cent to around 17.75 cents, featured the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling ruled firm around $4.85 5-8 and French francs and Italian lira were quoted slightly higher around 4.70 and 3.70 cents respectively.

NORWICH TOWN

Mrs. Mary D. Boylan, Mrs. Emma Welte, Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Welte, sailed on the steamship Columbus from New York July 7 for Bremen, planning to go thence by rail to Berlin, for a week's stay. They will go then to Leipzig, to visit the largest dog kennels in Europe, Buchners Central Dog Park. Mr. Welte is to look over a special kind of dog "Schnauzer" better known in this country as long-wired hair Pinscher for John Sweeney of Fitchville, Conn., the dog fancier.

He also will inspect some German police dogs for Walter Moran, of Norwich Town, who possesses a number of fine trained specimens of Deutsche-Schaferhunde.

The party will proceed then to Heidelberg, to visit the famous castle Rheims, then to Baden-Baden to sample the mineral springs, the waters famous for its curative qualities.

Next they will go to Freiburg-Baden, a city of some 88,000 population, located in the southern part of Germany, where the Welte organ and piano factory is located. They will stay there about a month, spending the time with relatives, etc.

They will then devote their time to general sight-seeing in Switzerland, stopping off at Geneva to view the League of Nations palace. From Geneva they go to Paris for a week's stay and from there travel through the battle fields, until they reach Calais; cross the English channel to Dover, direct to London for a week's sight-seeing, then return to Southampton and will take ship there, September 23rd, on the White Star Liner, Majestic, for New York.

While in Freiburg the tourists will take a trip north to Strassburg, to view the famous cathedral, thence to city of Mayence, on the Rhine, take an excursion boat down the river to Cologne, viewing all the famous old Rhuined castles, and while returning to Freiburg will view Frankfort.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb, of Town street, had as callers Sunday evening, Dr. Lamb's relatives, Mrs. Harriet E. Brainerd and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Greenley, also Mr. Greenley's mother, Mrs. Charles Greenley, all of Mystic. They were en route to their homes, following a delightful trip over the Mohawk Trail. Leaving Mystic Saturday morning (Fourth of July), at 7 o'clock, the party traveled by way of New London, Hartford and Springfield and Greenfield, Mass., over the Mohawk Trail to North Adams, thence on to Pittsfield, where they remained over Saturday night. The return trip on Sunday, was from Pittsfield through Westfield and Springfield, coming into Connecticut by way of Stafford Springs, then to Willimantic, Norwich Town and from the last mentioned place over the Military Highway to Center Groton, reaching their home in Mystic about 9 o'clock in the evening. When in the vicinity of Willimantic, the party was delayed about three hours due to tire trouble, Mr. Greenley having had to stop to change tires twice and on one occasion go to a location three miles distant to purchase a new tire. This, however, was his first experience of this kind in over two years, the same company having taken a trip to Montreal last summer, besides numberless other lengthy trips, through the New England states since then, with the same car.

STANKIEWICZ IS BOUND OVER TO CRIMINAL COURT IN SEPTEMBER

Paul Stankiewicz, 20, of 568 North Main street, who is accused of shooting and dangerously wounding John Bosko, also of 568 North Main street, on the night of June 26, was bound over to the September term of the criminal superior court when he was presented Wednesday afternoon before Justice of the Peace William Mitchell at the justice's home at Poquetanuck.

Stankiewicz, who has been held in jail without bonds since his arrest the day after the shooting, was brought from jail to the justice's court by State Policeman Henry J. Albright and was presented on the charge of assault with intent to kill. He had no lawyer, but he admitted the shooting and he was bound over to the higher court. Bonds were placed at $5,000, in default of which he was taken back to jail by the state policeman. Grand Juror Appleton Main prosecuted the case.

Bosko was able to leave the Backus hospital, Wednesday afternoon. He is still carrying the two bullets from the revolver Stankiewicz used, one of them entering his face under the jaw and the other under the right eye, where powder burns on the skin of his cheek indicated the close range at which this shot was fired.

The shooting took place near the McClimon farm on the Preston City road and is reported to have occurred during a fight between the two men that followed an argument and disagreement, when they drove out to get a supply of liquor that was to have been left for them at a certain place. They used Bosko's automobile to go after the liquor and the empty machine was noticed by the side of the road with bloodspots on it and the signs of a fight around it. A search discovered Bosko in a lot nearby, wounded and weak from loss of blood. The three men, Fred and Eddie Gudcahn and Bernard Sebastian, brought Bosko to police headquarters, whence he was sent to the Backus hospital after he had been attended by Dr. W. T. Driscoll, who discovered that the man had been shot.

Stankiewicz was arrested about noon the next day, near the railroad track back of the Norwich Belt Mfg. Co., in Greeneville, by Officers Michael Carroll and Charles Smith. One of his hands was badly battered in the encounter with Bosko, and his clothing, as well as that of Bosko, was ripped and torn by a barbed wire fence around which their fight was staged.

CONNECTICUT LEADS WORLD IN INVENTIVE GENIUS

The Connecticut Yankee still leads the world in inventive genius, according to a survey just completed by Munn & Co., of New York City and Washington, the oldest and largest firm of patent attorneys in the United States. Incidentally, Connecticut leads every other state and territory in the union in its ratio of inventors to population.

"The inventive ability of the Connecticut Yankee has long been a tradition," Munn & Co. state, "but here and there has grown up a feeling that this might be nothing more than a tradition—that while it may have been true at one time that the sons of Connecticut were America's most prolific inventors, that such is the fact no longer. In order to find out just what the facts are Munn & Co. have made a survey. Here is what we have found.

"While only one person out of every 100 dlives in Connecticut, one patent out of every thirty-two is issued to a person who lives there.

"For the whole of the United States there was issued last year one patent for every 2,646 persons. For Connecticut one patent was issued for every 1,082 persons. Connecticut is thus more than twice as prolific in inventions as the country in general.

"The entire number of patents issued to residents of the United States last year was 40,520. Patents issued to residents of Connecticut numbered 1,276. Assuming the population of the United States to be 107,000,000 and the population of Connecticut to be 1,394,324, Connecticut residents lead in the field of invention on the basis of population is readily seen.

"Connecticut is followed in density of inventors by the District of Columbia with one patent issued to every 2,229 residents, California with one patent to every 1,302 residents, New Jersey with one patent to every 1,356 residents and New York with one patent to every 1,503 residents.

"It has generally been assumed that the number of inventions in any particular commonwealth depends upon the number of manufacturers. At first glance this would seem to hold true for the great manufacturing state of Connecticut. A more careful study of the complete data, however, would tend to throw doubt upon this theory. While it is true that Connecticut leads in the ratio of patents to population and is a state of diversified manufacturers, it also will be seen that the second on the list, the District of Columbia, is not predominantly a manufacturing community, nor is California, the third on the list.

"While the fact that Connecticut is a manufacturing state is one of the main causes of the ingenuity of its residents, it is not the entire explanation. The cause for the inventive genius of the sons of Connecticut seems to be in Connecticut's history. The state was built up by sturdy pioneers who found it necessary to couple brain with brawn in order to wrest a living from the stubborn soil. Ingenuity became a deeply ingrained characteristic of the people—a characteristic which has been handed down to father and son to this day and has even been passed on to the natives of foreign countries who go to Connecticut to make a living.

'Strange as it may seem, it is nevertheless a fact that a foreigner, who, in his home country, ever invented anything, but was content to keep on doing things the way his family has been doing them for generations, often is found applying for a patent within six months after he has taken up his residence in Connecticut."

FAILED TO LOOK BEFORE CROSSING ROAD

In a finding by Coroner J. J. Desmond upon the death of Dionisio Carocari, 52, of Stonington, who was struck and killed on May 2, in Stonington, by a car operated by Fred Gerlach, of Old Mystic, the coroner finds that Carocari, when he got out of his car, failed to glance to the right as he ran across the road in front of Gerlach's car.

Andrew Warner Recovers.

Andrew Warner, who was severely injured with concussion of the brain and other injuries in an automobile accident on the Gardner Lake road recently, has recovered enough to be able to leave the Backus hospital, last Monday. He is now at the home of his brother, Thomas Warner, in New London.

Communicable Diseases Reported.

Communicable diseases for the last week are reported in Eastern Connecticut by the state department of health as follows:

Whooping cough—Jewett City, 3; Old Lyme, 3; Hampton, 2.

Scarlet fever—Mansfield, 1; Tolland, 1; Brooklyn, 1.

Measles — Mansfield, 1; Stafford Springs, 1; Brooklyn, 1; Danielson, 21; Killingly, 3.

One diphtheria bacilli carrier was reported in New London.

37,000 TELEPHONE DIRECTORIES ISSUED IN THIS DISTRICT

The summer issue of the telephone directory, delivery of which began Wednesday and which is effective upon receipt by subscribers, is bound in a more substantial cover stock of dark brown, a color not hitherto used on the telephone directory. With this heavier cover stock, the directory will stand up better under constant usage given this book. The design on the cover also is new. At the top of the page in large black letters is the name of the district In other years the words "telephone directory" were given the most prominence on the cover and the name of the district was subordinated in the choice of type.

Black ink on the brown cover makes it more attractive than the "telephone blue" ink on the light blue or light tan covers used in the past.

With deliveries beginning Wednesday throughout the state, it will require three or four days to complete the distribution in the larger cities. Anyone not having received a new directory by Saturday night should notify the business office of the company. Hundreds of telephone number changes appear in the new directory and subscribers are asked by the company to throw away their old directories and use the new one upon receipt.

More than 300,000 directories of this issue were printed. The exact count is 302,250 divided among the five districts as follows: Hartford 88,500, New Haven 77,000, Bridgeport 65,500, New London 37,000 nad Waterbury 33,150. In printing this issue 127 tons of white paper were used for the inside pages of the directory and 13 tons of cover stock were used, with a little more than one ton of printers' ink.

NEW ESTIMATE CUTS LEGACIES TO HOSPITALS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, July 8—Marcus Kimball, president of the Day-Kimball Hospital Corporation, at the annual meeting of the corporators Wednesday told what he had been able to learn of the legacy left to the hospital by Irving Wood, of Boston. He said that the story published by a Boston newspaper was correct as far as the bequests of the will are concerned, that the local hospital, the Backus at Norwich, and the City Hospital of Worcester, are equal residuary legatees, but that the amount of his estate, as estimated by certain officials of the United States Trust Company, of Boston, which is the trustee of the will, is from $400,000 to $500,000. It was originally estimated at $1,000,000.

There is an outright gift to the Masonic lodge of Webster of $5,000 and there are other similar bequests which total a moderate amount. The annuities amount to about $10,000 a year, and it will require a capital of about $200,000 to provide this sum, if the annuitants are all living. As long as the persons who are given these annuities survive, the United States Trust Company will retain possession of the property of the decendent. At their death the entire estate will be turned over to the three hospitals.

Mr. Kimball assumed that if the estate reaches the figure estimated, and the will is not contested, the three hospitals would receive for the present about $10,000 a year, to be divided equally. This would mean that eventually each of the hospitals would receive approximately $167,000. It had previously been estimated that each hospital would receive about $250,000.

The hearing at which the will will be filed, for probate is set for July 16 at Boston. Attorney George Stobbs, of Worcester, who drew the instrument, has sent a formal notice to the trustees of the Day Kimball hospital to the effect that it was one of the beneficiaries. The secretary was directed to acknowledge this and to ask Mr. Stobbs to represent the hospital at the hearing.

LACQUER DEPARTMENT FIRE AT THERMOS FACTORY

The fire department was called out at 10:06, Wednesday morning, to the American Thermos Bottle Co. plant off Laurel Hill avenue. The fire was in a building formerly occupied by the McKay Process Co., and now used by the Thermos company as a lacquering department. The blaze caught the cornice of the building near the office but was put out soon after the firemen arrived. The damage was slight and the fire was believed to have been started from an explosion in the blower pipe which carries the lacquer into the open.

The call was for the chemical but Chief Stanton took no chances and sent Engine 1 and Squad A to the fire and both he and Deputy Chief Taft responded.

INEXPERT BICYCLE RIDER FATAL ACCIDENT CAUSE

The injuries which resulted in the death in a New London hospital of Ruth Lois Crandall, 14, of Stonington on June 10, were not sustained through the negligence of Abraham Zaslow, of New London, whose motorcycle hit the girl while she was riding a bicycle, Coroner J. J. Desmond finds upon the conclusion of his investigation. Her inexperience in riding the bicycle which she was learning to operate and her inability to control its course appear to be the direct cause of the fatality, the coroner finds.

SUMMER TIME PROTECTION AGAINST TYPHOID FEVER

That typhoid fever is most prevalent during the summer and early fall is shown conclusively by figures just given out from the office of the State department of health. During the last 10 years there have been reported in Connecticut 4,619 cases and 720 deaths from this disease. Of this number 535 cases and 135 deaths were reported for the 4 month period, January to April inclusive, and 2929 cases and 373 deaths for the 4 months period, July to October, inclusive. The prevalence of the disease has averaged highest during the month of September for which 941 cases with 126 deaths have been recorded during the past 10 years.

Since vacation time falls within the period of greatest prevalence of typhoid fever, it is important that vacationists should take measures to avoid the disease while in pursuit of recreation. As vacations are often taken in strange communities, the hazards of which are unknown the surest measure of prevention is to be immunized against typhoid. This can be done very readily and immunization should protect against paratyphoid A and paratyphoid B as well as typhoid fever. Most physicians can give the typhoid vaccine for immunizing persons before they take their vacations.

Other measures of prevention would include keeping away from persons who are ill, caution in regard to the source of drinking water, insisting on the milk used being pasteurized, and shunning places where sanitation is poor and flies prevalent.

In order to insure safe drinking water, automobile parties are advised to take water from a large city supply known to be safe, in thermos bottles so as to avoid the necessity of drinking along the road. If possible, before drinking strange water a careful inspection of the premises from which the water is secured should be made, to be sure there is no opportunity for the water to become contaminated by human discharges. Water from unpiptected running streams is not safe to drink without some form of purification.

An attack of typhoid fever comes on so insidiously that the patient is often ill several days before realizing what the trouble is. For this reason it is well for the vacationist to beware of the person who is feeling ill or indisposed, but at once it may be impossible to avoid all the hazards of typhoid during the vacation trip, the one good trick that is worth a hundred poor ones is to become immunized against typhoid before starting.

BIBLE CLASS STUDIES LIFE OF STEPHEN

The weekly Bible Study class of the Y. M. C. A. held its session Wednesday evening with a good number present. The topic of the study was, "The First Christian Martyr," the Scripture used being from the sixth and seventh chapters of the Acts. In the interesting discussion, the following points were brought out: No man really do his duty and avoid adverse criticism. Stephen was one of seven chosen by the early church to distribute funds to the poor; he was also a preacher of the word; and he, under God performed miracles. He was what might be termed a notable man, he had great faith and he was dominated by the spirit of God. A man is really notable in proportion to the service he rendered in his generation, that is lastingly notable. The kind of men who are greatly needed today are those who, "practice what they preach;" Stephen did this and Jesus was pre-eminently one of this kind, and that is why he wins our confidence.

Stephen's wonderful defense of his actions caused his hearers to hate him, because he told them of their sins, and no man, or very few men keep cool when told of their sins. Stephen turned light on their sins and they at once determined to get revenge; their hate knew no bounds and they bribed witnesses and backed them up in lies, and their false accusations brought Stephen to his death by stoning. If Christianity had prevailed the whole Jewish system at that time would have fallen; also when the spirit of Jesus Christ takes possession of a man many things in his life disappear; there is a complete change in one's ideals; his outlook on life is different. It is interesting to note the contrasts between Stephen and his enemies. His enemies were terribly angry while he was calm and cold a perfect poise; they were evidently under Satan's influence, while he was dominated by the Holy Ghost. Near to death Stephen while bleeding from the stones that killed him, prayed for them, while they continued to stone him until the end. Stephen's attitude and actions were the marks of a really big man. The hate that a man allows to remain in his own life is far more dangerous than all the hatred others have for him. Hatred is manifested in various ways, and one can overcome it only by the power of God in his life.

WOODIN RESIGNS FROM RELIGIOUS EDUCATION POST

Wallace I. Woodin, general secretary of the Connecticut Council of Religious Education, has resigned after serving in that capacity 14 years. The resignation is effective Jan. 1. The appointment of his successor will not be acted upon until the October meeting and probably not until the annual meeting Nov. 18, 19 and 20. The resignation was handed to the board in May and was accepted at the June meeting. Mr. Woodin tendered his resignation last year but at that time it was declined by the board.

Mr. Woodin said that he is leaving the organization merely because he feels the length of time he has put into this line of work, 17 years, is enough. Before assuming the post of general secretary of the organization he was assistant general secretary of the Ohio Sunday School association for two years and did similar work for one year in Columbus, Ohio. He has not yet decided what he will do after leaving his present position but plans in any event to remain in Hartford. Mr. Woodin says that he has two or three propositions in mind which may be acted upon within the next few months.

Mr. Woodin announced that the federation of the Connecticut Council of Religious Education and the Connecticut Federation of Churches is being planned by a joint committee from each of the organizations, each committee comprising three members. The purpose of the proposed federation is to effect economy and a higher efficiency through the co-ordination of the forces of both organizations. The committees will report to the two organizations at their respective annual meetings, to be held near the close of the year.

Kills Catarrh Germ In Three Minutes

Chronic catarrh, no matter how bad, and cases of bronchial asthma now yield instantly to the amazing discovery of a French scientist. This drugless method called Lavex kills the germ in three minutes, yet it is positively harmless to the most delicate tissues. Your head and lungs are cleared like magic. Sufferers are relieved in a single night.

To prove it and to introduce Lavex to a million sufferers in one month, I offer to send a treatment free and postpaid, to any one who will write for it. No obligation. No cost. If it cures you, you can repay the favor by telling your friends—if not, the loss is mine. No matter what you have tried, just send me your name and address for this generous free treatment and prove that you can be rid of catarrh.

HARTFORD CASE ARGUMENTS BEFORE JUDGE BROWN

Arguments were presented in the hearing before Judge Allyn Brown of the superior court in this city Tuesday relative to a demurrer to the complaint in an action instituted by the city of Hartford and others, for an injunction restraining the owners of property at the corner of Evergreen street and Farmington avenue, that city, from conducting a gasoline station at this site or otherwise using this property for commercial uses. Corporation Counsel Countryman and Assistant Corporation Counsel Rosenfeld were in the city to represent the city of Hartford. This matter has been pending for some time and property owners in that vicinity strenuously objected to the proposal of the owners of the premises. Pumps were installed, but it developed that they were over the line and as a result action by the city prevented their use. The injunction is sought against A. A. Katz and former Corporation Counsel Robert P. Butler, owners.

VERDICT FOR PLAINTIFFS IN GRISWOLD SUIT

A jury verdict for $264 in favor of Omni M. and Fanny M. Petroman, plaintiffs against Otto Anderson, Sr., of Griswold, was given in the common pleas court here, Wednesday afternoon. The suit was for damages for cutting 100 chestnut poles in December, 1922, on land of the plaintiff.

As all jury business had been concluded, Judge C. B. Waller discharged them for the term, commending them for their work and telling them that he had agreed with all the verdicts they had given.

Court adjourned to come in Saturday at New London.

Visitors from New Jersey

Mrs. Elmer Grodotzke and daughter Myra and Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Hogfield and children of New Brunswick, N. J., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Miner of 57 Eleventh street. Tuesday they motored to Lord's Point and called on Frank E. Miner and family of 480 Main street, who have taken a cottage there for two weeks.

TAFTVILLE

Twenty-eight representatives of the village societies and organizations attended the meeting in Ponemah hall Monday evening to discuss plans for making Pioneers' day a regular old fashioned Old Home Week, and to give the visiting pioneers a welcome that will be one of the biggest celebrations the village has ever seen.

The Pioneers are a society of old residents of Taftville. Each year they hold a reunion, sometimes at different shore places or other cities, for many of them now reside elsewhere. A few years ago a reunion was held in Taftville, and this year the plans call for an elaborate celebration in which the whole town will join. There will be bands and feasts, fireworks and dances, sports and decorations, and every Pioneer will get a royal welcome from the committee which has the matter in hand.

John B. Benoit presided at the meeting, and was elected general chairman of the celebration. Armand Fontaine is the secretary. It has been announced that the Taftville Field Day association has turned over to the committee in charge of the celebration $177. However a campaign for funds will be conducted in the village. Circulars are to be distributed giving the plans and objects of the drive and the village is to be canvassed systematically.

The team captains, each of whom will choose four helpers, are Archie Molleur, Arthur J. Roy, Joseph Waldron, Andrew Frohmander, Allan Bogle, Peter Lafleur, Napoleon Pepin, Louis Marien, Arthur Allard, Henry Phaneuf, Eugene Lavalle, Armand Fontaine, Albert Benoit, Alphonse Marion and Raoul Blanchette.

The entertainment committee is John D. Sharples, chairman; William C. Kendall, Joseph C. Marsan, Allan Bogle and Armand Fontaine, William C. Chamberlain is chairman of the decorating committee, and he will choose his own assistants. The committee in charge of the dance is Archie Molleur, chairman; R. Benoit, Andrew Frohmander and Armand Fontaine.

The programme calls for a three day affair, beginning September 5th and finishing September 7th, at noon. On Saturday there will be a gathering of the Pioneers, their friends and the villagers for a field day. There are to be sports galore, races and refreshments. Following this there will be an old fashioned dance. Sunday will be a big day. An appetizing clam bake will be served on the grounds of the Taftville Maennerchor club, there will be an entertainment and the Old Pioneers' band is to play. Monday's events have not yet been planned but will be taken up at the meeting which is to be held next Monday at Ponemah hall.

The territory assigned to those who are to canvass the town is as follows: Hunters avenue, Allan Bogle; Providence street, Armand Fontaine; South C street, North Second avenue, South Second avenue, Eugene Lavalle; North B street, North Third avenue, South Third avenue, Raoul Blanchette; Terrace avenue, Alphonse Marion; Norwich avenue south of the Ponemah Wheel club, Peter Lafleur; Norwich avenue, Arthur Allard; South B street, Arthur J. Roy; Merchants avenue, Napoleon Pepin; Maennerchor avenue and adjoining streets, H. Benoit; North A street, Joseph Waldron; South A street, Archie Molleur.

The hay scales on North Second avenue which were recently damaged by a heavy ice truck are being repaired.

Miss Theresa Benoit has been a recent visitor in New York.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Helm of Lisbon has been repaired and shingled.

Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Varrieur and family have taken a house on Norwich avenue.

Dennis Moriarty has ——— his position with the Ponemah company.

John K. Riley of Providence, R. I., has been the guest of friends in town for the past few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Troeger and family of Deep River, motored to the village Sunday to call on relatives. Mr. Troeger is a former Taftville resident.

The picket fences on North B street are being painted.

Mr. and Mrs. Axel L. Aberg and Miss Helen C. Aberg of North Third avenue spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Kellner of Preston.

E. Tracy Clark of North Third avenue has returned from New Bedford, Mass., where he has been the guest over the holidays of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Fallow.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rivers and Mr. and Mrs. Eli Moss of Fitchburg, Mass., have been spending a few days with Joseph Elliott of South B street.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil Horosco and family of South B street entertained a number of New York friends over the holidays.

Those who frequent the woods which surround the village notice the unusually large number of young crows that are learning to fly at this time of the year.

Miss Bertha Monty was the leader of the meeting of the Young People's society of Christian Endeavor held on Sunday evening in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church.

William Mish of Lisbon has resigned his position with the No. 4 weaving department of the Ponemah company.

The regular monthly meeting of the Taftville Social and Football club was held Monday evening in the clubrooms at the Ponemah house, with President Allan Bogle presiding.

Leonard Pingree of North Third avenue has been a recent guest of Wilfred Linderson at North Stonington.

With the rambler roses of different colors in full bloom, the park at the plant of the J. B. Martin Co., Ltd., is one of the beauty spots of the village. The rustic fence which surrounds the pavilion is entirely covered with blooms.

Work has begun on a new building for James Graham on the site of the Taftville Public garage on Norwich avenue. The garage was destroyed by fire several months ago.

The committee in charge of the annual picnic of the Taftville Congregational church school are to be at the vestry of the church Thursday evening to distribute the tickets to the scholars of the school at 7.30. The adult tickets are in charge of George W. Weller, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Frohmander of Dion street have returned from a motor trip to Plymouth, Mass.

W. T. Medlip and Aloysius Monk of Worcester, Mass., are spending several weeks in town.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bauer, former Taftville residents, now of New Bedford, Mass., have been visiting friends in town this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tarbuck and son, Wallace, have moved to the home on Norwich avenue recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. James McNeeley.

Many of the local members of I. O. O. F., M. U., are planning to attend the outing at Crescent Park, L. I., over next Saturday and Sunday.

NORWICH TOWN

Mrs. Mary D. Boyan, Mrs. Emma Welte, Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Welte, sailed on the steamship Columbus from New York July 7 for Bremen, planning to go thence by rail to Berlin, for a week's stay. They will go then to Leipzig, to visit the largest dog kennels in Europe, Bautzner German Dog Park. Mr. Welte is to look over a special kind of dog "Sennanzer" better known in this country as long-haired hair Pinscher for John Sweeney of Fitchville, Conn., the dog famer.

He also will inspect some German police dogs for Walter Mosan, of Norwich Town, who possesses a number of fine trained specimens of Deutsche-Schaferhunde.

The party will proceed then to Heidelberg, to visit the famous castle Rheims, then to Baden-Baden to sample the minera, springs, the waters famous for its curative qualities.

Next they will go to Freiburg-Baden, a city of some 85,000 population located in the southern part of Germany, where the Welte organ and piano factory is located. They will stay there about a month, spending the time with relatives, etc.

They will then devote their time to general sight-seeing in Switzerland, stopping off at Geneva to view the League of Nations palace. From Geneva they go to Paris for a weeks stay and from there travel through the battle fields, until they reach Calais; cross the English channel to Dover, direct to London for a week's sight-seeing, then return to Southampton and will take ship there, September 23rd, on the White Star Liner, Majestic, for New York.

While in Freiburg the tourists will take a trip north to Strassburg, to view the famous cathedral, thence to city of Mayence, on the Rhine, take an excursion boat down the river to Cologne viewing all the famous old Rhinned castles, and while returning to Freiburg will view Frankfort.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb, of Town street, had as callers Sunday evening, Dr. Lamb's relatives, Mrs. Harriet E. Brainerd and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Greenley, also Mr. Greenley's mother, Mrs. Charles Greenley, all of Mystic. They were en route to their homes, following a delightful trip over the Mohawk Trail. Leaving Mystic Saturday morning (Fourth of July), at 7 o'clock, the party traveled by way of New London, Hartford and Springfield and Greenfield, Mass., over the Mohawk Trail to North Adams, thence on to Pittsfield, where they remained over Saturday night. The return trip on Sunday, was from Pittsfield through Westfield and Springfield, coming into Connecticut by way of Stafford Springs, then to Willimantic, Norwich Town and from the last mentioned place over the Military Highway to Center Groton, reaching their home in Mystic about 9 o'clock in the evening. When in the vicinity of Willimantic, the party was delayed about three hours due to tire trouble. Mr. Greenley having had to stop to change tires twice and on one occasion go to a location three miles distant to purchase a new tire. This, however, was his first experience of this kind in over two years, the same company having taken a trip to Montreal last summer, besides numberless other lengthy trips, through the New England states since then, with the same car.

STANKIEWICZ IS BOUND OVER TO CRIMINAL COURT IN SEPTEMBER

Paul Stankiewicz, 30, of 568 North Main street, who is accused of shooting and dangerously wounding John Bosko, also of 568 North Main street, on the night of June 26, was bound over to the September term of the criminal superior court when he was presented Wednesday afternoon before Justice of the Peace William Mitchell at the justice's home at Poquetanuck.

Stankiewicz, who has been held in jail without bonds since his arrest the day after the shooting, was brought from jail to the justice's court by State Policeman Henry J. Albright and was presented on the charge of assault with intent to kill. He had no lawyer, but he admitted the shooting and he was bound over to the higher court. Bonds were placed at $5,000, in default of which he was taken back to jail by the state policeman. Grand Juror Appleton Main prosecuted the case.

Bosko was able to leave the Backus hospital, Wednesday afternoon. He is still carrying the two bullets from the revolver Stankiewicz used, one of them entering his face under the jaw and the other under the right eye, where powder burns on the skin of his cheek indicated the close range at which this shot was fired.

The shooting took place near the McClimon farm on the Preston City road and is reported to have occurred during a fight between the two men that followed an argument and disagreement, when they drove out to get a supply of liquor that was to have been left for them at a certain place. They used Bosko's automobile to go after the liquor and the empty machine was noticed by the side of the road with bloodspots on it and the signs of a fight around it. A search discovered Bosko in a lot nearby, wounded and weak from loss of blood. The three men, Fred and Eddie Gudcahn and Bernard Sebastian, brought Bosko to police headquarters, whence he was sent to the Backus hospital after he had been attended by Dr. W. T. Driscoll, who discovered that the man had been shot.

Stankiewicz was arrested about noon the next day, near the railroad track back of the Norwich Belt Mfg. Co., in Greeneville, by Officers Michael Carroll and Charles Smith. One of his hands was badly battered in the encounter with Bosko, and his clothing, as well as that of Bosko, was ripped and torn by a barbed wire fence around which their fight was staged.

CONNECTICUT LEADS WORLD IN INVENTIVE GENIUS

The Connecticut Yankee still leads the world in inventive genius, according to a survey just completed by Munn & Co., of New York City and Washington, the oldest and largest firm of patent attorneys in the United States. Incidentally, Connecticut leads every other state and territory in the union in its ratio of inventors to population.

"The inventive ability of the Connecticut Yankee has long been a tradition," Munn & Co. state, "but here and there has grown up a feeling that this might be nothing more than a tradition—that while it may have been true at one time that the sons of Connecticut were America's most prolific inventors, that such is the fact no longer. In order to find out just what the facts are Munn & Co. have made a survey. Here is what we have found.

"While only one person out of every 100 lives in Connecticut, one patent out of every thirty-two is issued to a person who lives there.

"For the whole of the United States there was issued last year one patent for every 2,646 persons. For Connecticut one patent was issued for every 1,042 persons. Connecticut is thus more than twice as prolific in inventions as the country in general.

"The entire number of patents issued to residents of the United States last year was 40,520. Patents issued to residents of Connecticut numbered 1,276. Assuming the population of the United States to be 107,000,000 and the population of Connecticut to be 1,354,341 Connecticut residents lead in the field of invention on the basis of population as readily seen.

"Connecticut is followed in density of inventions by the District of Columbia with one patent issued to every 1,229 residents, California with one patent to every 1,302 residents, New Jersey with one patent to every 1,356 residents and New York with one patent to every 1,504 residents.

"It has generally been assumed that the number of inventions in any particular state would depends upon the number of manufactures. At first sight this would seem to lend cause for the great manufacturing state of Connecticut. A more careful study of the complete data, however, would tend to throw doubt upon this theory. While it is true that Connecticut leads in the ratio of patents to population and is a state of diversified manufactures, it also will be seen that the second on the list, the District of Columbia, is not predominantly a manufacturing community, nor is California, the third on the list.

"While the fact that Connecticut is a manufacturing state is one of the main causes of the ingenuity of its residents, it is not the entire explanation. The cause for the inventive genius of the sons of Connecticut seems to lie in Connecticut's history. The state was built up by sturdy pioneers who found it necessary to couple brain with brawn in order to wrest a living from the stubborn soil. Ingenuity became a deeply ingrained characteristic of the people—a characteristic which has been handed down to father and son to this day and has even been passed on to the natives of foreign countries who go to Connecticut to make a living.

"Strange as it may seem, it is nevertheless a fact that a foreigner, who, in his home country, ever invented anything, but was content to keep on doing things the way his family has been doing them for generations, often is found applying for a patent within six months after he has taken up his residence in Connecticut."

FAILED TO LOOK BEFORE CROSSING ROAD

In a finding by Coroner J. J. Desmond upon the death of Dionisio Carocari, 52, of Stonington, who was struck and killed on May 2, in Stonington, by a car operated by Fred Gerlach, of Old Mystic, the coroner finds that Carocari, when he got out of his car, failed to glance to the right as he ran across the road in front of Gerlach's car.

Andrew Warner Recovers.

Andrew Warner, who was severely injured with concussion of the brain and other injuries in an automobile accident on the Gardner Lake road recently, has recovered enough to be able to leave the Backus hospital, last Monday. He is now at the home of his brother, Thomas Warner, in New London.

Communicable Diseases Reported.

Communicable diseases for the last week are reported in Eastern Connecticut by the state department of health as follows:

Whooping cough—Jewett City, 3; Old Lyme, 3; Hampton, 2.

Scarlet fever—Mansfield, 1; Tolland, 1; Brooklyn, 1.

Measles — Mansfield, 1; Stafford Springs, 1; Brooklyn, 1; Danielson, 21; Killingly, 8.

One diphtheria bacilli carrier was reported in New London.

NEW ESTIMATE CUTS LEGACIES TO HOSPITALS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, July 9—Marcus Kimball, president of the Day-Kimball Hospital Corporation, at the annual meeting of the corporations Wednesday told what he had been able to learn of the legacy left to the hospital by Irving Wood, of Boston. He said that the story published in a Boston newspaper was correct as far as the bequests of the will are concerned, that the local hospital, the Backus at Norwich, and the City Hospital of Worcester, are equal residuary legatees but that the amount of his estate was estimated by certain officials of the United States Trust Company, of Boston, which is the trustee of the will, is from $400,000 to $500,000. It was originally estimated at $1,000,000.

There is an outright gift to the Masonic lodge of Webster of $5,000 and there are other similar bequests which total a moderate amount. The annuities amount to about $10,000 a year, and it will require a capital of about $200,000 to provide this sum, if the annuitants are all living. As long as the persons who are given these annuities survive, the United States Trust Company will retain possession of the property of the decendent. At their death the entire estate will be turned over to the three hospitals.

Mr. Kimball assumed that if the estate reaches the figure estimated, and the will is not contested, the three hospitals would receive for the present about $10,000 a year, to be divided equally. This would mean that eventually each of the hospitals would receive approximately $167,000. It has previously been estimated that each hospital would receive about $250,000.

The hearing at which the will will be filed for probate is set for July 16 at Boston. Attorney George Stobbs, of Worcester, who drew the instrument, has sent a formal notice to the trustees of the Day Kimball hospital to the effect that it was one of the beneficiaries. The secretary was directed to acknowledge this and to ask Mr. Stobbs to represent the hospital at the hearing.

LACQUER DEPARTMENT FIRE AT THERMOS FACTORY

The fire department was called out at 10:06, Wednesday morning, to the American Thermos Bottle Co. plant off Laurel Hill avenue. The fire was in a building formerly occupied by the McKay Process Co., and now used by the Thermos company as a lacquering department. The blaze caught the cornice of the building near the office but was put out soon after the firemen arrived. The damage was slight and the fire was believed to have been started from an explosion in the blower pipe which carries the lacquer into the open.

The call was for the chemical but Chief Stanton took no chances and sent Engine 1 and Squad A to the fire and both he and Deputy Chief Taft responded.

INEXPERT BICYCLE RIDER FATAL ACCIDENT CAUSE

The injuries which resulted in the death in a New London hospital of Ruth Lois Crandall, 14, of Stonington, on June 10, were not sustained through the negligence of Abraham Zaslow, of New London, whose motorcycle hit the girl while she was riding a bicycle, Coroner J. J. Desmond finds upon the conclusion of his investigation. Her inexperience in riding the bicycle which she was learning to operate and her inability to control its course appear to be the direct cause of the fatality, the coroner finds.

37,000 TELEPHONE DIRECTORIES ISSUED IN THIS DISTRICT

The summer issue of the telephone directory, delivery of which began Wednesday and which is effective upon receipt by subscribers, is bound in a more substantial cover stock of dark brown, a color not hitherto used on the telephone directory. With this heavier cover stock, the directory will stand up better under constant usage given this book. The design on the cover also is new. At the top of the page in large black letters is the name of the district in other years the words "telephone directory" were given the most prominence on the cover and the name of the district was subordinated in the choice of type.

Black ink on the brown cover makes it more attractive than the "telephone blue" ink on the light blue or light tan covers used in the past.

With deliveries beginning Wednesday throughout the state, it will require three or four days to complete the distribution in the larger cities. Anyone not having received a new directory by Saturday night should notify the business office of the company. Hundreds of telephone number changes appear in the new directory and subscribers are asked by the company to throw away their old directories and use the new one upon receipt.

More than 300,000 directories of this issue were printed. The exact count is 306,500 divided among the five districts as follows: Hartford 88,600, New Haven 77,000, Bridgeport 65,500, New London 37,000 and Waterbury 25,150. In printing this issue 127 tons of white paper were used for the inside pages of the directory and 13 tons of cover stock were used, with a little more than one ton of printers' ink.

SUMMER TIME PROTECTION AGAINST TYPHOID FEVER

That typhoid fever is most prevalent during the summer and early fall is shown conclusively by figures just given out from the office of the State department of health. During the last 10 years there have been reported in Connecticut 4,619 cases and 720 deaths from this disease. Of this number 536 cases and 135 deaths were reported for the 4 month period, January to April inclusive, and 2929 cases and 373 deaths for the 4 months period, July to October, inclusive. The prevalence of the disease has averaged highest during the month of September for which 941 cases with 126 deaths have been recorded during the past 10 years.

Since vacation time falls within the period of greatest prevalence of typhoid fever, it is important that vacationists should take measures to avoid the disease while in pursuit of recreation. As vacations are often taken in strange communities, the hazards of which are unknown the surest measure of prevention is to be immunized against typhoid. This can be done very readily and immunization should protect against paratyphoid A and paratyphoid B as well as typhoid fever. Most physicians can give the typhoid vaccine for immunizing persons before they take their vacations.

Other measures of prevention would include keeping away from persons who are ill, caution in regard to the source of drinking water, insisting on the milk used being pasteurized, and shunning places where sanitation is poor and flies prevalent.

In order to insure safe drinking water, automobile parties are advised to take water from a large city supply known to be safe, in thermos bottles so as to avoid the necessity of drinking along the road. If possible, before drinking strange water a careful inspection of the premises from which the water is secured should be made, to be sure there is no opportunity for the water to become contaminated by human discharges. Water from unprotected running streams is not safe to drink without some form of purification.

An attack of typhoid fever comes on so insidiously that the patient is often ill several days before realizing what the trouble is. For this reason it is well for the vacationist to beware of the person who is feeling ill or indisposed, but since it may be impossible to avoid all the hazards of typhoid during the vacation trip, the one good trick that is worth a hundred poor ones is to become immunized against typhoid before starting.

BIBLE CLASS STUDIES LIFE OF STEPHEN

The weekly Bible Study Class of the Y. M. C. A. held its session Wednesday evening with a good number present. The topic of the study was, "The First Christian Martyr," the Scripture used being from the sixth and seventh chapters of the Acts. In the interesting discussion, the following points were brought out: No man can really do his duty and avoid adverse criticism. Stephen was one of seven chosen by the early church to distribute funds to the poor; he was also a preacher of the word and he, under God performed miracles. He was what might be termed a notable man, he had great faith and he was dominated by the spirit of God. A man is really notable in proportion to the service he rendered in his generation, that is lastingly notable. The kind of men who are great is needed today are those who, "practice what they preach;" Stephen did this and Jesus was pre-eminently one of this kind, and that is why he wins our confidence.

Stephen's wonderful defense of his actions caused his hearers to hate him, because he told them of their sins, and no man, or very few men keep cool when told of their sins. Stephen turned light on their sins and they at once determined to get revenge; their hate knew no bounds and they bribed witnesses and backed them up in lies, and their false accusations brought Stephen to his death by stoning. If Christianity had prevailed the whole Jewish system at that time would have fallen; so when the spirit of Jesus Christ takes possession of a man many things in his life disappear; there is a complete change in one's ideas; his outlook on life is different. It is interesting to note the contrasts between Stephen and his enemies. His enemies were terribly angry while he was calm and held a perfect poise; they were evidently under Satan's influence, while he was dominated by the Holy Ghost. Near to death Stephen while bleeding from the stones that killed him, prayed for them, while they continued to stone him until the end. Stephen's attitude and actions were the marks of a really big man. The hate that a man allows to remain in his own life is far more dangerous than all the hatred others have for him. Hatred is manifested in various ways, and one can overcome it only by the power of God in his life.

WOODIN RESIGNS FROM RELIGIOUS EDUCATION POST

Wallace I. Woodin, general secretary of the Connecticut Council of Religious Education, has resigned after serving in that capacity 14 years. The resignation is effective Jan. 1. The appointment of his successor will not be acted upon until the October meeting and probably not until the annual meeting Nov. 18, 19 and 20. The resignation was handed to the board in May and was accepted at the June meeting. Mr. Woodin tendered his resignation last year but at that time it was declined by the board.

Mr. Woodin said that he is leaving the organization merely because he feels the length of time he has put into this line of work, 17 years is enough. Before assuming the post of general secretary of the organization he was assistant general secretary of the Ohio Sunday School association for two years and did similar work for one year in Columbus, Ohio. He has not yet decided what he will do after leaving his present position but plans in any event to remain in Hartford. Mr. Woodin says that he has two or three propositions in mind which may be acted upon within the next few months.

Mr. Woodin announced that the federation of the Connecticut Council of Religious Education and the Connecticut Federation of Churches is being planned by a joint committee from each of the organizations, each committee comprising three members. The purpose of the proposed federation is to effect economy and a higher efficiency through the co-ordination of the forces of both organizations. The committees will report to the two organizations at their respective annual meetings, to be held near the close of the year.

Kills Catarrh Germ In Three Minutes

Chronic catarrh, no matter how bad, and cases of bronchial asthma now yield instantly to the amazing discovery of a French scientist. This drugless method called Lavex kills the germ in three minutes, yet it is positively harmless to the most delicate tissues. Your head and lungs are cleared like magic. Sufferers are relieved in a single night.

To prove it and to introduce Lavex to a million sufferers in one month, I offer to send a treatment free and postpaid, to any one who will write for it. No obligation. No cost. If it cures you, you may repay the favor by telling your friends—if not, the loss is mine. No matter what you have tried, just send me your name and address for this generous free treatment and prove that you can be rid of catarrh.

HARTFORD CASE ARGUMENTS BEFORE JUDGE BROWN

Arguments were presented in the hearing before Judge Allyn Brown of the superior court in this city Tuesday relative to a demurrer in the complaint in an action instituted by the city of Hartford and others, for an injunction restraining the owners of property at the corner of Evergreen street and Farmington avenue, that city, from conducting a gasoline station at this site or otherwise using this property for commercial uses. Corporation Counsel Countryman and Assistant Corporation Counsel Rosenfeld were in the city to represent the city of Hartford.

This matter has been pending for some time and property owners in that vicinity strenuously objected to the proposal of the owners of the premises. Pumps were installed, but it developed that they were over the line and as a result action by the city prevented their use. The injunction is sought against A. A. Katz and former Corporation Counsel Robert J. Butler, owners.

VERDICT FOR PLAINTIFFS IN GRISWOLD SUIT

A jury verdict for $264 in favor of Omni M. and Fanny M. Petroman, plaintiffs, against Otto Anderson, Sr., of Griswold, was given in the common pleas court here, Wednesday afternoon. The suit was for damages for cutting 100 chestnut poles in December, 1922, on land of the plaintiff.

As all jury business had been concluded, Judge C. B. Waller discharged them for the term, commending them for their work and telling them that he had agreed with all the verdicts they had given.

Court adjourned to come in Saturday at New London.

Visitors from New Jersey

Mrs. Elmer Grodotzke and daughter Myra and Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Hogfield and children of New Brunswick, N. J., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Miner of 57 Eleventh street. Tuesday they motored to Lord's Point and called on Frank E. Miner and family of 480 Main street, who have taken a cottage there for two weeks.

TAFTVILLE

Twenty-eight representatives of the village societies and organizations attended the meeting in Ponemah hall Monday evening to discuss plans for making Pioneers' day a regular old fashioned Old Home Week, and to give the visiting pioneers a welcome that will be one of the biggest celebrations the village has ever seen.

The Pioneers are a society of old residents of Taftville. Each year they hold a reunion, sometimes at different shore places or other cities, for many of them now reside elsewhere. A few years ago a reunion was held in Taftville, and this year the plans call for an elaborate celebration in which the whole town will join. There will be bands and feasts, fireworks and dances, sports and decorations, and every Pioneer will get a royal welcome from the committee which has the matter in hand.

John B. Benoit presided at the meeting, and was elected general chairman of the celebration. Armand Fontaine is the secretary. It has been announced that the Taftville Field Day association has turned over to the committee in charge of the celebration $177. However a campaign for funds will be conducted in the village. Circulars are to be distributed giving the plans and objects of the drive and the village is to be canvassed systematically.

The team captains, each of whom will choose four helpers, are Archie Molleur, Arthur J. Roy, Joseph Waldron, Andrew Frohmander, Allan Bogle, Peter Lafleur, Napoleon Pepin, Louis Marien, Arthur Allard, Henry Phaneuf, Eugene Lavalle, Armand Fontaine, Albert Benoit, Alphonse Marion and Raoul Blanchette.

The entertainment committee is John D. Sharples, chairman; William C. Kendall, Joseph C. Marsan, Allan Bogle and Armand Fontaine. William C. Chamberlain is chairman of the decorating committee, and he will choose his own assistants. The committee in charge of the dance is Archie Molleur, chairman; R. Benoit, Andrew Frohmander and Armand Fontaine.

The programme calls for a three day affair, beginning September 5th and finishing September 7th, at noon. On Saturday there will be a gathering of the Pioneers, their friends and the villagers for a field day. There are to be sports galore, races and refreshments. Following this there will be an old fashioned dance. Sunday will be a big day. An appetizing clam bake will be served on the grounds of the Taftville Maennerchor club, there will be an entertainment and the Old Pioneers' band is to play. Monday's events have not yet been planned but will be taken up at the meeting which is to be held next Monday at Ponemah hall.

The territory assigned to those who are to canvass the town is as follows: Hunters avenue, Allan Bogle; Providence street, Armand Fontaine; South C street, North Second avenue, South Second avenue, Eugene Lavalle; North B street, North Third avenue, South Third avenue, Raoul Blanchette; Terrace avenue, Alphonse Marion; Norwich avenue south of the Ponemah Wheel club, Peter Lafleur; Norwich avenue, Arthur Allard; South B street, Arthur J. Roy; Merchants avenue, Napoleon Pepin; Maennerchor avenue and adjoining streets, H. Benoit; North A street, Joseph Waldron; South A street, Archie Molleur.

The hay scales on North Second avenue which were recently damaged by a heavy ice truck are being repaired.

Miss Theresa Benoit has been a recent visitor in New York.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Heim of Lisbon has been repaired and shingled.

Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Varrieur and family have taken a house on Norwich avenue.

Dennis Moriarty has sold his position with the Ponemah company.

John K. Riley of Providence, R. I., has been the guest of friends in town for the past few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Troeger and family of Deep River, motored to the village Sunday to call on relatives. Mr. Troeger is a former Taftville resident.

The picket fences on North B street are being painted.

Mr. and Mrs. Axel L. Aberg and Miss Helen C. Aberg of North Third avenue spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Kellner of Preston.

E. Tracy Clark of North Third avenue has returned from New Bedford, Mass., where he has been the guest over the holidays of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Fallow.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rivers and Mr. and Mrs. Eli Moss of Fitchburg, Mass., have been spending a few days with Joseph Elliott of South B street.

Mr. and Mrs. Bazil Horosco and family of South B street entertained a number of New York friends over the holidays.

Those who frequent the woods which surround the village notice the unusually large number of young crows that are learning to fly at this time of the year.

Miss Bertha Monty was the leader of the meeting of the Young People's society of Christian Endeavor held on Sunday evening in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church.

William Mish of Lisbon has resigned his position with the No. 4 weaving department of the Ponemah company.

The regular monthly meeting of the Taftville Social and Football club was held Monday evening in the clubrooms at the Ponemah house, with President Allan Bogle presiding.

Leonard Pingree of North Third avenue has been a recent guest of Wilfred Linderson at North Stonington.

With the rambler roses of different colors in full bloom, the park at the plant of the J. B. Martin Co., Ltd., is one of the beauty spots of the village. The rustic fence which surrounds the pavillion is entirely covered with blooms.

Work has begun on a new building for James Graham on the site of the Taftville Public garage on Norwich avenue. The garage was destroyed by fire several months ago.

The committee in charge of the annual picnic of the Taftville Congregational church school are to be at the vestry of the church Thursday evening to distribute the tickets to the scholars of the school at 7.30. The adult tickets are in charge of George W. Weller, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Frohmander of Dion street have returned from a motor trip to Plymouth, Mass.

W. T. Medlin and Aloysius Monk of Worcester, Mass., are spending several weeks in town.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bauer, former Taftville residents, now of New Bedford, Mass., have been visiting friends in town this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tarbuck and son, Wallace, have moved to the house on Norwich avenue recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. James McNeeley.

Many of the local members of the I. O. O. F., M. U., are planning to attend the outing at Crescent Park, R. I., over next Saturday and Sunday.

COAL MINERS PRESENT WAGE DEMANDS TO OPERATORS

Chairman of Operators' Conference Says Market Conditions Call For A Decrease In Wages Rather Than An Increase —Urges Arbitration In Event of Deadlock As A Means of Settling Dispute—Joint Conference Adjourns After Referring Actual Negotiations To Joint Subcommittee From Each Side.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 9.—(AP)—John L. Lewis, International Miners' president, today presented to anthracite mine owners in joint conference demands of 158,000 miners for a ten per cent. wage increase, the check-off, a two-year contract and various improvements in working conditions upon expiration of the present contract August 31.

Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the Anthracite Operators' conference, in reply confessed to "wonder and amazement" at the terms. He said market conditions dictated a wage decrease rather than increase, pronounced the operators' historic hostility to the check-off as "unabated," but closed by urging arbitration in event of deadlock.

If arbitration had not effected some renewal of the contract by September 1st, Mr. Warriner said, the employers were willing to continue under the present scale until an award had been made. The miners' attitude was not disclosed.

The joint conference adjourned on a motion to leave actual negotiations to a joint sub-committee comprising six members from each side. This body will hold its first session tomorrow afternoon.

The miners' representatives are: John L. Lewis, president, United Mine Workers of America; Philip Murray, vice-president; Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer; Rinaldo Capellini, president, District 1; Andrew Mattey, president, District 7, and Christ J. Golden, president, District 9.

Alvin Markle, an official of the Juddo Highland Coal company of Gazelton, was named chairman of the sub-committee, and James A. Gorman, who is secretary of the anthracite board of conciliation, was named secretary.

Frank W. Wheaton, of Wilkesbarre, chairman of the directorate of the Lehigh Valley Coal company, and formerly judge of the court of common pleas, was chosen to preside at the joint meeting at the Hotel Traymore which got under way today about 3 o'clock.

"Since I last met you in conference o." Mr. Lewis addressed the operators seated en bloc on their own side of the domed library, "one thousand of my people have been killed in your collieries, and more than 40,000 have been maimed and injured."

"If that was the price of supplying hard coal to the American public," he said, "by every moral law it should be figured into the cost."

Mr. Lewis said the opposition of the miners to the operators' proffer of arbitration was unchanged over what it was in 1923. They opposed an arbitration commission because, based upon the principle that the worker surrendered virtually every right of self-determination in personal and family life, such an agency even determined "what price a miner may live for," he said.

Arbitration was demanded only of the man "who works with his hands," according to Mr. Lewis. Neither the professions nor capital itself surrendered to others the right, he said, to fix what fees or profits should be. The mine workers, he said, stood upon their assent to the form of arbitration expressed in the present board of conciliation which dealt with the interpretation of contracts agreed upon already. Farther than that, he indicated, the miners could not be asked to go.

Mr. Lewis dwelt at length upon the question of the check-off, by which mine auditors would be asked to "check-off" union dues from pay envelopes and hold them to the international union. The check-off, Mr. Lewis said, was already in effect in the industry on the various monthly items of expense which the operators charged to their employees' accounts.

Mr. Warriner alluded to the operators' antipathy to the check-off with as much emphasis as Mr. Lewis had used. The attention both spokesmen gave to the one subject was seen noted by official observers present from the department of labor at Washington and from the state labor department of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Warriner said at the outset:

"I assume that for the purpose of this conference and the negotiations which will succeed this conference that Mr. Lewis and his associates, whatever may be the major policies they may pursue in their treatment of the many and difficult bituminous problems, will act solely in the interests of the anthracite industry and the workers therein."

Facts, according to Mr. Warriner, showed that the operators could not finance as much as the miners were demanding. The present wages paid for mining of hard coal were $300,000,000, he said, and the demands as a whole would increase this fully $100,000,000.

"Where would the money come from?" he asked.

Anthracite, he said, had reached a price where, but for some radical change, its trend could not be downward. The 1923 agreement had provided for compensation of the operators in lieu of a wage increase they had granted them. The compensation had fizzled, he said, and operators had borne practically the full extent of the pay rise.

Facts, he repeated, pointed to reduction in labor cost as the only salvation ahead.

Mr. Warriner said hard coal diggers were better off in point of living conditions, earnings and savings than any other industry in the country. He said the operators in all good faith were disposed to stuuy how those conditions could be maintained and he suggested that if the miners increased productivity it might effect the imperative lowering in labor cost without direct action on the miners' pay envelope.

Mr. Warriner said anthracite was losing its market little by little to fuel oil, gas, soft coal and electricity This had cut into operators' income so heavily that in seeking "where the money was to come from" for a wage boost there was little good to look into operators' pockets.

ENORMOUS CORN CROP IS LOOKED FOR

WASHINGTON, July 9.—(AP)—Indications of an enormous corn crop, probably the third largest ever grown, despite improvement in prospects for wheat, prediction of the smallest potato production since 1919, and unfavorable fruit forecasts were set forth in the July crop report issued today by the department of agriculture.

With a higher condition than the ten-year average and an acreage 1.5 per cent. larger than last year, corn production was forecast at 3,035,000,000 bushels, or 650,000,000 bushels more than last year. Among the causes listed for the large increase were the high price of corn and a tendency to increase feed crops for livestock. The condition of the crop ranges from average to excellent outside of drought areas in Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas. In the corn belt the crop was thriving.

Wheat prospects increased 19,000,000 bushels during June, a forecast of 830,000,000 bushels now being made for this season. Winter wheat lost 3,000,000 bushels during the month but spring wheat prospects increased 22,900,000 bushels.

Production of wheat in 11 countries of the northern hemisphere, including the United States, which produces normally 50 per cent. of the northern hemisphere crop and 53 per cent. of the world crop outside Russia and China, was estimated, on the basis of latest advices to the department at 1,548,000,000 bushels, or 124,000,000 bushels less than last year.

Indicated production of potatoes was 359,000,000 bushels, which would be 103,000,000 less than the large crop of last year. A great reduction in acreage, which is the lowest since 1907, was attributed to losses suffered by producers as a result of the heavy production a year ago.

WILL COMMAND NAVAL COLLEGE AT NEWPORT

WASHINGTON, July 9—(A. P.)—Rear Admiral William V. Pratt, recently in command of the fourth battleship division, has been selected to command the naval war college, at Newport, R. I. Orders assigning him to that post are expected to be issued upon the return of Secretary Wilbur to Washington next month.

Rear Admiral Willard has been ordered to command the recently created third light cruiser division of the scouting fleet, and will run up his flag on the Detroit at Boston the middle of this month. He has been on duty during the last year at the naval war college.

The light cruiser division includes, in addition to the Flagship Detroit, the Raleigh, Milwaukee, and Cincinnati. It will remain in North Atlantic waters about two months and then go to Guantanamo for target practice.

PLASTERERS AGREE TO RETURN TO WORK

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP)—A partial solution of the building trades war which had imperilled $25,000,000 in construction in six leading cities was effected today by a conference of contractors and representatives of the Operative Plasters and cement Finishers International association.

A working agreement was signed under which the plasterers will return to work pending arbitration of their jurisdictional dispute with the Bricklayers International union which precipitated the crisis. The contractors agreed to employ members of the plasterers' organization on all construction jobs pending settlement of the inter-union controversy.

President Edward J. McGivern, of the plasterers, and Peter Cook, first vice-president, represented the association at the conference. They left tonight for Cleveland where a special convention will meet Saturday to discuss the disagreement with the bricklayers.

Contractors represented at today's meeting included the George Fuller company, Longacre Construction company, Thompson Starrett company and F. T. Ley. They are engaged in construction in Chicago, Detroit, Toronto, Washington, Miami and New York.

SECRETARY KELLOGG TO CONFER WITH PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, July 9.—(AP)—Secretary Kellogg, who left Washington last week for an indefinite vacation at his home in St. Paul, Minn., will return to his desk at the state department early next week. He was expected to go from St. Paul to Swampscott, Mass., to confer with President Coolidge, and come to Washington as soon as the conference there had been concluded.

Mr. Kellogg is due to arrive at Swampscott, Saturday. It is known that engagements for him to confer with the president upon arrival there already have been made, although the subject of the conference has not been publicly disclosed.

HELD IN $50,000 ON CHARGE OF ARSON

BETHEL, Conn., July 9.—(AP)—Alfred E. Harding, who was brought here from New York City, today charged with arson and attempted murder was given a hearing before Justice Taylor tonight and his case was continued until July 3. He was taken to the Danbury jail in default of $50,000 bail.

Harding is one of three men held in connection with the fire on April 2 at the Xcluso Auto Trunk company's plant here. At that time the night watchman was tied to a chair by three men who then set fire to the place.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Mrs. Bayard Taylor Dead.

BERLIN, July 9.—(A. P.)—Mrs. Bayard Taylor, widow of the noted author and diplomatist, who was American minister to Germany in 1878, died today at Partenkirchen, Bavaria. She was 98 years of age.

Agreement Not Signed.

MADRID, July 9.—(A. P.) — The Franco-Spanish accord on political collaboration in Morocco, drawn up by the delegates of both countries after discussions lasting for many days, was not signed today, as had been expected, but the formality it is announced, will take place soon.

SCOPES CASE MAY REQUIRE A MONTH

DAYTON, Tenn., July 9.—(AP)—Dayton tonight was waiting for 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and the opening of the evolution case, which has made the town famous.

At that hour a special term of the Rhea circuit court will convene and John T. Scopes, high school teacher will be arraigned before this court on a charge of violating the law of Tennessee which prohibits the teaching of theories of evolution in the public schools.

A technicality or two, perhaps, is to be ironed out before the taking of testimony begins, but the case tonight had passed its last mile post on the long road to the courtroom and John Thomas Scopes' day in court seemed certain to begin tomorrow.

Various estimates of the time necessary to try the case set a minimum of two weeks and a maximum of one month.

For the first time in several preliminary maneuvers, all the lawyers who will participate actively in the case are tonight within a rifle shot of the courthouse door. The defense outnumbered the prosecution three to two in arrivals of attorneys today.

Clarence Darrow reached Dayton from Chicago at dusk and was closely followed by Dudley Field Malone and Arthur Garfield Hays, of the defense, who came from New York to complete the lineup.

William Jennings Bryan, Jr., came from Los Angeles in the early afternoon and joined his father at the counsel table for the prosecution. T. Stewart, attorney-general of the eighteenth Tennessee judicial circuit, official prosecuting officer of the state, arrived from Winchester as night fell. The first meeting of all the defense lawyers was held this afternoon.

The first of the defense scientific witnesses, Dr. William Goldsmith, professor of biology at Southwestern college, arrived from Winfield, Kansas, to be available if called to testify. Dr. Goldsmith said that evolution is "simply a process through which the present and future complex conditions of the universe have developed and will develop from the simpler pre-existing conditions.

"I will say that evolution has to do with the progressive changes which are taking place in the entire universe and it has no more to do with the monkey story than it has with the unfolding of a beautiful flower. If neither denies God nor does it teach that man came from monkeys."

A significant incident to many is that the special term of court, under the provisions of the law, automatically brings back the special grand jury. Should the prosecution decide that the pending indictment against Scopes is not strictly according to the letter of the law as has been suggested, he could be re-indicted with dispatch tomorrow.

The defense is expected to move to quash the indictment and refusal of this motion by Judge John T. Raulston, presiding, would bring the general discussed case finally into court.

In a statement issued today, Mr. Bryan charged the defendant Scopes, as center of the present legal controversy, is working more serious injury to school teachers "than to any other class." He predicted that "this harm" would be increased to an infinite degree to the establishment of biology instructor's alleged views of the independence of the teacher.

The fundamentalist spokesman advocated, preserving "the present system" by which, he said, teachers are selected without regard to their views on disputed subjects.

Judge Raulston announced that he approached his duties in the Scopes case "with a deep consciousness that the issues are profound. If man with out inspiration attempts to delve into the mysteries of God, he finds himself overwhelmed in perplexities.

"Therefore, I am much interested that the unerring hand of him who is the author of all truth and justice shall direct every official act of mine."

YALE JUNIOR AWARDED TRAVEL SCHOLARSHIP

NEW HAVEN, July 9.—(AP)—Clyde Everett Dickey, Jr., of New Haven, a junior at Yale university, is one of eight American students to be awarded a $1,000 foreign travel scholarship by the American council of education. He will sail for Europe in August to study Spanish and economics at the University of Madrid and economics at the University of Barcelona.

The scholarship held by Dickey is one of six given by Senator T. Coleman Du Pont and Felix A. Warburg, which are awarded in a nation-wide competition. Two additional scholarships, presented by Mrs. Andrew Carnegie and Aaron Nausburg, are limited to students of New York university and the College of the City of New York, respectively.

The scholarships are intended "to increase understanding and friendship among nations through encouragement of gifted American college and university students to pursue a part of their education in the universities of other countries."

JAIL SENTENCES FOR FALSELY OBTAINING MONEY

HARTFORD, July 9. — (AP)— Charged with obtaining money under false pretenses and selling insurance in this state without a license, William C. Silver, 27, and Nathan Silver, 24, brothers, both of Andover, were each sentenced to jail for fifteen days and fined $50 and costs by Judge Day in police court this morning. The Silvers claimed to represent the "American Automobile Service League of New York." At least a score of people in this city claimed they had been fleeced to the extent of $25 each and a half dozen complaints were filed at police headquarters. The Silvers, it was testified, were conducting a "bargain drive" here, selling two years worth of insurance for one year's premium.

To Indict Woman For Kidnapping Son

Charge Will Be Brought Against Mrs. Virginia C. Canaday For Taking Boy From Husband's Home.

NEW YORK, July 9—(A. P.)—District Attorney Newcomb of Queens County announced today that a grand jury would be asked next week to indict Mrs. Virginia C. Canaday of San Antonio, Tex., for kidnapping her five year old son, Roscoe, Jr., from his father's home in Forest Hills, Long Island.

The Brooklyn Eagle says today that Mrs. Canaday is racing back to her home, with her son, in a relay of fast motor cars. The first lap of the race south ended in Washington and motor cars await her further south, the newspaper says.

Despite statements from Mrs. Canaday's Texas home denying she kidnapped the child, the district attorney said he was not satisfied that she is not implicated.

Recently Mr. Canaday brought the boy from San Antonio here without the mother's consent. Extradition proceedings against him for kidnapping were dismissed by Supreme Court Justice Levy, who said:

"A man cannot kidnap his own son."

MRS. CANADAY NOT IN SAN ANTONIO

SAN ANTONIO, Texas., July 9—(A. P.)—Mrs. Virginia Canady, of this city, mother of five year old Roscoe Canaday, Jr., who was kidnapped Tuesday from the New York home of his father for the second time in two months, is not in San Antonio.

The New York police wired San Antonio officers to arrest the boy's mother today, and Chief of Police Miller wired back asking for a warrant.

Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Caldwell, Mrs. Canaday's parents, and a sister, have said Mrs. Canaday was in the city yesterday, but it became definitely known today that she is not here.

Belief was expressed here that even in the event the child is back in the custody of his mother, from whom he was kidnapped, no arrest can be made, as, according to Texas law, a mother cannot kidnap her own child

NEED LEGISLATION TO REGULATE AIR TRAFFIC

WASHINGTON, July 9—(A. P.)—Appointment of a public relations committee headed by Will H. Hays was announced today by the National Air Transport, Inc., the recently organized $10,000,000 commercial air service company.

More than two dozen editors and publishers of leading newspapers have accepted membership on the committee, which will serve without financial interest. The purpose of the committee is to aid in educating the public with reference to the scope and problems confronting the government in connection with the encouragement, control and regulation of the commercial phase of aviation.

The air transport company which purposes to initiate this fall an overnight service between New York and Chicago, Mr. Colyn said, "is a venture of a quasi-public nature" instead of a "commercial aviation development" but an intimate relationship with that scheme for national defense."

Outlining the scope of work for the committe, he stressed particularly the need for drafting federal legislation for regulation and control of air traffic.

"Second," he said, "is the need for adoption by the government of a definite, comprehensive and permanent air policy.

"Third, the progressive extension of the United States air mail along routes of strategic importance connecting our great centers of population and of business activity seems to offer our one economically sound method for the nation-wide encouragement of commercial aviation upon a profitable and self-supporting basis.

Federal aid to commercial aviation, he suggested, could be extended in a way similar to that given water transportation.

Mr. Hays, in his letter of acceptance, asserted that the foundation of American air power must lie in the active interest of the American people.

"The air mail enlists the self-interest of the individual citizen," he said, "and in like manner do efforts for national air transportation such as yours enlist the interests of individual citizens."

FILM TAX HEARING IN U. S. COURT TODAY

HARTFORD, July 9.—(AP)—Tax Commissioner Blodgett and State Motion Picture Agent John J. Splain will be the only state officials to attend the hearing in the United States district court at New Haven tomorrow on the constitutionality of the new state motion picture tax and censorship law. Attorney General Healy will be represented by Arthur L. Shipman, who will also represent Governor Trumbull and the state police commissioners and superintendent.

The state's request for a postponement having been denied, the hearing will begin at 9 a. m., standard time, before Federal Judges Rogers, Coddard and Thatcher.

CIRCUS FOLLOWER MUST OCCUPY PAUPER'S GRAVE

MERIDEN, July 9.—(AP)—Because he ran away from home in New Bedford, Mass., years ago as a boy, and has since apparently forgotten all about his aged parents, Zephryn Normandy, the penniless roamer and circus follower who died of starvation and exposure here on Sunday, must occupy a pauper's grave.

The local police today were informed that Normandy's parents, located in New Bedford, said they no longer considered him their son, and were content that he be buried as a pauper.

SMALL BOY BADLY HURT BY TROLLEY

MERIDEN, July 9.—(AP)—Running out to meet his father, who was returning from work, Harold, the two and one half year son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Balkow, of Bernstein Heights, was run over and severely injured by a one-man trolley car at 5:25 p. m., today. His right leg, collar-bone and humerus were broken, but doctors say he will live.

Shp Board Turns Down Bids For Fleet

Palmer's Recommendation For Sale of Ships For Scrapping Is Rejected By Board, 3 To 1.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—(AP)—Another disagreement developed today between President Palmer of the Fleet corporation, and the shipping board, when the latter rejected his recommendation for the sale of 200 vessels for scrapping. By a vote of 3 to 1, the board decided to continue negotiations for the sale until July 16 in the hope of getting a higher price than was offered by any of the 20 individuals and companies that submitted tenders June 30, and to reject the recommendation of Mr. Palmer for acceptance of the $1,370,000 bid of the Boston Iron & Metal company, of Baltimore, for the 200 ships.

The action was the first taken under the new arrangement whereby all negotiations for sales of ships are conducted by the Fleet corporation subject to approval of the board. This plan was adopted at the suggestion of President Coolidge, as a means of increasing efficiency in disposing of the government's tonnage.

The president's views with respect to the situation as disclosed today are awaited with considerable interest, since he is understood to be studying the entire shipping question with further administrative action or legislative recommendations in mind.

PRESSURE OF MOORS IS BECOMING STRONGER

FEZ, Morocco, July 9.—(AP)—Abd-El-Krim's "march on Fez" is being developed with an astonishing resemblance to the military science of the great war. Taza for the time being breathes again, thanks to French success to the north, but Abd-El-Krim's tactics of filtering through at night, are winning over wavering tribes and terrorizing others, and all the time the collecting of supplies continues with a regularity that indicates a studied plan. This has worked so well that the pressure of the Moors is becoming stronger, and they are expected to launch a straight drive for Fez.

There is no siege as yet, but fierce fighting to the north and tribal defections constitute in reality a battle for Taza.

Even the tribes turning against the French display a certain nobility, the Branes particularly, after warring against disloyal tribes, were themselves won over, but first they brought back behind the French lines their air chief, Captain Mejo, and then went over to the enemy, leaving Taza exposed on the east. These defections started first on the western front, but the movement has now reached the entire line.

Proof of the Riffian general staff's ability is seen in their comprehensive plan and detailed methods; there is never isolated action, there is a constant feeling of the pulse along the French front, seeking a weak place, and when it is found diversions are created elsewhere to occupy the troops.

The "filtering" method consists in a single Riffian regular stealing through between the French posts and reaching a tribal village at night, where adherence to Abd-El-Krim's war is urged upon the chief and tribesmen.

HEAVY WITHDRAWALS FOR HOLIDAY EXPENSES

NEW YORK, July 9—(A. P.)—Judging by the ebb and flow of holiday funds through the federal reserve bank, each New York family spent about $10 extra in celebrating the Fourth of July. This includes railroad fares, auto supplies, food, refreshments, amusements, fireworks and all other expenditures in excess of the daily average of living costs. The general average extra expenditure for the entire country, as gauged by the reduction in total reserves and the increase in note circulation of the combined federal reserve banks during the holiday period was slightly less than $3.50 a family.

The magnitude of the financing required to supply currency for holiday requirements is shown by statistics of the New York federal reserve bank, which reports withdrawals of about $33,000,000 in currency in excess of receipts for the five days ending July 5, the largest single day's excess of payment showing on Thursday, July 2, when member banks took out $13,600,000 more than they deposited. This money, which was spent largely at seaside and mountain resorts and deposited in local banks, began to flow back on Monday, when there was an excess of $2,900,000 in currency receipts followed by an excess of $12,650,000 on Tuesday and $13,300,000 on Wednesday. Today the pendulum swung the other way when banks began to withdraw again in preparation for the week-end.

CONDITION OF NEW YORK FEDERAL RESERVE BANK

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP)—The statement of the condition of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York at the close of business July 1, is as follows:

Total gold reserves, $923,178,000.
Bills discounted secured by government war obligations, $91,634,000.
All other, $22,149,000.
Bills bought in open market, $38,453,000.
Total earning assets, $236,293,000.
Uncollected items, $161,244,000.
Due to members: Reserve account, $826,458,000.
Total deposits, $846,113,000.
F. R. notes in actual circulation, $332,978,000.
Ratio of total reserves to deposit and F. R. notes liabilities combined, 81.4 percent.

HELD ON CHARGE OF CONCEALING AUTO

NEW BRITAIN, July 9.—(AP)—Theodore H. Dow, 21, of Newburyport, Mass., formerly United States army recruiting sergeant in this city, was bound over to superior court by Judge B. W. Alling this morning in police court on a charge of concealing an auto which he had purchased on a conditional bill of sale. It was alleged that he bought the machine here with a small deposit and transferred it to a Manchester, N. H., man in exchange for another car. His bond was set at $500.

U. S. COLLECTED TWO AND HALF BILLIONS IN TAXES

Total Tax Receipts For Fiscal Year 1925 Ending June 30th Announced As $2,584,010,847—Over Half of This Amount Came From Direct Assessment On Incomes—Revenue Was Reduced Only $212,168,409 Despite Sharp Cuts In Income And Other Tax Rates—Treasury Officials Convinced That Lowered Rates Would Increase Total Receipts.

WASHINGTON, July 9—(A. P.)—Federal internal revenue for the fiscal year 1925 was reduced only $212,168,409 for the fiscal year 1924 despite sharp cuts made by the last revenue law in income and other tax rates.

Total tax receipts for the fiscal year 1925 which ended June 30, were announced tonight as $2,584,010,847, of which $1,761,681,641 came from the direct assessment on incomes and $822,329,205 was from the miscellaneous sources upon which the federal treasury draws. In the fiscal year 1924 the income taxes yielded $1,841,759,316 and miscellaneous $954,419,940.

While the present tax law was fully operative only half of the last fiscal year, it gave evidence which treasury officials said confirmed their belief that lowered rates would increase the total receipts. The important reductions in the income levies caused a shrinkage of only $80,077,675 in this item of government revenue, and officials studying the question therefore regard it as unlikely that the law, which was designed as a whole to reduce the tax burden by $400,000,000, will really accomplish that purpose. They are convinced that reduced rates have opened up new channels of income and provided encouragement to moneyed interests to place their funds in productive enterprises.

RAILROADS CARRY FREIGHT CHEAPER THAN TRUCKS

BRIDGEPORT, July 9.—(AP)—"The idea that motor cars will supplant trains is ludicrous," Acting General Manager John H. Droege, of the New Haven railroad, told the Bridgeport Kiwanis club here today in his first public speech since succeeding C. L. Bardo, as the road's pilot.

"All methods of transportation except that of the locomotive, that is, the bicycle, the stage coach, the canal and others have all gone to seed," he said.

"The railroads in the United States were never in better functioning order. They are carrying freight faster than ever before and cheaper than anywhere else in the world. It is possible, however, that these little nibbles of freight taken by the trucks may mount up, so that the present overnight rail service may dwindle to an every-few-days proposition. Think it over and see where your best interests are. We have got to hang together or we will hang separately, as the saying goes."

Droege cited that it would take 1,140 three and a half ton auto trucks and 2,000 chauffeurs and helpers to carry a 4,000 ton load of freight to a given point in the same time it would take a single locomotive to pull this amount with a train crew of five men and the burning of ton tons of coal.

The cost of carrying a ton of freight a mile by railroad, he said, is one and one-quarter cents, while for a truck the same factor is thirty cents.

MOROCCAN POLICY IS ENDORSED BY CHAMBER

PARIS, July 9.—(A. P.)—The government's Moroccan policy was endorsed tonight by the chamber of deputies by an overwhelming majority. An additional appropriation for the Moroccan operations of 183,000,000 francs was granted the government by a vote of 411 to 29.

Although a number of the socialists deserted to vote for the government on its policy as representative of the wishes of the nation, general absentation by that party was decided on as a compromise on the proposal of M. Blum, the party leader, to maintain the unity of the group. Therefore, about 100 socialists withheld their votes.

Premier Painleve replied in detail to criticisms levelled at him mostly by the communists and socialists.

The premier declined to enlighten the deputies as to the peace terms decided upon by France in accord with Spain; he was unable to make public the text of the Franco-Spanish accord until Abd-El-Krim had an opportunity to accept or reject it.

France, he added, would not communicate the peace conditions to Abd-El-Krim, and consequently would not be called upon to enter into relations with him.

JUDGE ROSS MET DEATH BY DROWNING

JACKSON, Tenn., July 9.—(A. P.)—Judge J. W. Ross of the federal district court for western Tennessee, found dead today under the wreckage of his automobile in a creek near Jackson—less than 24 hours after his indictment by a Madison county grand jury, met death by drowning, according to the formal certification of Dr. W. G. Saunders, a Jackson physician. Announcement was made that no inquest would be necessary. The indictment of Judge Ross and three officials of the Peoples Savings Bank of Jackson followed grand jury investigation of the closing of the bank by state bank examiners.

Miss Bessie Buffalo, secretary to Judge Ross, told newspapermen that Judge Ross had remarked last night that the steering wheel of his car was untrue.

PLAN NEW $500,000,000 SUBWAY FOR NEW YORK

NEW YORK, July 9.—(A. P.)—Plans for a $500,000,000 subway system from 147th street to Battery, with branches into New Jersey and Brooklyn, which will carry commuters' trains of two railroads under the city, were discussed today at a conference of the New York Suburban Transit commission.

If the plan is adopted, commuters on the New York, New Haven & Hartford and the New York & Boston railroads will be able to board trains at their homes and, without changing, be carried to their destinations in downtown New York, Jersey City or Brooklyn.

According to Daniel L. Turner, transit commission engineer and author of the plan, the use of the commuters' trains as subway trains will help congestion at Grand Central terminal and save the time of passengers.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE VISITS FORT ANDREWS

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 9.—(AP)—Taking his first cruise on the Mayflower since beginning his vacation, President Coolidge visited Fort Andrews today, inspecting there a link of the Boston harbor defenses.

The president accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, motored from the summer White House to Marblehead Neck, was taken out to the yacht on a barge and devoted practically all the afternoon to the cruise and inspection. The weather was ideal.

At Fort Andrews, which is on an island south and east of Boston harbor, the president was greeted by Col. Charles E. Kilbourne, in charge of coastal defenses about Boston. First the president looked over an 1898 model of a 12-inch mortar, the fort's largest gun. Later he inspected a later type of 12-inch mortar, was taken through powder magazines and visited the fort storehouse.

The fort was in a stand-by condition, the only troops on the island being a caretaking force, a band and color guard had been brought from Fort Banks in honor of the president's visit.

While the president was inspecting the storehouse, Mr. Jervis, head of the White House secret service detail, who was walking alongside the president, fell into an unprotected elevator shaft, dropping about four feet below the floor level, and narrowly escaping a greater fall. He was not injured.

As the Mayflower approached Fort Andrews the two-masted schooner Mayflower, which several years ago competed in the International fisherman's race, losing a memorable match with the Canadian Bluenose, passed at a short distance. It saluted and in acknowledgment the colors at the stern of the president's vessel were dipped.

Standing on deck in a circle of newspapermen, who he had asked to accompany him, the president spied a house on the south shore at Trafferton in which he and Mrs. Coolidge lived while he was lieutenant governor of Massachusetts.

LINER LANDS SHIP WRECKED SCHOONER CREW

NEW YORK, July 9.—(A. P.)—The Old Dominion liner George Washington arrived tonight, bringing Captain Curtis Hilton and the eleven members of the crew of the fishing smack J. M. Hilton which was run down by the liner during a fog off Barnegat, N. J., early yesterday.

Captain Hilton charged that the liner was steaming at high speed through the fog when it struck the smack, which was lying at anchor, cutting it in two. He and two of the crew launched a dory, in which they rescued their mates. For an hour, he asserted, they drifted in the small boat before one of the George Washington's lifeboats picked them up.

His charges were denied by Captain John S. Hannan, of the George Washington, who said he ran into the fog bank suddenly and at once reversed the engines. Before the ship could be stopped, he said, it struck the smack.

A coast guard cutter has been sent out to clear away the wreckage.

STOLEN AUTO FOUND IN NEW BRITAIN

NEW BRITAIN, July 9.—(AP)—Delaying three youths who were having difficulty operating an automobile on East Main street this morning, Policeman John Liebler discovered that none of the trio had a driver's license. It later developed that the auto had been stolen last night, while it was parked on Jewel street. The owner is John Schafer of 1482 Albany avenue, Hartford. Policeman Liebler arrested the youths who said they were Dominick Colangelo, 19, of 101 North street; Joseph J. Pandolph, 19, of 8 Portland street, and John Geraci, 17, of 95 Chestnut street, all of Hartford. They were turned over to the Hartford police.

FISHING SMACK IS RAMMED BY STEAMER

NEW YORK, July 9—(A. P.)—The two-masted fishing smack Curtis Hinton was rammed and cut in two in a heavy fog off Barnegat, N. J., early yesterday by the steamship George Washington of the Old Dominion Line. It was learned today. Twelve men of the smack's crew are being brought to this port by the George Washington, due to dock tonight.

VOTES MORE MONEY FOR MOROCCAN OPERATIONS

PARIS, July 9.—(A. P.)—The chamber of deputies tonight voted additional appropriations amounting to 183,000,000 francs for the Moroccan operations. The vote was 411 to 29. About 100 socialists abstained.

WILLIMANTIC

The new Capitol Theatre on Main street, one of the finest building in this fair city, will be formally opened on or about October 1st, it was made known Thursday. The plastering is nearly completed and the decorating of the playhouse, one of the largest and finest in Eastern Connecticut, was started Thursday. The stage is large enough for the presentation of any of the modern productions. The lighting and electrical system is completed. There will be 1,350 seats in the house, including the gallery, which will accommodate 400.

A condition of much interest to the automobile world has developed from the cases of two drivers of the local distributing station of the Gulf Refining company, John Slovick and Lawrence E. Veseleck. They have been driving oil trucks bearing Massachusetts registration markers with Connecticut operators' licenses. Local Manager Walter R. Church explained that the trucks had been brought to this city but very recently and he agreed that Connecticut markers would be secured at once. In a precourt discussion between the parties interested and the court officials the court voted to take no action on the cases. This leaves the open question, "Can an automobile bearing out-of-state registration numbers be operated in Connecticut or anywhere with a Connecticut operator's license?" In other words—is it necessary in this and other states that the markers and license correspond as to the state where registered? The general belief, officially and unofficially here, has been that they must be of the same state, but now there appears to be a debate. One of the city fathers called Commissioner Stoeckel on the telephone Thursday and unless ears deceived, the information was that a driver with a Connecticut license could operate any car, properly registered in any state, for any length of time. The law book was resorted to and nothing of a definite nature could be found relative to the question. The revised statutes may contain something on this subject but as no copies were available here Thursday the matter remains on the fence. As the lack of any such regulation would appear to facilitate the stealing of automobiles and as the presence of such a law would uncover many violations of this nature, especially during the summer months, Prosecuting Attorney Harry S. Gaucher is to make a study of the matter at once.

Mrs. Joseph Lariviere, 65, died at her home, 64 Meadow street, at noon Thursday. She had been ill for several months. Mrs. Lariviere was born in Canada, Sept. 25, 1859; a daughter of Olive and Angele Cote Caillouette. She is survived by her husband and a son, Joseph D. Lariviere; two grandchildren; four sisters, Mrs. Rose Gagnon, Mrs. Emma LeBlond, Miss Augustine Goyette and Mrs. Louise Williams, all of this city, and by two brothers, Olive and Octave Caillouette. She was a member of the St. Anne society, Conseil St. Cecile, No. 74, L'Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique and the St. Anthony society of St. Mary's parish and was highly thought of in this community.

Hymen Weisberg, of New York city, driver of the Packard roadster which was demolished in a crash at the Andover underpass, causing injury to the three occupants, was presented in the Andover town court in the afternoon, charged with reckless driving. He pleaded guilty and Justice of the Peace Charles A. Faulkner imposed a fine of $25 and costs, amounting to $30.62, which was paid.

The funeral for Mrs. Mary A. Hanicik was held from her home at Hartsfield Four Corners, Thursday morning. Requiem high mass at St. Mary's church, South Coventry, was sung at 9 o'clock by Rev. Dennis F. Moran. Miss Celia Day was at the organ. George LeFleur and Miss Day sang, "Some Sweet Day," "Ave Maria" was given at the offertory and "Nearer My God to Thee," as a waiting hymn. The bearers were L. Lamator, J. Kurgan, Andrew Tomaskovic and Andrew Thibkeis. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, Coventry. Arrangements were in charge of Killourey Brothers.

Services for Mrs. Burt Thompson were held at her home, 275 Prospect street, at 1 o'clock, Thursday afternoon, Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock officiating. Burial was in Spring Grove cemetery, Hartford. Arrangements were in charge of Avery and VanZandt. Mrs. Thompson was an active member of the Willimantic Woman's club, Anne Wood Elderkin chapter, D. A. R., First Congregational church and the Ladies' society of the church.

Mary Renejowski, of 74 Chapman street, one of the strikers of the American Thread company, was placed under arrest by State Policeman Kamanski, Thursday noon, for having caused a disturbance in the vicinity of No. 4 mill of the plant, while some of the operatives of the company were leaving at the lunch hour. The woman was released under a bond of $50 for her appearance in court this (Friday) morning on a charge of breach of the peace.

District Deputy, Sister Holmes, of Jewett City, made her annual visitation to Violet Rebekah lodge, No. 57, I. O. O. F., at the meeting, Wednesday night; Noble Grand Mrs. Amy P. Brown presided. Several candidates received the initiatory degree. This was followed by a social hour, during which there were refreshments.

Merchants and clerks of Willimantic would like to pat the old Weather Man on the back if they could locate him. Last year he gave them a real raw deal on their Thursday afternoon half holidays and the pat they would have given him then would have been anything but gentle; but this year the clerks seem to be having better luck. Whereas there was but one ideal Thursday afternoon in the entire season in 1924, so far this year, there has been but one such afternoon that was not perfect weatherwise. The business section becomes like a deserted city on Thursday afternoon. Everyone hopes to play golf or take a swim or a ride. A few mow the lawn and work in the garden.

Edan C. Cook was tendered a farewell party by the employes of the Windham National bank at South Coventry recently and presented with a fully equipped traveling bag. Mr. Cook is now with the Smith & Winchester Manufacturing company at South Windham.

State Policeman Edgar D. Abild, of the Stafford Springs barracks, issued driving licenses to about twenty applicants during the session which he held in this city from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. Thursday.

Generalissimo James P. Mustard is as yet the only member of the local order of the Knights Templar who will attend the conclave at New Haven, July 20.

Cottagers at Lake Wangumbaug, South Coventry, are signing a petition which they will present soon to the Connecticut company to have night service on the South Coventry-Willimantic trolley line every day during the summer months.

Joseph Cavagnero, who fell from a tank car in the Manchester yards last Monday, is reported as improving at his home in Andover. An x-ray failed to disclose any broken bones.

Settlement by mutual agreement and withdrawal of the suit was declared in the case of Joseph A. Tremblay vs. Edmond Tremblay which was scheduled for a hearing before Justice of the Peace Curtis Dean, Thursday morning.

Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock, pastor of the First Congregational church, is to attend a summer course at Union Theological seminary, New York city. Mr. Wheelock will supply the pulpit at the South Congregational church in Hartford, Sunday.

SILK COMPANY LEASES WILSON STREET BUILDINGS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, July 9.—With the leasing of the Natchaug Industrial company buildings on Wilson street, here, by the S. P. S. Silk company comes the encouraging tidings that Willimantic will soon have a new industry. The company will have a capital stock of $50,000 divided into shares of one hundred dollars each. Business will be started with one thousand dollars. The firm is in the business to manage, direct, manufacture and sell silk, cotton, woolen, worsteds and other fabrics, and will start operations within a short time, having secured a sub-lease from the S. C. S. Box company, of this city, which holds the lease on the buildings up to Jan. 1, 1926. Machinery is already being installed and carpenters are making necessary alterations. The officers and directors of the company are: President, Milton Nahum, Hartford; treasurer, Anna J. O'Connell, Poquonock; secretary, Margaret J. Hallohan, Hartford. These officers are not personally known locally but local manufacturers know that they have been connected with a silk manufacturing enterprise in Windsor Locks. The contract for the leasing of the buildings was made by John E. Erick, of the Natchaug Industrial company, for five years.

The plant comprises two buildings, one of brick, 60 by 90, with basement, and a storehouse of wood, 50 by 90.

The structures were erected several years ago by the Natchaug Industrial company for the Watts Laundry Mangle company, which plant has since been removed to St. Joseph, Mo. A few years ago the S. C. S. Box company leased the plant in addition to one which it is operating, day and night, on Moulton court.

CAMPECHE AND YUCATAN

"Clashes between Indian tribes along the border between the Mexican States of Campeche and Yucatan recently threw into the spotlight of the day's news two of the potentially richest of the commonwealths comprising the Mexican republic," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Campeche and Yucatan together with the Territory of Quintana Roo embrace the entire peninsula of Yucatan, except a small portion of the east coast within the boundaries of British Honduras and a section of the heavily wooded interior where an arm of Gautemala runs up from the south. From the two peninsula states comes most of the world's production of Sisal hemp, which is next to Manila hemp in durability and strength. The region also furnishes valuable timber, agricultural products, and livestock.

"Although the greater part of the area of the peninsula is one vast plain at a small elevation, the two states are strikingly different in many respects. Campeche, fairly abundant rainfall, dense forests, and a number of minerals throughout its 18,000 square miles. Yucatan, on the other hand, presents a dreary aspect, unwatered by rivers or streams, with little agriculture and no minerals. Yet this arid region affords the chief source of wealth, henequen or Sisal hemp. Yucatan, with Quintana Roo is about twice as large as its neighboring state, yet, with 315,000 people, it has almost four times as large a population.

"Despite the sparseness of its rainfall, Yucatan is not totally arid. Water can be found in any section of the state not far beneath the surface. Although there are no rivers of importance the limestone formations underground are honeycombed with water caves—termed locally 'cenotes'—and subterranean streams. The Indians knew of these caves and rivers ages ago and marked their courses on the surface with heaps of stones, never building their cities except along the flow of an underground stream. Every pueblo and ranch has its well and a constant supply of fresh cold water for drinking and irrigation purposes.

"The fertility of the soil increases in the northeast and southern portions of the state, where there are thick dye and cabinetwood forests. This is also the home of the beautiful Yucatan turkey and the venerated Quetzal, the Mexican bird of paradise, sacred to some of the Indian tribes.

"With a coast line of 600 miles Yucatan has only two harbors, Progreso, the principal port, on the northern coast of the peninsula, and an old abandoned one at Sisal, a few miles farther west. Sisal, however, is the better harbor of the two, for Progreso is no more than an open roadstead, without shelter. Merida, the capital, a thriving city of 50,000 is on the site of the ancient Mayx civilization found there and throughout the peninsula. In the culture scale these Indians stood at the head of the American tribes. The remains of their prehistoric temples and cities are of utmost interest and beauty.

"Better favored with natural resources, Campeche is handicapped by lack of labor and adequate means of communication. Great tracts of virgin forests and unutilized wealth and advantages await the stimulus of foreign capital and initiative. The seat of government, of the same name as the state, is connected by railway with Merida, the Yucatan capital, and some of the plantations have light railways. Aside from these, however, the only means of transportations are afforded by the secondrate roads and the small rivers during the rainy season.

"One of the principal products of the province is logwood, a heavy red timber which contains a crystalline yellow substance called haematoxylline—used extensively in dyeing and in coloring wines. The annual export of this product alone in 1923 was valued at more than a million pesos. Campeche stands second only to Yucatan in the production of henequen, or Sisal hemp, as well as the usual tropical products such as sugar cane, rice, tobacco, indigo, cotton, etc. Many of the natives make a good livelihood manufacturing the so-called Panama hats, hammocks, and tortoiseshell articles.

"Campeche, the capital, is a quaint old city of 18,000 inhabitants. Founded in 1540 by Francisco Monteo, it is, therefore, one of the oldest cities in America. During the adventuresome buccaneer days of the Spanish Main it was sacked repeatedly by pirates until its bastioned and fortified walls, segments of which are still standing, were hastily erected.

"The town is built over a system of immense subterranean caverns, excavated by the early Mayas and used by them as catacombs. The moist sea air imparts a venerable look to the port buildings, all of which seem hoary with age.

"Both states are paradises for the hunter or naturalist and abound with game, fish and gorgeously colored birds and flowers. In the forests panthers and boa constrictors lurk, while in the more open country there are wild boars, deer, the tapir, and bright-plumaged birds. Shark fishing is one of the exciting sports along the coasts, where an endless and holy war is waged against them."

Eat the Right Breakfast Hot Days

Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes
Supplies the energy you need

SOME people make a practice of passing vigor foods in summer. That's a mistake.

Above all things, you must eat foods that give strength. For hot days drag energy away.

For breakfast, have oats and milk.

Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. And that makes it easy. No hot kitchens. No fuming, no frying, no stewing.

Start on oats tomorrow. Note how good you'll feel. Mark the way that dragged-out feeling goes.

You'll smile at hot days. You'll work better, think better. Just try it!—See the difference.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Having locked up the store very promptly at 12 noon, Thursday, Mr. Proprietor, Mr. Clerk and Miss Clerk indulged in an enthusiastic "Heigh-ho, where shall we go?" The summer half-holiday season was officially open.

Mr. Proprietor was not just decided what to do with his glorious afternoon, but allowed he would reach a decision promptly after lunch. Mr. Clerk voted for golf, fishing, bathing or a motor trip. Miss Clerk had a number of things in mind, first among which was getting a hair cut and a few retouches to the permanent wave. They were all happy. Well, some of them did play golf and a few went bathing or fishing, but like many another well laid plan, some of the schedules did not work out just right—because there were so many things to do at home.

Anyway, the weather man was more generous than is sometimes his wont at the opening of the summer half-holiday season and gave them hours of golden sunshine and a temperature about ideal for July. It was an auspicious opening of the Thursday play season, which will continue until September.

"Fire Lane—No Parking" reads a sidewalk sign placed in Academy street Thursday, at the residence of Martin T. Burns. The sign is there through agreement between Chief A. F. Woodward of the fire department and other borough officials. It is intended to keep the street clear at all times, that fire apparatus leaving the central station in Academy street may not be hindered by parked cars in making quick exit to the business section. On two occasions of late there has been such a string of parked cars in the now prohibited area that it has been necessary to stop the big number and back the machine in order to get sufficient clearance for a swing into Main street. On Thursday it was not quite clear because of the manner in which the sign was placed just how much of the section of Academy street between Main and School streets was banned for parked cars, but it was explained, that the section covered was from the sign westward to Main street, the plan being to keep the corner free of parked cars.

The death of Mrs. Martha James 87, occurred Wednesday night at the Hartford hospital, where she had been a patient receiving treatment for an injured hip, the injury sustained when she fell at her home in Elmville on June 13. Undertaker L. E. Kennedy conveyed the body to Danielson Thursday.

Mrs James was a native of Tilperton, County Wiltshire, England, and was born May 2, 1838 For over half a century she had been a resident of the town of Killingly. Her husband, James James, who died 13 years ago, was for years an overseer in the Sayles stone mill, as it was known in years gone by, at Elmville. Mrs. James leaves a daughter, Mrs. Earle F. Winslow, of Elmville, a step-daughter, Mrs. Agnes Carpenter, of Providence, and two step-sons, Albert James of Pittsfield, Me. and Nelson James, of Greystone, R. I.

At the Chautauqua grounds Thursday a morning period was given over to the Junior Chautauqua, while the afternoon and evening was featured by concerts presented by J. Coates Lennart and his Scotch lassies in programs of classical and humorous Scotch numbers. Effective Voting and Effective Government, a lecture by Walter J. Millard, was an added feature on the evening program. J. Coates Lennart was formerly tenor soloist with the Kilties band, on their world tour.

Thursday afternoon, the funeral of Mrs. Christine Barnum, mother of Mrs. John R. Pratt of Brooklyn, was held from the Pratt home, with service at the Brooklyn Congregational church at 3:30, Rev. W. C. Prentiss, of Plainfield, officiating. The bearers were Charles S Hyde, A. L. Livesy, S. L. Russell, A. B. House, W. H. Brown and C. G. Lawton. Burial is to be in Greenwood cemetery, New York. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Leo J. L'Homme post, American Legion, is progressing with its campaign to raise a $2,500 apportionment of the $500,000 Legion Endowment fund to be created by posts throughout the United States. Reports Wednesday evening at a meeting of the committees show that about $750 has been subscribed here to date, this coming largely from legion members and from business men. A plan is now being considered under which the Ladies' auxiliary of the legion would make a house to house canvass. Sidney W. Hall is chairman of the civilian committee in the campaign and Alfred L. Reed chairman of the legion committee.

Wednesday evening's meeting of the legion elected Commander Joseph Burton, Past Commander Ira A. Warren, Herbert Hopkins and Arthur DeForest delegates to attend the state convention of the legion, to be held at New London August 25-26-27.

W. I. Bullard is flying around Europe. On June 25th he writes from Berlin: "Just arrived in plane from Amsterdam—450 miles in four hours, forty minutes." He also writes it rained every day in England from June 10th to June 25th, except one day.

N. Lorne Greig of the Assawaga company, Dayville, has been elected a member of the board of trustees of the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam.

Cards from members of the Service battery at Tobbyhanna, Pa., indicate that they are now in the full swing of their annual period of field service.

It is anticipated here that the repairs to the state armory made possible by an appropriation of $6,000 by the legislature will be undertaken in the near future.

Game officials are checking up fishermen to see that they do not take and keep short length bass or pickerel.

The summer issue of the telephone directory is being distributed to subscribers in the Danielson division.

Raymond Allen, formerly postmaster here, is preparing to remove his family to New Haven, where he has been filling a position for some time.

In about the usual number, youngsters are taking chances of being killed or seriously injured, while playing baseball in the streets.

There are reasons for believing that the Harris Mill building, on Canal street, recently vacated by the H. K. H. Silk Company, is soon to have a new tenant. Stephen Harris of Providence, agent for the Harris estate, which owns the mill property as well as the trench that runs along the river, says that no definite statement can be made yet.

The building, however, is being thoroughly overhauled and put in the best of condition. New floors are being laid throughout and shored up at any point where extra strength may be required, so as to carry heavy machinery. The structure has always been kept in good repair, so that the amount that is being expended, which will run into several thousands of dollars would indicate that this very desirable manufacturing property has been leased. The water from the trench is ample for power and for manufacturing purposes, when water is a part of the process. James Smith, who has the contract for putting the building into shape has been at work for several weeks and has many weeks of work ahead.

RAIDING THE COUNTRYSIDE

The governor of Pennsylvania has received complaints from the residents of the mountainous regions of that state against the practice which is indulged in by motorists from the cities of raiding the countryside of the attractive flowers. They refer particularly to the raids made upon the rhododendrons, golden rod and other plants.

The visitors to the country in Pennsylvania are apparently not much different than those who make similar excursions in other states. There is invariably a disposition to appreciate the beauties of the wild flowers and plants, the shrubs which grow on the mountain sides and the products which in many regard as belonging to no one and open to the claim of the first comer.

As for the golden rod, a pretty flower which so many like to gather for home decoration purposes, it seems hardly probable that there will be any real serious opposition to gathering it. Certainly the hay fever sufferers will have no objection. On the other hand they would welcome the disappearance of the rag weed, and might even object to any measures that should check its destruction.

When it comes to the matter of rhododendrons and laurel, or other flowers which could be easily threatened with extinction if there was no check placed upon the inroads, the situation is different, and many states have found it necessary to adopt legislation for their protection.

"Oh, let's get that," is the attitude taken in too many instances by those riding into the country when they see something that attracts their eye, or appeals to their appetite. It makes little difference where it is. If it is in the highway it seems to be fair prey for most anyone, but if it is on private property there is no more justification for making a raid than there would be for going into an attractive flower gadren and taking everything that could be found in blossom, or pull the plants up by the roots to grace some other grounds.

It is because of the unreasonableness of motorists and the effects of the wholesale raiding that so many protests are justified.

DRUNKEN DRIVERS

How much of a menace the drunken driver is on the highways of the country is indicated by the fact that for the first six months of the year there have been 2,233 suspensions of licenses for that reason in Massachusetts, or a gain of 45 over the same period last year.

Suspension of licenses is a separate matter from punishment in court because of driving while under the influence of liquor. The number of suspensions does not necessarily mean that as many persons have been punished under the law. Some may have been, others may have had their cases nolled or they may have been otherwise leniently dealt with by the courts.

With the registrar of motor vehicles of Massachusetts the effort is apparently to treat all alike as far as suspension is concerned when individuals are in a condition to deserve it. Suspensions may be for longer or shorter periods but it is seldom that drivers are excused for being drunk.

The larger number of suspensions may be due to the fact that increased attention is being given to this matter, and to some extent it may be attributable to the increase in the number of automobiles, the number of drunken drivers increasing in proportion as the registrations increase. But whatever the cause of it may be, the fact that there is a tendency to disregard the law by so many and to subject other highway users to the dangers which are involved when drunken drivers are abroad calls for the application of the penalty in every instance with a gradual stiffening of it, for the purpose of eliminating what so seriously reduces the safety of the highways. Good and sufficient reason for such action on the part of the courts is furnished by the inclination on the part of such drivers to figure they will get nothing more serious than a fine, while they may be willing to take a chance of being caught driving while their license is suspended. The situation is one which appears to call for better enforcement on the part of the courts.

DETECTING THE SMUGGLED

Federal authorities are at work in Rhode Island rounding up and deporting those aliens who have been smuggled in or gotten into the country illegally. Some of these have been in the country for two years and are to be sent back to Canada, whence they came. Two families have been started north and there are more who will be similarly treated.

In such instances there is no other course to pursue in justice to those immigrants who have been made to comply with our laws. Not only do those who get in regardless of the law defy the restrictions but they violate the provisions concerning illiteracy and health.

Perhaps the time will come some day when it will be necessary for all aliens to register. Such a plan for keeping tabs upon those who are entitled to be here and those who are not would decrease the temptation to violate the law concerning entrance. It would not be possible for entire families to be here over two years without detection under such conditions. The ease with which it is possible to cross the border unhindered is indicated by the fact that illiterates and entire families do it, and many continue to reside here without detection as long as they remain out of trouble, escape becoming dependents or maintain their health.

Our restrictive immigration laws are serving to stop the rush of undesirables through the regular channels. They likewise serve to cause those who cannot get in under the laws to seek entrance the best way they can, and to interest many in encouraging such illegal traffic. For our own protection and in the interest of those who respect the law this smuggling should be stopped. Deportation will serve to help but until it is possible to come somewhere near deporting all those who are here illegally that will not act as a very effective deterrent. Let registration point out those who ought to be deported and better results would be obtained.

CUTTING THE TAXES

When Senator Pepper says we cannot have too many who are agitating for the reduction of taxation he is apparently recognizing the importance of meeting the national desire and recognize the value not only of public sentiment but the general endorsement which national legislators are giving to such a program.

Agitating for tax reduction doesn't mean that it is bound to follow. With a general demand it seems impossible that it could be denied, and yet there have been instances where the playing of politics in congress has seemed to operate directly against the enactment of legislation that would meet public approval and accomplish the best results.

The agitation to which he refers, however, indicates a marked change in attitude on the part of many. Some who were teetotally opposed to cutting the surtaxes are now advocating deeper slashes that those who have always maintained there should be a substantial reduction. Some are also advocating the abandonment of all restraint when it comes to cutting taxes in order to better meet the popular desire. The fact is that common sense with a full knowledge of the conditions under which cutting is to be done must govern. There must be no reckless abandon. Taxes should be cut in preference to piling up appropriations that would decrease the surplus, but the reduction should be in accord with the facts and not under a hit or miss plan that is put forth for political effect. With the agitation for reduction there is recognition of what the people want and response to that demand must be along the lines of safety and sanity. Let there be a scientific cut and not a raid upon the treasury.

THE NORRIS DECISION

There may be some surprise occasioned by the decision of Senator Norris that he cannot accept the invitation to accept the leadership of the third party. Senator Norris was a bosom friend of LaFollette and he admits it, but he points out that he has no sympathy for the third party. He even declares that he was not in favor of it last year in spite of the fact that he seemed to give it just about as much encouragement as he could without actually stepping into it. He was certainly not engaged in promoting the best interests of the party of which he is rated as a member, but by his conduct was certainly giving comfort to the opposition.

He has plainly stated that he is not firmly attached to any party, that he holds party ties lightly, and this can be readily believed as the results of his methods. That he should be selected for the leadership of the third party, or at least had it offered to him, indicates the manner in which the third party members rate him. They have confidence that he would serve them admirably and, even though as has declined, that certainly doesn't improve the rating which he has been getting as a republican.

Perhaps there will be quite as much disappointment as well as surprise over his refusal. A known quantity outside is much preferred to an unknown quantity inside. Norris as a third partyite would be subject to classification. He wouldn't be able to wiggle all over the board. As it is there's no telling what to expect of him. He certainly does hold party lines lightly.

STARTING SOMETHING

"Well, why don't you be the pioneer and start something?" suggested the best friend who was also the roommate of the young man who had seen a great light. "Most girls are a pretty good sort and would see the point—they aren't all gold-diggers!"

"Yes, why?" repeated the young man who was getting ready to go out. "Helen just doesnt realize what a man spends these days taking the girls out!"

"Attaboy!" cheered the roommate. "Talk it over with her!"

"Let's not go out anywhere tonight," the young man who had seen a great light began when the pretty girl opened the door at his ring. "Do you mind?"

"Of course not!" she agreed. "You aren't sick or anything are you, Arnold? I don't know where we can sit because the family is all over the living room and my brother is fixing the radio in the dining room and—"

"Oh, we were just going upstairs!" broke in her mother who had gathered up embroidery, magazine and father with a fell look. Her very back bespoke surprise at this unheard-of invasion of the home. When had Helen and a young man ever stayed in?

"Do you suppose," she asked intensely of Helen's father, "that it can be that Arnold is serious? He looked sort of queer and solemn! Dear me!"

This does seem sort of nice and cozy!" the pretty girl murmured when they were settled on the big divan "And odd."

"It's fine!" the young man said happily. "I like it lots better than always being out in those jazz mobs where we can't hear ourselves think or talk if we want to!" Once in a while I do enjoy it, but give me this for a steady thing for real pleasure!"

The pretty girl stared at him. "Why, Arnold!" she half gasped. "I thought you wanted something stirring every minute!"

"That was because I thought you did," the young man told her. "I thought that unless I rushed you around every second you wouldn't waste any time on me, and we're such good pals that I didn't want to lose out!"

The pretty girl shook her head and her lashes drooped. "You couldn't, Arnold," she told him. "That is, I mean it is interesting just being with you with nothing else going on! Why didn't you tell me how you felt about it before this?"

"I knew you'd be this way!" the young man assured her fervently. "There just isn't another girl like you on earth! You are so sensible and understanding as well as so awfully pretty—yes, you are! I don't know a girl I'd explain things to as I want to explain them to you, Helen—about you and me—"

"Why, Arnold," the pretty girl murmured. "What do you mean?"

He had never realized what a deep blue her eyes were until she raised them to his just then. "It's like this," he plunged. "I want to save money and get ahead in the world. I make a good salary and there are chances for investments and if I don't have money on hand—you see?"

"Y-e-s," breathed the pretty girl, bending in the edges of a satin sofa pillow.

"It isn't that I don't have the best time on earth when I go out for the evening," he continued earnestly, "and I want to do it now and then—but part of the time why can't we just talk like this, or go to the movies, or I'll bring something to cook on the chafing dish, just by ourselves—you see, there is so much time ahead—and I want—it's so hard for a young fellow to get established these days—"

"I'd just love to help you do it," the pretty girl said softly. "I—I always want to help you all I can, Arnold! I——"

They looked at one another just then and it happened right away that his arms were around her and her head was on his shoulder and they were telling one another that this had been intended to happen for a thousand, thousand years!

"Well," asked the roommate later on when the young man blew in, "how'd she take it? Going to save your coin from now on?"

The young man grinned a bit sheepishly. He still wore a look of great surprise. "I'll say I am," he admitted. "Why—why, I'm going to get married!"—Exchange.

Stories That Recall Others

Disappointed

Shortly after Calvin Coolidge became president, Anna went to Washington to visit her aunt. When the aunt suggested to her niece that she might arrange for her to be presented to the president of the United States her eyes went wide. What could be more thrilling?

So the short visit was arranged and Anna was taken to the white house. Acknowledging the introduction, President Coolidge said to his secretary, with a smile, "You start them in pretty young to be republicans, don't you?"

After a few minutes of light conversation the visit was concluded and the children withdrew. "Well, what dis you think of the president," asked the aunt.

"Is that all there is to seeing the president, auntie? Why, he never even asked us to sit down. I thought there would be a lot more to it than that."

Becoming Americanized

She was from Europe and had not had time to become fully acquainted with all the details of her new environment.

After living a time in the city she spent a vacation in the country with relatives of a city friend. While there she employed her hostess to do some sewing, for which she was to send the money after returning to the city.

On her return she called at the money order window of the postoffice and an application blank was given her. She spent some time at the desk and presently returned to the window with the blank filled out as follows: "Dear Mat. I send you three dollars. Love to Albert and kisses to Robbie."

Embarrassed when she found she had blundered, she sought the aid of a friend, filled out the application correctly and got the money order. Thinking it a receipt for the money, she carried it in her purse and said, "Every time I see that piece slip I know Mat has her money." Some 60 days later when the postmaster started an inquiry she learned that the "blue slip" was for her friend.

The same woman while in the country was served fresh eggs after having used the cold storage product in the city. On the first such occasion she said enthusiastically: "How good it is to get an egg that the hen laid herself."

From Small Beginnings

Humphrey Marshall, the Stone Worker, an American Botanist.

One of the pleasant stories of American biography is the story of Humphrey Marshall, who rose from being an humble worker in stone to become a distinguished botanist, known on both sides of the Atlantic and every where honored for his learning. The story of Humphrey shows what advantages a man can gain by cultivating the work that he most enjoys doing. Perhaps the real secret of all success lies in finding some work that is thoroughly delightful, and the sticking to that work through thick and thin.

Humphrey Marshall, like so many other great men, was born in a little country hamlet without any of the advantages that city life is supposed to give. Nevertheless, from his country surroundings he gained the very impulses and desires that led to his fame. At the time when he was born the present state of Pennsylvania was but sparsely settled, for it was some 54 years before the beginning of the American Revolution. In those days every one was a worker, and in the country districts, such as the place where Humphrey Marshall lived, every one was a hard worker. There was need of stone walls for houses and of stone fences for fields. The young man became expert in the cutting and the laying of stone and found his services in much demand.

When he was 26 he became a farmer, and spent long days in the fields. Very tenderly indeed did he look at what he grew, for here, he felt, was life, a thing worthy of admiration and wonder. More and more he studied the plant and tree world, until he made himself a botanist from sheer love of studying nature. Then he came into a small property and found himself set free from arduous labor. He began to note down what he saw, and by the time he was 62 he brought out a complete list of all the trees and shrubs that he knew—a list that laid the foundations for much of American botany. His learning brought him into contact with his fellow men, who consulted him on many matters and looked upon him with the greatest respect. He, in his turn, showed his good will by founding a garden where al manner of plants might be seen and studied. In his old age he saw his list of American trees and shrubs translated into French, and saw his fame extending beyond his own land.

He lived to the ripe old age of 79, a sort of earlier John Burroughs, loving nature and devoted to its study. The patient, kindly, studious life of such a man is a great triumph. The builder of walls, who had stopped in his work to admire the flowers and trees, had made himself famous because of the nature-love that was in his heart.

CHILD TRAINING

FIFTY-FIFTY
By Betty's Father

"Betty has been very naughty today Daddy, and I want you to take her upstairs and punish her," was the pathetic greeting I received from Betty's mother one evening just after returning home.

Then followed a list of our small daughter's shortcomings, and I reluctantly took Betty in my arms and started to mount the stairs. When about half way up, she pointed to her kiddie kar turned upside-down on the landing. I had given her this kiddie kar fully three weeks before. In fact, it was already showing signs of wear.

"Thank you, Daddy Dear, for that nice kiddie kar you gave me," said Betty, winningly, her tearful cheek pressed close against mine.

I put the little tad down and strode back to the kitchen where my wife was engaged in preparing the meal.

The spirit of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence was in my heart. "If you want Betty punished, Little Mother," I told her, "I guess you'll have to do it yourself this time!"

And right then we decided upon our future course of action concerning Little Daughter's discipline. Whatever misdemeanors she should be guilty of when I happened to be present, regarding which I would have definite, personal knowledge, should be punishable by me. I agreed to take all responsibility for them and deal with them to the best of my ability and conscience. However, if Betty cut up any capers in my absence, her mother should attend to the matter.

Surely Father should take a part in family discipline. It is unjust to expect Mother to do it all! But on the other hand, is it not unjust to ask him to punish for offenses committed in his absence? Can he possibly deal as fairly with the little offender as the mother, in whose presence the child was naughty? Should Father be obliged to impersonate an old ogre whose home-coming is awaited with dread of impending punishment? I believe the reader will stand by me in answering all three questions, "No."

Lets try to go fifty-fifty in this discipline business, Fathers and Mothers. It will work out better for the youngsters, and be easier for us.

Might Be Possible

"The kinds of buttons and the way of using them are varied," read Mrs. Grouch, who was giving the fashion page the once over. "I suppose," growled her husband, "they might even be used to hold my underwear on if I ever could get them sewed on."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Pink Pearls

Pink pearls are scarce and found only off the Bahama islands, although pink-tinted pearls are found in mussel shells in some rivers of the United States.

High in Nutrition

That the pecan is high in nutrition is a known fact. This nutritive value is the result of its fat and protein content. The pecan offers a high food value in a concentrated form, and for that reason food authorities recommend that it be eaten in conjunction with bulkier foods to secure proper assimilation.

Good Word for Winter

Take winter as you find him, and he turns out to be a thoroughly honest fellow, with no nonsense in him and tolerating none in you, which is a great comfort in the long run.—Lowell.

Job for Police

Early in the morning a woman telephoned for the Reading (Pa.) police to come to her house, and upon the arrival of the officers in a car, she requested them to compel her son to take his cough medicine, which the lad had refused to do. The police declined jurisdiction.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

100 Per Cent. Americanism

Mr. Editor: I have read with interest several letters along religious lines signed in turn Panizzoli, Ouimet and Poreda and find like all such letters that one fact stands out plainer than all others and that is—to use modern slang—"they get us no where."

Supposing all the claims of all three to be exactly as they claim are they not writing of matters that have gone into history ages ago and were made history by an entirely different class of people than we have today?

We had no Americans in those days to temper both politics and religion. We had no genuine 100 per cent. "get there and get there right Americanism" that marches ever onward towards the shining bright light of progress and advancement, in the days they write of, consequently we must be pardoned if we do not agree to stop the onward advance of American ideals to allow religious, political or any other kind of argument to disturb our Americanism that has no political or religious equal in the world's history.

America is one land that will not tolerate either political or religious interference in its onward march, as has been often proven. Just a word or two about what has happened in the past right here, before genuine Americanism had its birth in American Independence and I'll leave that subject. Now all well know that the first people who landed on our shores claimed that they came to worship God according to their own desires and immediately started in preventing others from doing the same. The story of religious bigotry and abusive methods used by those people and their descendants has been closed like an old account book never to be opened, closed by the birth of genuine Americanism that will not allow religious intolerance or bigotry of any kind.

No people were treated worse in those early days in our land than the Roman Catholic priest that had to hide in a cave near Boston and the Baptist minister that was driven to Rhode Island from the Plymouth colony.

While among certain kinds of people in all ages, such arguments as those of Panizzoli, Ouimet and Poreda are common. A careful scrutiny of the writings, be they short letters or long articles, even books, proves beyond a shadow of doubt that shades of the dark ages that are past and gone have in some way clouded the brain of the writers to the changes in times and onward march of civilization towards higher ideals, broader thought, towards the one command of Jesus, "Love one another," and to tell the whole story quickly and correctly to stamp out all forms of social, political or religious bigotry with genuine 100 per cent. Americanism.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Clarence C. Little, who has resigned the presidency of the University of Maine to become president of the University of Michigan, was born in Brookline, Mass., in 1888, and is one of the youngest college presidents in America. In 1910 he received his A. B. from Harvard which college in 1912 gave him his S. M. and his S. D. in 1914. After graduating from Harvard he became secretary to the corporation. Then in 1912 he became an assistant dean of the college, a position he held until the war broke out when he went to Pittsburgh and was commissioned a captain in the Signal Corps. He served as head of the aviation examining boards until the Student Army Training Corps was organized when he was detailed to work in the colleges. After the war he became director of the Carnegie Institute's Long Island station for experimental evolution and continued in that position until invited to become head of the Maine university in 1922.

OBITUARY

Miss Mary Murphy

The death of Miss Mary Murphy, formerly of Plainville, occurred Thursday morning at 8 o'clock at the home of her sister, Mrs. John Woods of Baltic, following an illness of three weeks. Miss Murphy was living with her sister when taken ill and was tenderly cared for throughout her illness.

She was born in Ireland, June 17, 1858, the daughter of the late John and Amoris McCormick Murphy, and came to this country when a young girl, living for a number of years in Taftville and Norwich. Of recent years she moved to Plainville but had lately returned to the home of her sister in Baltic where she planned to remain.

Miss Murphy is survived by the following brothers and sisters, Mrs. John Woods of Baltic, Mrs. Julia Raddigan of Worcester, Mass., Mrs. Catherine Nolan of Plainville, Mrs. Nellis O'Neil of Norwich, Daniel and James Murphy of Norwich, Valentine L. Murphy of Willimantic and John Murphy of Bridgeport. There are also several nephews and nieces.

Miss Murphy will be remembered by her many friends in Taftville and Norwich who will learn of her death with deep sorrow.

Miss Ellen Agnes Coughlin.

The death of Miss Ellen Agnes Coughlin, of 41 Prospect street, occurred at her summer home at Pleasant View beach, R. I. following a short illness, during which she was tenderly cared for by members of the family who were at the bedside when the end came.

Miss Coughlin was born in Norwich the daughter of Ellen Brennan Coughlin and the late William Henry Coughlin and had always resided here. She was a member of St. Mary's Memorial church and was most popular with the young people of the city.

Possessing a pleasing disposition she took delight in making others happy. A host of friends will mourn her loss and expressions of heartfelt sympathy are extended to the family in their bereavement. Miss Coughlin is survived by her mother, eight sisters and two brothers.

FUNERALS.

Mrs. Frederick J. Dyer.

Funeral services for Mrs. Frederick J. Dyer were held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from her late home at 30 Hedge avenue. There was a large attendance at the service and the floral tributes were most beautiful.

The service was conducted by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church. Burial was in Maplewood cemetery where the committal service was read by Rev. Mr. Ricketts. Bearers were Frank T. Fitch, Edward Dyer, Frederick Dyer, Leonard Purvis, Frank Lumis and George Dyer. Arrangements were by Church and Allen.

Mrs. John Harrigan.

Funeral services for Mrs. John Harrigan were held Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock from her late residence, 148 Cliff street, with solemn high requiem mass in St. Mary's Memorial church at 9 o'clock. Rev. William A. Keefe was celebrant of the mass, being assisted by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May as deacon and Rev. Frederick M. Coholan as subdeacon. Miss Elizabeth Malone was at the organ during the service and at the offertory Miss Sadie Driscoll sang Pie Jesu. For a waiting hymn Miss Driscoll sang Beautiful Land on High and for the processional Lead Kindly Light.

Burial was in the family lot in St. Mary's cemetery where Father Keefe read a committal service. The bearers were John O'Donovan, Maurice Kelly, Daniel Sullivan of Norwich, George Hayes, Harry Kennedy, Edward Legard of New London.

Relatives and friends attended the service from Hartford, New London, Jewett City and other places and the many beautiful floral tributes were testimonials of loving esteem. Cummings & Ring were in charge of the arrangements.

Eagles Continue Pinochle Play

The Eagles continue to show interest in their weekly pinochle held every Thursday evening at their club rooms.

High scores for the evening were made as follows: 1st, N. Petrone, 7,350; 2nd, H. Clement, 6,680; 3rd, E. J. Mullins, 6,675.

The entertainment committee is planning on a pitch tournament among the members who have not been playing in the weekly pinochle.

PENNSYLVANIA VISITOR IS FOUND FISHING IN FAIRVIEW RESERVOIR

Alleck Gesak, 57, arrived here from Simpson, Penn., Thursday, for a visit at the Mike Pisarke farm at Taftville. Towards the close of the day he felt the lure of rod and reel which led him to seek water where he might try his luck. But he unfortunately picked out Fairview reservoir and there he was found by Deputy Game Warden W. S. Watson of Baltic, who was doing a little scouting in the reservoir neighborhood.

Deputy Warden Watson arrested the man and secured the hook, with its wriggling worm bait, the pole and line as evidence, all of which he brought to police headquarters.

Besides fishing in the reservoir which is against the law, Gesak was transgressing another game law because he had no license to fish. Bonds were set at $300, which were supplied, for Gesak's appearance in the city court this (Friday) morning. It is understood that the maximum fine for fishing in a reservoir is $100.

CONTROL BOARD CANNOT RAISE STATUTE SALARIES

The state board of control at its meeting Thursday in Hartford had before it sixteen applications for increase in salaries under the act of the general assembly by which all the petitions before the session of 1925 for increase in compensation were referred to the board. There were about eighty of these petitions.

Since the printing of the act in engrossed form it has been discovered that the scope of the authority of the board of control in the matter is much more limited than it was thought to be. The authority of the board is limited to commissioners and deputies, and it has no authority to change the salary of officials whose compensation is fixed by statute. With this limitation a large number of the petitions will be shelved without action being taken on them. This disposition will be a disappointment to many applicants. The board will not have the power to increase the salaries of sheriffs of counties.

The board voted to add $3,110 to the appropriation to meet the expenses of the last session of the general assembly. The total amount of the expenses of the session is $255,000

The Connecticut Agricultural college was authorized to build a coal trestle in Mansfield at a cost of $15,000. The general assembly voted an appropriation of that amount for the work.

William Veitch, caretaker of the grounds at the experiment station in New Haven, was retired on an allowance of $900 a year. Mr. Veitch is 70 years old and has been in the employ of the state for twenty-three years and six months. His home is in Guilford.

The sum of $1,250 was voted to Tax Commissioner Blodgett from the "sundry purposes" account for the administration of the moving picture law.

The sum of $2,750 was voted to the town of Portland and $200 to North Canaan on account of railroad indebtedness.

MOOSUP PROSPEROUS VILLAGE, THREE BIG PLANTS BUSY

Showing how prosperous is the village of Moosup, the Moosup Journal says: At Moosup the Aldrich Bros. Co. makers of fine cotton and silk and cotton goods, operates over forty-nine thousand spindles and employes about 725 hands. The output of this prosperous factory is in process of being considerably increased by the addition of 590 looms which will make a total of nearly two thousand looms under one roof, making the number of looms nearly equal to that used at the Lawton Mills in Plainfield, where 2,445 are operated. This Plainfield mill employs about a thousand persons in the plant where over one hundred twenty-eight thousand spindles are running.

At the mill of the Floyd Cranska Co. in Moosup the output is entirely thread, of both domestic and commercial types; here are employed 206 persons. At the Moosup Mills of the American Woolen Co. about 1,200 persons are employed; woolen suitings are manufactured and 100 looms are operated. The above figures mean that about 1,300 persons are on the pay rolls of textile plants in Moosup.

REPORTED MISSING FROM TUG AT NEW LONDON

NEW LONDON, July 9.—(AP)—Harold Gibney, of New York, a member of the crew of the tug Elmer A. Keeler, which arrived here Tuesday, was reported missing tonight by the tug's master, Captain Fred Smith, who notified the police. Gibney left the tug at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, stating that he was coming in to New London to make some purchases. He has not been seen since.

He is described as being 35 years old, five feet six inches tall, medium build, has blue eyes, and when last seen was wearing a pair of overalls and a jumper.

$4,194,750 IN FEDERAL FARM LOANS IN STATE

Federal land banks closed 1,237 loans totaling $4,194,750 in Connecticut during May, according to a report from the federal farm loan bureau at the treasury department. These figures are the third of a series which indicate a slow but steady increase in the number and amount of farm loans closed in Connecticut this spring.

They are compared with 1,227 loans totaling $4,128,150 closed in April and 1,215 loans totaling $4,080,650 closed in Connecticut during April.

The Nutmeg state holds second place in New England with respect to farm loans.

TAKES LONG LEASE OF MAIN STREET BUILDING

Harry Lahn of this city has leased from George Greenberger for a long term of years the entire building at 162-164 Main street. This is the property where the Harry Lahn Toggery Shoppe was in business for five years and it is now occupied by Fazan's Smoke shop, Bob's Man Shoppe and Pasnik's store.

Mr. Lahn takes the lease for investment purposes.

Burglar Scare at Boardman's

A broken rail near the backdoor of Albert Boardman's store in the Bulletin building on Franklin street and a broken catch on a window gave suspicion of an attempt at burglary Thursday night. The police investigated and Mr. Boardman was summoned to the store.

It was determined that no one had gotten into the store.

Not Norwich Man.

Tom Mahoney, of 52 Convent avenue, states that he was not the man of that name intoxicated in New London, as reported by The Bulletin's special New London correspondence. There was nothing in the item to indicate that it was the Norwich man, but Mr. Mahoney was annoyed by being questioned about it.

For Liquor Law Violation.

James Novack, 27, of Uncasville, was arrested there, Thursday morning, by State Policeman Giles Watson, charged with violation of the liquor law. He will be presented before a justice's court.

Platinum is the only metal on which no single acid has an effect. The only acid that will touch the metal is a mixture of nitric and hydrochloric.

TWO ANDOVER MEN WORKED INSURANCE FRAUD

Charged with obtaining money under false pretenses and selling insurance in this state without a license to engage in that business, William C. Silver, 27, and his brother, Nathan Silver, 24, both of Andover, were each sentenced to jail for fifteen days and fined $50 and costs in police court at Hartford Thursday.

In disposing of the case Judge Day said that the accused had evidently "prey on people who were not familiar with business usages and printed matter."

Testimony against the accused was given by eight Hartford men who were fleeced by the fake insurance agents.

Ruskin, one of the "policyholders" was involved in an automobile accident shortly after he accepted the policy. When he tried to collect, Silver informed Ruskin that he would be "given credit on the amounts yet to be paid" on the policy.

Information was obtained by the police to the effect that others had been mulcted by the bogus agents in Hartford but had not filed formal complaints at headquarters.

The "policy" offered by the Silvers in the "bargain" drive "covered everything," including "towing service, discounts on automobile accessories, legal service and insurance on the automobile in every form up to $10,000." During the "drive" the "policy" could be purchased at the rate of $42, covering a period of two years. The "regular" rate, it was explained to the prospective victim was $45 a year. The Silvers claimed in each case that the law firm of Schatz & Shartz of Hartford were the local representatives of the "American Automobile Service League." Judge Nathan A. Schatz denied that his firm had any connection with the alleged New York company, though the papers given those who "took advantage of the bargain week" bore the name of the local law firm.

The Silvers were arrested in Springfield, Mass., last week on a charge of selling insurance without a license in that state. They were each fined $25 and costs. The case had been investigated in Hartford by Detecteive Sergeants Hallisey and Moriarty.

It was brought out, through a letter received by Police Chief Garrett J. Farrell that the Silvers, operating under the name of Silver Road Service Incorporated, were under investigation by Newark, N. J. police about a year ago.

EVENING OF CARDS BY A. O. H. LADIES' AUXILIARY

An enjoyable evening of cards was held, Wednesday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O'Neil, of East Great Plains, by Division 54, Ladies' auxiliary, A. O. H. Plans had been made to play on the lawn but, owing to the storm, the tables were on the porch and indoors. There were fourteen tables of whist and four of pinochle in play.

The pinochle prizes went to Mrs. Louise Manchester, first; Mrs. George Nadolny, second; James O'Neil, first, and James Dwyer, second. Consolations, Mrs. William Farrell and J. Dewire, and the door prize was awarded to Mrs. John McCarthy. Fruit punch and cake were served by the committee in charge: Miss Catherine Coughlin, Mrs. John Moore, Mrs. Timothy Brewer, Mrs. Julia Brock, Mrs. Charles O'Neil, Mrs. Charles Woodmansee, Mrs. Alvin Barrows, Miss Mary Fallon, Miss Catherine Sullivan and Miss Nellie Nagle.

The scorers were the Misses Catherine Conefrey, Nellie McCarthy, Elizabeth Sullivan and Margaret Slattery.

During the evening the party was visited by the division chaplain, Monsignor May.

INTERSTATE CONFERENCE ON TAXES ADJOURNS

NEW YORK, July 9—(A. P.)—With the adjournment of the Interstate Tax Conference, in which representative officials from New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, and Connecticut met today to discuss means for securing reciprocal tax exemption, it was announced that the repreentatives would draw up tentative composite regulations to be considered again within a month.

Such a composite set of regulations would affect inheritance tax exemptions between not only the four states in this conference but between them and the states of Florida, Alabama, Nevada, Rhode Island, Nebraska and the District of Columbia.

This is the first intelligent move to untagle the complicated situation brought about by the multiple and overlapping taxes of several states," Mark Graves of the New York state tax commission said in speaking of the proposed regulations.

Several millions dollars of taxes, paid in duplicate assessments on corporation holdings in various states, are involved. The officials are seeking a way to eliminate double taxes in the future.

FILM TAX HEARING IN U. S. COURT TODAY

NEW HAVEN, July 9.—(AP)—Many motion picture men are expected to come to this city tomorrow when a hearing will be held before a special United States court on the application to enjoin state officials from enforcing the new motion picture tax law and to declare the new law in conflict with the constitution of the United States. The hearing will begin at 10 o'clock before Judges Henry W. Rogers, Henry Goddard and Thomas Thatcher, of New York.

While the action is brought in behalf of New York and Boston, Connecticut exhibitors are also vitally concerned in the proceedings and the Connecticut Theater Owners' association today appointed a committee of five of its members to appear with counsel for the two plaintiff companies at the hearing.

Of the 6,700 Brazilians over 100 years of age, 4,100 are women and only 2,600 men.

STATE'S ATTORNEYS MEET GOVERNOR ABOUT DETECTIVES

State's attorneys representing seven of the eight counties of Connecticut, after a long confgrence at the supreme court building in Hartford Thursday noon, met Governor Trumbull in his office at 2:30 in the afternoon.

The issue was the governor's announced intention of approving as county detectives only men who are members of the state police force. This intention the state's attorneys, more particularly Hugh M. Alcorn of Hartford county and Walter Holcomb of Litchfield county, have been discussing ways of circumvening. The governor's action is based on a law passed by the last general assembly, said to have been aimed chiefly at Mr. Alcorn, whose county detective, Edward J. Hickey, has had some friction with the state police. There has also been ill feeling between the state police and Detective Pomanio of Litchfield county.

Thursday's meeting, which began at 11 o'clock, was attended by State's Attorney William H. Comley of Fairfield county, State's Attorney Arthur M. Brown of New London county, State's Attorney Thomas F. Noone of Tolland county; State's Attorney Lawrence I. Lewis of Waterbury, State's Attorney Walter Holcomb of Litchfield county, State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn and Assistant State's Attorney R. L. Gideon of Hartford county and Howard C. Bradford of Putnam, representing State's Attorney Charles E. Searles of Windham county. This is the second meeting the state's attorneys have held for this purpose. The first one was held on July 1.

Mrs. John Harrigan.

Funeral services for Mrs. John Harrigan were held Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock from her late residence, 148 Cliff street, with solemn high requiem mass in St. Mary's Memorial church at 9 o'clock. Rev. William A. Keefe was celebrant of the mass, being assisted by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May as deacon and Rev. Frederick M. Coholan as subdeacon. Miss Elizabeth Malone was at the organ during the service and at the offertory Miss Sadie Driscoll sang Pie Jesu. For a waiting hymn Miss Driscoll sang Beautiful Land on High and for the processional Lead Kindly Light.

Burial was in the family lot in St. Mary's cemetery where Father Keefe read a committal service. The bearers were John O'Donovan, Maurice Kelly, Daniel Sullivan of Norwich, George Hayes, Harry Kennedy, Edward Legard of New London.

Relatives and friends attended the service from Hartford, New London, Jewett City, and other places and the many beautiful floral tributes were testimonials of loving esteem. Cummings & Ring were in charge of the arrangements.

Eagles Continue Pinochle Play

The Eagles continue to show interest in their weekly pinochle held every Thursday evening at their club rooms.

High scores for the evening were made as follows: 1st. N. Petrone, 7,360; 2nd, H. Clement, 6,680; 3rd, E. J. Mullins, 6,675.

The entertainment committee is planning on a pitch tournament among the members who have not been playing in the weekly pinochle.

City Court Business

Three men, who parked their cars for over five hours on Market and Water street, were given warnings in the city court Thursday morning.

A Thamesville man who put his wife and baby out of the house had his case of breach of the peace continued for six months and was obliged to pay costs of $5.06.

Robert Tattoon, colored, of Meriden, whose home is Putnam, had his case continued for six months. He was found asleep and intoxicated in his automobile which was standing in Falls avenue with the lights on.

PENNSYLVANIA VISITOR IS FOUND FISHING IN FAIRVIEW RESERVOIR

Alleck Gesak, 57, arrived here from Simpson, Penn., Thursday, for a visit at the Mike Pisarke farm at Taftville. Towards the close of the day he felt the lure of rod and reel which led him to seek water where he might try his luck. But he unfortunately picked out Fairview reservoir and there he was found by Deputy Game Warden W. S. Watson of Baltic, who was doing a little scouting in the reservoir neighborhood.

Deputy Warden Watson arrested the man and secured the hook, with its wriggling worm bait, the pole and line as evidence, all of which he brought to police headquarters.

Besides fishing in the reservoir which is against the law, Gesak was transgressing another game law because he had no license to fish. Bonds were set at $300, which were supplied, for Gesak's appearance in the city court this (Friday) morning. It is understood that the maximum fine for fishing in a reservoir is $100.

CONTROL BOARD CANNOT RAISE STATUTE SALARIES

The state board of control at its meeting Thursday in Hartford had before it sixteen applications for increase in salaries under the act of the general assembly by which all the petitions before the session of 1925 for increase in compensation were referred to the board. There were about eighty of these petitions.

Since the printing of the act in engrossed form it has been discovered that the scope of the authority of the board of control in the matter is much more limited than it was thought to be. The authority of the board is limited to commissioners and deputies, and it has no authority to change the salary of officials whose compensation is fixed by statute. With this limitation a large number of the petitions will be shelved without action being taken on them. This disposition will be a disappointment to many applicants. The board will not have the power to increase the salaries of sheriffs of counties.

The board voted to add $3,110 to the appropriation to meet the expenses of the last session of the general assembly. The total amount of the expenses of the session is $255,000.

The Connecticut Agricultural college was authorized to build a coal trestle in Mansfield at a cost of $15,000. The general assembly voted an appropriation of that amount for the work.

William Veitch, caretaker of the grounds at the experiment station in New Haven, was retired on an allowance of $900 a year. Mr. Veitch is 70 years old and has been in the employ of the state for twenty-three years and six months. His home is in Guilford.

The sum of $1,250 was voted to Tax Commissioner Blodgett from the "sundry purposes" account for the administration of the moving picture law.

The sum of $2,750 was voted to the town of Portland and $200 to North Canaan on account of railroad indebtedness.

MOOSUP PROSPEROUS VILLAGE, THREE BIG PLANTS BUSY

Showing how prosperous is the village of Moosup, the Moosup Journal says: At Moosup the Aldrich Bros. Co. makers of fine cotton and silk and cotton goods, operates over forty-nine thousand spindles and employes about 725 hands. The output of this prosperous factory is in process of being considerably increased by the addition of 500 looms which will make a total of nearly two thousand looms under one roof, making the number of looms nearly equal to that used at the Lawton Mills in Plainfield, where 2,445 are operated. This Plainfield mill employs about a thousand persons in the plant where over one hundred twenty-eight thousand spindles are running.

At the mill of the Floyd Cranska Co. in Moosup the output is entirely thread, of both domestic and commercial types; here are employed 256 persons. At the Moosup Mills of the American Woolen Co. about 1,311 persons are employed; woolen suitings are manufactured and 100 looms are operated. The above figures mean that about 1,300 persons are on the pay rolls of textile plants in Moosup.

REPORTED MISSING FROM TUG AT NEW LONDON

NEW LONDON, July 9.—(AP)—Harold Gibney, of New York, a member of the crew of the tug Elmer A. Keeler, which arrived here Tuesday, was reported missing tonight by the tug's master, Captain Fred Smith, who notified the police. Gibney left the tug at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, stating that he was coming in to New London to make some purchases. He has not been seen since.

He is described as being 35 years old, five feet six inches tall, medium build, has blue eyes, and when last seen was wearing a pair of overalls and a jumper.

$4,194,750 IN FEDERAL FARM LOANS IN STATE

Federal land banks closed 1,237 loans totaling $4,194,750 in Connecticut during May, according to a report from the federal farm loan bureau at the treasury department. These figures are the third of a series which indicate a slow but steady increase in the number and amount of farm loans closed in Connecticut this spring.

The figures are compared with 1,227 loans totaling $4,128,150 closed in April and 1,215 loans totaling $4,080,650 closed in Connecticut during April.

The Nutmeg state holds second place in New England with respect to farm loans.

TAKES LONG LEASE OF MAIN STREET BUILDING

Harry Lahn of this city has leased from George Greenberger for a long term of years the entire building at 162-164 Main street. This is the property where the Harry Lahn Toggery Shoppe was in business for five years and it is now occupied by Fagan's Smoke shop, Bob's Man Shoppe and Pasnik's store.

Mr. Lahn takes the lease for investment purposes.

Burglar Scare at Boardman's

A broken rail near the backdoor of Albert Boardman's store in the Bulletin building on Franklin street and a broken catch on a window gave suspicion of an attempt at burglary Thursday night. The police investigated and Mr. Boardman was summoned to the store.

It was determined that no one had gotten into the store.

Not Norwich Man.

Tom Mahoney, of 53 Convent avenue, states that he was not the man of that name intoxicated in New London, as reported by The Bulletin's special New London correspondence. There was nothing in the item to indicate that it was the Norwich man, but Mr. Mahoney was annoyed by being questioned about it.

For Liquor Law Violation.

James Noyack, 27, of Uncasville, was arrested there, Thursday morning, by State Policeman Giles Watson, charged with violation of the liquor law. He will be presented before a justice's court.

TWO ANDOVER MEN WORKED INSURANCE FRAUD

Charged with obtaining money under false pretenses and selling insurance in this state without a license to engage in that business, William C. Silver, 27, and his brother, Nathan Silver, 24, both of Andover, were each sentenced to jail for fifteen days and fined $50 and costs in police court at Hartford Thursday.

In disposing of the case Judge Day said that the accused had evidently "prey on people who were not familiar with business usages and printed matter."

Testimony against the accused was given by eight Hartford men who were fleeced by the fake insurance agents.

Ruskin, one of the "policyholders" was involved in an automobile accident shortly after he accepted the policy. When he tried to collect, Silver informed Ruskin that he would be "given credit on the amounts yet to be paid" on the policy.

Information was obtained by the police to the effect that others had been mulcted by the bogus agents in Hartford but had not filed formal complaints at headquarters.

The "policy" offered by the Silvers in the "bargain" drive "covered everything," including "towing service, discounts on automobile accessories, legal service and insurance on the automobile in every form up to $10,000." During the "drive" the "policy" could be purchased at the rate of $42, covering a period of two years. The "regular" rate, it was explained to the prospective victim, was $45 a year. The Silvers claimed in each case that the law firm of Schatz & Shartz of Hartford were the local representatives of the "American Automobile Service League." Judge Nathan A. Schatz denied that his firm had any connection with the alleged New York company, though the papers given those who "took advantage of the bargain week" bore the name of the local law firm.

The Silvers were arrested in Springfield, Mass., last week on a charge of selling insurance without a license in that state. They were each fined $25 and costs. The case had been investigated in Hartford by Detective Sergeants Hallisey and Moriarty.

It was brought out, through a letter received by Police Chief Garrett J. Farrell that the Silvers, operating under the name of Silver Road Service Incorporated, were under investigation by Newark, N. J., police about a year ago.

EVENING OF CARDS BY A. O. H. LADIES' AUXILIARY

An enjoyable evening of cards was held, Wednesday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O'Neil, of East Great Plains, by Division 54, Ladies' auxiliary, A. O. H. Plans had been made to play on the lawn but, owing to the storm, the tables were on the porch and indoors. There were fourteen tables of whist and four of pinochle in play.

Whist prizes went to Mrs. John McCarthy, first; Miss Eileen O'Neil, second; P. J. Foley, first, and Louie Strom, second. Consolations were awarded to Mrs. John Fitzgerald and Charles O'Neil. The pinochle prizes went to Mrs. Louise Manchester, first; Mrs. George Nadolny, second; James O'Neil, first, and James Dwyer, second. Consolations, Mrs. William Farrell and J. Dewire, and the door prize was awarded to Mrs. John McCarthy. Fruit punch and cake were served by the committee in charge: Miss Catherine Coughlin, Mrs. John Moore, Mrs. Timothy Brewer, Mrs. Julia Brock, Mrs. Charles O'Neil, Mrs. Charles Woodmansee, Mrs. Alvin Barrows, Miss Mary Fallon, Miss Catherine Sullivan and Miss Nellie Nagle.

The scorers were the Misses Catherine Conefrey, Nellie McCarthy, Elizabeth Sullivan and Margaret Slattery.

During the evening the party was visited by the division chaplain, Monsignor May.

INTERSTATE CONFERENCE ON TAXES ADJOURNS

NEW YORK, July 9—(A. P.)—With the adjournment of the Interstate Tax Conference, in which representative officials from New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, and Connecticut met today to discuss means for securing reciprocal tax exemption, it was announced that the repsreentatives would draw up tentative composite regulations to be considered again within a month.

Such a composite set of regulations would affect inheritance tax exemptions between not only the four states in this conference, but between them and the states of Florida, Alabama, Nevada, Rhode Island, Nebraska and the District of Columbia.

"This is the first intelligent move to untagle the complicated situation brought about by the multiple and overlapping taxes of several states." Mark Graves of the New York state tax commission said in speaking of the proposed regulations.

Several millions dollars of taxes, paid in duplicate assessments on corporation holdings in various states, are involved. The officials are seeking a way to eliminate double taxes in the future.

FILM TAX HEARING IN U. S. COURT TODAY

NEW HAVEN, July 9.—(AP)—Many motion picture men are expected to come to this city tomorrow when a hearing will be held before a special United States court on the application to enjoin state officials from enforcing the new motion picture tax law and to declare the new law in conflict with the constitution of the United States. The hearing will begin at 10 o'clock before Judges Henry W. Rogers, Henry Goddard and Thomas Thatcher, of New York.

While the action is brought in behalf of New York, and Boston, Connecticut exhibitors are also vitally concerned in the proceedings and the Connecticut Theater Owners' association today appointed a committee of five of its members to appear with counsel for the two plaintiff companies at the hearing.

Of the 6,700 Brazilians over 100 years of age, 4,100 are women and only 2,600 men.

STATE'S ATTORNEYS MEET GOVERNOR ABOUT DETECTIVES

State's attorneys representing seven of the eight counties of Connecticut, after a long conference at the supreme court building in Hartford Thursday noon, met Governor Trumbull in his office at 2:30 in the afternoon.

The issue was the governor's announced intention of approving as county detectives only men who are members of the state police force. This intention the state's attorneys, more particularly Hugh M. Alcorn of Hartford county and Walter Holcomb of Litchfield county, have been discussing ways of circumvening. The governor's action is based on a law passed by the last general assembly, said to have been aimed chiefly at Mr. Alcorn, whose county detective, Edward J. Hickey, has had some friction with the state police. There has also been ill feeling between the state police and Detective Tomanio of Litchfield county.

Thursday's meeting, which began at 11 o'clock, was attended by State's Attorney William H. Comley of Fairfield county, State's Attorney Arthur M. Brown of New London county, State's Attorney Thomas F. Noone of Tolland county; State's Attorney Lawrence I. Lewis of Waterbury, State's Attorney Walter Holcomb of Litchfield county, State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn and Assistant State's Attorney R. L. Gideon of Hartford county and Howard C. Bradford of Putnam, representing State's Attorney Charles E. Searles of Windham county. This is the second meeting the state's attorneys have held for this purpose. The first one was held on July 1.

VIENNA LAWYER SUES COUNTESS FOR FEES

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., July 9.—(AP)—Summons and complaint was served today upon Countess Salm Von Hoogstraeten in a suit instituted by Dr. Eli Kammerer, Vienna lawyer, who claims a fee of $6,199 for securing validation of her marriage to the count in the high courts of Austria.

Countess Hoogstraeten must file an answer to the complaint within 20 days.

The former Millicent Rogers, New York society girl and granddaughter of Henry H. Rogers of the Standard Oil company, who married the Austria count secretly in New York in January, 1924, was at the country home of her father, Col. Henry Huddleston Rogers, when the papers were served.

The countess has been in this country since last year when she came back with her father after her honeymoon trip to Paris, while the count remained abroad. A son was born to her in September of last year.

OLD INDIAN CAMPAIGNER REACHES RETIRING AGE

CHICAGO, July 9.—(A. P.)—A dinner tonight and a formal reception tomorrow mark the passing of another Indian fighter and old campaigner, Major General Harry C. Hale, from the active ranks of the United States army.

Tomorrow General Hale observes his sixty-fourth birthday and must step aside to permit a younger man to take his place as commander of the Sixth Corps Area.

He will be succeeded by Brigadier General William S. Graves, commander of the American Expeditionary forces in Siberia during the World war. Major General Hale brings to a close 42 years of active army service. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1883 on graduation from West Point. He was born in Knoxville, Illinois, July 10, 1861.

SEAMEN MET ACCIDENTAL DEATH AT HONOLULU

MILFORD, July 9—(A. P.)—Word was received today by the Misses Annie and Nell Nolan, of the accidental death of their nephew, Daniel Thomas Nolan, a seaman on the U. S. S. Colorado, which occurred at Honolulu, July 7. No particulars of his death were contained in the telegram, which was sent by the ship's captain.

Nolan enlisted in 1923. A younger brother is also a member of the crew of the United States ship Colorado and was aboard at the time of his brother's death.

EXPLODING STILL SENT MAN TO HOSPITAL

NEW HAVEN, July 9—(A. P.)—An exploding still in a house in Centerville section of Hamden today sent Catello Conte, 40, to the hospital with burns which were so serious that death may come.

John Fienzo, 29, was also sent to the hospital with burns which he received, according to his story, while he was passing the house in which a still exploded. The burns are on the face, head and neck and are serious.

ESCAPING PRISONER WOUNDED IN THIGH

BRIDGEPORT, July 9—(A. P.)—Seymour Wolff, 32, of Buffalo, N. Y., is in the Bridgeport Hospital today recovering from a bullet wound in the left thigh inflicted early yesterday afternoon by Detective Sergeant Frank Holbrook, when Wolff attempted to escape from custody. Physicians will operate today in an attempt to recover the bullet. Police are tracing Wolff's record in the belief that he is wanted in several New York towns for passing bad checks.

SENATORS TRIM CHICAGO IN 11-INNING CONTEST

CHICAGO, July 9.—(AP)—Chicago's defense went to pieces in the eleventh inning today after George Connally, White Sox pitcher, had been hit in the neck by a line drive off Ruel's bat and forced to retire from the game. Kamm fumbled McNeely's grounder. Hopper let a hit go through him for another error and Lyons uncorked a wild pitch which gave the world champions three runs and the game by a score of 8 to 5. Thurston pitched a good game until the ninth inning when he was driven off the hill. Connally was unable to stop the attack and the visitors tied the score, forcing the game into extra innings.

MADDEN SIGNED ARTICLES TO MEET JACK DEMPSEY

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP)—Floyd Fitzsimmons, Michigan City, Ind., promoter, today announced that Bartley Madden of New York had signed articles to meet Jack Dempsey in a ten-round, no-decision fight for the world's heavyweight championship on Labor day.

Fitzsimmons said he would be unable to complete negotiations with Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, until the champion and his bride return here from Europe on July 14. He declared he had received a cablegram from Dempsey, however, stating that the latter would accept the match if he could get into condition on such short notice. Fitzsimmons proposes to stage the bout in his own arena at Michigan City, which was the scene last year of the Carpentier-Gibbons contest.

Boxing followers looked upon a match between Madden and Dempsey as the first of a series of preliminary fights which the champion has declared would be necessary to prepare him for possible battles next summer with Harry Wills and Gene Tunney. Madden is one of the rugged, aggressive, battle-scarred veterans of the ring. He has fought most of the outstanding men of his class and has never been knocked out.

Madden has frequently lost bouts on decision in the past two years, Wills, Harry Greb, Tom Gibbons and Charley Weinert holding verdicts over him.

NEW HAVEN WOMAN WINS 50 YARD DASH

NEW HAVEN, July 9, (A P)—Men and women swimmers of the state and members of the United States Olympic swimming team took part in a state swimming meet at Momauguin today.

The 50 yard dash for women was won by Emily Cesaynisk, of New Haven, while H. L. Wieland, unattached, won the 50 yard dash for the men. The 440 yard swim for women was won by Marion Bloomer, of Bridgeport and the 880 yard swim for men by Howard Steppe of Hartford.

An exhibition of the breast stroke was given by Agnes Geraghty and the free style and back stroke by Aileen Riggin and Doris O'Mara. The three were members of the Olympic team. Exhibitions of fancy diving were given by Karl Michaels, and Howard Steppe and by Aileen Riggin and Helen Meany.

CHICAGO, July 9.—(A P)—Sid Terris, of New York, rated as one of the leading lightweight contenders in the east, finished training today for a ten round contest with Ace Hudkins of Omaha, at East Chicago, tomorrow night.

GIANTS STILL ONE GAME BEHIND LEADERS

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP)—The Giants drew an even break with the Pirates in a double-header today, dropping the opener 13 to 3 and winning the second game 7 to 5. One game continued to separate the New York club from the leaders.

Emil Yde allowed the Giants but eight scattered hits in the first tilt while his team mates whacked out 16 bingles. McGraw used four pitchers. Meusel's circuit wallop with two on base figures in the only Giant's tallies.

George Kelly's homer with two on the sacks in the seventh inning decided the second game in which the New Yorkers collected 16 hits off Johnny Morrison and Babe Adams. Wayland Dean went the route for the Giants and yielded 10 clouts including a home run by Eddie Moore.

Gowdy, veteran New York catcher, was put out of the second game by protesting a devision. Score:

HOOVER DEPARTS FOR PUTNEY FOR PRACTICE

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, July 9.—(AP)—Walter M. Hoover, American oarsman, went to Putney today to start practicing for the race tentatively set for Monday against Jack Beresford, Jr., of England, holder of the Philadelphia Gold challenge cup which Americans consider emblematic of the world's amateur sculling championship.

In an interview on Beresford's offer to row at Putney, Hoover said today that the final word on the time and place of the race rests with the Fairbairn Cup committee's representative, although Beresford would naturally be expected to make known his wishes regarding the conditions of the race.

Hoover said he was prepared to row on Monday and is making preparations to do so, although it will give him no opportunity to get accustomed to the rougher water and tidal conditions at Putney. Beresford knowing these so well will have a tremendous advantage, Hoover said.

After winning the Henley trophy Beresford announced that he would return the Philadelphia Gold challenge cup, which he holds by virtue of his sculling victory at the Olympic games in Paris last summer, to America without meeting Hoover, who had challenged him for the trophy. Beresford declared the British rowing authorities consider the diamond sculls emblematic of the world's amateur sculling championship and that if he met Hoover he would be competing for a lesser prize than the one awarded him at Henley.

The Philadelphia cup committee appealed to Beresford's "British sportsmanship" to meet Hoover, and today the English oarsman said he had agreed with Hoover regarding the details of the race. He said they would start at 6:15 p. m. on Monday over a course of about a mile and a half. This would be at an hour when the crest of the tide has been reached.

Beresford repeated his previous statement that he intended to return the Philadelphia cup to America regardless of the result of this race.

OPEN AIR BOXING SHOW AT WESTERLY TONIGHT

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, June 9.—At Westerly on Friday evening, July 10, will be held a big open air show, some of the principals and trainers of which arrived in Westerly on Thursday. Five bouts have been arranged to make up the program and there is sure to be some action when the principals meet. In the main bout Pinky Burns of New London will swap punches with Pete August of Bridgeport and whenever boys of this calibre come together action is expected. For the semi-final, eight rounds, Lopez of the Submarine Base, 122 pounds, will box Culver of Bridgeport, 123 1-2 pounds, in a nip and tuck match. Young Reta of Westerly, 135 pounds, will oppose Billy Prince of Bridgeport, 135 pounds, in the first preliminary, while Young Rosie of Westerly 118 pounds will have it out with Young Sposato of Westerly 118 pounds. The curtain raiser will bring together Pierce Street Terror of Westerly, 124 pounds, and North End Tramp of Westerly, 124 pounds.

REJUVENATED ST. JOSEPH'S TEAM WHITEWASHES NUGGETS IN TWI-GAME

"Spike" Liberty pitched the rejuvenated St. Joseph's team to a shut-out victory Thursday evening, when he whitewashed the Nuggets, 5 to 0.

Liberty pitched about as nice a game as any twirler has turned in so far this season. In blanking the Nuggets, Spike allowed but two scattered hits, fanned eleven and did not walk a man. Only three Nuggets reached the initial sack during the entire game, two on hits and the other on an error.

Johnny Greene, Academy twirler, pitched for the Nuggets and for five innings engaged in a pitching duel with Liberty. In the sixth frame, however, Greene weakened considerably and this, coupled with errors behind him, enabled the Saints to score four runs and clinch the game.

The Polish team presented an entirely new lineup and with such men as the two Libertys, "Dinty" Moore and Tony West are sure to give any of the other seven teams plenty of trouble from now on.

The Saints, after a scoreless first inning, tallied once in their half of the second frame. Frank Busch opened this stanza with one of the longest hits of the season, a two bagger to deep left field. Kozlowski then walked. Busch was caught stealing third, Kozlowski going to second. Joe Busch then hit a sharp grounder to Carroll at third. Carroll, after fumbling the ball momentarily, threw wild to first, and Kozlowski scored.

In their half of the inning, the Nuggets came closer to scoring than they did at any other time during the game. Lloyd Jarvis singled to left and went to second when Joe Busch let the ball go through him. After Manchester fanned, Burke grounded out to West and Jarvis went to third. He was left there, however, as Guillette fanned. Jarvis, by the way, was the only Nugget to reach third during the entire game, while but one other, Johnny Greene, succeeded in getting as far as second.

With one out in the third, Greene doubled to right, and from then until the final inning, Liberty turned back the Nuggets in one-two-three order, not a man reaching first during that time. In the seventh with one out, Lloyd Jarvis got on through an error, but was stranded when the next two men struck out.

St. Joseph's put the game on the ice in the sixth when they batted entirely around, bunching four singles and a double to push four runs across the plate. The score:

Tonight's Game.

There is no use talking the fans of Norwich must have their baseball, because last night after a two day lay off due to rain, they actually swarmed to the Duwell field to see the St. Joseph's team run over the Nuggets in their newly started drive from the cellar to a place at the top of the ladder. The fans were well repaid for turning out as the Nuggets played a hard game right up until the fifth, when the Saints got to Greene's offerings for four runs. Although the Nuggets lost, they deserve credit as they are all youngsters and are playing great ball against the older teams composed mostly of semi-pro players and every game that they have lost so far has been close and well played, which does not take credit from any team.

In addition to the large collection of baseball stars that are playing in the league the fans had a chance to see "Spike" Liberty, Nap Liberty, and "Dinty" Moore make their initial appearance in the league under the Saints management. Another feature of the evening was the appearance of Manager Oney, newly elected manager of the Saints, in uniform. Although plump and rotund, in the fifth inning Oney went in as a pinch hitter and much to the delight of the fans got as clean a single as one would care to see. There's no use talking, Oney has done a good job all around with the Saints and it is hoped that he will keep it up.

Tonight the Centrals, who are leading the league with four straight wins will play off a postponed game with Hallville, which are in second place. It is needless to tell about how strong the Centrals are, as every one has been able to judge for themselves that they are a hard hitting, fast fielding, scrappy bunch of boys and well deserve to be on top.

On the other hand Hallville has been rather weak, although they have managed to stay close to the top so that Manager Taylor has been given permission to strengthen up. All week he has been chasing around for new material but baseball talent in Norwich is pretty well taken, so that as a final resource he has had to go to New London for additional strength and tonight when his team takes the field it will contain many newcomers into the Twilight League, but old familiar faces in eastern Connecticut semi-pro ball. At a late hour last night neither team had handed in a lineup for tonight's game but if things turn out as are expected, tonight's game will be worth watching and in all probability perhaps the Centrals might have to break their strangle hold on first place.

WANTS BOUT WITH MILLER AND COULON

Billie O'Dowd of Danielson challenges Kid Miller for a bout to be staged in Norwich, the winner to take all O'Dowd in a recent show in Danielson won the judges decision over Miller but he claims that he would have kayoed Miller in the second round if he had been in any shape. In that round Miler was sent through the ropes from a smashing punch from O'Dowd. O'Dowd claims that Miler was afraid to fight and said after the contest that he (Miller) had received a raw deal. So O'Dowd feels that the fight should be held in Norwich. O'Dowd would also like to take a crack at Young Coulon of Taftville, who is to meet Miller.

Baltic After Sunday Game

The Baltic A. C. team has an open date for this Sunday and would like to arrange an out of town game with some fast team. The Baltic team is composed of a bunch of fast players and are able to give a good account of themselves. For arrangements call 1935-13 between 7.30 and 8.30 E. T.

INDIANS AND ATHLETICS PLAY ABBREVIATED GAME

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 9.—(AP)—Cleveland defeated Philadelphia today, 13 to 11. Rain ended the game in the last half of the seventh inning with two Indians on base and two out. At first it was announced that the score reverted to the sixth inning, which would have made the result 12 to 5, but a later ruling by the official scorer in compliance of Rule 20 of American league rules, made all that took place in the seventh legal.

The Mackmen scored six runs in the seventh, driving Uhle from the mound. The Indians scored six runs in their half of the fifth inning, and used all the Athletic pitchers but Stokes and Rommel roughly.

The Indians' victory put them in sixth place, the Yankees failing to play to a decision. Score:

YORK TEAM GETS FABER FOR REMAINDER OF SEASON

TORONTO, Ont., July 9—Manager Shaughnessy of the Providence Grays Tuesday afternoon received telegrams from the managers of the York and Harrisburg teams of the New York-Pennsylvania league asking for surplus players of any variety. York especially wanted an infielder, and Shaughnessy at once got in touch with the manager of that team and arranged to send Joe Faber there on option, to remain with the York team until the end of the season in that league.

Hardly had he concluded the business with York when Harrisburg called up and wanted an infielder and a pitcher especially asking for Faber if he were available. Failing to get Joe, as he had been the property of the York club for about five minutes the Harrisburg manager was delighted to get Mesanto. Shaughnessy wired Mesante who is at his home in Utica, to report at once to Harrisburg and for Faber to report at York. Last year Faber was with the Harrisburg team.

Faber who has cut a prominent figure in baseball circles in this locality, is a Jewett City boy, and has played in various leagues, the latter part of the season playing in the International league and last with the Providence Grays. Joe at one time was fielding in fine form and his hitting was a credit to the club, hovering around the .375 mark. Nothing but agreeable reports have been received about him from these places and it is the hope of the local people that Joe continues his good work with the York team.

HOW HERMAN STANDS ACCORDING TO DONOHUE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 9.—(AP) State Athletic Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue, at New London, in a telephonic interview today in the matter of controversy of a statement that Babe Herman had been matched to meet Mickey Travers in New Haven July 16, said:

"My stand is that if Herman should engage in a bout with any fighter before the championship battle with Kaplan, which is officially scheduled for August 1, then the bout with Kaplan is off.

"I am not trying to regulate boxing in any other state, but will do so in Connecticut. My whole idea is to give Connecticut fight fans a real championship battle in having Herman and Kaplan fight in this state.

"The Herman-Kaplan fight has been in the works for some time and everything will be settled tonight when Jimmy Kelly, Babe's manager, signs the contract for the championship battle.

"What I'm trying to prevent is the possibility of the championship battle falling through and everything in my power will be done to see that this is prevented.

"It would not be fair to have the great fight jeopardized through injury to either fighter."

MEMBER OF NEW YORK TUG BOAT CREW MAY HAVE DROWNED AT NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 9.—Harold Gibney, a member of the crew of the tug boat Elmer A. Keeler, of the Keeler Transportation company, New York, is missing from the craft and it is believed that the deckhand may have lost his life by drowning in the Thames river. Captain Fred A. Smith, master of the tug today requested the police to institute a search for the missing tow boat employe. According to Captain Smith, the tug put into port Tuesday night because of adverse weather conditions. Wednesday morning, shortly after 8 o'clock, Gibney left the tug, which was moored at the lumber pier of the F. H. & A. H. Chappell company and came ashore to make a purchase. That was the last seen of Gibney by Captain Smith or the other members of the crew, for Gibney failed to return to the boat. This morning when the tug was ready to continue to her destination to the eastward, Gibney having failed to put in an appearance, Captain Smith requested the police to cause a search to be made for the man. Inquiry at hospitals failed to locate the tug boat employe.

Gibney is described as being about six feet, six inches in height, medium build, light hair, blue eyes and when he left the tug he wore overalls and jumper.

It became known here this afternoon that the S. S. Kresge company, proprietors of a 25-3] store on State street, which store is now nearing completion, will not occupy the entire ground floor of the building, for the westerly section of the store has been divided so as to permit a second place of business to be located in the structure. The probable occupant of the building will be David Elfenbein, proprietor of the Capitol haberdashery, now located on Bank street, for it is known that Mr. Elfenbein has made a deposit for the leasing of the store and all that remains to close the deal is the approval of the Kresge company officials to the agreement.

Chester Jackson, colored, was arrested here this morning by Sergeant John Cavanaugh on a warrant issued by the New Haven police charging Jackson with violation of his probation. Detective James Connelly, of the New Haven department, came to New London late this afternoon and took charge of the prisoner. Jackson has been residing at 121 Main street of late; but when Sergeant Cavanaugh went to the house this forenoon he was informd that Jackson had not been home for a day or two. Sergeant Cavanaugh then went to the Colonial Shop where Jackson is employed and finding the accused at work in the kitchen, placed him under arrest. Jackson was convicted of a felony in the New Haven city court several months ago, but since his release from custody he has failed to comply with the orders of the court, as he promised to do if granted his liberty.

Michael Barca was fined $25 in the city court this morning for the reckless operation of a 15-ton truck he was speeding on Main street yesterday. Barca hit a pace of 28 miles as he went up that busy street. Fred Caron, a state policeman, wondered at the pace and then eyed his own speedometer to make sure that he was not mistaken in his estimate of the truck's speed. He followed Barca and overtaking him ordered him to court this morning. Barca appeared and said he was in a great hurry to get to Montville, so hit a pace that would get him there. He had no excuse other than that to offer, and pleaded guilty to the offense, though the law restricts the speed of a truck of 15 tons to 15 miles an hour.

Policeman Graham encountered Robert N. Ackerman, of Boston, hitting a pace of 35 miles on Main street, near the Crystal avenue bridge. The officer called to Ackerman to stop, and the Boston man complied with the order. He had passed intersecting streets without reducing speed and had failed to indicate by his horn that he was coming, that all who could do so might get out of harm's way. The rules of the road do not permit that sort of operation of an automobile and Ackerman drew a fine of $5. He said he did not realize that he was going at the speed he had developed and promised not to offend again.

Robert M. Lowell of Noank bought a Chalmers car recently that necessitated the expenditure of all the cash he could spare. The car had Connecticut registration, but Mr. Lowell was without a license to operate a car after he became the owner of one. That didn't stop him from indulging in the pleasure of driving, so he set out in his Chalmers just for the fun of the thing. Officer Courtney encountered him and asked to inspect the operating license. Then it developed that the policeman wanted the impossible for Lowell did not have such a paper to show. He admitted that his financial inability to pay for a license had prevented him from obtaining it. He was fined $10 and paid. Of course there was one other course open to Robert, but that was to go to jail and he didn't want to do that.

The case against Louis Itzcowitz, charging reckless driving of a car, was to have come to a hearing today, but of necessity it went over till next Wednesday. Itzcowitz ran down a boy on Town Hill and the lad is still in the hospital or under the care of a physician. He will be in court next week, it is believed. Itzcowitz is at liberty on a bond of $1,000 to appear Wednesday.

Captain King and the officers and crew of the British ship Wistaria which vessel has been in this port eight days, were profuse in praise of the hospitality and the courtesies extended to them while they were here. The ship left last evening, in fog, to be sure, but with every prospect of getting to sea and having a pleasant run to Bermuda, where she will next stop. Captain King and his officers have received many courtesies in New London. They said they had never enjoyed a visit to any port in greater degree. Wednesday afternoon some 100 or more citizens were guests of the officers aboard ship and they expressed themselves as delighted with the hospitality of their English visitors. Every courtesy was shown the callers and they drank the health of the jolly captain and a right good crew. The music of a Pinafore rang out from the cabin of the ship as the guests departed and when they had gone, the crew took up the melody. The Wistaria's officers made the acquaintance of New London at a banquet the night after the arrival of the ship. Since they have been participants in a round of social festivities which they appreciated and thoroughly enjoyed.

Fewer vessels with fresh fish have been in port the past week than in any week during the spring and summer.

A New London fruit dealer has established a new custom among local dealers. He keeps his store open all night that he may get the business of automobilists who pass along after other stores of a similar line of trade have closed. Competing dealers declare that the custom will be shortlived for the business does not warrant any such innovation. If the store dispensed beverages there might be a demand for them.

Two more stores are to be established on North Bank street, as soon as alterations are completed in a building that has heretofore been used exclusively as tenements. That street is now lined with stores, from State to Douglas street.

The funeral of Mrs. Hannah R. Douglas, widow of William Douglas, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at her residence, 21 Garfield avenue and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Remtives of Mrs. Douglas acted as bearers. Burial was in the family lot in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Arthur and Aurore LeBlanc have sold to Patrick D. and Julia D. O'Mara a house and lot, corner of Rogers and Elm streets.

Manuel Alfiero, 192 North Bank street, complained to the police late last night that he had been robbed and that he suspected a companion, James Davis, a former soldier of having robbed him. Alfiero declared that when he retired Wednesday afternoon, he occupied the same bed as did Davis and that the former had $15 in his shirt pocket, the garment having been hung over the back of a chair. When Alfiero awoke shortly after 11 o'clock he discovered that Davis was gone and inspecting his shirt, he discovered that his money was missing also. The police made a search for Davis, but were not successful in locating him.

The officers of Hiawatha Council, Daughters of Pocohontas, were installed at a regular meeting of the order, held in Music hall this evening.

Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky resumed patrol duty tonight when he took his beat at Ocean Beach from 11 o'clock until tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock, having finished his 30 days' suspension for violation of the rules and regulations of the police department as a result of his absenting himself from duty 45 minutes. Selesnitsky was found in the plant of the Columbia Leather Goods company, Garfield avenue, by Acting Lieutenant James D. Gaffney, after Selesnitsky had reported on duty at the conclusion of his lunch period; when found in the factory the officer had been there three-quarters of an hour.

Mrs. Josephine Wheaton Fisher, 48, wife of Frank B. Fisher, of Waltham, Mass. died early this morning at Lawrence hospital in which institution she had been under treatmeat but two days. Mrs. Wheaton was taken ill while visiting her brother, Lieut. A. J. Wheaton, U. S. N., at Quaker Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Denehee, formerly of New London, now residing in Brooklyn, N. Y., are spending a few days in this city.

Philip Brenner, proprietor of a paint store at 342 Bank street, reported to the police this evening that he believed at least two attempts had been made recently to burglarize his store. Brenner stated that the rear of his place of business is protected by wooden shutters, which are located inside the store, but that he had found the windows in front of the shutters and outside the building open.

There is a slight improvement noticeable tonight in the condition of Lawrence Vera Jr., 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Vera, of Uncasville, who was shot in the neck by a stray bullet, Fourth of July, while walking through the main highway of Montville. The boy is still considered in a critical condition however.

Members of the Crowley club held a dance at the Mabrey house, Ocean Beach, Wednesday evening, about 50 couples were present. Music was by Kell Patch's orchestra. The success of the affair was due to the efforts of Dorothy Sylvia, Alice Quinn, Margaret Murray, Felicia Morrison, Josephine Sullivan, Bess Ryan, Nora Burke and Margaret Curtin. The patrons and patronesses were Mr. and Mrs. David A. Connor, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Michael O'Connell, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy J. Sullivan and Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Brooks.

SCH. POCOMOKE SEIZED AGAIN FOR RUM-RUNNING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 9—Schooner Pocomoke, believed to belong in Philadelphia, was seized by the United States Coast Guard cutter Redwing early this morning, when the craft was detected trying to pass through Block Island sound with a cargo of 700 cases of whiskey. The Pocomoke has before been seized as a rum-runner and only a few months ago was sold by a United States marshal at an auction here. At the time of the sale it was claimed that the boat was bought back by her owner.

The crew of the Pocomoke, five in number, were presented before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson of Norwich, at the customs house here, late this afternoon and were held for trial. The master was held in bail of $1,500 and the crew in bail of $500 each. All furnished a surety on their respective bonds.

The Pocomoke was headed westerly through the sound, about 8 o'clock, when the cutter, which had been scouring the New England coast for rum-runners, came upon the schooner. When the schooner was halted and officers of the cutter boarded her, the hold of the schooner was detected to be a storage for the liquor cargo, which is valued at close to $35,000. This afternoon the cutter and her prize put into port and after the schooner had been moored at the state pier under guard, the crew was given a hearing, in the absence of United States Commissioner Russell T. Corcoran, Commissioner Mathewson, of Norwich, acted.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

No bigger reception was ever given a program than that which was accorded at the Broadway Theatre yesterday.

Ellen Harvey in "Art on the Wire" did a snappy novelty that won her rich applause.

Evans and Carter "Two Historians" followed in a character comedy offering of songs that brought many a laugh.

Ann Francis and Wally Hayes, the sunshine girl and boy in "Oh, how can you say that" was a refreshing bit of song, dance and comedy.

Tallar and Bobbe in "Can You Imagine That" provided a maximum of fun, song, dance, and music. They are a clever pair of entertainers.

The phonograph artist Wilbur Sweatman and his company of five in "The Acme of Syncopation" was a revelation with their high class musical offerings. They received a great ovation which was well earned by these enthusiastic players.

The screen's high hat scream is back in Norwich.

Raymond Griffith came to the Broadway Theatre yesterday in the Paramount picture, "The Night Club," based on 'After Five," a stage play by William de Mille. Vera Reynolds Wallace Beery and Louise Fazenda are featured with Griffith in the cast.

"Funnier than 'Changing Husbands' and 'Forty Winks' rolled into one" is the way Paramount described the picture, and that's just the way we found it.

Just how he does finally win the girl furnishes a real laugh climax.

One wouldn't go a bit wrong to say that "The Night Club" is the finest "class comedy" the screen has ever seen.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

In his latest film comedy "I'll Show You the Town," the Universal-Jewel feature which opened at the Palace theatre last night, Reginald Denny comes to the screen in the role of an unromatnic professor who is literally deluged with feminine hearts of all ages—and sizes.

"I'll show You the Town," adapted from Elmer Davis' rollicking story of the same name, is the love story of Professor Alec Dupree who fights shy of cupid's darts only to be wounded by a score of them. Alec, played by Reginald Denny, is a professor at old Wyndam, a college founded by his grandfather. The college is defunct, and it is up to Alec to get enough funds to keep the old school together. As luck would have it the famous Agnes Clevenger, wealthy widow of a nearby provincial town, is visiting the metropolis, and Alec is accorded an introduction to her and is worked to "show her the town."

Agnes Clevenger, though one of the wealthiest women in the country, is also one of nature's homliest, and Alec goes about winning her purse (for Wyndam's sake)—by first winning her heart. How Alec woos and finally wins the heart of "Aggie" is one of the funniest sequences in the screen play. But Agnes Clevenger is not the only woman who crosses Alec's path. He is beset on all sides by cupid who finds many practical ways in which to ensnare the wary professor's heart.

Four leading women are in the supporting cast. They are Marian Nixon, Cissy Fitzgerald, Margaret Livingston and Lilyan Tasham. Others in the cast include Edward Kimball, Hayden Stevenson, Neely Edwards, William A. Carroll, Martha Mattox, Helen Greene and Lionel Braham, the last one mentioned being probably "the heaviest man" on the screen. Harry A. Pollard directed the production.

Breed Theater

Checkers, which was accepted as the greatest race-track play ever produced, now comes to the screen as a William Fox photoplay, retitled Gold Heels. The new picture will be shown at the Breed theater today and Saturday.

Robert Agnew has the leading role in the part of Checkers Campbell, created by Thomas W. Ross more than a decade ago. Peggy Shaw plays the feminine lead.

It has been said by notable sportsmen that Henry M. Blossom's play had a greater influence in abolishing the professional crook from the turf than all the laws that ever were enacted.

The picture was directed by S. W. Van Dyke. In the cast with Agnew and Peggy Shaw are Lucien Littlefield, William Norton, Winifred Landis, Katherine Craig, Harry Tracy, Carl Stockdale, Fred Butler, James Douglas, Buck Black and Betty Hisle.

Theater patrons will remember the colorful story of Checkers which is followed faithfully in Gold Heels.

Ruled off the track in one of the familiar "frame-ups" of the old turf days, Checkers becomes a grocery clerk. Knowing horseflesh, he buys what is thought to be a "skate" for $30 and trains the animal himself. The big race scene will live as long as the sport of kings goes on.

Of course, Checkers rides his own race! He wants to win it and he also hopes to win the girl. The story has a happy ending, so figure out for yourself what happens.

FRESH EASTERN CUT PORK LOINS AND SHOULDERS

WILLINGTON

Sunday afternoon, Rev. Edwin E. Sundt gave an address at Camp Woodstock.

Nelson Wraight and Frank Wraight underwent a minor operation at the Manchester Memorial hospital.

The church vacation school commenced Monday morning with 34 children in attendance. The teachers are Rev. E. E. Sundt, Misses Doris Amidon, Helen Rollinson, Carrie Mirth and Ethel Wraight.

Miss Jessie D. Bennett entertained recently her three sisters, Mrs. James W. Mann of Pomfret; Mrs. W. H. Clemens of Goodyear, and Mrs. W. H. Williams of Rosindale, Mass. They were entertained at dinner by Dr. and Mrs. F. B. Converse, making the five sisters together.

Mrs. Lulu Coombie of Providence has spent a week with her cousins, Mrs. Frank B. Converse and Miss Jessie D. Bennett.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Devereaux have been visiting Holyoke friends.

Hazel Hansen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Hansen, is in the Hartford hospital for treatment of heart trouble, and is improved. Her mother visits her every day.

Mrs. Ida Brown accompanied Miss Rosa O. Hall to Northfield, Mass., Monday. She expects to stay two weeks; Mrs. Estelle Pratt will have charge of her home during her absence.

A meeting of the Boy Scouts is to be held Friday evening.

Raymond Mann from Pawtucket, R. I., and Everette Mann from Pomfret, have been visiting their aunt, Miss Bennett.

Dr. F. B. Converse, Charles Cobb and W. H. Williams attended the ball game in Hartford the Fourth of July.

Allen and Wilmer Bennett spent the Fourth at their home in Woodstock.

Mrs. Merrick Pratt, Miss Estelle Pratt and friend Dr. Ryan, of Providence, called on Mrs. Estelle Pratt, Sunday as did also her nephew, Herbert Graves, and his wife, of Hartford.

A four weeks' course of the study of the Bible, its literature and teachings, commenced Tuesday night and is conducted by Rev. E. E. Sundt.

Clark Ruby spent the Fourth at Riverside Park, Springfield.

Michael Cavar, John and Mike Cavar and Harvey Davis went to Riverside Friday night, returning Saturday night.

About 400 people gathered at the common on Willington Hill, July Fourth, at the picnic arranged by the Men's Civic club. It was an Old Home day, and visits with many people who have gone out from town were pleasing features. The exercises opened with a musical and song service in the church, with an address of welcome by Joseph Dimock, "Who is an American." Lunch followed under the maples, hot coffee being served with the basket lunches. In the afternoon Joseph Nedwied's four piece orchestra, from South Willington furnished excellent music. There were baseball games, tennis matches and other sports. The 50-yard dash was won by Joseph Mirth, the half-mile run by Monroe Usher; baseball throw by Monroe Usher; sack race for boys by William Krauss; sack race for girls by Helen Safranek; obstacle race by Joseph Kalbac. Theodore Mirtle had charge of the kitchen made the coffee and sandwiches, and cooked the "dogs." He was assisted by Aldrich Vonasek and Aleck Becker. Much praise was given the Men's Civic club, for the good order and achievement of its plans, which were carried out with such success, and especially to George V. Smith, who was chairman of the committee.

Among those who attended the picnic from out of town were Mrs. Spencer Fitch, Miss Marietta Fitch and Miss Leila Church, of Rockville, and Miss Nellie Thrall, of Hartford, with Miss Genevieve Gardner. They entertained Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Flather, Miss Vivian Flather, Edward G. Flather, Jr., and Follett Flather of Norwich. Mr. Flather was associated with Samuel Gardner for 16 years, in his

MYSTIC

A meeting of the various representatives of all local organizations, to formulate plans for securing a permanent memorial for the veterans of the World war has been called at Mystic Academy for Saturday evening at 7:30. The call is issued by Mrs. Ida Crandall, chairman of the committee of Fanny Ledyard chapter, D. A. R. who has taken the initiation in this praise-worthy task.

The American Legion has sent boxes of candy, cigarettes and other things the past week to the disabled boys who are in government hospitals, or in their home or other places. The Legion does all it is able to do to give comfort and help to those who need it most. The local post recently received a substantial check in memory of one who has passed on and the money is being used wisely for this purpose.

Miss Marion Gillilan is attending Yale summer school.

Mrs Nettie H. Russel, of Alexandar, Va. is at Mrs. Benjamin's for the summer.

Walter Edwards has returned to Providence and William Edwards to New Jersey, after a visit at their home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Wheeler of 67 High street celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary Wednesday night. Relatives and friends remembered them with gifts. A social evening was enjoyed.

Large numbers of "shaved" American dollars are passed out as change to American travelers in oriental ports. Milled edges of some of the coins have been entirely trimmed away. Chinese employes on passenger liners are said to be responsible for the mutilation. They sell the silver shavings in Shanghai and Hong-Kong and return the money to circulation.

THE DOCTRINE OF THE EASY SNAP

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

I don't know when I've seen the chief trouble with modern life so clearly and simply set forth as in a chance utterance by an Ohio woman, the other day.

It seems that this woman, a Mrs. Huck, is deeply interested in some of the problems of what one might call sub-stratified society. She wants to know how "the other half" lives and why. To find out she put herself, so far as she could, in the place of various members of that "other half". She worked in a shop; she "clerked it" in a small store; she acted as chambermaid in a hotel; she went out as servant in a private family; she got herself sent to jail for six months, —all, of course, under assumed names.

The illuminative utterance to which I have referred was made in an account of her life in the woman's prison in which she was incarcerated, and of her associate prisoners.

"On the whole these women, thieves and murderers though they are, are affectionate, kind and easy to get along with," she said. "They do wrong, not for wrong's sake, but because they have never learned the value or necessity of self-control. What they want they take."

It's in those last two sentences that the whole nub of the matter lies. "They do wrong . . . because they have never learned the value of self-control. What they want they take."

That's the working out of the Doctrine of the Easy Snap in practice. It's exactly what might be expected from the believers in that doctrine and a lucid description of most of them. If they're men, they've likely to be classed as "good fellows," "easy-going, perhaps, but well-meaning." If they're women, they're "affectionate, kind and easy to get along with."

But they want what they want when they want it. And they haven't enough self-control to restrain them from gratifying their wants in the easiest way visible. As I've said, it's simply the Doctrine of the Easy Snap put into practice.

Naturally, it makes some of them pickpockets. That's one of the things the Doctrine of the Easy Snap leads to.

It makes others sneak thieves. That's inevitable to an Easy Snapper.

It causes them to ignore foresight and discard thrift. Neither of those virtues accords with the creed of the Easy Snap.

It makes them shiftless and slipshod, "scorners" at their work and setters in their play. That's the Easy Snap idea, every time.

It makes them anxious to give just as little as they must and avid to get all they can. Why not? That's the very essence of the Easy Snap.

It seems no harm in lieing, if one can get away with it, no wrong in bearing false witness if the false testimony saves them trouble or punishment, no crime in forgery if a forged check will bring money easier than a day's work. As the road to hell slopes downward very gently but inevitably it may very probably lead in some cases to actual murder.—All in perfectly natural pursuit of that Easy Snap.

When this country was young nobody came to it in search of any Easy Snap. The life of pioneer and settler was one of unceasing labor for mere existence. Luxury was unattainable and, therefore seldom sought. It wasn't a question of champagne and caviare for daily diet, but of bread and butter,—sometimes of lack even of these.

Living "from hand to mouth," as they were compelled to, they came to appreciate the value of small blessings. Dependent for very existence upon the fruits of their own toil, each man came to hold just appreciation of his own and his neighbors' property rights.

They were compelled to foresight, for they would have starved to death without its exercise. They were forced to steady toil, for they must earn their dinner before they could have it. They were driven to thrift, because the uncertainties of every tomorrow made it vital to economize on today's use. They were bound to be honest, because there was nothing to be gained by dishonesty. Their neighbors were as poor as they.

It was a hard life, a drudging life, some of us think a cruel life.

But what men and women it made!

It nursed a nation of men who stood up under privation and defeat without thought of surrender, who endured as gallantly the frozen starvation of Valley Forge as the brutalities of prison hulks, who won their way to national freedom against all the forces of the world's greatest empire, helped by hired Hessian hordes. It nursed a breed of women who, when fathers and brothers and husbands were following Gates to Saratoga or Washington Cut to Yorktown, were keeping their lonely clearing farms up and producing supplies, not only for home needs but for maintaining the armies in the field.

There was no thought in any American mind of the Easy Snap in those heroic days. Had it come to any true American he would have been as deeply ashamed of it as of being called a "tory."

These times are different. Life is comparatively easy to us all. What our grand-dads would have thought effeminizing luxuries are to us common comforts.

And the simple truth seems to be that we can't stand prosperity. Not all of us, anyway.

Because life is easier for us than it was for our sires, we demand that it be easier today than it was yesterday, and easier still tomorrow.

Not that it be better, fuller, more productive, more prolific of hope and future progress, but that it should be easier.

The popular demand is not chances to do good work but for chances to get big pay for little and poor work.

The popular ambition is not to rise at any chosen vocation but to get through with and away from that vocation as soon as possible so as to "have a good time."

No desiring world will ever wear a road through any woods to the average modern workman's door in quest of the best possible mouse-trap. For the average modern workman doesn't care a brass farden about building "the best" mouse-trap. He wants instead, to build some sort of a mouse-trap out of the cheapest attainable materials, in the quickest possible time, in the largest quantities, to sell at the highest price to a public gone wild over "gimcracks and gewgaws," so that he can gobble in enough to stop making mouse-traps and go off on a big, long loaf.

The market is full not only of "near-beer," but of "near-silk" and "near-diamonds" and "near-this" and "near that" and "near-tother." Capitalist and laborer, employer and employee, agent and salesman, all are engaged in desperate competition, seemingly, to see which can get the most for the least return.

Business men used to be proud of the reputation of their firms for making and selling the best goods. Now the most of them are more interested in watching the clock or listening for the whistle.

Buyers used to test the quality and carefully examine the workmanship of desired purchases. Now a controlling majority seem to care almost nothing for substance and quality, so they can get something cheaper to make a braver outward show with.

Industrially and economically, we're in a sort of "five-and-ten-cent store" age. It won't be much longer before we shall be buying our "gold" watches and "genuine" diamonds at Woolworth's or Kresge's.

Thus far, the business and commercial world makes pretence of giving something, of some sort, in return for our dollars. But it takes mighty good care to give just as little as it can possibly turn the trick with. Thus far, the buying world admits reluctant willingness to pay something, of some sort, for the "gimcracks and gewgaws" it hankers after.

But it is only a short step from the universal "bargain" lust and demand for good at "less than cost" to the wanting—and taking—something for nothing.

The pickpockets and sneak-thieves and yeggmes and "bandits" and "gunmen" and hi-jackers are simply the natural and inevitable development and fruit from broadcast sowing of the Doctrine of the Easy Snap.

The fruit of the vine is a delicious grape. The fruit of the Upas-tree is a poison apple. No intelligent being expects figs from a thistle. Yet some who call themselves intelligent beings and want to be considered as such actually express wonder at the cause for the present spread of lawlessness.

They can find it in their own expressed or implied, spoken or tacit approval of this pestilential Doctrine of the Easy Snap.

At this very moment the demagogues, not only of politics but of ecclesiasticism and sociology and education and "domestic economy," as well as those of the commercial and the "labor" world, are diligently serving their master, the devil, distributing tares form his full seed-bag over all the fields of human effort.

Why wonder at the crop?

"Nobody loves a fat man"—nor a pessimist. But it's better to be right than to be loved, even. It's better to tell the truth, though it makes you disliked or, worst of all, laughed at, than it is to parrot over the easy lies of conventional blah-blah.

Of all the Easy Snaps conceivable, I can imagine none more typical than that of the oarsman after his boat gets fairly into the suck of the current above Niagara Falls. He goes faster and faster every boat's-length, without having to pull a stroke. It's just about the easiest going he could ask. The banks go by more and more swiftly and,—if he puts enough cotton in his ears,—he will hardly notice the swelling roar of the cataract.

The only question open to him is whether he shall continue to sit with his back to the bow and yodel his enjoyment of his Easy Snap, or turn around, open his eyes, unstuff his ears, grab his oars and pull like the very Old Scratch for the nearest shore.

Which would you advise him to do, if you were, say, writing this Farmer's Talk?

THE FARMER.

THE DOCTRINE OF THE EASY SNAP

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

I don't know when I've seen the chief trouble with modern life so clearly and simply set forth as in a chance utterance by an Ohio woman, the other day.

It seems that this woman, a Mrs. Huck, is deeply interested in some of the problems of what one might call sub-stratified society. She wants to know how "the other half" lives and why. To find out she put herself, so far as she could, in the place of various members of that "other half". She worked in a shop; she clerked in a small store; she acted as chambermaid in a hotel; she went out as servant in a private family; she got herself sent to jail for six months, —all, of course, under assumed names.

The illuminative utterance to which I have referred was made in an account of her life in the woman's prison in which she was incarcerated, and of her associate prisoners.

"On the whole these women, thieves and murderers though they are, are affectionate, kind and easy to get along with," she said. "They do wrong not for wrong's sake, but because they have never learned the value or necessity of self-control. What they want they take."

It's in those last two sentences that the whole nub of the matter lies. "They do wrong . . . because they have never learned the value of self-control. What they want they take."

That's the working out of the Doctrine of the Easy Snap in practice. It's exactly what might be expected from the believers in that doctrine and a lucid description of most of them. If they're men, they've likely to be classed as "good fellows," "easy-going, perhaps, but well-meaning." If they're women, they're "affectionate, kind and easy to get along with."

But they want what they want when they want it. And they haven't enough self-control to restrain them from gratifying their wants in the easiest way visible. As I've said, it's simply the Doctrine of the Easy Snap put into practice.

Naturally, it makes some of them pickpockets. That's one of the things the Doctrine of the Easy Snap leads to.

It makes others sneak thieves. That's inevitable to an Easy Snapper.

It causes them to ignore foresight and discard thrift. Neither of those virtues accords with the creed of the Easy Snap.

It makes them shiftless and slip-shod, "scalawags" at their work and selfish in their play. That's the Easy Snap idea, every time.

It makes them anxious to give just as little as they must and avid to get all they can. Why not? That's the very essence of the Easy Snap.

It seems no harm in lieing, if one can get away with it, no wrong in bearing false witness if the false testimony saves them trouble or punishment, no crime in forgery if a forged check will bring money easier than a day's work. As the road to hell slopes downward very gently but inevitably it may very probably lead in some cases to actual murder.—All in perfectly natural pursuit of that Easy Snap.

When this country was young nobody came to it in search of any Easy Snap. The life of pioneer and settler was one of unceasing labor for mere existence. Luxury was unattainable and therefore seldom sought. It wasn't a question of champagne and caviare for daily diet, but of bread and butter.—sometimes of lack even of these.

Living "from hand to mouth," as they were compelled to, they came to appreciate the value of small blessings. Dependent for very existence upon the fruits of their own toil, each man came to hold just appreciation of his own and his neighbors' property rights.

They were compelled to foresight, for they would have starved to death without its exercise. They were forced to steady toil, for they must earn their dinner before they could have it. They were driven to thrift, because the uncertainties of every tomorrow made it vital to economize on today's use. They were bound to be honest, because there was nothing to be gained by dishonesty. Their neighbors were as poor as they.

It was a hard life, a drudging life, some of us think a cruel life.

But what men and women it made!

It nursed a nation of men who stood up under privation and defeat without thought of surrender, who endured as gallantly the frozen starvation of Valley Forge as the brutalities of prison hulks, who won their way to national freedom against all the forces of the world's greatest empire, helped by hired Hessian hordes. It nursed a breed of women who, when fathers and brothers and husbands were forcing Gates to Saratoga or Washington to Yorktown, were keeping their lonely clearing farms up and producing supplies, not only for home needs but for maintaining the armies in the field.

There was no thought in any American mind of the Easy Snap in those heroic days. Had it come to any true American he would have been as deeply ashamed of it as of being called a "tory."

These times are different. Life is comparatively easy to us all. What our grand-dads would have thought effeminizing luxuries are to us common comforts.

And the simple truth seems to be that we can't stand prosperity. Not all of us, anyway.

Because life is easier for us than it was for our sires, we demand that it be easier today than it was yesterday, and easier still tomorrow.

Not that it be better, fuller, more productive, more prolific of hope and future progress, but that it should be easier.

The popular demand is not chances to do good work but for chances to get big pay for little and poor work.

The popular ambition is not to rise at any chosen vocation but to get through with and away from that vocation as soon as possible so as to "have a good time."

No desiring world will ever wear a road through any woods to the average modern workman's door in quest of the best possible mouse-trap. For the average modern workman doesn't care a brass farden about building "the best" mouse-trap. He wants instead, to build some sort of a mouse-trap out of the cheapest attainable materials, in the quickest possible time, in the largest quantities, to sell at the highest price to a public gone wild over "gimcracks and gewgaws," so that he can gobble in enough to stop making mouse-traps and go off on a big, long loaf.

The market is full not only of "near-beer," but of "near-silk" and "near-diamonds", and "near-this" and "near that" and "near-t'other." Capitalist and laborer, employer and employee, agent and salesman, all are engaged in desperate competition, seemingly, to see which can get the most for the least return.

Business men used to be proud of the reputation of their firms for making and selling the best goods. Now the most of them appear to aim solely at securing the biggest profits.

Artisans used to take in their reputations as skilled workers at their chosen trades. Now the most of them are more interested in watching the clock or listening for the whistle.

Buyers used to test the quality and carefully examine the workmanship of desired purchases. Now a controlling majority seem to care almost nothing for substance and quality, so they can get something cheaper to make a braver outward show with.

Industrially and economically, we're in a sort of "five-and-ten-cent store" age. It won't be much longer before we shall be buying our "gold" watches and "genuine" diamonds at Woolworth's or Kresge's.

Thus far, the business and commercial world makes presence of giving something of some sort, in return for our dollars. But it takes mighty good care to give just as little as it can possibly turn the trick with. Thus far, the buying world admits reluctant willingness to pay something, of some sort, for the "gimcracks and gewgaws" it hankers after.

But it is only a short step from the universal "bargain" lust and demand for good at "less than cost" to the wanting—and taking—something for nothing.

The pickpockets and sneak-thieves and yeggmen and "bandits" and "gunmen" and hi-jackers are simply the natural and inevitable development and fruit from broadcast sowing of the Doctrine of the Easy Snap.

The fruit of the vine is a delicious grape. The fruit of the Upas-tree is a poison apple. No intelligent being expects figs from a thistle. Yet some who call themselves intelligent beings and want to be considered as such actually express wonder at the cause for the present spread of lawlessness.

They can find it in their own expressed or implied, spoken or tacit approval of this pestilential Doctrine of the Easy Snap.

At this very moment the demagogues, not only of politics but of ecclesiasticism and sociology and education and "domestic economy," as well as those of the commercial and the "labor" world, are diligently serving their master, the devil, distributing tares form his full seed-bag over all the fields of human effort.

Why wonder at the crop?

"Nobody loves a fat man"—nor a pessimist. But it's better to be right than to be loved, even. It's better to tell the truth, though it makes you disliked or, worst of all, laughed at, than it is to parrot over the easy lies of conventional blah-blah.

Of all the Easy Snaps conceivable, I can imagine none more typical than that of the oarsman after his boat gets fairly into the suck of the current above Niagara Falls. He goes faster and faster every boat's-length, without having to pull a stroke. It's just about the easiest going he could ask. The banks go by more and more swiftly and,—if he puts enough cotton in his ears,—he will hardly notice the swelling roar of the cataract.

The only question open to him is whether he shall continue to sit with his back to the bow and yodel his enjoyment of his Easy Snap, or turn around, open his eyes, unstuff his ears, grab his oars and pull like the very Old Scratch for the nearest shore.

Which would you advise him to do, if you were, say, writing this Farmer's Talk?

THE FARMER.

Digger Tells About Yap Yap

Alas, the time some people waste to gratify the sense of taste!
—Yap Yap the Prairie Dog.

Peter Rabbit was finding it hard to believe what Digger the Badger had just told him, but there was a look in Digger's eyes that made him feel sure Digger wasn't trying to fool him. Digger had stated that he had seen a Prairie Dog town where there were so many houses that he couldn't see where they ended. It was this that Peter was having such hard work to believe.

"How, Mr. Badger could so many of Johnny Chuck's cousins get enough to eat?"

"Well, they don't waste food the way some folks do!" replied Digger the Badger. "They don't take a bite here and a bite there and a bite somewhere else. They just eat grass right off close. I saw Farmer Brown's mowing machine at work down on the Green Meadows yesterday."

Peter blinked his eyes. "Yes," said he, "I saw it, but what has that got to do with Yap Yap the Prairie Dog?"

"Nothing, Peter. Nothing at all," replied Digger. "I was merely going to add that if there was a Prairie Dog town down on the Green Meadows Farmer Brown wouldn't have any use for a mowing machine, Yap Yap and his friends would keep the grass cut close. It wouldn't get even long enough to hide Danny Meadow Mouse. Did you ever see Johnny Chuck eat Farmer Brown's beans when they first came up?"

Peter nodded. "I've seen him eat them right off so that you could hardly find the stems," Peter replied.

"Well, that's the way Yap Yap and his relatives eat off the grass out there," said Digger.

"Is his house like Johnny Chuck's?" asked Peter. "You said he had a doorstep like Johnny Chuck's."

"No such thing, Peter," declared Digger. "I didn't say he has a doorstep like Johnny Chuck's. He has a doorstep, but it is quite different from the doorsten on which Johnny Chuck likes to sit."

"Isn't it made of sand?" Peter asked.

"Of course," replied Digger.

"And isn't it right out in front of his doorway?" persisted Peter.

Digger grunted. "That depends," said he, "on what you consider being in front of his doorway. You see, Yap Yap's doorway is right in the middle of that mound of sand and so his doorway is all around it."

Peter was puzzled and he showed it. "Excuse me, Mr. Badger," said he, "but I don't see how he could throw out the sand all around it. I should think it would all come out from the direction in which he is digging."

"It does," replied Digger. "You see, he digs almost straight down. He doesn't dig in on a long slant as Johnny Chuck does, or as Reddy Fox does, or as you do, or even as I do. He goes almost right straight down. And he goes down deep. He goes down a long way before he digs his hallway off to one side and makes his bedroom. And he makes his bedroom a little above the hallway."

"I should think," said Peter, "that water would run right down when there has been a heavy rain."

"Huh!" replied Digger. "Yap Yap looks out for that. That is why he has his mound all the way around the entrance. Water could stand quite deep on the surrounding earth and none of it could run down and drown little Yap Yap out. He's a clever chap, this Yap Yap, and, my his babies are good eating! I'm getting hungrier every minute that we talk about Yap Yaps. I'm getting homesick and hungrier every minute."

Yap Yap's doorway is right in the middle of that mound of sand, and so his doorstep is all around it

COMPENSATION FOR PARTIAL AMPUTATION OF FINGER

The following workmen's compensation agreement has been approved by Commissioner J. J. Donohue:

C. B. Cottrell & Sons Co., Pawcatuck, employer, and Thomas McSparren, Westerly, employe, 16 2-3 weeks at $15.43 for amputation of distal joint of third finger, left hand, with loss of use of two-thirds of the finger.

MUSHROOM SIGNAL FOR EIGHTH STREET CORNER

A mushroom traffic signal has been purchased by the board of police commissioners to be placed at the corner of Eighth and North Main streets and will be placed in position during the next few days. This corner is a dangerous one and plans for lessening the danger of collisions have been discussed for some time. By installing the mushroom signal traffic must pass to the right from either direction thus doing away with any danger of crowding.

Appointed Railroad Police.

Notice has been sent to Clerk Geo. E. Parsons of the superior court of the appointment of Eugene Francis Sullivan of West Haven as a railroad policeman. The appointment was made by Acting Governor J. Edwin Brainard upon the application of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Henderson Cutler, of Brookline, Mass., for the marriage of their daughter, Julia and Johnson Ralph Tatum, of Miami, Fla., in Gallee chapel, Groton, Saturday, July 11, at 3 p. m. A reception will be held at the summer home of the bride's parents at Eastern Point.

ROAD CONDITIONS AND DETOURS ARE REPORTED

Road conditions and detours in Eastern Connecticut, where highway work is under way, are reported by the state highway department as follows:

USING SHEET ASPHALT ON BRIDGE REPAIRS

First Selectman William S. Murray has a gang of men engaged in making repairs to the roadbed over the West Side bridge and Laurel Hill bridge. A new sheet asphalt roadbed is being laid to replace the old tar covering which has been torn up during the past few days. Sheet asphalt is something new in the way of road making and its durability has met with approval in larger cities where it is used extensively.

Work on the Laurel Hill bridge was begun Thursday, men tearing up the old surface of the road in preparation of laying the sheet asphalt. It is expected that both bridges will be finished within a few days. In the meantime police officers are being stationed at the bridges to handle traffic as it is necessary to make it one way travel until the work is finished.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Mr.—Is my tire flat?

Mrs.—It's a little at the bottom, but the rest of it's O. K. — Princeton Tiger.

Lady Patient—Oh, doctor, I'm so very sweet. What shall I do? I feel I hardly wish to live, so I thought I'd send for you.—The Progressive Grocer.

His Wife—It's about time to think where we shall spend the summer.

Cloreman—I wish you'd say "pass the summer," Helen; "spend" is so confoundly suggestive.—Boston Transcript.

Mike went into a jewelry shop to purchase a gold ring.

"Eighteen carat?" asked the salesman.

"You're a liar," said Mike. "Ol've been aitin' onions."—Good Hardware.

Country Cousin—Wal, by cracky! The papers wuz right. The gals in this show is dressed something scand'lous.

City Cousin—Shut up S! The curtain hasn't gone up yet; all that you see are the ladies in the box-parties. —Dartmouth Jack o'Lantern.

At the funeral of the wealthy Mr. Astorbilt Gottroxa, man went bitterly.

"Why are you crying?" asked a reporter. "You are not a relative of Mr. Gottrox, are you?"

"No," sobbed the mourner. "that's just it!"—Denison University Flamingo.

England's woman motorcycle champion is Mrs. Stewart, who, with her husband, Colonel R. N. Stewart, has beaten in one day no fewer than 63 world records. Mrs. Stewart has been known to ride at high speed for more than twelve hours.

George Friddell, a farmer near Robinson, Kans., has a zoo all his own. He has two moose, several deer, both plain and spotted; two buffaloes, and a lake in which there are numerous varieties of fish and on which swim three different kinds of geese.

Mrs. Langtry, the [illegible] actress, who has been publishing her memoirs, was once the idol of London society. So intense was the excitement she aroused that on one occasion a girl seated in Hyde park, being mistaken for her, was so hotly hurt by the attentions of the crowd that she was taken unconscious to the hospital.

Evening schools were early in the educational field in America. Old records show that an evening school was in existence in New Amsterdam in 1661 and in the English colony of New York in 1690. By 1724 an evening school was in operation in Boston. Philadelphia had such a school in 1734. Charleston, S. C., had three in 1741, and Newport, R. I., had one in 1753.

The average per capita cost of current expenses in city schools with a population of 100,000 or more for the year 1923-24 was greater by $7.25 than that of 1921-22, according to statistical circular No. 4, just issued by the department of the interior, bureau of education. In cities with a population of from 30,000 to 100,000 no increase of $2.75 in the same item was reported. In cities of from 10,000 to 30,000 the increase was only 13 cents. And in cities of from 5,000 to 10,000 it was $13.76.

Flower scented tea is the latest beverage in Peking, China. The flower is heated with the tea leaves and imparts an unusual flavor to the drink. The white jasmine is the flower most used and the practice is becoming so popular that large fields of jasmine are now being planted.

Rene Berger, a French painter was attacked by two robbers, who knocked him down and stole his valuable. He was taken to a hospital, where after a few days, he died. Although he regained consciousness, Berger had lost his power of speech and could not give a verbal description of his assailants. On his deathbed he made a drawing of their faces, and with the help of that drawing the police found and arrested Berger's murderers.

While cutting a large tree at Stow, Me., Herbert Andrews was surprised to see a piece of money fall at his feet. Upon picking it up, it proved to be a bright dime, which was partly covered with flecks of tree mold. A careful search of the tree, after it was felled, disclosed the place from which the coin had fallen. As the tree was well back in the woods from any highway, it is believed that a crow, attracted by the gleam of the dime, picked it up and carried it to a safe hiding place.

One of the oldest banks in Europe, which has survived more than three centuries of political and financial change, is the Banco di Santo Spirito, the Bank of the Holy Ghost, in Rome, writes Basil Miles, American commissioner to the International chamber of commerce, from Paris. He calls attention to the fact that this ancient institution has been transformed recently into a modern banking establishment. Created by papal bull in 1606, the institution recently has been authorized to transact all kinds of banking operations with a capital of 15,000,000 lire. Originally this bank made its profits by charging alms a fee for the safe custody of their funds and the profits were turned over to the Pio Instituto di Santo spirito, the oldest and most important philanthropical institution in Rome.

SCHOOL OF NURSING

The school of nursing connected with the William W. Backus Hospital in Norwich, Conn., is now registering students for the September classes. This school is registered in Connecticut and the course of instruction is two years and four months given in a general hospital of 90 beds. Students must be graduates of grammar school and have one year of high school work. A new nurses' residence opened this year affords each student all of the comforts and conveniences of home.

For circular of information, address Superintendent of Training School.

WESTERLY

Driven into Dixon square shortly after 4 o'clock, Thursday afternoon, on the second lap of several thousand miles, from Miami, Fla., appeared the auto bus, specially designed and marked, "Children's Home, Des Moines, Wash., H. M. Draper, supt." It housed 22 youthful passengers ranging in age from 6 to 16, 10 boys and 12 girls, who are just one year and one month from their Pacific coast starting point, 60 miles south of Seattle, Wash. This particular auto truck, all enclosed with specially arranged windows, onlookers were informed by the youthful occupants, in words where the r's were rolled, was the school room and with further rolling of the r's repeated the information as told them by those gathered about the house on wheels—Rhode Island, was the state they had just entered as they crossed the Pawcatuck river bridge, connecting the states of Rhode Island and Connecticut. Even so, the idea of the accompanying superintendent, H. M. Draper, absent to arrange with Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown of Westerly for an entertainment by the Kiddies with musical instruments, "Education by Travel" worked while "Dad" was away. The objective of the caravan, Thursday night, was Providence, the previous night having been passed in Madison, Conn.

The advance advertising car of Christy Bros. Big Five-Ring Wild Animal Shows, was brought to Westerly, Thursday morning, from the Midway freight yard, by the locomotive which comes to Westerly daily before 7 a. m. for the work train. The car came from Putnam and Plainfield and is routed to go to Essex, where it will be followed by the circus train which is made up of twenty cars.

Some fifty or more members of Grace Methodist church Sunday school of Westerly, who were taked to Atlantic Beach Casino, Thursday, by busses of N. F. Tuckerman, were delayed a short time, when the busses were stopped on Crandall avenue, Pleasant View, by Westerly police patrolman, Motorcycle Officer Robert Kessel, who summoned the drivers to appear before the district court of Westerly town hall this (Friday) morning, on a charge of violation of the hackney ordinance.

Newman F. Tuckerman and Eugene Bennett, operators of the two busses, the former being also the owner, continued to Atlantic Beach shortly after 11 o'clock, when they were presented the summons. They are charged with driving the busses without a license from the town of Westerly.

The affair follows the complaint made, Thursday morning, by Mrs. Flora Mooney, wife of Nick Mooney, who runs the Norwich-Westerly busses, that Tuckerman has been operating in the field covered by the franchise granted her early in the season by the Rhode Island state board of public utilities. Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown is investigating the complaint.

A temporary injunction restraining Tuckerman from operating a bus between Westerly and Bradford, a route covered by the Mooney busses, was granted in Providence some time ago, and was made permanent last Monday by the Washington county superior court, meeting at West Kingston.

Tuckerman was granted a franchise for Westerly routes early this season by the public utilities board. He returned the franchise in a few days, however, claiming that he could not afford to operate the line. Mrs. Mooney then was given the right to operate busses in that field.

Thursday morning, the death of Mrs. Eliza Herberts occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Samuel Herberts, 58 Bowling lane, Bradford.

William G. Brandenburg, 38 Symes street, Hartford, driving a Jewett automobile, and a truck of the Westerly Ice company, operated by Percy L. Perry, figured in a collision about 7:30 o'clock Thursday morning, on Liberty street, Pawcatuck. The mishap occurred when the ice truck was being driven into the lane which leads to the ice house off Liberty street when, it is claimed, the Jewett machine, traveling toward North Stonington, crashed into the left rear wheel and cracked two spokes. One tender on the Jewett machine was bent and the front spring and one headlight were broken. Officer C. Wilson Brown was called, but it said the driver of the Jewett machine had gone when the officer arrived. He had stopped, however, and consulted the driver of the ice truck. Officer Brown reported taking measurements and found that the Jewett machine skidded 69 feet after the brakes were applied. The road was in a wet condition, it is said.

The funeral of George W. Timbury, of 16 Spring street, was held at his residence, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, rector of Christ Episcopal church, officiated. The bearers were LaClede Woodmansee, George Collins, S. Davis, George Davison, George Trout and Arthur Wheeler. Burial was in River Bend cemetery. Mr. Timbury was in the crockery and house furnishing business for 33 years, previous to his retirement, in November, 1923.

The annual drive of the Salvation Army in Westerly will start next Wednesday, when a Salvation Army meeting will be held in Dixon square, the army band to furnish the music.

Captain Fred C. Austin, who has had charge of previous Salvation Army drives in Westerly, was in town Thursday making plans for the 1925 drive. E. Howard Clark has been made chairman of the executive committee, Thomas Platt secretary and Arthur L. Perry treasurer.

The drive for funds will be on here from Wednesday, July 15, to Saturday, July 18, inclusive, and soliciting will be done in Westerly, Watch Hill, Pleasant View, Weekapaug, Hope Valley and Alton.

The rooms of the People's Mission in Pawcatuck have been given over for the headquarters.

..Nearly 100 members of the Sunday school of Grace Methodist Episcopal church, David Shaw, superintendent, went by motor bus and private auto to Atlantic Beach Casino Thursday for the annual picnic. The chairman on refreshments was Mrs. J. W. Whittaker and for transportation and sports, Paul W. Munsel.

The first annual Charity Bazaar of Westerly lodge, No. 673, B. P. O. E. is being planned on the 400 by 400 foot lot, corner of Elm and John streets.

Mrs. L. Napoleon Boston and daughter, Miss Barbara, of Clarksboro, N. J., are guests of Mrs. Boston's father, L. B. Crandall.

Mrs. Thomas J. Reynolds, of Stonington, was the guest in Westerly of friends Thursday.

Mrs. Carelton Irish of Rockville, R. I., was an automobile visitor in Westerly Thursday.

George L. Babcock, of Plainfield, N. J., arrived Thursday evening to join his wife and family at El Reposo, Watch Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Ward Alger of Westerly were automobile visitors in Stonington, Thursday evening.

Thomas Wills, Jr., young son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Wills of Westerly who sustained injuries to his eyes while at a Fourth of July picnic party at Atlantic Beach, has returned to his home from a private hospital in Westerly. One eye has recovered fairly well, the other is more seriously injured and the doctor cannot tell yet whether the sight has been lost.

JEWETT CITY

The many who attended Chautauqua, Thursday afternoon, heard, in connection with an exceptional musical program, one of the finest addresses ever given in this town.

Miss Coleman, superintendent of chautauqua, was the speaker. The splendid sentiments she expressed with mother and home as the objective, was enhanced by the charming personality of the speaker.

Miss Coleman believes in woman's suffrage, and said she was glad of her vote, yet, adding, that it came far from being by the vote, that true woman declares the glory of God.

Miss Cynthia Crary of Preston, is visiting Miss M. A. Burdick for a week.

Big July 4th parade pictures will be shown at Finn's this Sat. Mat. and eve. Sun. and Tues. eve.—Adv.

A man hoeing in his garden one day this week came upon four bluebird's eggs which for some reason not clear, had een laid close up to the small stalks of a hill of corn. The mother bluebird generally does her housekeeping in a box or hole in a tree, sometimes in a wall or under a bridge stringer, but never on the ground. The man reorts no signs of a nest or evidences of incubation. The eggs were noticeably chalky and covered with white deposit, like lime.

Mrs. G. H. Prior, goes to Ocean Grove, N. J., Monday next to address a King's Daughters' meetnig.

Miss Edna Potter of Providence, R. I., is a guest at Mrs. S. B. Littlefield's.

Joseph Tenczar of Ashland street, has returned from a week's visit with relatives in Muskegon, Michigan.

The Finn Theatre management is soon to show the grand parade reel. There are bids in from theatre men in at least two nearby cities, to try and secure the film for their shows. The "horribles" will parade again upon the silver screen, and the big float pageant is simply wonderful. Several thousand persons will be delighted to spot themselves either in the parade or along the line of march. George the Bally Hoo Barker, will appear once more. And "Fat Fatima" will dance again, all fearless of the wrath of judges.

The Junior Chautauqua officers are: Mayor, Alston Eagar; clerk, Catherine Jodoin; law and order commissioners, Florence M. Connell, Chairman Annie Anthony, Main street, Annie Anthony, Soule street; service commissioners, Harold Stimosoni, Adeline Jaskevicz, Margery Webster; health commissioners, Sadie Anthny, Irene Jaskwicz and Marian Edmond, news reporter, Jeanne G. Rousseau. The children are thoroughly enjoying their Junior Chautauqua with Miss Ness as their leader. They learn songs, cheers and dances and are preparing for a play.

GREENWICH MAN HEAVILY ASSESSED BY ENGLAND

GREENWICH, Conn., July 9—(A. P.)—Leonard Martin, of this city has been assessed nearly a million pounds under the income laws of England, it became known here today. The original assessment amounted to $1,900,000 pounds but after lengthy negotiations this amount has been reduced to 908,-988 pounds. An appeal taken against the assessment has been dismissed.

A large purchase of government surplus linen in 1922 and its resale figures in the assessment. It is also held in England that Martin since 1910 has been carrying on the business of a wholesale agricultural merchant in that country.

In 1919, Martin negotiated with the British government for the purchase of 45,000,000 yards of linen, the total amount of the purchase being $6,733,-625 pounds. A large amount of the linen has been sold to British concerns.

A man may be a good talker and yet have an impediment in his thoughts.

George Englais is spending a week with friends in New York.

Two young men, George Kilkowski and Wilfred McKennie, have left on a tour of the country during the summer months on motorcycles.

O. Gilbert Charron, attended the shoe show in Boston this week.

Director Dissinger and his junior members are having the time of their lives these sunny days. A gym class has ben organized and the boys are put through regular drills. The boys are camped on the Community Grounds and make a daily trip to Beach Pond, with the Director.

Motorists are being warned about speeding along the new cement highway through the town; a nice little fine will remind them to press lightly on the accelerator.

The Main street through the town is in much better condition since the town workmen have scraped it and filled in all the chuck holes.

Local automobile owners have awakened to the danger of parking on both sides of the street near the Post Office, as this week cars have been parked on one side only.

Wednesday night about twenty young men were hunting on the lawns in town for night crawlers for fishing. It is not an unusual sight to see the hunters out nights with lanterns.

The rain the past few days has brought out the huckleberries and blueberries in quantities. Scores of youngsters are picking berries and offering them for sale at fifteen cents a quart.

The first shipment of native tomatoes was made Thursday by a local farmer, who stated that his crop will be the largest in years.

ISSUE BENCH WARRANTS FOR STAR WITNESSES

NEW YORK, July 9—(A. P.)—The government's two star witnesses were missing and bench warrants were issued for their arrest today when four men, alleged to have headed bucketshops which swindled New Englanders out of millions of dollars, went on trial in federal court on charges of using the mails to defraud.

Louis T. Hall and Charles J. Anastasia, associates of the accused men, are the missing witnesses. They were also indicted, and after pleading guilty agreed to testify as to alleged fraudulent practices of the four brokers.

The defendants are George W. Morse, George W. Field, Ralph L. Morse and Leon Field. Their firm failed in December, 1910, with $200,000 liabilities. Just before the crash came, they organized the brokerage firm of George W. Morse & Co., which failed for $3,000,000 in 1922.

BROKERAGE CREDITORS GAIN THIRD EXTENSION

CHICAGO, July 9—(A. P.)—Creditors of the failed brokerage firm of Dean Onativia and Company, today gained a third extension of twenty-four hours when they persuaded holders of the firm's collateral that they were near success in an effort to raise $2,-500,000 necessary to place the firm on a working basis.

The extension followed a conference between creditors here and Attorney Benjamin V. Becker, representing New York creditors of the house.

Bankers representing the collateral holders indicated that they might withhold placing the firm's securities on the market until Saturday if necessary.

TWO MEN KILLED WHEN PLANE FELL

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 9.—(A. P.)—Two men were killed tonight when an airplane crashed in flames at Amboy. The dead were identified as George Q. Ceratt, of Syracuse and Jacob Filkins of Belle Isle.

Faint heart often wins fair lady—with a little artful assistance on her part.

CLAIMS HUSBAND SET FIRE TO HER BED

NEW YORK, July 9—(A. P.)—In an affidavit filed today in connection with separation proceedings Mrs. Mary M. Burke, charged her husband, Edward Burke, professional basketball player, with setting fire to her bed because she refused to get up at seven o'clock in the morning and prepare breakfast for him.

At another time, Mrs. Burke charged Burke forced her to run out in the street at three o'clock in the morning in her night clothes when he came home after a two-day absence. Burke denied his wife's allegations and said their differences arose over friends of his wife of whom he disapproved.

GOVERNOR TRUMBULL SIGNS EXPENSE BILLS

HARTFORD, July 9—(A. P.)—Governor John H. Trumbull, returned from his stay in Maine today, aproved the following bills: Board of education, school for the blind, $13,533.22; Hartford retreat, care of the insane, for the quarter ended July 1, $52; requisition of the adjutant general on the comptroller for various accounts, $7,500 The governor also signed the special act concerning the consolidation of the town and borough of New Canaan.

The average woman doesn't care about a vote if she can get a voter.

Visible for 80 Miles

The most powerful electric searchlight in the world, with a normal range of more than 50 miles, is in operation on Staten Island, New York. It is part of the equipment of the United States lighthouse service. On a clear night the beacon has been reported as visible in Philadelphia, more than 80 miles away.

In Time of Trouble

Children and maids are frequently at a loss in an emergency, and a directory hung over the telephone with the names, addresses and telephone numbers of the family physician and a substitute, the nearest fire box, the police station, the family pastor and the business places of all employed members of the family will sometimes avert a tragedy.

Replaces Yellow Banner

China's national flag consists of five horizontal stripes, the uppermost red, the next yellow, the next blue, the next white, and the one at the bottom black. These colors stand respectively for China, Manchuria, Mongolia, Tibet and Turkestan.

Guiteau's Determination

A statement issued by District Attorney Corkhill says that Guiteau came to Washington, March 6, 1881, determined to assassinate the President on May 13, secured his weapon on June 8, and followed the President on several occasions, once to church, before he found the opportunity he sought on July 2.

Keep Furniture Clean

Highly enameled surfaces should be wiped with a soft cloth wrung out of tepid water. A small quantity of neutral white soap solution in the water can be used if there are finger marks or other grease spots, but do not use a strong soap, for alkalis are ruinous.

Watch as Compass

It is quite an easy matter to use a watch as a compass. Let your watch lie flat in your hand with the hour hand pointing toward the sun, and the point on the circle half way between the hour hand and XII will be directly south in the northern hemisphere and directly north in the southern hemisphere.

STOCK MARKET PRICES SHOW DOWNWARD TREND

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP)—Profit taking reached sufficient proportions in today's stock market to turn the course of prices downward after a firm opening. Sporadic bear selling accelerated the decline, net losses in the active issues ranging from one to four points. The day's sales again ran above one and one-quarter million shares.

In the absence of any adverse trade news, Wall street was inclined to regard the set-back as a natural correction of a weakened technical position resulting from the recent sustained advance.

Several of the larger commission houses had advised their customers to take profits in recent strong spots and to limit their buying to special stocks which had not been prominently featured in the recent advance. The professional trading element also was disappointed at the failure of United States Steel common to "follow through" after crossing 117 on a favorable estimate of second quarter earnings, that stock showing a net loss of one point at 115 3-4.

Lowering of the renewal rate on call money to 3 3-4 per cent., the lowest in over two weeks, stimulated pool activity in the early trading. So great was the accumulation of stocks by these speculative cliques that more than two dozen issues were elevated to new peak prices for the year.

Heavy buying of the coppers took place when the price of the red metal crossed 14 cents a pound in reflection of the increased domestic and export demand. American Smelting broke through 108 to the highest price since the armistice and United States Smelting exceeded its previous top for the year. Extreme gains of a point or more in most of the other issues in that group were reduced to fractions by the late wave of realizing.

The brisk demand for Dodge Brothers common, which closed three points higher at 27 after establishing a new peak slightly above that figure, featured the motor group. Pierce Arrow preferred yielded about three points and Mack Trucks one, on further profit taking. Fisher Body soared over five points to a new top at 79 3-4, and then cancelled all its gain. A better inquiry also was noted for some of the motor accessory issues, Timken Roller Bearing standing out with a net gain of nearly 1 1-2 points at 43 3-8. Establishment of a new maximum quotation by Goodrich was the only feature of the rubber group.

BOND MARKET QUIET.

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP)—Bond prices drifted within narrow limits today, with no developments to disturb the market's surface calm. Abundant supplies of money available at moderate rates promoted more activity but failed to bring about any striking price changes.

The possibility of an early flotation of a $100,000,000 Australian loan in this country aroused great interest in bond circles. While negotiations have not been definitely concluded, it is expected that J. P. Morgan & Company will sponsor the offering in this market. The issue probably will take the form of long term five per cent. bonds.

One of the features of today's trading was the tendency of buyers to seek substitutes for standard railroad and industrial bonds, most of which are returning unattractive yields at their present high prices. At the same time there was evidence of switching from the Liberty bond list to more moderately priced securities. As a result U. S. government obligations lost ground.

The only outstanding strong spots in the market were the Virginia-Carolina Chemical issues, which spurted up to new top prices for the year on buying prompted by prospects for an early ending of the company's receivership under favorable reorganization terms.

Although a number of European loans, including several German issues, are overhanging the market, bankers indicated today that they were being withheld because of the uneasiness created by the German revaluation program and the fact that some of the Berlin bonds, recently offered, still remain to be distributed.

WHEAT PRICES DROP.

CHICAGO, July 9.—(AP)—Wheat prices here showed a general downward tendency today, owing largely to unexpected weakness of quotations at Liverpool and because of selling to prepare for the United States government crop report due this afternoon. The government forecast regarding the 1925 yield of wheat turned out to be considerably better than unofficial estimates had called for. Chicago closing prices on wheat were easy, 1-2c to 1 1-8c net lower. September 1.44 1-2 to 1.44 3-4 and December 1.46 to 1.46 1-8, with corn 1 1-8c to 3 1-8c down, oats 1-2c to 1 1-8c off, and provisions varying from 12c decline to an advance of two points.

Lowest prices of the day in the wheat market here came early and were associated with persistent reports that Liverpool weakness was brought about by sales of Russian wheat to various European continental countries. Word of cool weather both in the spring wheat states and in Canada whereas a hot wave had been looked for, tended also temporarily to bring about a decline in values here. Later, however, rising temperatures and increasing reports of damage from black rust rallied the market to about yesterday's finish.

THE CURB MARKET.

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP)—The enormous turnover in Golden Center Mines, which comprised nearly one-fourth of the day's entire business, was the feature of today's irregularly lower curb market. The stock, which was admitted to trading today, opened with a sale of 43,000 shares at 5 1-8, quickly ran up to 6 1-2 and then eased to 6 1-8, on total transactions of nearly 125,000 shares. The company owns a gold mine in British Columbia. Trading in Engineers gold, which recorded a spectacular advance of 25 points yesterday, quieted down somewhat today, the stock falling back eight points below last night's close to 88 on profit taking.

Steady accumulation of Chapin Sacks, which moved up over two points to a record high at 46 1-2 in reflection of record-breaking ice cream sales over the Fourth, overshadowed all other developments in the industrial list. Gillette Safety Razor and Durant Motors were active at advanc

FROM GIRLHOOD TO MOTHERHOOD
Through all these periods of their existence thousands of women toil on, often suffering with backache, pains in side, headaches and nervousness, all telltale symptoms of some local derangement. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the one great remedy that will overcome such ailments. All over America women are telling other women how this wonderful medicine has restored them to health and the joy of living. This accounts for the tremendous demand for this popular medicine for women.

TAFTVILLE

Miss Anna A. Hasler of 34 Prestidge street has left to spend a month visiting friends at Rye Beach, N. H., Manchester and Keene, N. H.

Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Wentz and Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis of Portland, Conn., were visitors in the village Wednesday.

The elm trees which line the village streets are being treated to their annual spraying. Men employed by the Ponemah mills are doing the work.

Thomas Moran of South Bend street has resigned his position with the No. 4 weaving department of the Ponemah Company.

The local dog fanciers are planning to attend the dog show in New London, tomorrow.

The committee in charge of the annual picnic of the Taftville Congregational church, were at the vestry of the church Thursday evening distributing tickets to the members of the church who were entitled to participate. As in former years, the younger scholars of the school get free transportation, a small charge being made for the older pupils.

The Crescent Camp Fire Girls are planning to go to their camp this year at Groton Long Point.

The cabins on the Lisbon side of the Shetucket River, which are always popular for picnic parties during the summer months are being visited by many parties each week. Those who care to engage in the evening over open fires and broiling meats, etc., are welcomed at the cabins.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Duheau of Plainfield have been guests this week of Mr. Duheau's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lambert, and family of North B street.

Thomas H. Hartford of North B street spent a short time this week in Providence, R. I.

Miss Vera Robitaille of South Third street is entertaining her Annual vacation.

Jean Roy of Norwich avenue has returned from a visit of three weeks with relatives in Granby, P. Q., Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Hector Guertin and family have taken a house on Norwich avenue.

The attractive new bungalow of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Jackson of Norwich avenue is rapidly nearing completion.

Repairs have been completed on the business block of Mrs. Zepherine Pothier on Merchants avenue.

A large hole in the surface of Huntington street has been filled in, making smoother this part of the street after the recent repairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Elzred Godere of Prospect avenue are erecting another bungalow next to their present property.

Mr. and Mrs. John Brown of Springfield, former residents of North Main street, Taftville, are guests of Mr. Brown's sister-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Yerrington of South Main street.

Joseph Chaplinsky has returned to his home in Worcester, Mass., after spending a week with his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chaplinsky of Norwich avenue.

Taftville people who motor to Mount Hope Lake, Mass., take the opportunity to call on Andrew W. Smith, who operates a lunch room at the foot of the mountain. Mr. Smith resided on North Second avenue for some time when he was overseer of the dressing department of the Ponemah mills.

Real estate owners are being advised of the change in insurance rates on the business property of the town, caused by the maintenance of Fire Company No. 2, in the business section.

The rates on residential property will shortly after the fire department was equipped.

Thursday Half-Holidays Begin.

Stores in Norwich began their summer half holiday Thursday when they closed at noon. The closing of the stores is general throughout the city, only the small stores remaining open for business. Many of the employes took advantage of the closing to get an early start for the nearby beaches. The Thursday afternoon closing will continue through July and August and regular schedules will be resumed in September.

Entertaining College Classmate.

Miss Pauline Alper of New Haven, who has been a student at Connecticut college, New London, is visiting her classmate, Miss Lucy Gilman, of Scarsdale, N. Y. At the commencement exercises in June Miss Alper received the Goldsmith prize for highest proficiency in studies during freshman and sophomore years, besides being a recipient of annual honors.

NORWICH PLAYGROUNDS PREPARED FOR OPENING OF SEASON TODAY

The Norwich playground season will be officially opened at the playgrounds today (Friday).

William Fitzgerald, chairman of the recreation commission expects that the christening of the 1925 playground season will be an occasion of great moment. For the past two years, he has unselfishly been sacrificing time and pleasure in the development of the playground work. This movement has been something real and vital to him. Sympathy and co-operation, in some way, commensurate with his labor, can best be shown by the attendance at the opening sessions. Mr. Fitzgerald and every member of his commission are looking forward to the breaking of all former attendance records for opening day.

For the past week, Superintendent Earl E. Brigham has been engaged in putting his respective playgrounds in ship-shape order, assisted by his co-worker, Mr. Brigham, has been arranging the apparatus in preparation for Friday's commencement.

The playground sessions this year will be conducted much after last year's system. The smaller grounds: Laurel Hill, the Falls, Hobart avenue, East Side and Thames will have hours from 9 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. every morning except Saturdays and Sundays and from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. on the same days. Lake St., Greeneville, Elizabeth St.-and the Academy will have their hours from 1 to 5 p. m. every afternoon excepting Saturdays and Sundays and in the evenings from 6:30 to 8:30 p. m. excepting Saturdays and Sundays.

Beginning next Monday all interplayground contests will be run off strictly according to schedules. Instructors of the various playground teams are warned by the officials that the baseball games and the like start promptly on time. A repetition of last year's tardency on part of various teams scheduled to play at the Academy will not be tolerated. All athletic contests, unless otherwise notified, will be held at the Academy.

The schedule for the week commencing Monday, July 13, is as follows:

Girls' field, hockey, straddle ball and dodge ball contests, Monday, 15th Falls vs. Thamesville; Tuesday 14th, Laurel Hill vs. Elizabeth St.; Wednesday 15th, Hobart Ave. vs. Greeneville; Thursday 16th, Lake St. vs. East Side.

Boys' playground baseball league. Monday 13th, Lake St. vs. Falls, Tuesday, 14th, Greeneville vs. Laurel Hill; Wednesday 15th, Elizabeth St. vs. Hobart Avenue; Thursday 16th, East Side vs. Thamesville.

Girls' contests which include field hockey, straddle ball and dodge ball will be preliminaries to the playground baseball games. Instructresses and players should be at the Academy at 1 p. m., game to be called at 1:15 p. m. sharp. Coaches of the various playground baseball teams should have their charges at the Academy field at 1:30 p. m., game to be called at 2 p. m. The half-hour will suffice for preliminary warm-up. All contests will be called on daylight saving time.

The following is a list of rules governing all baseball games to be played on playground series:

1. The organization shall be known as the Playground Baseball League.

2. Membership in this league shall consist of teams representing the playgrounds.

3. The instructor in charge of playground shall submit to the advisory board not later than July 20, 1925 a list of not more than 20 players which he desires to have certified as members of his team.

4. Membership on each team shall be limited to boys less than 15 years, 6 mos. at the time of signing up.

5. To be eligible a boy must attend at least three playground sessions a week.

6. Necessary ground rules shall be agreed upon by the umpire before the game.

7. The captain shall be representative of his team and shall direct and control its play. No other person may address the umpire except to substitute who must report to the umpire on entering the game.

8. No instructor or coach can address the umpire unless he requests permission from the side-lines.

9. As regards the age-limit, the word of the player and the instructor in charge of player will be accepted; the umpire is not concerned with "looking-up" birth certificates.

10. A player shall be certified on one team only.

11. No player can transfer from one team to another.

12. Protests must be made in writing by instructor and left at the recreation department within 48 hours after disputed game is played.

13. A game cannot be protested because of an umpire's decision except for misinterpretation of the official baseball rules.

14. Any team protesting the eligibility of any player must do so before the start of the game to the umpire and instructor of opposing team.

15. Each captain shall choose one umpire from field umpires to alternate each inning on strikes and bases, however this arrangement must be sanctioned by the official playground referee.

16. All games will be run strictly according to schedule. Games called on Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

17. An advisory board, consisting of Chairman William Fitzgerald, John M. Lee and Superintendent Earl E. Brigham shall act as advisory board.

18. This board shall be the highest court of appeal for disputes and protests arising from games.

19. This board shall decide all protests and disputes.

20. It shall have jurisdiction over all questions which may arise which are not specifically covered in the rules. It is empowered to make such exceptions to these rules or whatever other action it may deem necessary for the proper conduct of the league.

The following is the schedule of the Junior Five League for the week of July 13:

Monday, Tigers vs. Rosedales; Wednesday, Crescents vs. Arrow; Friday, Warriors vs. Rovers.

All games will be held at the Academy campus promptly at 6:30 p. m. The games for the two open dates, Tuesday and Thursday evenings will be in Saturday morning's Bulletin.

LEBANON MAN BRINGS SUIT FOR DIVORCE

An apparent aftermath of the $14,000 damage suit of Earle A. Crane of Lebanon against W. L. L. Brewster a newspaper of that town, which was tried in the superior court last February, in which a suit brought by Mr. Crane for a divorce from his wife, Nettie Whaley Crane, now a resident of Hardwick, Vt. Papers in the case were filed Tuesday with the clerk of the superior court, the grounds alleged being a statutory offense committed since July 5, 1922, with a person unnamed. The Crane couple were married March 1, 1919.

Crane got a verdict on February 19, for $4,000 against Spencer on the ground of Spencer's alienation of the affections of Mrs. Crane. A motion to set aside the verdict was denied and the case was appealed to the supreme court. Later, however, the case was settled for $3,500 and satisfaction of judgment was filed in that amount.

HAD ENJOYABLE DAY IN PICNIC AT BEACH

The annual Sunday school picnic of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, postponed from Wednesday because of rain, was held Thursday at Ocean Beach. Over 100 members made the trip by trolley, leaving Franklin square at 8:45 o'clock in the morning, or by automobiles. At the beach a fine time was in store for everybody, swimming being enjoyed by any who desired this sport, while others indulged in whatever amusement the beach resorts provided. A basket luncheon was enjoyed at noon.

The return trip was made leaving the beach at 5:15 o'clock and arriving in Norwich about 6:45 o'clock.

GERMAN LUTHERAN SCHOOL HAD PICNIC AT BEACH

Over 150 members of the Sunday school of the German Lutheran church left Franklin square at 9:15 o'clock Thursday morning, in two trolleys, bound for Ocean Beach for their annual picnic. At the beach all sorts of sports were indulged in by the members as no formal program had been arranged. The children were provided with money by the Sunday school and purchased ice cream or other goodies which they enjoyed to the utmost. Basket luncheon was enjoyed at noon and after a day of pleasure the return trip was started, the members arriving home shortly after 6 o'clock in the evening.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF EMBEZZLING $97.55

Accused of embezzlement, Conrad Gendron, 2, of Sherbrook, Canada, was arrested Thursday night at a Main street rooming house by Sergeant John H. Casey. Officers Hugh McAvoy and William Sharvan, embezzlement of $97.55 from the John Hancock Insurance Co., is charged.

Gendron, it is understood, has been working here in restaurants for some time. He remained locked up over night as he could not secure bail.

DYDO IS TO APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT

Notice of an appeal to the supreme court has been given by John Dydo of Preston in the foreclosure suit brought against him by Pawel Sablewski of this city in which Judge Isaac Wolfe gave a verdict in favor of Sablewski for $125.10. The foreclosure was contested on the ground of misrepresentation about the property.

DESCRIBES EXPERIENCES IN SANTA BARBARA QUAKE

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Eldred, the former a well known violinist in this city a number of years ago, have been residents of Santa Barbara, Cal., for some time and went through the recent earthquake experienced there. Mr. Eldred, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Spicer of Groton, and a sister of Mrs. Wilfred E. Brown of Mystic, writes of their exciting experiences in the earthquake in a letter to her sister she says in part:

"The quakes here have been continuous from the first terrible one on Monday morning at 5:45 until 9:30 last night (Wednesday). I was sound asleep when the first one hit us Monday, but Edward was awake and at the window and with the terrible roaring and crashing and the house rolling like a row boat in a heavy sea it was the most terrifying awakening I ever went through.

I hurried down the hall and was thrown against the wall so hard that I ached from head to foot. It lasted 32 seconds, but every second seemed eternity.

"With flower vases full of water and overturned and those all smashed and furniture overturned, the house was a mess. The house itself stood the shock very well, but our bed and dresser and rug just slid across the room and the boy's bed was lifted clear of the floor and put down with a bang.

"Everybody rushed to the street in night clothes and we joined the dress parade. We are on a high hillside overlooking the business section. just left this as we had another quake so our troubles are not yet over. Our nerves are just about worn ragged and everybody rushes for the open spaces at the least sound.

"Well, as I started to tell you, when we looked out the city was a cloud of dust from falling buildings in the business section. Churches, theatres and hotels are wiped out and a large portion of the residences are totally or partially wrecked.

"Provisions are scarce, but Los Angeles is sending box lunches and bread milk, and sandwiches. Little did I think that I would ever join a bread line, but I had to Tuesday.

"Monday and Tuesday nights we were six miles out of the city and slept in an open lot but returned to stay home last night but were too terrified to sleep. The first night on the hill we sat up all night by a camp fire, but the second night we tried to sleep. The fog was so heavy it was like rain and our blankets were soaked but we knew no buildings could topple on us.

The city is over three-quarters gone. Los Angeles sent over 100 police officers and 60 telegraph operators and tons of food as our stores were all gone and we were in a sad plight."

In another part of the letter she writes:

"We have no gas or electricity and no inside fires are allowed, so everybody is cooking over improved fireplaces in back and front yards. Beds, cots and mattresses are everywhere inside the city and for miles outside.

"We are able to buy necessities now but the less fortunate are being wonderfully cared for by surrounding cities, particularly Los Angeles. The worst devasted area is under matrial law and everybody must be off the streets at 7 p. m. Our city reservoir broke and our main reservoir in the mountains large enough to hold several years' supply has a crack in it. We are praying for the best as that would be the last straw.

"We are all so thankful that we are safe and we don't complain about anything, but do wish it would stop quaking.

"One of our friends had a new Buick coach with balloon tires of course, and it was in the garage locked and emergency set but it bounced like a rubber ball out of the garage, tearing off the doors and against a tree."

In closing her letter, Mrs. Eldred stated that she would confess that the occurrence had dampened her California ardor and said that she had already known of quite a few who supposedly were permanently located there, who had left. She stated that tourists hastened out almost immediately and one road leading away from the city was lined with 10,000 cars.

FINED $50 ON CHARGE OF EVADING RESPONSIBILITY

Elmer Crouch of Preston, an employe of James Graham of Lisbon, was presented Wednesday night before Justice of the Peace Walter Drew in Lisbon on the charge of evading responsibility in an automobile accident, was found guilty and was fined $50 and costs. He appealed to the common pleas court.

The testimony against him was given by George Thomas, an engineer of this city, and by two women that were in the automobile of Mr. Thomas, when it was struck on the Newent road last Saturday night by the machine driven by Crouch, which belongs to Mr. Graham.

Grand Juror George Helmboldt prosecuted the case. Crouch, who was arrested at his home in Preston sometime after the accident by Constable A. L. Potter, was without counsel in court.

WOMEN'S CLUB CONFERENCE IS CLOSED AT STORRS

(Special to the Bulletin.)

STORRS, July 9.—Representatives of the Connecticut Federation of Women's Clubs, which has an enrollment of over 8,000 women throughout the state, brought their two day conference at the Connecticut Agricultural College to a close today.

The purpose of the conference at Storrs was to hold the annual summer business meeting, and those present included members of the executive committee, local club presidents and invited guests. Yesterday's program was arranged by the college authorities at the request of the women's clubs and today's program was arranged by the confederation.

The Storrs Women's Club, with the Connecticut Agricultural College cooperating, acted as hosts for members of the conference. Escorted by members of the Storrs Women's Club, delegates to the conference were taken on a tour of inspection through the college building and the campus. It was the first visit to the state college for many of the conference delegates and they showed much interest in the equipment and work being carried on at Storrs.

President Charles Lewis Beach of the college officially welcomed the visitors to Storrs in the program held last night in Hawley armory. This was followed by an interpretation of Russian music by Victor A. Biart, former official lecturer on the New York Philharmonic concerts.

Following is the program for the meeting held today: 9 a. m., Board Meeting; 10 a. m., Open Meeting, Singing, Collect for Club Women, Singing; Forum, discussion of Club Problems, Club program, Cure for Club Poverty, Business Methods, State Bulletins, Legislations; 1:30 p. m., Singing, Recommendations based on Forum of morning session, Informal Talk, "Decorative Use of Flowers," Dr. Charles Snow Thayer, Librarian Hartford Theological Seminary.

Among those in attendance at the conference at Storrs were Mrs. J. B. Fullerton, Mrs. C. R. Alfred, Mrs. C. C. Case, Mrs. F. E. Wilcox, all of Willimantic; Miss Helen Kelly, Miss Cora Cogswell, Killingly; Miss Marion Chollar, Danielson.

JURY SELECTED TO HEAR SCOPES EVOLUTION CASE

Seats In Jury Box Filled With Little Effort As Opening Day of School Teacher's Trial Moves Swiftly On its Way—Admission of Scientific Testimony Will Be Bitterly Contested—Defense Considers Scientists Competent Witnesses For Both Sides But Prosecution Takes Opposite View — Accused Is Reindicted By Grand Jury.

DAYTON, Tenn., July 10—(A. P.)—Twelve jurors who will try the case of John Thomas Scopes charged with violating the Tennessee law prohibiting the teaching of theories of evolution in the public schools of the state were chosen today. The first day of the trial moved swiftly on its way, bringing into the open the question of admission of scientific testimony in regard to evolution which will be brought out Monday.

The discussion started in a small way at the first session, but gained enough momentum to show that it will be bitterly contested.

The twelve seats in the jury box were filled with little effort.

Twelve of the 20 prospective jurors examined became jurors without questions from the state. The defense propounded a number of questions to each man but used only two of its three peremptory challenges. One objection was made by the state, the court ruled four possible jurors incompetent and one was excused on account of age.

No session of the court will be held tomorrow. The defense asked for a day in which to confer over points they desire to stress in their contention that scientific testimony will show that the theory of evolution and the story of divine creation as told in the bible are not in conflict. Judge John T. Raulston, presiding, announced that court would open at 9 o'clock, recess to a recess at 11:30 o'clock and reconvening again at 1:30, close for the day at 4:30 o'clock.

The first move of the day was to swear a grand jury and present a new bill against the 24 year old school teacher.

The indictment returned May 25 was considered of doubtful legality on account of an oversight in elapsed time before the summons to the grand jury and the actual meeting of the body. Attorney General A. T. Stewart said it was the desire of all concerned to make a record that would bear thorough inspection if the case reaches a higher court, and presented a new bill. The defendant was reindicted in almost the identical language used in the first document.

A statement by Clarence Darrow, of counsel for the defense, showed the first issue at hand. Speaking of the expectation of the defense to bring witnesses from a distance he said that the defense considered scientists competent witnesses in the case to express what evolution is, saying defense counsel considered such witnesses competent on both sides.

Attorney General Stewart, replying to Mr. Darrow's announcement that the defense would insist on introducing scientists and bible students to give their views of the Tennessee law, said that the prosecution would take the position that it was not competent to bring scientists into the case to testify as to what the theory of evolution is, or interpret the bible or anything of that sort."

The brief preliminary skirmish ended the incident for the day, the afternoon session being devoted to selection of a jury.

The first of the jury panel called, W. F. Robinson, was accepted by the state and defense with only a few questions, but Clarence Darrow went into an exhaustive examination of the second prospective juror, J. W. Dagley, and followed this course with the others until the jury box was filled.

The defense lawyer asked the talesmen if they knew anything of evolution as discussed, heard sermons or lectures on the subject and read of it in newspaper or magazines. He also inquired as to their church membership, their familiarity with the bible and ideas, if any, as to the consistency of the theory of evolution, and the story of divine creation as told in the bible.

The jury, as completed, included nine farmers, one school teacher and farmer; one fruit grower and one shipping clerk.

Only one of the 12 men was not a member of the church. Three denominations were represented on the jury, Baptist, Methodist and Christian.

W. F. Robinson, farmer; J. W. Dagley, farmer; Jim Riley, farmer; W. P. Taylor, farmer; R. L. Gentry, farmer and school teacher; J. A. Thomlinson, fruit grower and former U. S. marshal; Lesse Goodrich, shipping clerk; J. H. Berryman, farmer; B. W. Day, farmer; R. L. West, farmer; J. S. Wright, farmer; W. D. Smith, farmer. Eleven jurors are church members.

Clarence Darrow conducted the examination of jurors on behalf of defense while J. G. McKenzie and Attorney General Stewart performed like duty for the state.

Dr. Darrow questioned prospective jurors about their belief in evolution.

Court then adjourned until Monday morning at nine o'clock.

One minister, the Rev. J. P. Massengale was examined but excused by the defense on the statement:

"What I want every juror to start on is an open mind."

Mr. Darrow asked the minister if he had ever preached on evolution and he said that he had taken it up in connection with other subjects.

"Against it or for it?" asked the lawyer.

"I am strictly for the bible," was the reply.

Mr. Darrow said that he was not talking about the bible, but evolution and repeated his question.

"Did you preach for or against evolution?" Mr. Massengale appealed to the court with the question: "Is that a fair question?" Told that it was he said "well, I preached against it of course."

Applause of considerable volume broke out in the crowded courtroom and Judge Raulston admonished the crowd to preserve order as Dr. Darrow asked:

"Why, of course."

Mr. Darrow was on his feet with a request to the court that any one he excluded who applauded. The court assured him that such action would be taken.

Defense counsel was augmented today, William O. Thompson of New York, and Frank McElwee, Rockwood, Tenn., G. C. Harris, a Spring City lawyer, assisted the defense in selecting the jury. Visiting attorneys were introduced to the court and made welcome by Judge Raulston. These included on the defense side in addition to Mr. Thompson, Clarence Darrow, Dudley Field Malone and Arthur Garfield Hays. The prosecution array of lawyers included two from out of the volunteer state, William Jennings Bryan and his son, William Jennings Bryan, Jr., were introduced.

The defense in adding two lawyers, increased the total only one as John L. Odsey, Dayton attorney, who has represented Scopes since before the preliminary hearing today announced his withdrawal.

TREATIES WILL HELP SOLVE CHINESE PROBLEM

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 10—(A. P.)—In his first conference with a cabinet officer since leaving Washington for a vacation, President Coolidge will discuss tomorrow with Secretary Kellogg late developments in the debt funding and Chinese situations.

The secretary of state, who was on his way tonight to the summer White House from his home in St. Paul, Minn., will be joined here by Under Secretary Grew, coming from Washington. It is probable that they will confer at length tomorrow with the executive and perhaps extend their stay here over the week end.

There is no development in either the debt or Chinese situation, it was indicated today at White Court, that has alarmed the president or led him to believe that a serious crisis has been reached.

On the other hand, it was stated before Mr. Coolidge left the capital he arranged with Mr. Kellogg, as he did with other cabinet officials to come here whenever he had information of importance with regard to departmental matters.

For more than two weeks the president has depended on press reports for information as to the trend of foreign affairs in which the United States has a vital interest. Since he became a vacationist, however, there have been preliminary negotiations on debts with Italy, France, Belgium and other European nations and it is presumed that the president desires to ascertain from Mr. Kellog, who not only is a member of the American Debt Funding Commission, but has been in intimate touch with the preliminary negotiations just what the United States can expect from its debtors.

As to the Chinese situation, it was made clear that President Coolidge believes that once the treaties effecting China negotiated by the Washington conference are ratified by France and thus become effective the way will be clear for conferences that should do much toward untangling the vexing Chinese problem.

Although he has not been in close touch with late developments, Mr. Coolidge does not look with favor on the suggestion that there should be a conference separate and distinct from those authorized under the Washington conference treaty dealing with Chinese customs and extra-territorial rights, for the purpose of restoring some semblence of order in chaotic China. The president is of the opinion that the conference authorized by the Washington treaty should be adequate to deal with the situation in China as far as the United States is concerned, but is convinced that as soon as France completes ratification it will be necessary for the American government to act without undue delay in concert with other powers signatory to the treaty.

One of the purposes of this conferences with the secretary of state will be to map out this end.

BLOODLESS REVOLT AT GUAYAQUIL, ECUADOR

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, July 10—(A. P.)—Troops of the Guayaquil garrison began a military movement last night which culminated in the capture of the civil and military authorities. A similar movement took place at the same time at Quito, the capital of Ecuador, where the military proclaimed General Francisco Gomez de la Torre as military chief of government.

There was no bloodshed at either place.

The movement is described as designed to end present maladministration, and it is declared that the military authorities will be in full control pending constitution of a civil government which will give absolute guarantees.

A meeting of the military Junta was held this morning. It was agreed to meet again later to designate the civil authorities of the province.

THREE NEW BRIDGES FOR NEW YORK

NEW YORK, July 10—(A. P.)—Further consideration of the proposed $687,000,000 subway to relieve congestion from Long Island, Westchester county, and New Jersey, at the conferences of the New York State Suburban Commission today, showed that traffic within a radius of 40 miles and 2,500,000 commuters, would be affected by the proposed improvements.

The actual construction will cost between $500,000,000 and $552,000,000, and the equipment $135,000,000, it was estimated in a report made by D. L. Turner, consulting engineer of the Suburban Transit Commission.

J. A. Gregory, chairman of the New York port authority, also proposed the construction of three bridges to cost approximately $13,000,000. Surveys have been completed for these bridges, two of which would connect Staten Island with points in New Jersey, and the third, Manhattan, with the Jersey shore.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

PARIS, July 10—(A. P.)—The Chamber of Deputies without debate adopted a bill today creating in Paris an international institute for intellectual co-operation. An appropriation of 500,000 francs was voted for its maintenance for six months.

ARMORED BANK CAR ROBBED AT GUNPOINT

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 10.—(AP)—Finger prints found on the armored car of the American Trust company, held up and stolen here today by four armed men, checked with those of an escaped convict, Cambridge police said tonight. The convict, police said, has not been traced since he escaped from a Vermont prison, where he was serving time for a robbery, several weeks ago.

Though bank officials stated that but $5,000 in cash and $6,000 in checks was obtained by the holdup men, the police assigned to the case estimated the bank's loss at about $20,000. The armored bank car had about completed its daily round of calls today when two of the armed and masked men held up Walter R. Bradford, driver of the machine, which is owned by the Taxi Service company, after Edmund F. MacQuarrie, the bank teller, left it in the yard of the Neapolitan Ice Cream company and entered the office of the plant.

Bradford, hired by the taxi firm only this morning, was ordered to leave the bank car at gunpoint. Then the two men drove it away, one of them firing a shot at a holdup witness who made an outcry. As the bank car left the yard, a machine containing two other men followed. The robbers abandoned the bank car about a half mile from the holdup scene after ripping off its bars and removing the cash.

The machine which they used to escape in, police said, bore registration plates belonging to a car stolen from Arthur Boyle, of Ipswich.

Two witnesses of the holdup who attempted to give chase were discouraged by two more shots fired by one of the holdup men.

Though several witnessed the robbery, descriptions of the robbers vary widely, police said. All agreed however, that one of the four, "young, dark and a foreigner," had a handkerchief over his eyes and wore a dark brown cap, a brown coat and blue trousers which may have been overalls.

Both Teller MacQuarrie and Chauffeur Bradford had no previous experience on the bank car. McQuarrie is regularly employed inside the bank but was assigned outside in place of the regular messenger, now away on a vacation.

ROCKEFELLER SELLS PROPERTY TO SON

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP)—Sales by John D. Rockefeller, Sr., of his estates at Pocantico Hills and at Lakewood, N. J., of his townhouse and garage in New York City, and of his winter home at Ormond, Fla., to his son, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for a price "in excess of $3,000,000," was announced today.

The sale leaves one of the world's wealthiest men without a home of his own. The price paid for each parcel of property sold was announced as being in excess of the taxable value of the property.

A representative of the Rockefellers denied that the sale was made to escape payment of inheritance taxes on the property. He said that the valuation had been reached by real estate experts. The sale did not decrease the wealth of Mr. Rockefeller, Sr., but constituted an exchange of cash and securities for his real estate holdings.

A government tax of $1,733.50 was imposed on the sale of the Pocantico Hills estate, which was made at a price of $1,733.50. The estate of more than 6,000 acres is situated in the two towns of Mount Pleasant and Greenburg, New York and contains a private 9 hole golf course for the use of Mr. Rockefeller, Sr.

Mr. Rockefeller's town property consisted of a house at 4 West 54 street with a large garage on a separate lot.

OVER 700 WOODS FIRES IN STATE PAST SPRING

HARTFORD, July 10.—(AP)—There were 700 wood fires in Connecticut during the past spring and although all were not spectacular, fifty of them burned more than 100 acres apiece, according to an article on "woods waste" in the latest issue of "The Connecticut Log," published by State Forester Austin F. Hawes. "They did not destroy much timber because there isn't much left to destroy," the report states, "but these repeated fires are the means of keeping a large part of our state in an unproductive condition."

Another cause of a great waste of timber is unwise cutting. "The cord wood industry in Connecticut is responsible for a tremendous waste; through the custom of clean cutting, thousands of young trees, capable of growing into good lumber, are cut every year," Mr. Hawes writes. "If clean cutting for cord wood were stopped, it would be possible for farmers to thin out their woods at a profit and greatly increase the growth and the profit to themselves."

COL. COOLIDGE IS MAKING STEADY GAINS

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 10.—(AP)—Such encouraging reports have been received by President Coolidge as to the condition of his father, Col. John C. Coolidge, that he foresees no necessity of returning in the near future to Plymouth, Vt., where his father resides.

The president has been advised by his personal physician, Dr. James F. Coupal, that he will be able within a few days to return to duty at the summer White House here. Dr. Coupal rushed to Plymouth when Col. Coolidge became critically ill recently and remained there to attend him after the president had returned to the summer White House.

ONE CENT CHECK TO PAY INCOME TAX

HARTFORD, July 10.—(AP)—A check for one cent to cover a quarterly installment of an income tax payment was received at the United States internal revenue office in this city today. The payer's tax on last year's income, less exemptions allowed, came exactly to four cents. He elected to pay it quarterly, mailing his check in an envelope bearing a two cent stamp every three months until he has paid the entire amount.

Ford Submits Bid For Shipping Fleet

Offer Was Turned Over To President Palmer And Will Be Considered With Other New Bids On July 16th.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP)—A bid from Henry Ford for purchase of the 200 government vessels offered for sale for scrapping was received today by Chairman O'Connor of the shipping board.

The bid was handed to Mr. O'Connor by W. B. Mayo, chief engineer for Ford, and was turned over to President Palmer of the Fleet corporation, who is to conduct negotiations for disposal of ships by direction of the board, which yesterday rejected his recommendation that they be sold to the Boston Iron and Metal company of Baltimore, for $1,370,000, and ordered the ships re-advertised.

The Ford bid, which failed to appear when those rejected yesterday were opened June 30, will be considered with other new offers July 16.

Although the details of the Ford bid, which was turned over to President Palmer, were not made public, Chairman O'Connor said it was "way over" that of the Boston Iron and Metal company and contained conditions permitting resale of engines and other equipment of the vessels only as junk, unless the bidder decides to use the equipment himself. The Boston Iron and Metal company bid provided for resale of equipment as second hand materials, a method regarded as undesirable by some members of the board, although the advertisement of the sale under which it was submitted, provided for either plan.

Mr. O'Connor said that Mr. Mayo had been in Washington since Wednesday but he had not discussed the bid with him nor had "any official information" prior to the board's meeting yesterday that the manufacturer would submit an offer if given an opportunity. He had believed for some time, however, that Ford would like to make an offer for the vessels.

It was Chairman O'Connor who, on his own initiative, took up with Mr. Ford the question of buying ships before the 200 vessels were advertised, and a bid was generally expected from him. No such bid was found, however, although the manufacturer announced in Detroit that an offer had been mailed prior to June 30.

The bid, received today, Mr. O'Connor related, was given him in an unsealed evelope.

ICE FLOES CONFRONT MacMILLAN EXPEDITION

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP)—Unprecedented ice floes along the Labrador coast were reported to the National Geographic society today as likely to place unexpected difficulties in the path of the MacMillan Arctic expedition.

This report, however, differed somewhat from a message to the navy department earlier in the day which indicated that much less ice than usual for this time of the year was found in the vicinity of Hopedale harbor, from which the expedition expected to depart at 2 a. m. today. No message filed since that hour has been received here tonight.

Cape Harrigan, some 400 miles north of Newfoundland, was named by Commander MacMillan in the message to the Geographic society as the point for which he would head after leaving Hopedale, and from there he planned to push 200 miles further north to Cape Mugford.

MRS. CANADAY "READY TO DEFEND HERSELF"

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, July 10—(A. P.)—Declaring she was "ready to defend herself in any court either in Texas or New York state," Mrs. Virginia Canaday tonight proudly exhibited her five year old son, Roscoe Jr., whom she admitted forcibly removing from the home of his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Mary Canaday at Forest Hills, N. Y., Tuesday at 11:30 a. m.

"If a parent can be guilty of kidnapping her own child, then I am guilty. After four unsuccessful attempts to get possession of him, I finally grabbed him from the front porch where he was playing Tuesday morning, scaled a high picket fence, fell and cut his lip, and after throwing him and myself into the bottom of a rented car, made a clean getaway and caught a train for San Antonio at a nearby station at 4 o'clock that afternoon."

SUMMARY OF FRIDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The federal trade commission dismissed ten complaints charging tobacco price fixing.

A decrease of 112,000 in the farm population last year was estimated by the agriculture department.

Under Secretary of State Grew left for Swampscott to confer with President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg.

Butler Loses Out In Libel Action

Philadelphia Newspaper Publisher Discharged By Court On Ground of Insufficient Evidence.

PHILADELPHIA, July 10.—(AP)—General Butler's criminal libel action against members of the staff of the Philadelphia Daily News, a tabloid afternoon newspaper, failed today.

The director of public safety caused the arrest of eight persons connected with the paper, charging that he had been misquoted in a public address. After a hearing Lee Ellmaker, general manager of the paper, was held in $500 bail and the others discharged. Instead of furnishing bail his case was taken into court on a habeas corpus writ and after another hearing Ellmaker was discharged on the ground that no sufficient evidence of criminal libel had been presented to warrant the case going to the grand jury.

OSTEOPATHY STUDENTS PASS STATE EXAMS

HARTFORD, July 10.—(AP)—All six of the students of Osteopathy who took the state examinations, given in the capitol, June 25 and 26, passed and some extraordinarily high grades were recorded, it was announced today by Dr. Louis C. Kingsbury, chairman of the examining board.

YE TOWNE CRIER.

The picturesque towne crier, in knickerbockers, three-cornered hat and with insistent bell, has passed into history. The daily newspaper has taken his place. Multiplied him. Amplified him. It is the great broadcaster of news today—vital irreplaceable.

What the towne crier told dozens, the modern newspaper tells thousands. Tells them more. Tells them in the quiet of their homes, offices and shops. Not only news of current events, but news of merchandise to be had at the stores.

DISCLAIMS KNOWLEDGE OF STILL ON FARM

NEW HAVEN, July 10.—(AP)—Harry Cohen, operator of the farm in Hamden, the house on which was wrecked by an explosion yesterday, stated to the authorities today that while he had been on the farm every day, he never knew that Frank Donovan, to whom Cohen had rented the place, was running a still in the cellar. Mr. Cohen is being held by the police for further questioning. The ruins showed two 50-gallon stills.

Cohen said that he had rented the place to a man who gave his name as "Donovan" on the evening of June 27. He said he did not know where Donovan was at the present time.

Cohen was taken to an undertaking establishment to view the body of Catello Conte, fatally injured in the explosion, to see if he could identify Fiengo, injured in the explosion, as the man to whom he had rented his place.

Coroner Mix said tonight he would continue his investigation.

CLAIM FILM TAX LAW IS NOT PRACTICAL

NEW HAVEN, July 10.—(AP)—claim that the new state movie tax and censorship law violates interstate commerce regulations, that it is too arbitrary to be practical and that the censorship powers vested with one man might lead to harmful results was made by George W. Wickersham, of New York, in his argument here today on the hearing before Judge Henry Wade Rogers of the New York circuit court, and Judges Henry Goddard and Thomas Thatcher of the New York district courts, of the constitutionality of the law.

The hearing was held on applications of the Fox Film Company, of New York, and the American Feature Film Company, Inc., of Boston, and Judge Rogers instructed Mr. Wickersham, counsel for the film interests, and Arthur L. Shipman, counsel for the state, to file briefs on the case with him in New York within ten days. Pending a decision the law will not be enforced.

POLITICAL TROUBLES ARE GENERAL IN ECUADOR

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP)—Unconfirmed reports to the state department from Guayquil today indicated that political disturbance had been general in Ecuador, but stated that order was being maintained and that no loss of life or property had resulted.

Confirmation was lacking in the state department advices as to the actual chain of events in Quito as reported by the press, no mention being made of a governmental overthrow or of other serious political upheavals.

DENIES SHE SHOT HER ACTOR HUSBAND

NEW YORK, July 10—(A. P.)—Mrs. Edith Parker Davis denied that she shot and seriously injured her husband, Allen Davis, actor, last Tuesday night, when arraigned today on charges of felonious assault and possession of fire arms.

"I remember nothing about it," Mrs Davis said.

Mrs. Davis' mother, Mrs. Josie Parker of Washington, D. C., was with her today.

The case was adjourned until Monday, pending the outcome of Davis' condition. Mrs. Davis was released on $10,500 bail.

At first Miss Griswell was unable to remember anything about herself, but later was able to tell her name and address. She was removed to Hillside Home, where she is under observation.

LEWIS DENIES HARD COAL MINERS EARN BIG INCOMES

Miners Are Not Disposed To Discuss Non-Strike Pledge And Will Object To Arbitration As Means of Settling Dispute —Believe Arbitration Plan Would Encourage Operators To Obstruct Present Negotiations In Hopes of Securing A Better Break At Future Hearings—Joint Scale Sub-Committee Adjourns Session Until Next Tuesday.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 10.—(AP)—The joint scale sub-committee of anthracite operators and miners opened negotiations today, and, after staking out claims in a general way, adjourned until next Tuesday afternoon at the Hotel Traymore.

W. W. Inglis, president of the Glen Alden Coal company, of Scranton, who is spokesman of the mine owners, revealed that both sides at the first meeting had avoided the controversial questions of arbitration and whether work should continue after September 2, contract or no contract.

James A. Gorman, secretary of the sub-committee, covered today's deliberations with an official statement:

"After consideration of the method of procedure on the part of the committee, there followed a discussion of substitutes for the use of anthracite coal. The discussion of the operators being to the effect that the use of substitutes constitutes a growing menace to the anthracite coal trade. The miners contended that substitutes do not seriously affect the sale of anthracite coal.

"There followed a discussion as to the price of anthracite and bituminous coal and the mining cost of coal."

Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the Anthracite Operators' conference, said today that:

"We are reported to be indifferent to, if not actually in favor of, a suspension in order that we may dispose of large stocks of coal. On the contrary, our representatives have been instructed to urge upon the miners' committee the proposal that whatever may be the course of negotiations for the new contract, both sides shall bind themselves that there shall be no suspension of production."

Mr. Warriner repeated his plea for arbitration in event of a deadlock, "upon the understanding that production shall be continued at the present wage scale until the arbitrators render an award."

The miners said they are not disposed to listen at this time, to any talk about such a non-strike pledge because it appears to them unnecessary and because "anyone sincerely desirous of reaching an agreement" has seven weeks in which to do it.

"That ought to be plenty of time," a miners' official said.

As to arbitration, the miners said they would have none of it, because, their opinion, it would only encourage the operators to obstruct the present negotiations in hope of securing a "better break" at hearings before arbitrators later on.

John H. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, denied today that anthracite miners earn the high incomes alleged by Chairman Warriner in his reply to the demands yesterday. He quoted figures of the former United States coal commission purporting to show that "to earn $1,000 a year, or $83 a month, a hard coal digger had to work 232 days, and to earn $2,000 a year, or $166 a month, had to work every day, including every Sunday and holiday and 105 days of overtime."

REBELS AIM AT CAPTURE OF FEZ

PARIS, July 10—(A. P.)—Events in Morocco are interpreted as confirming that the principal objective of the rebellious tribal leader, Abd-el-Krim, remains Fez, where French headquarters are located. The strategy he is employing is stated here to be undoubtedly European.

Horacio Echevarieta, Spanish millionaire ship owner, who has several times been employed in treating with Abd-el-Krim, will, it is understood, present terms to the leader which have been drafted by the Franco-Spanish conference at Madrid. It is believed he will be accompanied by Major Aguilar of the Spanish army. The terms probably will be made known to Abd-el-Krim next week at Ajdir.

The correspondent of the Temps at Fez, describes the situation in Morocco as "neither brilliant nor compromised, but simply serious."

"The day is gone," he adds, "when a general like Gouraud could march through Morocco with a column of 8,000 men. The positions are completely reversed."

NAMED MEMBER OF TARIFF COMMISSION

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 10.—(AP)—With the appointment today of Edgard Bernard Brossard as a member of the tariff commission which of late has been sharply divided over questions of policy, President Coolidge fills the last vacancy and seems assured of an organization in sympathy with his views.

Recommended for appointment by Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, Mr. Brossard fills the vacancy caused by the selection of Vice-chairman William S. Culbertson to be minister to Roumania. Mr. Brossard, who is 36 years old, has been economist with the commission since 1923, was born in Idaho, educated in Utah and holds degrees from the University of Minnesota. He was married in 1915 to Laura Cowley, of Logan, Utah.

The Brossard appointment was the third to the commission of six members made by President Coolidge.

GIRL CIRCUS RIDER IS BADLY INJURED

HARTFORD, July 10.—(AP)—Miss Pearl Shirley, 19 years old, of 21 Mill street, Dorchester, Mass., a circus rider with the Miller Brothers 101 Ranch, wild west and far east show, ridden down in a melee in which more than 100 Indians attacked a "covered wagon caravan" in the center of the circus arena in Waterbury Thursday night is in the Hartford hospital in a serious condition with a possible fracture of the skull and bruises about the head and arms.

Miss Shirley, a new rider for the 101 ranch, rode in the stage coach scene in Brockton, Mass., about ten days ago when the careening prairie schooner toppled over and injured the eight occupants. She was taken to the Brockton hospital thought to be suffering with concussion of the brain and only returned to the circus three days ago.

WORKERS IN RIO TALK STRIKE WHEN WAGES STOP

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 10 (AP) The municipality faced trouble early this month when 6,000 employes threatened to strike on account of unpaid wages. A committee recently was appointed to talk with the mayor, who promised to improve conditions. He later arrested the ring-leaders of the movement, and placed federal troops on guard at the city hall to stop trouble.

The office of the treasury stated that the city payroll was unpaid for April and May, the wages due certain departments totalling $1,000,000. The treasurer's office unofficially says that this money was used to pay obligations due on foreign and domestic debts.

The city treasurer has started to liquidate unpaid salaries, the city promising to have the payments completed at an early date. (The men accepted the promise and returned to work.

Many a woman accountant isn't able to figure her own age correctly.

STATE WILL PAY POSTAGE ON AUTOMOBILE MARKERS

HARTFORD, July 10—(A. P.)—Postage on motor vehicle registration markers and certificates applied for by mail will hereafter be paid by the state motor vehicle department, a pamphlet, which the department issued, covering the changes in registration fees effective July 1, states. Since the postal rates were changed by Congress, an additional charge of eight cents has been made by the department to cover the postage in cases where registrations were requested by mail. Previously the charge for postage was six cents.

Under the new motor vehicle law, which went into effect last week, all registration fees are now figured to the nearest even fraction of the dollar in multiples of 25 cents. For the accommodation of the public, the revised fee tables have been printed by the department giving the exact amount required for registration of cars of all measures of piston displacement. These will be widely distributed.

"Only Connecticut-licensed drivers can legally operate Connecticut registered cars," says a legend printed in a box in red ink in the upper left hand corner of envelopes in which registration certificates are now issued. General dissemination of information as to this requirement is especially desired by the department during the vacation season when people from outside the state come to Connecticut resorts in large numbers and often overlook the law on this point.

INJUNCTION AGAINST NEW YORK CLERGYMAN

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice Tierney today granted an injunction restraining the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of Calvary Baptist church from acting and voting as a trustee, in a suit brought by five trustees opposed to the erection of a skyscraper church-hotel by the church.

Justice Tierney denied an injunction to prevent the deacons of the church from taking action to expel or suspend the complaining trustees. The trustees who filed the injunction suit included William A. M. Martin, who also is treasurer of the church.

The insurgent trustees in their original complaint charged waste of the church's funds and asked for a receivership, but these were withdrawn later. In their petition they said many valuable workers had been driven from the church by the Rev. Dr. Straton.

Today's injunction is to stand until the suit is tried. In his ruling Justice Tierney held that the church's charter called for nine trustees, and as there were now that number, the Rev. Dr. Straton could not vote as a trustee.

CORONER FINDS MEN'S DEATHS WERE ACCIDENTAL

NEW HAVEN, July 10.—(AP)—The death of two railroad employes, Antonas Yuska, of this city, and Hugh Mooney, of Bridgeport, were accidental, according to statements issued today by Coroner Eli Mix.

Yuska was killed in the Cedar Hill yards the night of July 6 when a 1,600-pound case fell on him. Mooney was killed on the night of July 5 when his hand came in contact with a "live" wire in the New Haven yards. He fell from a tower and suffered a fracture of the skull.

Funeral services for Mrs. Eva Tracy were held from her home, 115 Card street. Requiem high mass at St. Mary's church at nine o'clock, was sung by Rev. H. C. Belec. Special hymns were sung by the choir of St. Mary's with Mrs. Joseph R. Gaudreau at the organ. The body was met at the entrance to the nave by a delegation from the society and was escorted to the sanctuary rail. The banner was carried by Mrs. Jean St. Laurent, Mrs. Rosalie Dansereau and Mrs. Gedeon Lamy. Carrying the canopy were: Mrs. Henry Pageau, Mrs. Clodia Rousseau, Mrs. Alcanise D'Auteuil, and Mrs. J. F. Pepin. The bearers were, Arthur Beaudreau, Ancinad Brousseau, Henry Beaudreau and Honore Lafleur. At the grave in St. Joseph's cemetery, Rev. Father Belec conducted the committal service. Relatives and friends attended in large numbers.

James Loney of North Manchester admitted his guilt, but expressed sorrow for having carried a revolver and shot real bullets at Lake Wangumbaug, on the evening of July 3, when he was charged in the Coventry town court Thursday evening with carrying concealed weapons. It is alleged that Loney was endangering life and property with his hazardous toy. State policeman Henry Heinold of the Stafford Springs barracks armed himself with a warrant and placed the man under arrest. Justice of the Peace Gilman was inclined to be lenient and imposed a fine of $1 and costs, amounting to $14.40 which was paid.

Rev. Andrew S. Muirhead, pastor of the local Methodist church is on a vacation during July. The congregation will meet during that time in a union service at the Baptist church. Next Sunday Mr. Muirhead will supply the pulpit at Trinity Methodist church, Newton, in the absence of Rev. Harold Gresham who is visiting in Ohio. The last two Sundays of the month Rev. Mr. Muirhead will speak at the Western R. I. Methodist church.

George M. Tootel of Eagleville pleaded guilty to reckless driving on the Lake-the-South Coventry road last Saturday, when in the Coventry town court Thursday evening. Tootel's Chrysler car collided with a Chevrolet machine owned and driven by Dr. C. T. Lamoure, of Mansfield Training School and Hospital. The damage was slight and Tootel explained that the thickness of the bushes on the roadside was such that he could not see the approaching machine. The Justice of the Peace ordered the case nolled on payment of costs.

Clement Hurteau Jr., a member of the Hurteau-Bosse Corp., of this city pleasantly surprised friends here in a message which he sent to Saivini I. Cardinal, stating that he and Mrs. Blanche Dupont were married Thursday afternoon at Montreal, Canada, where he is spending his vacation. He will return here with his bride Saturday next.

Unnecessary loitering about the railroad station is included in the prohibition against trespassing on railroad property in the summer campaign against these violations by the New Haven railroad. Walking along railroad tracks will be fought strenuously by railroad, local and state police.

Further improvements are being made at the Methodist church which was renovated considerably last year. The main entrance doors are being replaced and arranged to better possibilities. The sides of the belfry are being covered with galvanized iron as a protection against the weather. All the interior woodwork of the edifice is being repainted. The stone sidewalk leading to the church and the driveway to the church entrance are being repaired, concrete sidewalks are being laid.

COVENTRY FATHER IN JAIL— VICE OF MARRIED DAUGHTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, July 10—In written statements which were read in the Coventry town court by Grand Juror Robert G. Brooks, acting as prosecutor, Arthur Bemont, a father, pleaded guilty to a charge of incest, his daughter, Grace Irene Bemont Kenneson admitted that she was in manifest danger of falling into habits of vice and the latter's husband, Henry Kenneson, pleaded not guilty to a charge of non-support of his child-wife. The three are well known in this vicinity, having been residents of South Coventry for some time.

The deplorable condition at the Bemont home became known, when authorities of the town received complaints of the beastly conduct of the father. Charles Phelps, a representative of the State Board of Child-Welfare, conducted an investigation and secured sufficient evidence to bring a charge of incest against Bemont. The latter did not plead guilty in court but in his written statement he acknowledged that on several occasions in the past year and one half he had had improper relations with his daughter. The police case was found by Justice of the Peace Albert N. Gilman and Bemont was bound over to the September term of the Tolland county superior court. He failed to furnish the required bond of $1,000 and was committed to the county jail by State policeman Harrison Hubbart.

Information was brought to light that the daughter had been guilty of misconduct for some time previous to her marriage to Kenneson, last May. Kenneson lived with his wife three weeks after a child was born and when he was charged with non-support he retorted with the statement that there was a question in his mind who the father was and on those grounds he did not feel responsible for the infant's support. The child is now in the care of the grandmother. The court found him guilty, however, and he was ordered to pay the sum of $10 a week to the selectmen for the child's support. A 60 day jail sentence was imposed and suspended and Kenneson was informed that if he failed in his payments he would be held for contempt of court.

Mrs. Kennerson pleaded guilty to wrongdoing in the past and she cited several occasions when she and her father had been unduly familiar. Justice Gilman committed the woman to the Long Lane Farm for Girls at Middletown.

JEWETT CITY

Although the hay crop, in the farming section 'round about the borough is falling 100 tons short of normal yield, the weed production shows 100 per cent efficiency.

In the several acres of carnation nurseries, off Ashland street, where each year the Jewett City greenhouses root from slips, many thousands of young plants, they have found the bother with weeds more than ever before.

Two of the troublesome hindrances to gardening are a species of grass, called locally "twitch grass," it has a root that starts for China, and pretty nearly gets there. The pig-weed that bothers considerably has obtained some importance now, for the current number of the National Geographic declares the common pig weed of our forefathers to be "Lamb's Quarters" of the Goosefoot family. It is to be no more common pig weed, wild spinach, frost blite, bacon weed, muck weed, or fat-hen, but when next one digs in his garden, he has to deal with Mr. Lamb's Quarters.

A union meeting is to be held Sunday evening at the church on the Green.

POMFRET CENTER

During the past week Rev. George J. Donohue, pastor of Holy Trinity Church, Pomfret, gave five morning lectures at the Catholic Summer School, Cliff Haven, N. Y. Father Donohue spoke on the "Poetry of the Mass," "Books and Their Spiritual Values," and "John Henry Cardinal Newman" (an introduction).

A species of cockroaches infests the huts of Lapplanders and sometimes entirely devours the stores of dried fish put away for the winter consumption.

WESTMINSTER

Summer people are beginning to arrive. Miss Linnell and Miss Frost arrived at Rose Cottage, the home of the parents of the former, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Linnell, Wednesday July 1st.

Mr. and Mrs. John Linton of New York were holiday guests at Axel Helstrom's. Mrs. Linton, a special friend of Mrs. Helstrom when both lived in Sweden, will remain for a longer visit.

Mrs. Agnes Wood was the plucky woman who shot the 4 foot black snake in the act of swallowing young robins, lately.

Mrs. S. B. Hadley has three Westminster men in her employ, Charles and Philip Lawson and Waine Rinkenen. Chas. Lawson has worked there for the past two years.

Recent callers at the temporary parsonage included Rev. and Mrs. Dwight C. Stone, and the aunt of Mrs. Stone, of Hanover, Rev. Edward P. Ayer, of Uncasville, chaplain of the Senate, and previously, Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis, and friend of Taftville.

The Messers Hicks of Canterbury Plains have been repairing the Westminster church-yard walls, resetting one post of its gate and some of the stones in the yard. The grass has been cut around the church and in the cemetery.

Mrs. Anderson, who with others of her family of N. Y., has been a frequent summer visitor, is spending a fortnight at Mrs. John Soderbergs.

Helen Rinkensen of New York is spending a vacation at home.

Allen Moody returned home to help celebrate the birthday, July 4, of his little son, and to complete his recovery from an infection caused by two rusty nails penetrating his shoe, when at work at his trade as a carpenter. Mr Moody is expecting to return to New York early next week.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Barstow Saturday the 4th, were Mr. and Mrs Albert Rollinson, Mr. and Mrs Chas. Weeks and 4 children, Maggie Brennan, Mertice Weeks, Mrs. Emma Mitchell and Floyd Mitchell, all of Attawaugan, Mrs. William Rollinson and Mrs. Addie Bushnell of the Plains and Mrs. Sarah Taylor, a sister of Mrs Barstow, of Providence who remains for a visit. Wedding
Turning-Barber

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Grant Barber, Monday afternoon, July 6, Miss Mabelle Winifred Barber of this town and Walter Arthur Turning of Hartford were united in marriage. The guests, relatives and friends of the bride and groom with a few near neighbors and local friends, gathered in a semi-circle on the front lawn. At 4:30, the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin was heard and the groom, accompanied by his brother, Einar Turning, appeared at the left side door. The bride walking with her father, and preceded by her bridesmaid, Miss Josephine Towne, came from the right side door. As the officiating clergyman, Rev. Levi Rees of Stafford Springs, appeared at the central front entrance, the bridal chorus changed to Mendelsshon's Wedding March. The bridal party met under a beautiful arch of evergreens and pink roses, from the center of which was suspended a pink wedding bell.

After the ceremony Love's Greeting was heard from the piano. The bride wore a bridal veil and her beautiful gown was of white satin crepe. She carried a bouquet of bride roses. The bridesmaid wore apricot voile and carried butterfly roses.

After the reception all assembled in the house, where refreshments were served.

Th bride donned a traveling dress of gray and gold changeable silk. Mr. and Mrs. Turning are spending a few days in New York, and, later, will be at Niantic for a short time.

There were numerous birthday gifts.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Joseph Atkinson, Mrs. Ralph Atkinson, Miss Sadie Atkinson, Everett Mass., Miss Elizabeth Henderson, Newburyport, Mass., Einar Turning, Miss Elsie Turning, Miss Annie Turning, Middletown, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hanson, Hartford, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Griswold and little daughter, Manchester, Mr. and Mrs. Irving L. Tinker, Holyoke, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. Ralph V. Towne, West Hartford, Mrs. Jennie E. Hamilton, Westford, Mrs. George Towne, Mr. and Mrs. G. Raymond Towne, Miss Josephine Towne, Stafford Springs.

The bride was born in Union, but left here with her family when quite young. Recently they returned and bought the farm where they now reside. She was a pupil at Loomis Institute, Windsor, for three years. Then she entered Windsor High school for one year and was graduated from that institution. For the past three years she has been a teacher in Windsor. The groom is employed by the Colgate Company as assistant manager in their Hartford office. Mr. and Mrs. Turning will reside in Hartford.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

It is noted from Oneco the town of Brooklyn boasts of more old men on her voting list than any other small town in Connecticut, but by a peculiar coincidence Oneco has got both cards and spades on Brooklyn, and it is a Brooklyn voter also.

Gilbert Griggs, "Gibby," as everybody calls him, has resided in this town more than a quarter of a century, but has never changed his voting residence from Brooklyn.

Gibby works every day, is one of the best, most reliable farm workers in Oneco in spite of his nearly 91 years of age, and rain or shine, cold or hot, election day finds Gibby dressed in his best on his way to the town of Brooklyn, where he hasn't missed town, state or national election in 68 years and never in his long career as a voter cut the democratic ticket.

Mr. Griggs is a native of Brooklyn and belongs to one of the county's oldest families.

The town is one of those of Windham county that as yet has failed to raise its quota for the Windham County Y. M. C. A. annual budget. Kindly was apportioned $1,500, and with no lack of effort upon the part of the committee is about $250 short. In the county $1,000 remains to be raised, that the budget for the present fiscal year shall be sufficient to meet requirements. That this amount may be raised efforts will continue.

It is being discussed, Danielson business and manufacturing interests promote a campaign to build up the Chamber of Commerce into a real, hustling effective organization, Danielson generally may expect to benefit by its activities. It is sensed here that modern means of transportation, at the command of almost everyone, has made Danielson really suburban to several large centers of trade. People like to go places, and they do and buy goods. That being true, there appears no insurmountable reason why they should not be induced to come to Danielson and the local trade tempted into more liberal buying at home. Danielson for years has enjoyed the reputation of being a favorable place on which to buy goods and of having excellent and varied stocks. Demonstrating this to the outside world will be one of the jobs for the reorganized Chamber of Commerce, an organization, being alert, that also may succeed in bringing new industries to Danielson, as favorable a place, for many reasons, as there is in eastern Connecticut for doing a manufacturing business.

Of interest to many people in Danielson, which each year is represented at the grounds, is the forthcoming 51st annual meeting of the Eastern Camp meeting association, at Douglas, Mass., July 17-27. This year the speakers will include Rev. C. H. Babcock, D. D., of Los Angeles; Rev. G. W. Ridout, D. D., Wilmore, Kan.; Rev. L. T. Johnson, Bowdinham, Me.; Rev. C. A. Tindley, D. D., Philadelphia; Mrs. Carrie Crow Sloan, East Liverpool, O. Music and singing will be under the direction of Prof. C. C. Rinebarger of New Albany, Ind. Mrs. Jane E. Read of Worcester and Mrs. G. W. Ridout will conduct the daily meetings for children.

An application for admission to probate of the will of Mrs. Valerie M. Cyr Trudeau, who died the past week in Montreal, will be heard here in the probate court for Killingly Monday. This will disposes of a large estate, including a business long since established in Danielson, dwelling and personal property. The estate of Mrs. Cyr Trudeau also includes a beautiful residence in the Outremont section of Montreal and personal property in Canada.

Frank J. Burnett, employed at the Assawaga mill in Dayville for 55 years, has retired. A purse of $05 was presented him by the weavers at the plant and a fountain pen given him by the loom fixers.

At Sayleswille, R. I., Thursday, Witter brothers conducted an auction sale of purebred Holstein cattle from the herd at Butterfly farm, the sale attracting buyers from various parts of New England. There were 88 head on the sale list. The top price of $500 for a member of the herd was obtained for a bull, while cows sold as high as $275 each. The Butterfly farm is one of the finest in southern New England.

Again this morning, as has been the rule since Wednesday, Junior chautauquans are to meet at the chautauqua grounds, where they have been having a splendid time during the week. Friday's program included concerts, afternoon and evening, by the Davis sisters, and a lecture in the evening by Tom Skeyhill on the subject A Young Man Looks At This World. The Davis sisters, known during the World war as Sammies' Sisters and as The American Girl Buglers, began their musical training at two years of age. They are splendid musicians and proved one of the fine attractions of the chautauqua course.

Indicating that the service is to be a fixture and as regularly maintained as a train schedule, operators of the new bus line service between Worcester and New London, via Danielson and Plainfield have announced a definite schedule. This new line marks another step in the development of through bus service such as the communities it serves never dreamt of a few years back. It complements existing lines operating through Danielson on east and west routes, and is the pioneer route on long haul north and south service, the distance from Worcester to New London over the state highways being about 80 miles. Danielson is the midway point.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. G. Bailey, Mrs. Hattie Bailey and Miss Mae Bailey were members of a party that motored to Narragansett Pier.

Friends here received on Friday announcement of the marriage Thursday of Miss Anna Chilcott and Captain William J. Jarvis, of the Putnam police department.

Officers and members of the Service battery at Tobbyhanna, Pa., expect to leave for home in their motor convoy a week from today or, at the latest, a week from Sunday.

Thomas Waterman Bradford, 89, dead at his home in Canterbury formerly was a member of McGregor post, G. A. R., of this place.

More rain on Friday served to make this week the wettest of the summer season.

Edgar Poltras of the Sacred Heart college at Sharon Heights is spending the summer at his home in Danielson.

John A. Fernald of Fall River is spending the week end with friends in Danielson.

Miss Claire Bousquet a pupil at the convent at St. Claire, P. Q., is at her home on Dyer street for the summer vacation.

John F. Buckley, formerly an overseer in the mill at Goodyear, died the past week at Holyoke, where he had been employed for several years.

A food sale was one of the features at the chautauqua tent Friday and a successful way of increasing the revenue of the gucrantors who work so hard to make this series of entertainments possible in Danielson each summer.

Roy Tillinghast of Cincinnati is expected here within a few days to remain for July and August.

At a Worcester hospital George Foster of Franklin street is recovering, after undergoing a surgical operation the early part of the week.

Friday evening of next week the Quinebaug Valley Circuit league is to hold a meeting at North Grosvendale.

Thomas H. Sweeney, 52, died recently at Holyoke. For eighteen years up to a few years ago he was a resident of Attawaugan.

The drive to garner wild cherries is on. The incentive is a desire to put the mthrough certain processes that will evolve a wine, in the course of time.

Henry A. Bateman of Lowell is spending the week end with friends in Danielson, where he formerly was employed for a time.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Hutchins of Mechanic street have been spending a vacation at Oakland Beach.

There continues to be violations of the rule against turning motor cars around in Main street, in the business section. This is a traffic-blocking stunt that happens also to be dangerous.

Mrs. Moses Choquette, of the Mashentuck district, is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam and is rapidly regaining her health.

A Baltic resident writes: At the Baltic M. E. Church Wednesday evening, there was a very pleasing and well attended organ recital and concert, given by Mrs. Sidney Perry of Danielson. She was ably assisted by Miss Elsa Nisbet of Gonimut, R. I., a soloist of splendid ability and pleasing personality.

There was a large attendance in spite of the excessive heat, Mrs. Perry proved herself a skilled artist on the church organ, and in playing her several selections, brought out the fine qualities of the instrument to the satisfaction and appreciation of her hearers.

Miss Nisbert has a very fine and well cultivated mezzo soprano voice, and in her several numbers proved herself an artist, having almost perfect control of her voice. Her singing of "How Lovely is thy Dwelling" and "Have Faith in God" were excellent and was a delight to the assemblage. The people of Baltic were privileged to hear these two artists, through the effort of the pastor of the church, Rev. Harvey H. Conklin, and were very appreciative of the service and no less so of Mrs. Perry, and Miss Nisbert, who were so kind to come and entertain them. Mrs. Perry was the skilful accompanist for Miss Nisbet, in her numbers.

PUTNAM

A postal received by friends from W. S. Johnson, who spends his winters at Tampa, Florida, states that he is on his way north, adding that land in Tampa is selling fast and at a good price. Last week land in the city sold for $20,000 per foot and 8 to 10 miles from the city with no buildings at $25,000 per acre. Mr. Johnson thinks that Florida sand comes high and will bring a little back in his shoes.

At a meeting of Wappaquassett tribe No. 68, of Red Men, the following officers were elected and will be installed later: Charles A. Woodward, prophet; L. Bruneau, sachem; Eugene Alvord, senior sagamore; A. Lincoln, junior sagamore; George E. Perry, keeper of records; Peter A. Gardner, collector of wampum; E. E. Ellis, keeper of wampum.

Herbert A. Johnson, clerk, and Hermon E. Johnson and Joseph Potter, carriers at the Putnam post office, are having their vacations.

Evan Erickson is the new mail carrier on the Star route from Putnam to Woodstock. He has moved into a tenement in Carl Mor's house, in East Woodstock.

Newton B. Stone, of South Boston, has been visiting his mother, Mrs. William B. Stone, on Sunnyside. Mr. Stone has just returned from the Shriners' convention in California.

Andrew V. Frost, of Putnam, has been made treasurer of the John A. Dady Silk corporation of this city and took charge of the office work this week for that corporation. Mr. Frost has been bookkeeper of the Putnam Buick Sales company of this city for several years.

Miss Edith Bowen, who has been bookkeeper for the Dady Silk corporation for seventeen years, has resigned.

Edmund Towne, of Stafford Springs, well known in Putnam, who received his M. A. degree from Clark university, has received the appointment to an instructorship in the University of Vermont. The subjects in which he has specialized and which he will teach are chemistry and physics.

Frederick H. Platt, of this city, who has been seriously ill at St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic, has recovered sufficiently to be able to be removed to his mother's home in Willimantic. Mr. Platt hopes to be able to resume his work at the H. K. H. Silk company, in this city, in about three weeks. While at the hospital, Mr. Platt received many letters of sympathy, also flowers, from his friends in this and other cities.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Fox, Mrs. Fred Bruce and Mrs. M. J. Lynch have returned from a motor trip through the White Mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Renshaw and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Archambeault, of Mechanicsville, have returned from a few days' visit to one of the beaches near Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Warren, of East Providence, have been visiting Mrs. Warren's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Maryotte, of Seward street.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Beaudry, of Whitinsville, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ostiguy, of Woonsocketi, R. I., spent the week with Mr. and Mrs. George Baker, of Fremont street. Mrs. Beaudry was Miss Nancy Rawson and Mrs. Ostiguy, Miss Alcey Rawson, formerly of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Robinson and family motored to Hinsdale, N. H., where they will spend the summer.

CAPTAIN OF POLICE JARVIS WEDS MISS CHILKOTT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, July 10.—William Jarvis, captain of police, was married, Thursday evening, to Miss Anna E. Chilkott. The ceremony was performed at St. Mary's rectory by Rev. Fr. Adrian Dykemans. The attendants were Alderman and Mrs. Leo Delisle. Captain and Mrs. Jarvis started by automobile on a two weeks' wedding trip. Except to a few intimate friends, they kept their marriage intentions a secret and it was a surprise to learn this morning that Captain Jarvis had gone away on his vacation and was accompanied by a bride.

Captain Jarvis is one of the most capable and well as most popular police officers that Putnam has ever had. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Jarvis. When war was declared against Germany he was one of the first from here to enlist and he saw active service abroad. After his return he became a member of the state police force. When Captain of Police Remie Delage was killed in an automobile accident two and a half years ago, Officer Jarvis was elected in his stead and has made an exceptionally fine record. He is a member of Putnam lodge of Elks, Cargill council, K. of C., and of the Foresters of America.

Mrs. Jarvis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Chilkott, of Eastford. She is a graduate of the Putnam High school and for the past two years has been bookkeeper at the Bugbee and Wulf Department store.

The following brief financial statement of the Windham County Farmers' Association for the year ending June 30, 1925 has been issued:

Receipts; members' dues, $1,090; state of Connecticut, $2,000; county of Windham, $2,000; contributions, $12; miscellaneous (includes 55 percent div. F. National bank), $530.38; total, $5,632.38; balance on hand, June 30th, 1924, $692.15; $6,330.53.

Expenditures; county agent, salary, $1,603.57; auto $1,066.20; other expenses, $234.70; clerk salary, $1,050; labor, $1.25; rent, light, heat, $237.26; stationery and printing, $255.40; supplies, $53.81; postage, freight, express, $171.64; telephone, $139.85; furniture and fixtures, $20; contingent, $208.22; total, $4,946.91; Closing First National Bank of Putnam, $804.69; $5,751.69; Balance on hand June 30th, 1925, $578.93; $6,330.53.

Great credit is due the Board of Directors for maintaining the association in the sound financial condition shown above, by undertaking such work as could be paid for with the funds available. I think that all who have kept informed about what our County Agent, Mr. Davis, has accomplished during the past year will agree with me that the value of civilization to the farmers of Windham county has been conclusively demonstrated.

I wish to thank the members of the association for their promptness in remitting their dues, which has greatly lightened my task as treasurer in past years.—Whitman Danielson, Treasurer.

HARRIS BUILDING SALE, NEW LONDON, TO NORWICH INTERESTS, FOR $280,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 10.—A persistent rumor has been in circulation several days to the effect that the Norwich interests, who were reported a fortnight ago as having acquired the Harris building, State street five story business block, had abandoned the intention of purchasing the property, which was stated to have been sold by the trustees of the Harris estate for $280,000. Inquiry this afternoon of Alfred Coit, attorney for the trustees, disclosed that the sale has actually been made, and that the deed transferring the realty to the Norwich purchasers will be executed next week. Attorney Coit stated that all of the trustees had signed the deed excepting Ernest E. Rogers, who is absent from the city, being in Hartford in pursuance of his duties as state treasurer, but that Mr. Rogers will sign the deed as soon as he returns to New London, probably Saturday.

A negro, who describes himself as Leroy Smith, and his residence at 115 Green street, complained to the police this forenoon that he had been brutally beaten in Groton last night by another negro, named Goode, and a resident of the northerly section of the city. As the alleged assault took place in Groton, the local police advised Smith to place his complaint in the hands of the Groton authorities. Up to 3 o'clock this afternoon Smith had not done so and the last known of his movements was when he was seeking medical aid Smith's eyes were practically closed and his jaw was badly disfigured.

Smith and a number of his companions attended a dance in the former Harry Zavoritas place, Thames street, Groton, and but a short distance from the Groton police barracks. During the early morning hours it is alleged that Smith and Goode engaged in a battle, in which Smith received a severe beating.

Mrs. Charles Kaufman of Montauk avenue; Peter Santasi, New York nautical school; William Leely, United States coast guardcutter Rowe; and Rogers Reynolds, New York nautical school were patients dismissed at Lawrence hospital today.

John Rodic, about 60, came here from Niantic, where he has been a weaver for many years, on the way to Trading Cove, just south of Norwich. John thought he had what he called "a headache in the stomach" and resorted to hooch to remove the ache and the pain. He was found in the vicinity of the railroad tracks south of the New London station, section where he was very likely to be sent to the kingdom come by a railroad train. So the police officer of the railroad company was called and he was locked up. He was in the police court this morning charged with intoxication. He explained that he had his mother in Niantic with whom he lived and that his predicament would bring disgrace to her. He admitted that he had indulged too freely in liquor but said he had got throug with that sort of indiscretion now and would not again drink intoxicating liquor. On his pretense of penitense and the circumstances surrounding his detention he was allowed to keep on his way to Trading Cove.

The Savings Bank of New London employs a large number of persons who are owners of automobiles and to accomodate them the bank is to erect a couple of garages in the rear of its bank building on North Bank street. The garages will be 50x20 feet and 56x20 feet and will have accommodations for thirteen cars. The garages will be an ornament to the street for the rear of the bank building has been an open lot for a number of years.

The gas main on North Bank street is being relaid as the services afforded by the old main is not satisfactory.

State street may become known as Department store street the coming fall for there is likely to be so many stores of this nature located on that thoroughfare that the new name will be most appropriate. It is stated definately that a New York capitalist is negotiating for the purchase of the building next west of Green street on State and that the purpose is to establish a big store there. Already the street is the home of the department stores of Woolworth, the United, Schulte, the Kresge, and still another is seeking a location there. All these stores are located within a stone's throw of each other. Close to these stores the finest restaurants in the city are established and nearby are the theatres and the hotels.

There are so many gasoline pumps in use in this city where the autos are supplied that every effort is made to insure that correct measurement of the quantities of oil dispensed at them. Inspector Linicus made a beginning of a tour of inspection today and before he finishes he will have visited every pump that is of public service nature.

The volume of building in New London has appreciably decreased during recent months, the number of applications for permission to build have decreased to half the number filed two years ago. There is but one dwelling to be erected now, according to the applications on file in the inspector's office.

Mrs. George M. Sije, of 115 Washington street, Boston, today communicated with the New London police for the purpose of identifying the body of a man found aboard a fishing schooner shortly after the craft put into this port from New Haven, the middle of May. Mrs. Sije stated that she believed the man was her brother as the description tallied with the missing man, whom she has not seen or heard from in two years. In reality the body was that of William Ashley, of New Haven, whose death resulted of heart trouble and whose body was forwarded to his mother in New Haven after identification had been established.

Tony Rose, carpenter, residing at 31 Harrison street, this morning complained to the police that tools belonging to him and which had been temporarily stored in a building at 73 Blinman street were stolen last night.

An automobile, a city garbage truck, operated by Stanley Prescott, Waterford, struck and slightly injured Lionel Farrell, colored, about 7, and residing with his parents, Pearl street, this morning on Main street. The youth sustained bruises and contusions and after being taken to Lawrence-Memorial hpital where the wounds were dressed was taken to his home.

The boy was in the vicinity of Hallam street and was being chased by the proprietor of a store. Without observing the approaching garbage truck, the youth ran to the street and in another instant was knocked to the pavement. Traffic Officer Frank Linehan who was nearby, caused the lad to be placed in a passing auto and conveyed to the hospital for treatment.

The trial of Clark Brown, colored, employed as a waiter at the Rotisserie, Waterford, a popular place for auto parties charged with violation of the liquor law and who was arrested ten days ago will come up in the Waterford town court Saturday afternoon. Brown is at liberty, having obtained a surety on his bond of $1000 for his court appearance.

The state claims to have evidence that Brown sold a quart of whiskey to a stool pigeon of the Waterford prosecution for $8, while Brown denies the accusation. The Rotisserie has been under the surveillance of the Waterford police for a long time.

Thomas Fitzpatrick of Raymond place, Norwich, employed as manager of the Economy store, 783 Bank street this city, today complained to the New London police because of the practice of young men congregating late at night in front of the store and requested that the practice be stopped. Fitzpatrick stated that a gang of the loiterers smashed a window of the store a fortnight ago.

William L. Darrow, proprietor of a blacksmith establishment, corner of Water and Hallam street, this forenoon reported to the police that an attempt had been made by thieves to gain entrance to the place. Sergeant John Cavanaugh, who was assigned to the complaint, reported that no entrance had been attempted, but that boys had smashed several windows in the place.

An automobile owned and operated by Mrs. Freida Wallace, 39 Summer street, wife of a chief petty officer, was in collision with an automobile owned and operated by Henry B. Lee, 118 Blackhall street, early this evening. As a result of the crash, Mrs. Wallace was arrested, charged with reckless driving and operating an automobile without having a license to do so. She will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning. Mrs. Wallace, with several children as her passengers, operated her machine across Montauk avenue from School street, just as a machine operated by Lee, which was headed southerly was crossing the intersecting highway on Montauk avenue. Evidently Mrs. Wallace misjudged the speed of the Lee automobile, for she continued to cross the avenue, headed westerly, at a fast rate of speed. Just as the Lee machine was about to pass the Wallace automobile, the latter car was struck on the rear mudguard and overturned. Lee, who is employed by the Babcock Printing Press Manufacturing company, escaped with slight bruises and cuts, but his machine was damaged considerably.

DREDGER COMPLAINED OF BY U. S. ENGINEERS' CORPS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 10.—Acting on a complaint lodged with United States Commissioner Earl Matthewson, of Norwich, by the United States Engineers' corps, located in this city, the crew of a dredger, at work deepening the Thames river between this port and Norwich, was given a hearing before the commissioner, at the customs house late this afternoon, charged with violation of law in depositing refuse or other material in navigable waters. The case was not disposed of, but was continued indefinitely.

The dredging company has been engaged a number of days removing surplus collections from the river bottom and it is alleged after receiving a load of mud from the upper part of the Thames, a dredge was towed to a point south of Gales Ferry and the load deposited, instead of being taken into the Sound and unloaded.

STATE POLICE TRAP FIVE ALLEGED LIQUOR SELLERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 10.—The state police were active in New London late this afternoon and early this evening, when they made five arrests for alleged violation of the liquor law and two arrests for breach of the peace and resisting an officer. The last two arrests resulted when a father and son in one of the places visited by the state police, assisted by Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman William Graham, of the local force, attacked the arresting officers.

Those arrested charged with violation of the liquor law are Mrs. William Morris, 7 Central avenue; Tony DiMarco, public service operator; Stella De Vilacgna, 95 Smith street; Zenaide Luzzi, 95 Smith street, and Mrs. Azuiallan Petursky, 206 North Bank street. All of the accused were released upon furnishing a bond of $1,000 for their appearance in the police court, tomorro wmorning.

Those arrested for breach of the peace and resisting an officer were Daniel and John Petursky, husband and son, respectively, of Mrs. Acsuallan Petursky. They furnished a bond of $300 each for their appearance in court, tmorrow morning.

The arrests resulted from the work of Philip LeClaire, a stool pigeon in the employ of the state police. LeClaire, it is claimed, has been about the city several days and it is alleged by the state police that he made purchases of liquor from each of the accused.

This afternoon, State Police Officer Fred Caron and LeClaire placed their information before Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky and warrants were issued for all of the accused violators, excepting the Petursky woman, as actual sales were alleged. The officers, Sergeant Clifford Gorgas and Officers Bernard Knerson, Fred Caron, Henry Albright and Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman William Graham of the local force, started their task of making their arrests. After four of the warrants had been served the officers sent LeClaire into the residence of Petursky and gave him a $1 marked bill. LeClaire emerged and stated that he had no difficulty in purchasing drinks and that they were served him by the Petursky woman. The officers then entered the house and when they placed the woman under arrest, her husband and son attacked the officers. A free-for-all fight lasted for a few minutes, but the husband, who was the more combative of the pair, was soon beaten in submission by a black-jack, his scalp being laid open. He was handcuffed and with his son was locked up with the others, but they were later released upon furnishing sureties on their bonds.

The last place visited was that of Mrs. Morris. Because of the absence of her husband, she and a baby were both taken to the police station, where they were detained until a bondsman for the woman was obtained.

NIANTIC

The Niantic Fire department met Monday evening at their headquarters on Main street. Mario Malnatti occupied the chair. Proposed for membership were Dr. J. J. O'Brien, Francis Faulkner, and Harry Carrier. Attorney Marion R. Davis spoke at ingth on the penalty for ringing in false alarms. M. R. Davis and James T. Sherlock were appointed delegates to the State Firemen's convention to be held August 18th and 19th at New Havn. It was voted to hold all future meetings on daylight saving time. The next meeting of the department will be July 20th.

Mountain Laurel Troop of Girl Scouts met this Thursday afternoon at Scout headquarters on Washington avenue. The Troop is making plans to hold a food and fancy article sale at Mrs. Elmer W. Russell's home at Crescent Beach. The Troop met Tuesday and held an all day sewing meeting. Making articles for the coming sale.

Mrs. Ella V. Weir of Pine Grove was called to Portland Monday on account of the sudden death of her brother, Fred Weir, who died Saturday at his home. Funeral service was held Tuesday afternoon at his home in Portland. Mr. Weir had been a foreman in the Portland quarries for the past 50 years.

Word was received here Wednesday of the death of Joseph Donahue, 12, at Manchester Memorial hospital, at Manchester. The boy died from lockjaw. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Donahue of that place. Mrs. Donahue was Miss Grace Kirk, a Niantic girl.

Raymond Randall of New York is spending a month's vacation with his family in Pine Grove.

Leon P. Brown of Crescent Beach is in New York for a few days.

Nicholas Michaelis of Orange, N. J., is spending a week visiting local friends. Mr. Michaelis was a Main street merchant a few years ago.

William Schneider of New York spent the week-end with his family in the Pines.

Mrs. Amy Reycroft of Brooklyn, N. Y., has been spending a few days in Pine Grove, with friends.

Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor and daughter Sallie who have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Daniels for the past three weeks, have returned to their home in Brooklyn, N. Y.

LEFFINGWELL

Mrs. Harry L. Palmer and children, Eleanor, Natalie and Harry, of Moosup, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Taylor.

Many from Leffingwell attended the circus and parade at East Great Plain, Tuesday.

The Fourth of July was celebrated by the usual picnic at the church. About fifty sat down to a picnic dinner. In the afternoon the young people motored to Gardner Lake for bathing.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Leffingwell and son, of Groton, were guests Saturday, of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest C. Leffingwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Wheeler entertained a family party, Fourth of July.

Monday evening, a picnic party left the church at 6 o'clock for Gardner Lake. After a swim, refreshments were served. Boat rides and the free works at the lake completed a delightful evening.

Tuesday afternoon, State Policeman F. O. Johnson, of Westport, and his mother, Mrs. John O. Johnson, of Baltic, were callers at The Old Homestead Farm.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Durr has been named Natalie.

BALTIC

The Sprague Public Health Nurse association held its meeting, Monday evening.

The building committee for the Versailles schools held a meeting in the town clerk's office recently to finish plans for equipping the school for the fall term.

Tuesday evening, the storm having put out the electric lights, the Kiss Revue musical comedy played to the audience present with candles as footlights.

The dog warden was around the early part of the week, looking up delinquent dog owners and six had to pay the penalty of owning or harboring unlicensed dogs.

Dennis J. Hings has entered the employ of an industry at Broad Brook, Conn.

Many from here attended the two performances in Norwich of the 101 Ranch circus.

CARING FOR CATS AND DOGS

While there may be less reason, because of the decrease in the number of horses used in cities, for the appeals to give them careful treatment during the hot summer weather, such cannot be said about those annual warnings that are issued by the humane society against going away for the summer without making proper provision for the household pets.

The cat or the dog which has a home where so little is thought of them that they are virtually abandoned for the summer while the family is on a long vacation, or even for shorter periods, cannot consider that they are happily located. Just why household pets are kept at all in such instances is hard to conceive for those who are so inconsiderate of their welfare as to leave them to their own resources for weeks or months display no interest or kindness to dumb animals.

The deserted cat or dog are bound to make the best of their predicament. If they desert, no one need be surprised. But what often happens is that they become a burden or a nuisance for the neighborhood. Out of pity they are given enough to keep from starving while they can invariably find shelter for themselves, but there is nothing much more distressing than the yawling and the yeeping of hungry cats and dogs.

Happily most people think enough of their pets to either take them with them or arrange for their maintenance while they are away. In the larger cities there are organizations which take cats and dogs for just such periods and see that they get proper attention and care. It would do well if every community had such service and full use was made of it by those who insist upon keeping such pets but who do not take them with them to the shore or make other provisions for their care. While there are those who would never think of such abandonment, the humane society is not alone in its knowledge of many who actually do it. Too many are the instances when families move from one place to another.

SAFER AND SANER

In keeping with the movement for a safe and sane celebration of Independence day, there has been urged and tried the plan of placing restrictions upon the time when fireworks can be sold and the hours during which they can be used. By thus limiting the sale there is much done to prevent the celebrating a week or so in advance and there is also overcome the danger of fires in those places where fireworks are on sale.

The fact that it is necessary to obtain permits in order to sell fireworks does not establish a safeguard against fires, and of course the longer the combustibles are on display, subject to the overhauling and inspection of purchasers the greater is the danger of a spark getting into them and touching off the whole supply with serious results.

The celebrating that is done for the week previous to the Fourth is uncalled for. Yet with the crackers, big and little, and the various other things with which to make a noise damaged before Young America takes on a temptation which cannot be overcome. The minute he gets a nickel or dime it must be invested, and once the explosives are obtained there is no uneasiness until they have been all shot out. Parents may have control over the fireworks when they personally purchase, but they know little about those which the youngsters invest in out of their loose change.

With no explosives legally placed on sale until the day before the Fourth and with a limit fixed as penforced for discharging them, the celebration of the nation's birthday anniversary is certain to be within bounds.

Such a plan is in keeping with the safe and sane movement, and certainly with the period restricted in which life, limb and property can be destroyed or damaged there should be overcome more of those deplorable accidents which mean in too many instances, handicaps for life. The good results where such a plan has been tried will not be overlooked in other places.

THE RUBBER SQUEEZE

Last month and the month before that it was thought that the price of rubber was high. It was not as high as it is now. It has been traveling right along much like some things did during the period of the war. This is the time when there is a big demand for it and with a restriction on the output by the fields which control the majority of the world's consumption the rise is inevitable. It is working out quite as it was expected would when the British restriction law was enacted.

British rubber plantations, or plantations which are under British control, do not produce all the rubber the world uses, but it is impossible to get along without their product. Raw rubber is needed and when the other sources are worked to their limit it is necessary to apply to the British markets. When they prevent the production or, having large amounts in storage, restrict the sale the boosting of the price of the raw material is inevitable.

Yielding to a monopoly of that kind is not pleasant and yet that is what has been faced for some time with little being done in the way of prevention. The production of rubber is not restricted to British territory but such efforts as have been made to develop other sources, or to extend existing ones, have not progressed to the point where the present situation can be changed. Warnings that the Philippines should be developed for this purpose have been given but for the most part have gone unheeded. The stir caused by the recognition of the squeeze that is being applied is going to mean that new production will be obtained, but it will require time to do this, whether it is developing old or new fields.

We are experiencing today the effects of fulfilled predictions and the prospects for relief being dubious for the immediate future, it appears to be a case of paying the price demanded or going without, since for many things no satisfactory substitute for rubber has been produced.

BOSTON'S HOLDUPS

Boston is aroused by an automobile robbery the second within a few months, and well it may be, for it appears that little in the way of proper safeguarding of the transfer of large sums of money has been undertaken.

It is true that the car in which the money was being carried was armored, but that furnished no serious handicap when it was apparent that the driver could be easily driven from his seat and forced to give up its contents. The car was protected in this instance but the driver was not, with the result that the car was taken to a point where it could be entered almost at the robbers' leisure.

Gunmen engaged in such business in broad day light are not only desperate characters but they must have had a thorough understanding of the schedule under which such cars are operated, when to expect them and the proper moment to strike. Likewise they have duly measured the risk that would be involved.

Whether or not the participants in the robbery are caught it is evident from the two similar robberies in Boston of recent date that too little care is being exercised in the handling of large sums of money, and that more attention should be given to the prevention of such holdups. Such efforts as were made in this particular instance to guard against just what happened were totally ineffective. The robbers got away as easily as they had planned. Whether there was any collusion will develop in time, but it is clearly evident that one man seated in the driver's seat of a car carrying a large sum of money and standing at the curb is slight defense against the operations of skillful and menacing gunmen. There appears to be a condition in Boston of which the gunmen are making the most.

THE TENNESSEE CASE

A test of the constitutionality of laws enacted by the Tennessee legislature under ordinary circumstances would receive little attention. At the present time the test in the Scopes case has a bearing on much larger things than what is actually involved. For that reason it has made possible a large amount of publicity and the widespread interest which the trial has aroused and will continue to get.

In the last legislature of that state a law was enacted which prohibited the teaching in the public schools of that state any theory concerning evolution, anything which denies the story concerning evolution, anything which denies the story of the creation. Mr. Scopes, a school teacher, considered the law unconstitutional and proceeded to do what the law prohibited. It was because of that that he was arrested and indicted, and it is to determine whether he is guilty of violating a law that is constitutional that the trial is now being held.

It is a case which has resulted in bringing into it some of the prominent legal talent of the country. That Scopes actually broke the law of the state will probably be admitted by him, but what is at stake after that point is determined is whether the law he broke is constitutional or whether it was beyond the power of the legislature to enact such a law. The case like others will probably be carried to the highest court in an effort to determine whether any such restrictions can be placed upon education. It will probably be some time before the final decision is reached

"Blue coming back." Some act as if it had never been away.

There are those who take no stock in all the monkey business down in Tennessee.

Those prison trusties who flee when they get a chance seem to have been incorrectly classified.

Once more the weatherman is turning his attention toward increasing the business at the shore resorts.

The reduction in the Panama Canal toll revenue points to the decrease in the movement of oil by that route.

The temperature of the water at the bathing beaches is steadily being brought to a more interesting standpoint.

The fining of 16 refrigerator firms the sum of $58,000 should have its chilling effect in the hot weather period.

Sales of shoes are reported to have fallen off in May. Had the barefoot season begun to get in its work so early?

There is little prospect that the representatives of European countries, who seek to arrange debt settlements, will cause any rush of business before the American debt commission.

If that Long Island prophet is correct about a world war starting in November that will destroy the world, European nations will hasten to inquire the necessity of funding the debts of the other war.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

No one but an incorrigible old grouch would think of denying the young the full enjoyment of the Fourth of July. Let their love of noise be indulged in to the limit. Let them celebrate it with the least dangerous of combustibles. To their minds it is this that makes the day glorious. But they ought to be taught that there is neither "rhyme nor reason" in making a week of it. There is nothing in our national history between June 27 and July 3 that calls for a noisy demonstration. To be sure the terrible battle of Gettysburg was fought on July 1, 2, and 3, 1863. It was here where the backbone of the Confederacy was broken, but when we realize that more than 69,000 precious human beings (on both sides) were either killed, wounded or missing there is no disposition to keep the memory of the event alive by means of explosives. And also the real joy of the day is lost when the celebration is made to cover a whole week.

At the Storrs summer school, recently closed, the following was one of the questions debated in open forum: "Is America losing out in her boasted fairness to every nation?" This question is not so much political as moral. The very suggestion of such a question is enough to make every loyal citizen thoughtful. If one will run over the lists of quotas allowed to the various foreign nations for entrance into the United States each year he will be somewhat puzzled to know just what is the standard of assignment. Is it apportioned according to population, degree of civilization, literacy, general physical and mental capacity, or upon all combined? It can't be wholly upon population without strange discrimination. For instance, Japan with her teeming millions is allowed 100, and some other nations with one tenth of her population is allowed ten time as many.

Is the western world justified in practically imposing its methods of thought and action upon the orient? That the civilized nations of the world have authority to explain to the pagan world the theory and practice of Christianity is beyond argument. But there are trends in the western world that do not comport with the spirit of Christianity. We westerners are not by any means the sum total of all human excellence. For instruction along some lines we might profitably sit at the feet of some of the socalled pagan nations. It is not strange that intelligent Chinamen resent the presistence in having them accept our methods of doing things. We seem to forget that "west is west and east is east," and that the great orient can never be occidentalized. Climate alone will prevent China from doing business in our rushing, frantic, nervous way. They resent the introduction of machinery that will reduce manual toil. With manual toil reduced how are eight hundred million people going to be fed."

We may well be proud of many of our great cities for their civic life, rapid growth, audacity in building to such heights and varied enterprises of wonderful magnitude. But the United States is not the only section of the American continent that has remarkable cities. We ought not to let the beauty and wealth of these cities blind our eyes to some of the splendid municipalities in the far south. Take for instance, Santiago, capital of Chile, "situated in a wide fertile bowl at an elevation of 1700 feet" surrounded by hich mountains perpetually snow-capped. Its population is 500,000, and is called the Paris of America because of the uniformity and beauty of its buildings. And if one takes that marvelous ride over the Andes down into Argentina he will find another colossal city in Buenos Aires, the New York of South American with its 2,000,000 population.

The governor of one of the southern states is reported to have said recently that evolution is "all bosh." To say the least that is a very easy way to dispose of a great scientific question. It simply shows what ignorance played upon by prejudice will do. Let it be admitted that in our present state of knowledge evolution is not all that its most ardent supporters claim for it. But it has surely passed from the stage of mere hypothesis to positive fact, and the question now is how far does it apply to the unfolding processes of life. Darwin was the Columbus in the world of modern scientific discovery, and as Columbus advanced some ideas about the world's geography that a larger discovery has proven to be untrue, so Darwin stated some things in his earlier works that more recent workers in the field have modified. But the structural theory of Darwin's hypothesis as to the present status of man still holds, its main weakness has lain in his failure to account for the fact of retrogression.

The law in Tennessee forbidding the teaching of evolution in state controlled institutions is an entirely different proposition. Those of us who accept the evolutionary process as the best explanation that has yet been produced in accounting for animal life look upon this law as utterly ridiculous. But is Tennessee the only state that puts fool laws into her statutes? Were we to search the laws a little nearer home we should find somethings that are not much of a credit to our intelligence. But Tennessee is a sovereign state. It has men of conviction who disbelieve in evolution. There is no treason in their convictions; they do not interfere with the free action of other states. Suppose some smart Alec from New York and another from Chicago should come to Hartford to yank some law out of our general statutes. I imagine there would be a howl all the way from Thompson to Fairfield that would resemble the Santa Barbara earthquake.

Some days ago while resting my ancient bones on a bench near the skating pond in Mohegan park I counted 17 varieties of vegetation within a radius of 30 feet from where I was sitting. It formed a very interesting subject of study. It ranged from the tiniest of ferns up to a giant oak. Here in the same climate, supported by the same atmosphere, drinking in the same soil moisture with precisely the same chemical ingredients we have 17 forms of vegetation, all the way from a tiny fern to a big oak, without confusion and in perfect harmony, and each seemingly to flourish. The god of nature intended them to live together in peace and harmony. I then counted 17 different nationalities whom I had met in Norwich, living in the same climate, each entitled to his share of the atmosphere, supported by the same products of the soil, and all under the beneficent providence of the same God. We can all live together in peace.

One of the greatest duties that faces the American people today is to better safeguard the traveling public from automobile slaughter. Unless some device can be found that will meet the demand we shall lose our reputation for not only being a progressive, but even an intelligent, people. The situation has passed the stage of becoming alarming, it has already reached it. If recklessness lies back of the most of these accidents, then cease to make recklessness a mere travesty on justice. If rum is the cause of a man's reckless driving, then make it impossible for the same man to be reckless twice. If our prison dors were made to swing wide open before these drivers who play fast and lose with precious human life these daily horrors would largely disappear. The American people must insist upon immediate remedy.

DOCUMENTS BEARING ON BENEDICT ARNOLD'S TROUBLESOME DAYS

Two historic documents, hitherto unpublished, bearing upon the troublous fortunes of Benedict Arnold in his early experiences in the Continental army, in the preliminary days of the Revolutionary war, have come to light in the library of the American Antiquarian society at Worcester. One is the original written commission issued to Arnold by the Massachusetts committee of safety, at Cambridge, in May, 1775, authorizing him to organize an expedition against Ticonderoga. The other is a letter written by Arnold, in aggrieved tone, to the provincial congress of Massachusetts bay, late in June the same year, resigning his commission, after a committee had been appointed by the congress to investigate his conduct. Both documents, despite the intervening 150 years, are as perfectly legible as when penned.

Immediately after news of the battles of Lexington and Concord had spread through New England, late in April, 1775, Benedict Arnold, whose intrepidity as a fighter was undisputed, notwithstanding his treason later in the war, hastened from his home in Connecticut with a company of recruits, to get into the fray. At that time the attempted capture of Forts Ticonderoga and Crown Point was talked of in the Colonies as part of a strategic scheme to shut off the Canadian Governor-General, Sir Guy Carleton, who planned to force his way with troops to New York.

Benedict Arnold, inspired with the idea of taking the forts himself, obtained on May 3rd a commission from the Committee of Safety, appointing him colonel and authorizing him to raise an army in Massachusetts and elsewhere in the New England colonies and to proceed, as its Commander, to attempt to take Ticonderoga. The commission, as it appears in the archives of the American Antiquarian society, reads as follows:

In Committee of Safety, Cambridge, May 3, 1775.

To Benedict Arnold, Esq., Commander of a Body of Troops on an expedition to subdue and take possession of the Fort Ticonderoga.

Sir:

Confiding in your judgment, fidelity and valor we do by these presents constitute and appoint you Colonel and Commander in Chief over a body of men not exceeding four hundred; to proceed with all expedition to the Western parts of this and the neighbouring colonies; where you are directed to enlist those men and with them forthwith to march to the fort at Ticonderoga and use your best endeavour to reduce the same taking possession of the Cannon, Morters, Stores, etc., upon the Lake; you are to bring back with you such of the Cannon, Morters, Stores, etc., and you shall judge may be serviceable to the army., leaving behind what may be necessary to secure that port with a sufficient garrison. You are to procure suitable provisions and stores for the army and draw upon the Committee of Safety for the amount thereof, and to act in every exigence according to your best skill and discretion for the public interest for which this shall be your sufficient warrant.

(Signed) Benjamin Church.

Armed with the commission, Arnold hurried off to the mountain regions of Vermont, intending to recruit men from among the mountaineers. But he encountered a cold rebuff. Ethan Allen, with the capture of Ticonderoga as his own goal, had already raised an army of "Green Mountain Boys," acting under a commission from the Colony of Connecticut. Allen abruptly waved aside Arnold's authority from the Massachusetts Committee of Safety to head the expedition and, after a bitter wrangle, Arnold, unable to raise his troops, had to accept the altogether disagreeable alternitive of joining Allen's forces as a private in the ranks.

After the capture of Ticonderoga and Crown Point, Arnold insisted that he assume command and again there was a violent dispute between him and Allen. Upon the juncture being reported to the Colony of Connecticut, it was agred, with the assent of the Massachusetts Committee of Safety, that Allen retain commagd, Arnold, angered over this, got together an expedition of his own and made a sortie to St. Johns, Canada, which he captured. Later, on his return to Crown Point, he was waited upon by a delegation from the Massachusetts Provincial Congress. When informed by the delegation that it was there to investigate Arnold's "capacity and conduct," Arnold flew into a tempestuous rage and ordered the delegation out.

Later Arnold, smarting under what he considered unfair treatment, sent this letter to the provincial congress, embodying his resignation:

Crown Point, June 4th, 1775.

Gentlemen: Your instructions of the 14th inst. from the provincial congress of the Massachusetts bay in regard to my conduct, and command here, being now before me I will answer in course.

In the first place I observe you are appointed to examine my conduct and in what manner I have executed my commission. I look on this instruction at this junction as unprecedented, and a very plain intimation that the congress are dubious of my fortitude or abilities, which is a sufficient inducement for me to decline serving them longer.

Secondly, the congress have authorized you to judge of my spirit, capacity and conduct and determine whether I shall continue in commission, and if so that I shall be under the command of a person appointed by the colony of Connecticut. In answer to the first part, it appears to me very extraordinary that the congress should first appoint an officer, and afterward, when he had executed their commission, appoint a committee to examine if he was fit for his post. I think the examination should have been prior to the commission. After executing that commission that they should order a younger officer of the same rank to take the command of the fortresses and vessels he conquered plainly indicates the loss of their confidence and is a most disgraceful reflection on him and the body of troops he commands, which is a sufficient inducement to resign; not to mention the very great hardship on the private men, who having served well near two months are reduced for service and do not pass muster, they are to lose their former town haven and be reduced to the distress of buying their bread until they can get home to their friends.

The last objection I have to make is that I have so far lost the confidence of the congress that they have declined sending me money as was promised by Capt. Brown to discharge the small and unavoidable debts I have contracted, for necessaries for the use of the army, for which my own credit is at stake while I am reduced to the necessity of leaving the place with dishonor, or waiting until I can send home and discharge those debts out of my private purse, the latter of which I am determined to do, though I have already advanced one hunderd pounds of money out of my private purse. All which reasons I believe will be thought a sufficient inducement for me to decline holding my commission longer.

BENEDICT ARNOLD.

To

Walter Spooner, Jedidiah Foster & James Sullivan, Esq.

After despatching the letter to Cambridge, Arnold went there himself and, later in the summer, was given command of forces which, after a notable march through the primeval forest of Maine, seized the fortress of Quebec. General Richard Montgomery, who had joined his forces with those of Arnold in the attack on Quebec, was killed, while Arnold, badly wounded, was obliged to withdraw.

It was five years later that Arnold, now a major-general, in command at West Point, turned traitor to his country in revenge for what he considered his humiliation by the continental congress, by scheming to surrender the great West Point fortress to the British and thus give the enemy strategic control of the Hudson river.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Montgomery's Veto.

Mr. Editor: Now that the "public censor" of Oneco has pronounced his anathema upon the present religious-historical dispute appearing in your columns, denouncing severally and in toto the letters of Rev. Paniszoli, Messrs. Poreda, Ouimet and Hogan, it may seem impertinent for an outsider to intrude here on this domain.

Some definition of "Americanism 100 p. c." as held in Oneco, accompanying the act of censorship and these also are of a kind. No one can truly say that the letters alluded to, lack evidence of research or erudition and earnestness. In these respects they are much above the former controversy or "styles," set up by Uncle Billy and his nephews, which perhaps the censor has passed as being standard Americans. A great American made himself famous by the utterance that "we have no way of judging the future, but by the past," and we sincerely believe that the United States is not destined to reach its ideal by tabooing the past, but by learning soberly and intelligently the lessons it affords, which is true in the religious, as well as in the realm political. Let us give heed to this. In the present case one must be very obtuse, who, having read the letters, has failed to obtain information and a basis on which to judge of the issue contested. We owe thanks, rather, to these gentlemen who so clearly, out of their studies and experience have given us opportunity to compare notes. We can say this, even without touching the main question. "Let the meeting go on." True Americans like Missourians, delight in being shown.

JOHN TROLAND.

Norwich, July 10, 1925.

Mr. Ouimet's Views.

Mr. Editor: I have previously objected to the treatment of the Catholic church by philosophers who scale the walls of truth and forage in the realms of Calumny. Not that I fear the church would suffer from such, for the church has been treated to lots of such criticism—nor is it the weaker for the ordeal. Though handicapped by a lack of literary skill, I will continue to battle in the interests of truth.

Replying to the letter signed A. E. Poreda, I will merely quote one of his remarks and let your readers draw their own conclusions regarding his fitness to discuss this subject. "It is evidently seen that the Roman church condemns every political, social and educational idea that an American citizen of any country holds sacred." A man who thus conclusively convicts himself needs no further refutation.

One of the most amazing things I have ever seen is the complacency with which Rev. V. Panizzoli throws to the right and left his anonymous assertions.

First he tells us that Catholics are taught both in church and school, that Luther left the Roman church in order to marry a nun. Such an insulting statement is neither scholarly nor charitable. It is an insult that is not worth dignifying with a reply. It is absolutely false.

My experience as well as reading in history, has demonstrated to me the two chief causes why men have left the Catholic church. First, their minds were poisoned by self-importance. Second, their refusal to accept the dogma of the indissolubility of marriage.

We will overlook his arguments about certain historical writers. They have no weight whatsoever for he has failed to convince anyone that Emerson was not impartial-minded, while on the other hand any honest student of history can testify in favor of the claim that the historians he mentioned were whole-heartedly iminical to anyhing Catholic.

It is needless to say any more in refutation of his contention that the "Roman church has always opposed new inventions and discoveries," for went to prove that the church fostered to prove the utter fallacy of that statement. I had to smile at the way he dismissed the case of Galileo with only a few unsubstantiated remarks and when he dismissed all the historical evidence presented to him which knowledge it, that the authorities may learning instead of opposing it.

Evidently, men of Mr. Panizzoli's historical calibre do not understand and rightly estimate the period of the middle ages. My reading of history has taught me that society in those days was so bound up with faith that any attack on religion was a menace to society. A heretic in the ages of faith was regarded as an anarchist is today. Heresy was the crime of treason. In the annals of the period it is classified with high treason against the state. King Peter of Aragon declared that "the enemies of Christianity are the enemies of our kingdom and should be dealt with as such." In the time of the reformation, Luther, Zwinghi and Calvin regarded opinions opposed to theirs as treason and punished it as such. Their theologian, Zanchi, in a lecture at the University of Heidelberg said: "There can be no doubt about it, and all learned and right thinking men acknowledge it, that the authorities may pronounce a sentence of death on heretics." If the originators of a new religion held heresy as treason, should we be surprised that the faith which came from the apostles and was interwoven with European society should detest and punish what it regarded as high treason? Heresy at that period was anarchy. It threatened society in its very foundation and was legislated against accordingly. It was a time when Europe was in a theological ferment, and the church, like a careful mother, was safeguarding her children. Faith was dominant at that period. Rulers and people realized that it was God's absolute truth, that it was the word of God. There was nothing subjective about it. For it the martyrs gave their lives by millions. If men laid down their lives for it, they would not tolerate its disintegration. And that is what heresy sought to do, to break up the faith of the great James Gairdner, a non-Catholic, and a leading authority on historical documents, thus confirms what I have said: "The essence of heresy was not erroneous thinking, but arrogance tending to contempt of the decisions of learned counsel and the most approved judgments of the ancient fathers." The church offered no obstacle to thoughful inquiry by which her tenets might be carefully tested, explained or developed; but she did not love rough treatment of things sacred by men ill qualified to handle them. It is this state of matters which we now find it so difficult to realize" (Lollardy and the Reformation, I, 187.)

May Mr. Panizzoli study the statement of Mr. Gairdner. It will possibly make him understand why the popes prohibited the publication of the holy Scriptures and other similar works. Who will deny that it would be a benefit to the world if all the sallacious and other objectionable literature, which tends to undermine character, were censured and its publication prevented?

ARTHUR OUIMET.

Taftville, July 9, 1925.

Opposition to Progress.

Mr. Editor: C. B. Montgomery's evident distaste for discussion of religious ignorance, bigotry and opposition to progress, and his statement that such things belong to other ages and countries, makes me think he belongs in Tennessee. There the mass of 100 per cent. Americans are ignorant, bigoted Baptists and Methodists. The intelligent politicians, legislators and even teachers, like Mr. Montgomery, think it pleasanter to close eyes, ears and mouths and let the ignorant bigots rule. He seems to think, as too many other 100% per centers do, that dollars are the only things worth using and every means of obtaining. He does not seem to realize that ideas and ideals are what make for progress and are therefore the most important things.

The trouble with all churches is that their theories, or so called truths, were found so long ago that they are out of date. Some seem to think that the more out of date they are the better.

All churches of necessity are opposed to progress for they all pretend to have discovered or been given all truth thousands of years ago.

Tennessee shows that the Catholic church has no monoply of crediulent, bigoted ignorance. This will not please Mr. Hogan, who would seem to like to boast that it has.

ALBERT BOARDMAN.

Norwich, July 10, 1925.

Keeping Boys on Farms.

Mr. Editor: I see our legislators are going to keep the boys on the farms by raising their taxes to pay for a new department.

The boys like farming and will stay on the farms if they have a living chance.

Taxes increased 300 per cent. in 20 years, and in some cases, 400 per cent. on farm property.

Abandoned farms are the result of incompetent statesmanship in the state and at Washington, D. C.

The greatest economy should be exercised in salaries. When a bill is up for consideration that will increase the taxes on farmers our statesmen should ask themselves, How much do the farmers make per day? How many hours of work per day? Is their work easier or harder? How much pension do they get when they retire at 55? Is their work of feeding Uncle Sam as important as any other work done for Uncle Sam? Should they be taxed for fancy fix-ups that they will not get on their turn from anyone else? What is the financial standing of the men who want more from people who have less? When they investigate along these lines they will be able to make right adjustments for the people of this nation and keep the right quota of boys on the farms.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Soul Winning

And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever. Daniel 12.3.

"He that winneth souls is wise." Soul winning is then, the very essence of wisdom. It is the or should be the business or occupation of all disciples of Christ. Our citizenship is in Heaven and our thoughts and aspirations should be centered on the ambition to promote and increase the population of our true Fatherland. "Go ye, therefore and make disciples." There is no getting away from the command, are we heeding that command? Are we following in the masters footsteps seeking the lost over, those who have gone astray? or are we first thinking of our own personal comfort, and the first essential for such work is character. For without Christliness of disposition we shall either fail to see them opportunities or fail to see them aright. If we are not ourselves striving after holiness of heart and consecration of spirit, we cannot with any consistency try to persuade others to seek this blessing. The Psalmist presented a strong argument when out of his own deep experience he cried out to others, O taste and see that the Lord is good; blessed is the man that trusteth in Him.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Viscount Bearsted, as the great oil magnate, formerly Sir Marcus Samual, now becomes as a result of the honor bestowed upon him on the King's birthday, is known as "the John D. Rockefeller of Britain." Few people know that his many millions are of his own making, or that he began life with no advantages save a quick and perceptive brain. In his early days he kept a little shop in the East End of London, where he made and sold little souvenir boxes made from sea-shells. Later, he invested his savings in oil, made money and started a company called the "Shell," thus identifying his big new venture with his original struggling business. Since those days he has made a fortune that is believed to be one of the largest possessed by any individual in Great Britain. And all from selling shells from the sea-shore—mixed with brains and energy.

From Small Beginnings

Henry O. Houghton, the Type Setter, Founder of a Great Publishing House

A slender boy stood before a case of type, about 1840, and busily set up "stick-fi" and "stickful" of reading matter. At last he drew himself up with a long intake of breath, and looked at the column that he had just completed. "I was wondering," he said to his fellow workmen, "how many miles of type I'd set up if I live to be 70."

Henry Houghton had come from the Green Mountain region in Vermont and he had all the independence and willingness to work that goes with northern, country and mountain breeding. The setting of type is one of the roads that leads to interest in writing. Every compositor naturally learns the art of writing for publication. Henry Houghton, like other compositors, soon picked up all the information that the printer needs to know. Then he set out as a reporter for a Boston paper, once again working long and hard, but this time throwing himself into his work with a rare energy and determination. He was a New Englander, thrifty and ambitious, and by the time he was 26 he returned to his old work in a printing office, but this time as one of the proprietors. He made the work a success in every way, and three years later, at the age of 29, was the leading spirit in establishing what is now the famous "Riverside Press" one of the most noted printing establishments in the United States.

Well established in business Henry Houghton continued to read and to study, and from interest in type setting and in printing moved to a deep interest in literature. He lived to see the great publishing house that he established become one of the foremost publication houses in the United States, and he prided himself on publishing the best types of books. In this work he became the friend and associate of some of the best known of American writers. Then, at the age of 49, he was elected Mayor of the City of Cambridge, where he had established his offices and press.

Thrifty Immigrants

Before the World war the average remittance in Italy from immigrants in the United States was $13,000,000. In 1924 the average receipts in Italy of American funds sent by the immigrants in the United States was $16,000,000. This increase is in the face of immigration restrictions set up by the United States which is holding down the number of new arrivals.

CONTRACT FOR NEW BUILDING FOR SHELTERING ARMS IS AWARDED

Bids for the construction of the new Sheltering Arms building of the United Workers of Norwich were opened Friday afternoon and the contract was awarded to W. S. Spencer of this city, the low bidder, at $8,888. At the same time the contract for heating and plumbing was awarded to Harold C. Dahl of this city on his bid of $19,902.

Work is to be begun at once on the new building, which will be located on the Rockwell street lot at the head of McKinley avenue, which adjoins and is part of the old rogue grounds.

All of those bidding on the general contract were Norwich contractors except one, the H. Wales Lines Co., of Meriden. The bids were made on plans by Kendall, Taylor & Co., of Boston, associates with Chandler & Palmer, the local architects, and were opened at the office of the Norwich firm in the Thayer building.

The following were the bids on the general contract:

Peck-McWilliams Co., $97,638; H. Wales Lines Co., $94,535; Archibald Torrance $89,820.37; Patrick Sweeney, $86,000; W. S. Spencer, $85,888.

The following were the bids on heating and plumbing:

Barber Co., Boston, heating, $15,986; H. E. Whitten Co., heating and plumbing, $23,630; Williams Bros., heating, $16,736; J. A. Fitzgerald, heating and plumbing, $22,000; Johnson & Nolan, plumbing, $5,459; Harold C. Dahl, heating and plumbing, $19,902.

The plot upon which the building is to be erected is at the corner of Rockwell street and the McKinley avenue extension. In locating the new building on the lot the question came up as to how it should be placed, whether to face Rockwell street or McKinley avenue extension. After considerable discussion, it was finally decided to front the building across the corner of the lot, setting it back about 100 feet and leaving a considerable triangular space in front of the building which will add to the attractiveness of the setting. The east and west corners at the front of the building will be about 30 feet from the line of the lot on each side.

The plans in general call for a two story and ground floor, brick building, of fireproof construction, terra cotta and gypsum block partitions and a slate roof.

The main building, which has solaria at either end, has a length of 140 feet and a depth of 30 to 35 feet, with two wings about 30 feet square, projecting at the rear. Between the wings will be an open court, this arrangement providing for perfect light and ventilation on all sides, which is a characteristic that has been worked out in the entire building.

In the main building on the ground floor are two maids' rooms, sitting room, trunk room, two storerooms, root cellar, two men's rooms, a two-bed room, and receiving room. A maids entrance is arranged on the McKinley avenue extension side of the building. Under the west wing is the laundry and under the east wing the boiler room and coal room.

The main entrance to the building is on the first floor through a vestibule and reception hall, the latter 26 feet 6 inches wide. There are alcoves at each side of the vestibule and a corridor extends east and west from the reception hall. To the west of the reception hall and on the front of the building is the matron's suite, with bedroom and sitting room, a maid's room with bath room, and a two-bed room. To the east of the reception hall is a private room, a two-bed room and the dining room, 19 feetx40 feet.

Northerly from the corridor are three private rooms, nurse's room, linen room and toilet room. The stair halls are at each end of the corridor, which is contigued to give access to the two rear wings. The westerly wing is taken up on the main floor with a recreation hall, about 30x30, and the easterly wing contains the kitchen, 30x20 feet, with pantry and serving room.

The second floor is traversed by a corridor running lengthwise of the building. This floor provides a large central sitting room, five two-bed rooms, seven private rooms, diet kitchen, toilet and bath room, nurse's room and toilet.

On the second floor of the west wing are six private rooms with wardrobes and in the east wing five private rooms and a toilet. The rooms are arranged on either side of a central corridor, which gives access to an outside balcony for each wing.

The two beautiful solaria, or sun rooms, enclosed in glass, are at either end of the building, and are about 35 feet deep by about 11 feet wide.

In its construction, appointments and fittings the building is designed to be perfectly adapted to furnish every comfort for those worthy women who will make up its family and it will be a magnificent addition to the property of the United Workers that will make possible a notable extension and enlargement of this department of the society.

CHARGED WITH RECEIVING TWO STOLEN AUTOMOBILES

DANIELSON, Conn., July 10.—(AP)—Charles Dansreau was arrested at his isolated farm three miles south of here late today on a charge of receiving stolen goods. He was later presented in court in Plainfield and held for a hearing next Thursday and in default of $3,000 bail was sent to the Windham county jail at Brooklyn.

Dansreau will answer in court to a charge of receiving two stolen automobiles brought into this section recently from Worcester, Mass. Thirty years ago, he was arrested in Danielson on a horse theft charge and in superior court in Worcester was sentenced to a total of 44 years in prison on various counts. He served twenty years. About four years ago he was sentenced to prison for from one to three years for stealing a calf. He served part of that sentence.

PUTNAM SALESMAN DIES FROM MOOSUP ACCIDENT

MOOSUP, Conn., July 10.—(AP)—Maurice Kaminsky, a clothing salesman of Putnam, Conn., died at the Day Kimball hospital in that city tonight of injuries caused when a truck he was driving was struck by a New Haven road train here, this afternoon. The train, the 2:10 out of Providence, was approaching the station at a moderate rate of speed when Kaminsky attempted to negotiate the crossing, which is about 300 yards east of the station. The truck was thrown high in the air, in the impact and Kaminsky was picked up and rushed to the Day Kimball hospital where it was found he had a fractured arm and leg and internal injuries.

HOUSTON FAMILY HURT IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Houston and family, Beatrice, Arthur and their three-year-old granddaughter, also Miss Florence Morrill, have returned from New Haven, where they narrowly escaped death. Their machine was struck by ahother machine bearing license number 291-927 Penna., operated by Wolf Sopachey. The Pennsylvania machine cut out from behind a slow moving truck without any warning and crashed into the side of Houston's car, throwing it off to one side and causing it to turn over. All in the car were thrown out. Mrs. Houston escaped with a badly bruised arm and Miss Morrill received a badly bruised right foot, bones being broken. Dr. Smith of Guilford was called and all injured were taken back to New Haven to the home of Harold Houston where they received more medical attention. Wolf Sopachey, an elderly Indian man, was placed under arrest and locked up in Guilford by Constable Dudley.

Both machines were badly damaged. Miss Morrill is at the home of Mrs. Houston, 429 Main street, and is under the care of a physician. Monday she will be removed to the Backus hospital.

CLUB HELD OUTING WITH FORMER PRESIDENT

The annual outing of the Progressive Missionary club of the Central Baptist church was held this week with a former president, Mrs. Albert T. Utley, at her summer home in Neptune Park. Because of the rain of Wednesday only about twenty members went down by automobile, spending the day very pleasantly. The president, Mrs. John E. Post, was in charge, during a brief business meeting at which the society voted the sum of $50 toward the church benevolences.

The rain held up so that, as in former years, the members could have their luncheon on the sightly piazza. The afternoon was spent in an informal social way.

OBITUARY.

Maurice J. King.

The death of Maurice J. King occurred Friday at his home in Colchester, following an illness of several months. He was born in Colchester, September 10, 1859, the son of Cornelius and Margaret Clifford King, and attended public schools of that town. His entire life was spent in the village where he followed the occupation of farming as long as health permitted.

Surviving is one sister, Miss Hannah King, of Colchester.

Mrs. John Riley.

Following a long illness Mary Kaiser, wife of John Riley, died at midnight, at her home, No. 58 Sturtevant street. Mrs. Riley was born in Baden, Germany, and was the daughter of Nicholas and Catherine Kaiser. When a young girl she came to the United States locating in Wareham, Mass. Forty-one years ago June 23 she was united in marriage with John Riley, the wedding taking place in Wareham. Mrs. Riley attended the First Congregational church before her illness. She was the last survivor of her parents' family, a brother passed away four weeks ago. Surviving her are her husband, one daughter, Mrs. Frank Hunter, of Norwich Town, one son, John Riley, Jr., of Colchester, two granddaughters, Mrs. John Rogers and Miss Doris Riley, one grandson, John Hunter, and one great-grandson, Robert Leroy Rogers.

Mrs. Riley was a woman of high ideals, a faithful wife and mother. Ever willing to help others, she was often sought by friends when in need of aid.

During her long illness she was a patient sufferer, never making complaint.

Besides her bereaved family, Mrs. Riley leaves a wide circle of admiring friends who are deeply grieved by her death.

She was tenderly cared for by her family throughout her illness, everything posisble being done for her comfort.

Walkers' Traffic Lights

A London newspaper reports that so great has become the automobile peril in that erstwhile land of quiet lanes and remote byways that people walking at night on busy highways wear over their shoulders small red glass disks that reflect the lights of automobiles approaching from behind, thus indicating to the drivers that a pedestrian is ahead on the road.

Odd Present From Lover

Near one entrance of the great cathedral of Seville hangs a patched and painted crocodile, which once served as a princely love token that failed of its mission. RIVERVIEW TO PLAY NEW HAVEN X-Y CLUB

The fast X-Y club, of New Haven, will be the opponents of the Riverview club on the hospital grounds, this (Saturday) afternoon. The game will start at 2:45 o'clock. This New Haven club comes to Norwich with a good reputation and should furnish plenty of opposition for the local club. The Riverview management is endeavoring to bring the fastest clubs from all sections of the state to Norwich in order to give the fans a run for their money. The next strong club to appear here will be the New Departure club, of Bristol. Particulars about this game will appear in a later edition of this paper. The Riverview club will present its usual fast lineup for today's game. Tony West will do the hurling with Joe Belair on the receiving end. The infield will be taken care of my Mills 1b, Hamel 2b, Normandin ss, and Dugas 3b. Moore, Allard and Stanley will take care of the outfield.

STENGEL GETS HOMER; WORCESTER BEATS HARTFORD

WORCESTER, July 10.—(AP)—Worcester bunched hits with bases on balls today and defeated Hartford, 7 to 2. Six of Hartford's hits, all singles, came in the fifth and ninth, three in each inning, to score only one run each time. Stengel hit through an opening in the score board for a home run.

BATTLE HARBOR IS MACMILLAN'S NEXT STOP

"Battle Harbor, last stopping place of the MacMillan Arctic expedition on the mainland of North America, a small fishing village on the east coast of Labrador, is a few miles north of the Strait of Belle Isle, a region well known to trans-Atlantic voyagers by the St. Lawrence route," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Clouds and mist often obscure the coastline in this region, where the hills and mountains rise rapidly from the sea. On clear days the great domes of gray rock stand out against the grayer sky, their tops often covered with patches of snow and ice, even in summer. On clear days, too, hundreds of icebergs can be seen along the coast at this point, huge masses of compacted ice and snow, born of a parent glacier in the Far North and beautiful beyond description in their glittering whiteness, marvelous in their changing colors.

"Ever since the days of Cartwright and other early explorers of the St. Lawrence region, Battle Harbor has been frequently mentioned as a port of call or provision point. Although the coast of Labrador is fringed with deep fiordlike indentations and protected by numerous islands, the water along the island fringe, which in places is something like an archipelago, is shallow. This region was once the terminal moraine, or dumping ground, of huge glaciers from the inland ice cap. The 'tuns' or passages into the deep, shutin harbors are 'drowned valleys,' formerly with running streams in them, for the coast was once higher than it is now.

"The town is a collection of neat white frame houses. At one time it had a highly valuable export trade in seals. Ten thousand of these valuable animals were taken in the vicinity in 1874.

"Today cod fishing is the main occupation. Many of the fishermen are too poor to own sailing vessels and do their fishing from small rowboats, which they maneuver with great skill and for long distances without fatigue. One observer, watching one of these small boats fly through the water at the insistence of a rugged pair of shoulders, stated it is his belief that a crew of paramen could be mustered here which, with proper shaping up, would show any Olympic or Poughkeepsie crew its wake, adding naively that they might go through a good deal of rowing gear first.

"Battle Harbor was named, according to one authority, to commemorate a fierce struggle between the Indians and Eskimos in early days. There are several evidences that a battle did take place here, but it is not likely that the harbor was named for it, for it is found on many old maps as 'Batal' before the fight is said to have taken place. The meaning of the early name is quite clear, being the Portuguese word for a boat or canoe.

"As late as the latter part of the 18th century Eskimos came as far south as the Strait of Belle Isle and in the time of Jacques Cartier many of them lived along the eastern and some on the southern coast of the Labrador peninsula. There are now no Eskimos south of Hamilton Inlet or Esquimaux Bay.

"With the exception of Newfoundland government boats (for Labrador is a part of the British colony of Newfoundland and not a province of Canada) fishing smacks and on occasional exploring expedition, such as MacMillan's, vessels generally keep clear of the coast. There are no wharves, the ship boats go ashore and the shore boats come alongside the ships—the latter generally filled with natives to see the doctor, if there is one on board. During the fishing season few on shore

LEADING CENTRALS SUFFER FIRST DEFEAT AT HANDS OF HALLVILLE

The Centrals lost their first game in five starts in the Twilight League Friday evening, when Hallville won a close and thrilling contest 3 to 2.

Various rumors were afloat before the game to the effect that Hallville had strengthened, but the team that represented the little Mill Village in last night's game exceeded all reports by a large margin. In defeating the Centrals, Hallville accomplished something that no other team in the league has been able to do thus far and now finds them in a three cornered race for the pennant. Despite their defeat, the Centrals are still in first place with four victories and one defeat, while Hallville and the Palace are close behind with three wins, and one loss, each.

Joe Cranker, veteran pitcher from New London, was on the mound for the rebuilt Hallville nine, and showed the fans that he still could fool the batsmen by allowing the powerful Central team to four hits, and two runs. Although slightly wild at the beginning of the game, Cranker settled down after the second inning, and from then on his work was smooth at all times. Joe walked three and fanned the same number.

Gaudette twirled for the Centrals and in all but two innings, the 4th and 5th, was invincible. In these two frames, Hallville made all of their six hits and scored three runs. Gaudette's speed bothered the Hallville batters considerably eight of whom went out via the strikeout route.

Neither team scored in the first two innings, but in the third, the Centrals took a one-run lead. Courbois led off with a pretty bunt along the third base foul line, and by fast running, beat the throw to first. Courbois stole second and remained there, while Yerrington struck out and Murphy hoisted a fly to center. Eccleston, however, came through with a single to center and Courbois took third. Eccleston then attempted to steal second, and while he was being run down between bases, Courbois counted with the first run.

In their half of the fourth, Hallville went the Centrals one better. Coyle started it off with a single to left and went to second on Red Charon's infield hit. Gaudette then settled down and fanned both Sullivan and Caulkins. It was at this point that the break of the game occurred. Cranker lifted a short pop fly in back of first base, and when the ball fell safe between A. Dugas, Gero, and Disco, both Coyle and Charon, scored. Almquist walked but A. Charon ended the frame by flying to center.

The Centrals came back and tied the game in the fifth. With one out A. Dugas was safe on Almquist's error, stole second and went on to third on Courbois' grounder to the infield. At this critical stage of the game, Yerrington came through with a line single to left, and Dugas scored with the tying run.

The score was tied only for a short time, however, as Hallville bunched three hits in their half of the fifth for another run, making the score 3 to 2, where it remained for the rest of the game. Bill Smith opened with a line double to right and scored a minute later on H. Smith's single to left. H. Smith took second, when Murphy let the ball go through him and went down to third on Coyle's single to left. Smith was then caught off third, Coyle going to second. Red Charon walked and with only one out things looked bad for the Centrals. A fast double play however prevented further scoring. Sullivan hit a long fly to left, and Coyle tried for third after the catch but was caught, Murphy to Yerrington.

In the sixth, the Centrals made a last bid for the game, but could not quite make the grade. Eccleston started off with his second hit, a single to center, stole second and took third on Gaudette's out at first. Gauthier popped to H. Smith and with Gero at bat, Eccleston started to steal home. The play at the plate was extremely close, but Umpire Hank Morin ruled that the runner was out. The score:

SAYS SENATORS HAVE BEST TEAM IN AMERICA

CHICAGO, July 10.—(AP)—Clark Griffith, president of the world's champion Washington team, already has the 1925 pennant of the American league nailed to the flag pole, if his prediction made today holds together until the finish of the major league season.

The president of the Senators says, without reserve or qualification, that Washington has the best team in the American league.

"Who's going to beat it?" was his own query.

"There is no secret why we will win again. We have the best all-around team in the league. It was the best in both leagues last year so why shouldn't it be this year? We certainly are no weaker and I don't think the rest are any stronger."

Critics have watched the Washington hurling staff with some fear both on account of the age and smallness, but the chief of the Senators feels no alarm.

President Griffith and others say there is nothing the matter with Walter Johnson. The moral effect of Walter's absence would be hurtful to his mates, but at present, it is claimed, he is suffering from nothing worse than a mild attack of tonsilitis. As soon as he is in any kind of condition he will pitch.

Up to the present the heavy staff work has been done by Johnson, Coveleskie, Ruether and Zachary.

LLOYD'S ELIMINATION OF SWEETSER GREAT SURPRISE

GREENWICH, Conn., July 10.—(AP)—A surprising upset marked the first round of play in the Greenwich Country Club's annual invitation golf tournament today when Jess Sweetser former national champion, was eliminated by Larry Lloyd of Greenwich, one up. Sweetser had won the qualifying medal yesterday with a card of 74.

After this initial triumph Lloyd took the measure of Ellis Knowles of Aquawamis in the second round, two up. Reginald M. Lewis of Greenwich was also a double winner, putting out Lee Maxwell of Round Hill, 3 and 2 as well as M. L. Fearel, of Garden City 4 and 3.

E. E. Sturges of Scarsdale advanced to the third round by winning over N. W. McLean of Grassy Spain, 3 and 2. And over W. S. Woodruff of Race Brook 4 and 2. Eugene Hoemans of Englewood was the fourth player to eliminate two opponents defeating C. A. McGuire of Huntington, 2 up, and W. H. Taft of Montclari, 1 up.

TWO AMERICAN YACHTS PRACTICE IN CLYDE RIVER

ROTHESAY, Scotland, July 10.—(AP)—Although the annual six meter yacht races for the Seawanhaka cup begin here tomorrow, neither the challenging Americans nor the defending British have yet announced what craft has been selected to carry their colors.

Two American yachts, the Lanai and the Redhead, both designed by Clinton Crane, have been tuning up in the Clyde recently. Whichever is chosen, the steering will be in the hands of Sherman Hoyt, secretary of the American six-meter committee.

The Royal Norther nYacht Club which captured the trophy with the Coila three summers ago, has a large number of craft from which to select a defender.

There will be a limit of four hours for the race. Tonight a stiff northwesterly breeze is blowing and prospects favor its continuance. The American yachtsmen dined tonight as guest of the Royal Northern Yacht Club at Rothesay.

PROPOSED HERMAN-TRAVERS FIGHT REMAINS "IN AIR"

NEW HAVEN, July 10 (A P)—The proposal to have a Herman-Travers fight here this month remained "in the air" today. Matchmaker Paolillo of the Nutmeg club seemed certain that he could get the bout here because Herman had refused to sign up with Kaplan.

Anticipating that he will get the Travers-Herman bout Paolillio said he was bound for New York to sign up some boxers for the preliminaries.

Challenge.

The Jewett City Speed Boys again challenge any teams in the eastern part of the state for games. What's the matter with all the star teams around Norwich and vicinity. Are they afraid of the Speed Boys? The Speed Boys aren't champions or professionals, only a bunch of fast amateurs. They have two open dates this week, Saturday and Sunday, and would like to play any of the following teams: Rosedale, Bearcats, Sachems, Valiants or any other team averaging 18 years.

Teams desiring games please communicate with Mgr. John Harris, of North Main street, Jewett City, or answer through this paper.

Star Pitcher's Wife Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, July 10.—(AP)—Mrs. Samuel Gray, wife of one of the star pitchers of the Philadelphia American league team, died in a hospital here last night. Gray, who was in Cleveland with the team when summoned home last Tuesday, was with her when she died.

TIGERS MAKE CLEAN SWEEP OF SERIES

DETROIT, July 10.—(AP)—Detroit made a clean sweep of the four-game series with Boston, winning here today, 5 to 1.

The game was a pitchers' battle throughout. Holloway had the better of it until the ninth when he became wild and Doyle was sent to the box.

With one out, two on bases and the count three and one, Stokes hit to Tavener, who made an unassisted double play to clinch the game for the Tigers.

Heilmann rapped out a single, double and triple, drove in three runs and scored one run himself. The score:

TILDEN WILL OPPOSE JONES IN FINALS OF MEN'S SINGLES TOURNEY

AGAWAN HUNT, East Providence, R. I., July 10.—(AP)—The west fared badly in the semi-finals of the Rhode Island lawn tennis championships this afternoon and eastern stars will battle among themselves for the major spoils tomorrow afternoon. National Champion William T. Tilden, 2nd of Philadelphia faces Arnold Jones of Providence and Yale in the finals of the men's singles, while the women's division trophy will be settled between Mrs Molla Mallory and Miss Eleanor Goss of New York.

Tilden put out Edward Chandler of California only with considerable difficulty today, 6-3, 6-4, 3-6 and 6-2. A little later Tilden paired with "Sandy" Weiner, his youthful Philadelphia protege, eliminated the University of California doubles team of Chandler and Thomas Stow, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2. Tilden was forced to play marvelous tennis in the doubles in order to win, and the stands rocked with the applause of the gallery throughout the match.

Young Jones rose to the greatest height of his career in eliminating Alfred H. Chapin, Jr., of Springfield, in the other semi-finals and earning the right to meet Tilden tomorrow. Chapin was seeded as number two man at the Agawan while Jones was not in the selected class, but the latter played the former off his feet to win at 6-4, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4. Jones mixed soft and hard shots to perfection.

The play of Chandler in the Tilden match and throughout the tourney as well indicated that he is the best prospect seen here for a long time and many followers of tennis felt that they might well be looking at a future champion. The intercollegiate title holder gave Tilden the hardest battle he has had in many a day, in fact he is the only player at the Agawan who has given Tilden any kind of a battle, the latter having lost only a single game in the entire tourney before meeting the Californian.

Although he looks much older, Chandler, according to his own declaration is but 19 years old. It should not be long before he is one of the most dangerous contenders in the country. While he has had little experience in big tournament play he is displaying a remarkably well-rounded game. He has an unusually fine tennis temperament and never faltered under Tilden's merciless attack. Tilden was able to find no outstanding weakness in Chandler's game except to catch the Californian out of position advancing to the net at times. The champion employed a chop stroke almost continually against Chandler, the turf being a little damp, but his opponent returned almost as good as he sent.

Walter Thomas of Philadelphia defeated Andrew G. Ingraham of Providence in the finals of the boy's tourney, 7-5, 6-2. Young Ingraham, a brother of "Billy" Ingraham of Harvard, displayed a much better all around game than Thomas but the latter fought back so persistently in the pinches that the former's game went to pieces.

The west will be represented tomorrow only in the doubles. Miss Mark K. Browne of California, paired with Miss Eleanor Goss of New York, her conqueror in the singles at the Agawan, defeated Miss Martha Bayard and Miss Penelope Anderson in the doubles semi-finals today, 8-6, 7-5. They will play Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup of Montrose, Pa., and Miss Edith Sigourney of Nahant in the finals tomorrow.

Another Californian, Gervais Hillis of the intercollegiate championship team, paired with Miss Goss, play Mrs. Jessup and "Billy" Ingraham in the finals of the mixed doubles tomorrow. These two teams accounted for the last Japanese players remaining in the tourney yesterday. The Jessup-Ingraham combination defeated Mrs. Mallory and Zenzo Shimizu, with Mrs. Jessup completely outplaying Mrs. Mallory who the day before defeated the former in the singles after being apparently hopelessly distanced.

CHANDLER PLAYED FINE TENNIS AGAINST TILDEN

NEW YORK, July 10—(A. P.)—Sensational tennis played against William T. Tilden, 2nd, in the semi-final round of the Rhode Island championship by Edward Chandler of the University of California today cost the national champion the loss of his first set in tournament competition since he was defeated at South Orange, N. J., by Vincent Richards in the first major outdoor event of the season.

Tilden has stormed through the Metropolitan, Eastern New York and Nassau tournaments without losing a set.

Chandler invaded the Metropolitan courts after sweaping through the intercollegiate tournament. His first important upset was worked at the expense of Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia. The following day in the semi-final round, however, he fell before Alfred H. Chapin, Jr., of Springfield, Mass., in one of the hardest fought matches of the Metropolitan season, 6-4, 5-7, 7-5, 3-6, 7-5.

REID ELIMINATES MOTT AT BROOKLAWN CLUB

BRIDGEPORT, July 10.—(AP)—Sid W. Mott, of Mill River, the medalist in the qualifying round of the annual invitation tournament of the Brooklawn Country club, was eliminated in the second round today by Ken Reid, the youthful Farmington golfer. Reid won the title last year and is favored to repeat. He will meet Alpheus Winter in the semi-final, tomorrow. W. P. Seeley, former state champion, will meet E. L. Bartlett, in the other semi-final.

Today's scores follow:

Morning round:

A. Winter, Brooklawn, defeated C. A. Phelps, Brooklawn, 7 and 5; Paul Haviland, Brooklawn, defeated M. J. McCarthy, Jr., Stamford, 6 and 4; Kenneth Reid, Farmington, defeated Horace Strong, Brooklawn, 2 up; Sid W. Mott, Mill River, defeated James A. Toole, Springfield, 4 and 3; W. P. Seeley, Brooklawn, defeated Nathaniel Wheeler, Brooklawn, 5 and 4; Robert L. Smith, Poughkeepsie, defeated E. F. Thomas, Jr., Ridgewood, 6 and 5; E. L. Bartlett defeated John T. L. Hubbard, Brooklawn, 2 and 1; Graham Jones, Hartford, defeated A. Dodge 5 and 4.

Afternoon round:

A. Winter defeated Paul Haviland, 1 up; Ken Reid defeated Sid Mott, 3 and 2; W. P. Seeley defeated R. E. Smith, 3 and 2; E. L. Bartlett defeated Graham Jones, 1 up.

GEER'S ALL STARS LOSE TO TAFTVILLE 16 TO 2

Geer's All Stars proved no match for Taftville A. A. at the Providence street grounds Friday night and were sent home with the very short end of a 16 to 2 score. Some of the players for Geer were members of the State Hospital nine but they could do nothing against Taftville. Lefty Dugas pitching for the locals had the All Stars under his thumb at all times, holding them to three hits which netted them two runs, while the team back of him pounded the pill to all corners of the lot.

The blasting of whatever hopes Geer's All Stars may have had of victory came in Taftville's half of the fifth. Hitting when hits were needed Taftv ille kicked up the dust and when it had settled 10 runs had been gathered in making the total count 14 to 2. Two more runs in the seventh only added to the balance in favor of Taftville.

Next Wednesday Ray Geer is to bring up a fast bunch of players and expects to hand Manager Troland's players a beating that they will long remember. In the meantime Taftville smiles and waits. The score:

FAVONIAN WINS CUP MEMORY OF "POP" GEERS

Cleveland, July 10.—(AP)—The first cup to be raced for in memory of Eu (Pop) Geers goes to the famous driver's home, Memphis, Tenn. It was won by Favonian, which took the Geers $5,000 stake for 2.08 trotters, feature of today's Grand Circuit card at North Randall.

Favorian is owned by Mrs. Ired Edforty years friends of the veteran horseman, who was killed at Wheeling, W. Va., during a spill last fall.

Favonian won the first two heats easily, taking the second after Ethelinda went into the stretch. Ethelinda took the third. It was Favonian's third consecutive win of the meeting.

Queen Volo brought her straight victories to two when she annexed the first division of the 2:16 trot in straight heats.

The second division went to Lady Mac, which won the final two heats after finishing ninth in the first heat, in which she was rolled up to avoid a collision. Her backers collected $280.25 on a $10 result ticket.

The start was delayed until nearly four o'clock while a dozen automobiles, dragging harrows, were driven over the muddy track. The 2:06 pace was postponed until tomorrow, but the remainder of the card was raced off.

LANAI AND COILA SELECTED TO RACE

ROTHESAY, Scotland, July 10—(A. P.)—At a late hour tonight the yacht Lanai was chosen as the challenging American craft to start in the annual six metre yeht races for the Seawanhaka cup beginning here tomorrow. The British yachtsmen selected the yacht Coila as the defender.

Archdeacon Injured

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 10—Maurice Archdeacon, outfielder for the Baltimore Orioles, playing the Syracuse Stars here today, was knocked unconscious and is believed to have suffered concussion of the brain when he collided with George Khabe of the stars while attempting to slide to third base. He was taken from the field under the care of physicians.

CARDINALS' RALLY FAILS TO TIE THE SCORE

PHILADELPHIA, July 10.—(AP)—St. Louis lost the first game of the series here today, 9 to 7, both Rehm and Ring weakened after five innings of air-tight pitching and the Cardinal rally in the ninth fell two runs shy of tieing the score when Blades hit into a force play with the bases loaded. MILLER WILL MEET COULON IN SEPTEMBER

In order to allow himself time to train Kid Miller says that he will not meet Young Coulon of Taftville until September. Although Coulon is clamoring for a bout within three weeks, the Kid does not feel as though he could be in condition in so short a time. Since he has returned from the west he has not had any training to speak about, so he has set his date in September, for ample time to train.

Coulon is hankering to meet Miller in an eight round semi-final at the Bradford show, which is to be held Friday, July 31, but Miller also refuses this offer, stating that the time is too short. This offer is also open to any other fast fighter averaging 115 lbs.

MARTINS AT WORCESTER TODAY; NO GAME SUNDAY

The J. B. Martin ball tossers will go to Worcester today, Saturday, to meet the highly rated Crompton-Knowles team. The boys have put in stiff practice this week and expect to chalk up another victory for the velvetmen. Lemieux or Pepin will be on the mound for J. B. Martin Co. and Jim Murphy will probably do the backstop work. For Crompton-Knowles, Keyes is slated for the mound work with King on the receiving end.

There will be no game Sunday at the J. B. Martin field.

ROBERTS HITTING AND PITCHING WINS GAME

PITTSFIELD, Mass., July 10.—(AP)—Roberts hit a home run with two out and one man on base in the ninth inning today, tieing the score, and pitched Bridgeport to a 6 to 5 victory over Pittsfield in 13 innings. Score by innings:

TAFTVILLE WILL CLASH WITH BALTIC SUNDAY

At Sayles' field, Baltic, Sunday afternoon, the Taftville A. A. team will clash with Manager Collins' Baltic A. A. nine, in what is expected to be a good game. Manager Collins will either use Stewart or Simineau in the box, with Brief behind the bat, Jarvis or Dugas will probably pitch for Taftville.

FREE FOR ALL FIGHT CAUSES CONGESTED TRAFFIC

NEW YORK, July 10, (A P)—Walter "Rabbit" Maranville, manager of the Chicago National league baseball club, with Pitcher Herbert Brett and Shortstop John Pittenger of the same club, and George Warner, a chauffeur, were locked up on disorderly conduct charges tonight after participating in a free for all fight at 42nd street and Broadway, causing a complete paralysis of traffic during the six o'clock rush hour.

Taftville Tigers Win.

The Taftville Tigers and the Arrows played a 5-inning game in the Junior Twilight league Friday evening, the former winning by the score of 10 to 2. Finiuki, pitching for the winners, allowed but one bingle, and easily held the Arrows in check. Greene, the Academy pitching ace, in the box for the Arrows, was knocked out in the third inning.

Tunney Underwent Operation

New York, July 10.—(AP.)—Gene Tunney, New York heavyweight, today underwent an operation for the removal of tonsils. His physicians tonight announced that they hoped he would be able to leave the hospital within five days for a rest at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., after which he will resume training for a series of bouts.

YANKEES RECEIVE DOUBLE DOSE FROM ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, July 10.—(AP)—Two games were won by the Browns from the New York Yankees today. After a hard battle the Brownies took the first contest, 9 to 8, and hitting heavily, captured the second, 13 to 3. Pitcher Shawkey was removed from the first clash for disputing with an umpire.

Joe Bush, former Yankee, pitched against four of his former mound mates, allowing 10 hits to their 20. E. Johnson corraled a homer off Bush, while Hargrave and Rice each hit circuit clouts for St. Louis. The score:

POETRY

TREE FANCIES.

Bough-roofed, what meditations lie,
What fancies sad and gay!
All tale-tongue that ventures nigh
The whispering leaves allay.

Above—I hear the song of birds
Blent with the patient hum
Of toiling bees; no rhythmic words
Can sigh such music come.

In dappled shadows neath the trees
I read the tale of life;
In patterns wavering one sees
Its pain, its joy, its strife.

And yet—I know forever bright,
O'er all, Hope's star is near;
And Memory trims her faithful light—
That cresset ever dear.

Leaves, flowers, all, I love each one
Whate'er its form or hue;
Because of them I bless the sun,
The raindrops, and the dew.

Yet, while I scent in fragrant shade
The blossoms on the breeze,
I thank God most because He made
The singing, soothing trees.
—Samuel Minturn Peck
In Boston Transcript.

THE VOICELESS,

We count the broken lyres that rest
Where the sweet wailing singers slumber,
But o'er their silent sister's breast
The wild-flowers who will stoop to number?

A few can touch the magic string,
And noisy Fame is proud to win them:
Alas for those that never sing,
But die with all their music in them!

Nay, grieve not for the dead alone
Whose song has told their hearts' sad story,—
Weep for the voiceless, who have known
The cross without the crown of glory!

Not where Leucadian breezes sweep
O'er Sappho's memory-haunted billow,
But where the glistening night-dews weep
On nameless sorrow's churchyard pillow.

O hearts that break and give no sign
Save whitening lip and fading tresses,
Till Death pours out his longed-for wine
Slow-dropped from Misery's crushing presses—

If singing breath or echoing chord
To every hidden pang were given,
What endless melodies were poured,
As sad as earth, as sweet as heaven!
—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Farney—I got 15 miles out of a gallon.

Toney—That's nothing; I just got a good headache out of a pint.—Good Hardware.

Horses may bite with all their might
But they can't bite with their mane.—
Middlebury Blue Baboon.

A cynic is a man who blames a dead tree because it fails to become green in the spring.—Sense and Nonsense.

Pom—Little Bertz Hopp has taken a job as a chimney sweep.

Olive—Does he like the work?

Pom—Sure. He says it just suits him.—University of Oklahoma Whirlwind.

What's the good of a family tree, anyway?

Why, it comes handy when one's trying to climb into society, you know.—Boston Transcript.

Husband—What! You've ordered two new dresses. Don't you know that the age already head over ears in debt?

Wife—Oh, yes. I know; but the dressmaker doesn't.—Exchange.

"I have heard," said Professor Sloss, "that Babylon fell, and Nineveh was besieged, and—"

Someone on the class—Two was punctured.—Notre Dame Juggler.

Mamma, if I get married will I have a husband and like papa?

Mother—Yes, dear.

Pearl—An' if I don't marry, must I be an old maid like Aunt Jane?

Mother—Yes, dear.

Pearl — Mamma, we women don't get many chances in this world, do we?—Sydney Bulletin.

The head of a music house in Washington, D. C., lays claim to having a unique autograph "book." His book is a grand piano. On its lid are scratched the names of famous artists who have played there on that piano. Paderewski's name leads all the rest, the date first it being 1895.

Much discussion has been roused concerning the making of the Tiber river navigable from the Mediterranean as far as Rome, at least for freight barges and small tugs. Proponents of the plan argue that the growing population of the capital is beginning to tax the railroads beyond their capacity to bring food and other supplies.

The cult of Shinto is no exception to the modernization wave which has been sweeping over Japan since the great earthquake of 1923. At a recent meeting of the Shinto shrine reconstruction committee it was decided that those shrines destroyed by the earthquake fire should be rebuilt of reinforced materials. In Tokio and vicinity, 103 Shinto shrines were destroyed. The estimated cost of reconstructing these has been placed at 562,163 yen.

WESTERLY

At the Friday morning session of Third District court Clerk M. Walter Flynn, Jr., read the following docket:

State, William Kay, of Hopkinton, complainant vs. Howard J. Douglas (two cases) continued one week.

State, Fred T. Mitchell, sheriff, complainant vs. George Perkins of Exeter, R. I. move for discontinuance granted.

State, Thomas E. Brown, chief of Police of Westerly, complainant vs. Natale Lippinazzo. Continued at Attorney Kingsley's request two weeks.

State, Thomas E. Brown, chief of Police, complainant vs. Newman F. Tuckerman, the case and the previous one in violation to Board of Public Utility ruling, same disposition.

New Writs—Thurman F. Eldredge vs. Annie Baylord. If answered, continued one week.

Carl Olsan vs. Orlindo Guimaris. Continued one week.

State, Elmer E. Smith, collector of taxes of Hopkinton, complainant vs. Lawrence H. Hepworth, administrator, placed on nisi docket.

Bertha M. Cooke vs. E. Alston Blackler. Continued one week.

Upco Company vs. Wilbert A. Clark. Continued one week.

Sears-Roebuck company vs. Vernon Palmer. Called ready, marked continued.

With a well filled court room, Judge Turano gave the following consideration to the docket.

The case of Newman F. Tuckerman and Eugene Bennett, Westerly bus drivers, who were given court summons Thursday forenoon while driving Sunday school members of the Grace Methodist Church, Westerly, to their annual picnic, was continued one week.

The men, who pleaded not guilty to charges of violating town hackney ordinances, were released on their recognizance.

Tuckerman, the owner of the busses, also is charged with "using two motor trucks for the conveyance of persons for hire in the town of Westerly without first having secured a license for that purpose from the Superintendent of Hacks of Westerly." A previous complaint, charging that Tuckerman operated a jitney in Westerly from June 1 to 13 without a certificate from the state board of public utilities, was also brought. These cases also were continued to July 17.

The men are charged with "driving and having charge of a motor truck for the conveyance of persons for hire in Westerly without having a license from the superintendent of hacks in Westerly." Everett A. Kingsley, their attorney, entered the not guilty pleas.

Mrs. Flora Mooney, whose complaint Thursday that Tuckerman's busses are operating in the field granted to her busses was in the courtroom, but took no part in the proceedings.

Judge Turano, in court Friday morning, was influenced by the presence of two passengers in a car, when fining its driver, William Webber, 19, $15 and costs for operating at an excess speed of 35 miles an hour on Main street, White Rock, July 5.

When it developed that Webber had two other persons on the front seat of his car, Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr., told the court that the state board of public roads and state police officers, meeting at Providence, condemned this practice as dangerous.

Webber was summoned to court by Constable Greenwood.

Leonard Johnson, 51, of New Haven, was fined $50 and costs, when he pleaded nolo to a charge of possessing wet goods in his tailoring establishment on Main street, Watch Hill, when the place was raided July 2. Whiskey and gin extracts, a hydrometer and a half-gallon of alcohol were found. Johnson promised the court Ekel Joder again would he keep these materials in his store while he lived in Westerly.

Concerning the case of John Panora et al., vs. Rosie Palazzolo, the latter told the court that Attorney John Dunn, who was to have appeared in his behalf, had said, "Let it go until next week." Attorney John F. Gallagher, who represents the plaintiff, asked the court if the case had to await Mr. Dunn's pleasure, and urged that Mr. Dunn appear next week in person. Judge Turano directed that Mr. Dunn do this.

He said if Mr. Dunn had a valid excuse at that time, he could then present it in person, and his action would be governed accordingly.

New writs entered were Thurman F. Eldredg vs. Annie Baylob. Continued one week. Carl Olsen vs. Orlindo Guimaris. Continued one week.

The case of the state, Chief of Police Kay of Hopkinton, complainant, vs. Howard J. Doughs, on two counts, was continued one week.

Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell asked that the case of the State vs. George Perkins be discontinued.

A special session of Stonington town court will be held Saturday a. m. before Judge William A. Wilcox to act upon liquors seized in a recent raid on Mechanic street, Pawcatuck.

George Diar was called but failed to respond, the case was continued a week, it being understood that the respondent was in Connecticut.

Of interest to Watch Hill residents and visitors to Westerly and the beaches, generally, is the following which appeared on the society page, Friday, of a metropolitan daily:

Miss Lihme Princess Aug. 29.

Watch Hill, R. I., July 9.—Miss Anita Lihme will be married to Prince Edward Joseph Lobkowicz August 29. The wedding will take place in the Union chapel here and will be followed by a reception at Norman hall, the Lihme, summer home. Prince Edward will arrive here tomorrow for the week end.

Arrested by George H. Champlin on West street, Friday afternoon, Almo Hasson, of New York, an Assyrian pack peddler, was presented in a special session of the 3rd district court, Friday evening, before Acting Judge M. Walter Flynn, Jr., on complaint of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, for peddling linen without a peddler's license. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs, paying $12.80.

Palace Theatre.

That there are more ways than one of seeing the sights of the town is illustrated in Reginald Denny's latest laughing success, "I'll Show You the Town," the Universal-Jewell feature now showing at the Palace theatre.

The days of the hackney coach, omnibus and the rubberneck-wagon have gone and even a more modern vehicle than taxicabs has come to take their place. The airplane is at last coming into its own and according to the pilots of the air, the flying machine outstrips all competitors to point of absolute efficiency.

In "I'll Show You the Town," the screen version of Elmer Davis' screamingly funny story, Reginald Denny is cast in the role of a young college professor who is placed in the predicament of having to show the sights of the town to an extremely homely but wealthy widow who is on a short visit to the metropolis from her provincial home. Denny has thirty minutes in which to accomplish this tour of the town. The widow, Agnes Clevenger, played by Claay Fitzgerald, had never been up in an airplane and wasn't over anxious for the experience. Be that as it may the flight over the metropolis furnishes a full share of whole hearted laughs and is one of the outstanding situations in the production.

Incidentally, a sight-seeing tour by airplane has since been conceded to be not only efficient, but extremely practical. Five minutes in the air and the Widow Clevenger saw the town and all its sights. Marian Nixon, Edward Kimball, Lilyan Tashman, Hayden Stevenson, Margaret Livingston, Neely Edwards, William A. Carroll, Martha Mattox, Helen Greene and Lionel Braham, are in the supporting cast. Harry A Pollard directed the production.

Broadway Theater

Sackcloth and Scarlet, a Paramount picturization of the novel by George Gibbs, featuring Alice Terry and others, opens sunday at the Broadway theater.

A big human theme is developed in the story, one of two girls, orphan sisters, Joan and Polly Freeman who have, but one thing in common—unusual beauty. Joan kicks over the traces and goes west in search of adventure and engages in a brief love affair with a hotel guide. She returns to New York and tells Joan (Alice Terry) a secret. The pair go to France where baby Jack is born. Joan rises splendidly to the occasion and becomes devoted to the child from the very first. Polly hates the sight of him.

For six years Joan cares for little Jack as if he were her own. There is a great deal of gossip and the girl, to shield her younger sister, takes it all.

Later Joan grasps the opportunity to go back to American with friends. They live in Washington where the girl meets and falls in love with a congressman. She has no idea that he is really the father of little Jack. Their romance progresses rapidly until Polly returns. There is instant recognition between her and Edwards, and, for the time at least, Joans little bubble of happiness is burst.

Everything is straightened out Polly goes back to her dancer-husband in France and Joan turns to Edwards as the picture closes.

Dorothy Sebastian plays Polly and Orville Caldwell has the role of Stephen Edwards. Otto Matiesen, Kathleen Kirkman, John Miljan and others play in support.

Great Guns is the name of the comedy bombardment on this program in addition to a new kinograms. An augumented orchestra will render a special musical interpretation.

Breed Theater

Given a lavish setting in the whirl of modern social life, Cheaper to Marry, Samuel Shipman's big New York stage success, was filmed by Rob E. Leonard and the result, regarded by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer officials as one of the most dramatic pictures of the year, will be seen at the Breed theater on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Brilliant social events in the luxurious surroundings of New York hotels and clubs, intimate glimpses into the life behind the doors of an exclusive women's athletic club, and thrilling scenes in the stock exchange all go to make the film version of the play an unusual picture.

Threading through the picturization is a powerful story of the age old war of the sexes, which comes to a startling and realistic climax.

Jim Knight, played by Lewis S. Stone, one of the finest actors of America, wages a bitter fight in conventions and loses. Matrimony, the film discloses, is the best and cheapest policy.

The cast is an exceptional one. Besides Stone, it includes Conrad Nagel, Pauiette Duval, Marguerite de la Motte, Louise Fazenda, Claude Gillingwater and Richard Wayne.

Miss Duval, former French dancer in Ziegfelds, Follies, is seen in her first big screen role since Monsieur Beaucaire, the Valentino film in which her characterization of Madame Pompadour won wide acclaim. She is the mistress of Jim Knight, while Nagel and Miss de la Motte play opposite each other for the first time in their careers. A rich vein of comedy runs through the picture, capably handled by Miss Fazenda and Mr. Gillingwater.

Alice D. G. Miller, wrote the scenario, and is given credit for bringing a stage play to the silver sheet without a single fundamental change in the original plot.

In a region in the Appalachian mountains where early marriages are the rule a girl is regarded as a spinster at eighteen.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

Cheer

You have seen, at close of a rainy day,
When the setting sun had peeped out,
How a brilliant bow lit the eastern sky,
Putting mist and gloom to rout;
And you may have stood on the shore at night,
While you watched the bright moon rise,
As she spread a carpet of silvery sheen,
To entice you to the skies.
That is just the way with a friendly smile,
It will scatter joy and dull care beguile.

Give a smile to him whom you meet today,
And a word of hearty cheer;
Have a handclasp warm for the friend you greet,
Though the day be dark and drear.
Then you'll see this gloomy old world light up,
Like the moon light on the wave,
And return to you the engaging smile
And the kindly word you gave.
Do a noble act, and like beacon rays
It will guide a brother o'er stormy ways.

Thought

Thought is deeper than all speech,
Feeling deeper than all thought;
Souls to souls can never teach
What unto themselves was taught.

We are spirits clad in veils;
Man by man was never seen;
All our deep communing fails
To remove the shadowy screen.

Heart to heart was never known;
Mind with mind did never meet;
We are columns left alone
Of a temple once complete.

Like the stars that gem the sky,
Far apart though seeming near,
In our light we scattered lie;
All is dim but starlight here.

What is social company
But a babbling summer stream?
What our wise philosophy
But the glancing of a dream?

Only when the sun of love
Melts the scattered stars of thought,
Only when we live above
What the dim-eyed world hath taught,

Only when our souls are fed
By the fount which gave them birth,
And by inspiration led
Which they never drew from earth,

We, like parted drops of rain,
Swelling till they meet and run,
Shall be all absorbed again,
Melting, flowing into one.

These Supermen

I read about these superman
So strictly up to date,
No matter how the season comes
It never finds them late.
The seed is in the ground on time.
The hoeing's done
They never break the binder twine
Or bust the sulky plow.
They always have the silo full.
Their buildings are a dream
Their bossies always freshen
When the price is best for cream.
You never catch them napping
They are stickey up to date
And when the angel Gabriel comes
They'll meet him at the gate.
But I am human and I fear
Have often used a line
That may be found in Shakespeare,
But not in Writ Divine.
And like somebother farmer, by heck!
I'm prone to make mistakes.
For the I guess and figure,
I at times miscalculate.
I often break the binder twine,
I hit rocks with my plow.
My bossies don't all freshen
When I wish they would, somehow.
At times I am caught napping
And my hens get through the fence,
And at times I feel like swapping jobs,
My mind seems awful dense.
And I'll confess in many ways,
I'm not quite up to date,
For if the season's early
I am sometimes a little late.
Some days I'm blowing bubbles,
And some days I'm in a ditch.
But if we had no troubles,
Well, gee whiz, we'd all be rich.
I read in the Norwich Bulletin
There are other folks like me,
At times knee deep in clover
And at times far up a tree.
I envy much these supermen.
I wish I had their brain.
But if I would be one of them
"I must be born again."

My Window Ivy

Over my window the ivy climbs,
Its roots are are in homely jars.
But all the day it looks at the sun.
And at night looks out at the stars.

The dust of the room may dim its green,
But I call to the breezy air:
Come, come in, good friends of mine,
And make my window fair.

So the ivy thrives from morn to morn,
Its leaves all turned to the light,
And it gladdens my soul with its tender green,
And teaches me day and night:

What though my lot is in lo place
And my spirit behind the bars,
All the long day I may look at the sun,
And look at night for the Stars.

Dear God let me grow from day to day,
Clinging and sunny and bright,
Though planted in shade thy window is near
And my leaves may turn to the light.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

DON'T WORRY: Letter sent as requested.

BALSAM FIR: Card sent as requested.

GREETINGS FROM WHIRLWIND

Dear Editor and Social Cornerites: I have not written for some time so thought I'd better get busy or I might be classed as a slacker, and that would never do. How are you all any way? Before I forget it I will say thanks for the pin I received a very long time ago. Also for past favors the editor has accorded me.

Foxglove and I were very sorry we were not able to attend the meeting in E. Killingly. It must be a pretty drive there and at this time of the year especially when the roses are all in bloom everywhere. Nearly every one has roses of some kind and some have all kinds. We have some very pretty ones, the red, the crimson rambler, a Dorothy Perkins (pink). A white climbing rose and several bushes of the low bush, a very pretty double pink. We also have a bank full of the calliopsis, and a Tucca lily and a bush of wild sweet pea in bloom. Our yard is very pretty.

Twice Twenty: Foxglove and I are planning to visit you very soon, so do not be surprised to see us pop in any time. We generally make up our mind to go some where then start at once before we change it.

Joan: Haven't seen anything from your pen for some time. Trust you are well. Will write soon as I think I owe you a letter.

Catnip: How are you? Trust your eyes are all well by this time. I also owe you a letter. It will be along soon.

Balsam Fir: Glad to see you are right up to snuff with your letters. They are very interesting.

E. M. R. C. P.: I know I owe you a letter too and will write soon, also will send you the article you asked for. I trust you are not in a hurry or very particular. I have a new car and spend most of my time in it. If I am not in mine am gadding with Foxglove.

Diana: "Howdy." Hope you are well and enjoying the summer and are having good luck with your farming.

Airy: Don't forget you owe me a letter for a long time.

To all the shut-ins and those in trouble I extend my sympathy. Will ring off now and get a piece of cherry pie then off to bed.

Good night all.

BUSY UP IN MAINE

Dear Social Corner Friends: No work done after Social Corner comes, and as I received two at once all work was thrown aside until I had feasted on contents.

I have been cooking for campers for the past week and with rheumatism twinges occasionally believe me I have not enjoyed my job so very much.

I have been entertaining friends from Lyndehurst, N. J., also Montauk Point, L. I., beside others from Portland. Later on my aunt who has just celebrated her 91st birthday is to visit me over the week end—some time. She is a native of Norwich having been born in Hanover and always lived in Norwich until about 3 years ago. After her husband died, the late Nathan A. Morgan, a photographer who had a gallery in the Ripley block. That was too far back for me to remember, much about it.

He also kept a private school at Norwich Town for Indian boys. Her present address is Mrs. Mary J. Morgan, 230 Main street, Amesbury, Mass. She loves to ride and is looking forward to her trip to Dry Mills. I know she would enjoy cards and letters from all who would care to write her.

She is interested in the Social Corner and loves to read the letters.

Paula: I appreciate your love for elderly people. I thank you for interest you took in my relative.

Our Fourth of July was the coldest ever, 60 above all day with a drizzling rain to make it still more unpleasant.

Those who have lost dear ones have my sympathy for I know what it is.

C. R.: What a dandy time you must have had at Preston Plains! Would have loved to have been with you. Three new cottages are building on our beautiful Dry Pond.

Our new road is progressing finely. Some road I'll tell you when done. Did I tell you it would be wide enough for three autos to run abreast. They tear my lawn about all to pieces, that is cut it back several feet from where the road was before.

Went out on lake by moonlight last Evening, great I tell you. My neighbor is in hospital, Mrs. E. S. Swan, Hospital Lewiston, Maine.

Yes, had another operation. Makes three years in succession, she is doing nicely, poor girl, I trust she can enjoy life what few more years she has to live. She is 64 now.

Real estate is changing fast at this place. I have been offered a big sum for my place but guess I do not want to sell just yet.

Blue berries are beginning to ripen and there will be loads of them. Guess I won't try to pick many but let others pick for me. There are enough people who are willing to help me. Today is great. A dear one who has passed on had a birthday July 6th. Gone but never forgotten and just as dear as ever.

How good it seems to have Frozen and Billie with us again! What has become of Ready, Glenwood and Faye Verna, and Aunt Mehitable and oh, ever so many others? Some pretty good recipes.

Roxanna Keables' story was fine. Our garden is looking fine owing to so much rain. Peas ready to pick, so must get busy. Was pleased to hear from Evelyn Burr. Some joke on Mr. C. A. Libby wasn't it?

Grandma Gray: You have my sympathy and love.

Best wishes fr—

BALSAM FIR.

GREETINGS FROM SEE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Received Taft's nice letter and thank her for the invitation to call. If the opportunity ever comes shall be pleased to.

Tafts: You will hear from me soon.

Billie: I did enjoy your recent letter. When you get time give us some more. I imagine you can tell just heaps of interesting stories.

Aries: I have read that a contented mind is a continual feast.

Evelyn Burr: Don't be too hard on pigs. My experience has proved that turkeys and chickens for instance are just as bad or worse.

Anatasia: I think if you would leave your bread box out of doors for a while it would soon be all right. I have painted the inside of ice chests before now. I usually do them some time before it will want to use them and by leaving the door and top ajar and putting a fresh pan of water in every few days the order soon disappeared.

Ethelyn: Last night I tried out your suggestion of using the hot water bottle as a cold bottle and it worked fine.

E. L. M.: I see some one asked you about the shore line club. I had been wondering myself if it had ever been started.

BEE.

ILLNESS HAS STALLED SHORE LINE CLUB

Dear Social Corner Members: Was glad to see O. D. that you won a prize. Do tell us what you do with it. Be careful and spend wisely. What a nuisance ants are. Whenever I have been troubled with them I always set the legs of tables that I set food on, ice chest, etc., in cans of water. Sometimes it is not very convenient but it is a sure way of keeping them out of food.

Fred's Wife: I tried your trick this year. I am a regular dumb Dora at dress making but every year make a try at a wash dress or two. This summer I bought two patterns and cut out a dress by each. One is so comfortable, the other one the lines are fine but so uncomfortable around the arms. From the good one I have made several dresses with variations. I shall always try out a new pattern on a house dress hereafter.

Wee Wifie: Thanks so much for the history of Bride's Brook. It was very interesting and I know several who enjoyed reading it as well as myself.

Kitty Lou: Thank you for the letter. Will follow instruction and report. Thank you must be kept very busy.

Crimson Rambler: I have an idea or two who may have spilled the beans. I suppose as they have been on the sick list they are privileged characters so will have to be forgiven. There were other members in that party and some who have attended, some of the meetings. Are you sure you have not got names mixed? I often talk with some one who was once a neighbor of yours or rather lived not many miles from you. Now you can do some more guessing.

As to the Social Corner club, I don't think many were interested in a Shore Line club and as the one who was willing and planning to send an invitation to all who were interested to meet at her house and start something, has been sick for several weeks and will not be able for some time to take the lead, I guess it is one of the things that might have been.

Interested Reader and Tatting: Think its time you sent a line now the sick folks are on the gain.

SANDWICHES

Dear Members of the Social Corner: The word sandwich once implied some variety of filling put between two slices of bread; but since it has attracted so much attention and achieved such popularity the original use of the term has been expanded to cover fillings between cake or wafers. Of course you know where "sandwich" originated. It was when "old Lord Sandwich" so engrossed in his card games that he could not be torn from them even to go to the dinner table —devised the plan of having his meat brought to him between two slices of bread. I guess he little thought he was giving his name to what was soon to become one of the most popular of the little luncheons or suppers served at homes especially on Sunday evenings when with substantial construction, it may form the bulwark of a light repast. It is well adapted to the afternoon cup of tea or chocolate with which friends are regaled who come informally to enjoy ones hospitality. For each occasion the pliant sandwich can be made to change not only its flavor but also its appearance. All shades of bread from the light white to the dark brown may be used, and with the aid of a little ingenuity and a sharp knife—the shape may become whatever the maker wishes in order to carry out her adjuncts of modern entertaining. Now we have the sandwich in every form, from the practical, utilitarian one of meat and cheese at the quick lunch counter to the wonderful confection of crystalized fruits held between slices of bread as thin as wafers—which graces our afternoon tea tables. Because of its versatility it is available for every occasion from the kindergarten lunches of the children, when the stubby toed square of bread and butter and sugar is the badge of democracy, to the receptions, teas, dance, club entertainments and picnics of adult years. It is an important part of the scheme of decoration from the heart of St. Valentine to the shamrock of St. Patrick. I know that once one becomes interested in sandwich making the possibilities of it lure one on and on in innumerable and engrossing experiments. There are quite a few secrets in sandwich making that when known will help the builder greatly. In the first place sandwiches should be made beforehand, leaving the hostess free to enjoy her guests. This is a special point in their favor, and one reason for their popularity. Some sandwiches, in fact I think they all improve or ripen by standing. An example of this is the brown bread sandwich with crystalized ginger filling. To make this the bread is brushed with melted butter, the filling laid between and the whole allowed to sand sometime before serving. In sandwiches thus prepared, these flavors blend delightfully.

All sandwiches should be kept between damp cloths until serving time. Two napkins should be dipped into cold water and wrung out, and one of them laid upon the plate. Upon this the sandwiches are placed and covered with the second napkin. The two napkins are then carefully folded together around the sides. Thus protected the sandwiches will keep perfectly fresh for hours.

If one plans to serve chocolate with sandwiches, it, too, has the advantage of ripening by standing. If it is made in a double boiler and allowed to remain over the hot water for an hour, it will be found to be richer in flavor at the end of that time. Some add a little cornstarch to the chocolate but chicken it slightly; but chocolate that has stood for some time thickens itself. With such accommodating refreshments as these, no woman with the spirit of hospitality need be debarred by the lack of servants from entertaining her friends. Later I will send sandwich recipes.

KITTY LOU.

SUGGESTIONS WORTH TRYING

Dear Friends of the Corner: Here are a few more suggestions which I find are worth trying.

Slip a stove cover on the grate to your oil stove and put the sad irons on top and they will hold the heat as well as when on a range.

To keep a range from rusting, while not in use, wipe over with a cloth dampened with kerosene, including the pipe. Do the same to all enamel part of oil stove an dit will shoine like new.

Turn a sponge cake upside down as soon as taken from the oven and let remain until cold and it will not "tumble."

Here is my recipe for

Sponge Cake: Yolks of 5 eggs, 1-2 cup cold water, beat two minutes with egg beater; add 1 cup granulated sugar, slowly. With cake spoon fold in 1 cup flour, 1 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, pinch salt, grated rind and teaspoon lemon juice and lastly the beaten whites. Bake 50 minutes in range or 40 minutes in oil oven.

I am sending in the verse The Golden Rule, but have forgotten the author's name.

Deal with another, as you'd have
Another deal with you,
What you're unwilling to receive
Be sure you never do.
As you'd have others be to you,
And never do or say to men
Whate'er you would not take again.

Best wishes to all.

A. NEVADA.

WORTHWHILE HOUSEHOLD POINTERS

Dear Sisters: Whiting will clean white enamel woodwork perfectly and will not injure the gloss in the least, as soap does. It will also remove spots that it is almost impossible to take off with soap. Moisten a clean cloth (soft) dip it in the whiting and rub on the dirty places.

All discoloration of your aluminum utensils may be removed by using 4 tablespoons of oxalic-crystals in a gallon of water and boiling not more than five minutes, or allowing this solution to remain cold in vessel over night.

Before using wash in clan hot water and soap.

When cooking very sour fruit if one will add a very little salt to each quart, it will only take one half the sugar usually needed.

To remove mildew with buttermilk overnight.

If after washing and drying the fruit jars, you will put a small piece of paper into each jar before screwing on the top, they will not have that musty smell.

When canning fruits and vegetables, do not pack the jars too tightly. Leave a space 1-2 inch at the top for hot liquid, giving it a chance to run through the whole product.

Always use a combination of part lard and part butter for greasing tins or baking pans. The butter alone is rather salt.

Always melt your grease and rub on with a brush.

The newest handkerchiefs are round octagonal shape, also rectangular. They are very quaint being ornamented with unusual decorations. Some have special symbols of good luck. Such as Swastika, a new moon, or a black cat in the corner.

Cafe au lait, so loved by the French is made by adding 1 pint of hot milk to one quart of strong coffee. It is impossible to suit every one. The one point on which all good cooks agree is that coffee should be ground thoroughly for full flavor and aroma and should not boil. The finer the ground the higher the yield in color and flavor.

To detect chicory in coffee put the powder in cold water. Chicory gives a colored infusion to the water, whereas coffee does not and by the depth of the color the proportion of the chicory can be detected.

To prevent iron pots or skillets from rusting, rub well with fresh lard, heat thoroughly and wipe dry with cloth or tissue paper. Treated this way when new they will never rust, even if allowed to remain wet.

ETHELYN.

CREAM SPONGE CAKE

Dear Social Corner Editor and Members: I want to thank the editor for the pretty pin I received a long time ago. Please do not think the delay in thanking you was caused by little appreciation of the pin. I like the little symbol of the Social Corner very much. I think it very kind and generous of our editor to supply each member of our large Social Corner family with one.

Hello, Snowflake! I think of you often and I am coming to see you very soon.

Wurdy Belle: I hope you are enjoying your vacation and will come home all rested up.

I'll be glad when we resume our delightful social gatherings. I miss the good times very much.

I wish some of the members would try this cream sponge cake and let me know how it comes out.

Cream Sponge Cake: Yolks 4 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 3 tablespoons cold water, 1 1-2 tablespoons corn-starch, flour, 1 1-4 teaspoon baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, whites 4 eggs, 1 teaspoon lemon extract.

Beat yolks of eggs until thick and lemon-colored, add sugar gradually, and beat two minutes; then add water. Put corn starch in a cup and fill cup with flour. Mix and sift corn starch and flour with baking powder and salt and add to first mixture.

When thoroughly mixed add whites of eggs beaten until stiff, add flavoring. Bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven. This is an excellent mixture to use for whipped cream pies.

Best wishes to the Social Corner editor and members.

FINE TIME AT VERSAILLES

Dear Social Corner Editor and Freinds: First I must thank the editor for my pin. Then for the benefit of some who did not go to Versailles the eighth I want to tell what a nice time we had. I started on the 9:45 trolley although it was raining quite smart and found none of the Cornerites on the trolley, as I expected several. But at Russell road Truia was waiting. Then at Tafts, Comfort came on so we three went on visiting till we reached the top of the hill where the Social Corner colors were flying. The rain had almost ceased then and we reached the church high and dry, and the Cornerites kept coming by auto and trolley till there were about 35 altogether. The tables were all trimmed with the Corner colors and loaded with good things to eat. After dinner we had several piano solos and two or three duets by three young girls which we all enjoyed very much. There were recitations by Olga, Red Rose, Effie M., and others. Aries gave a lengthy recitation on the Man at the Railroad Switch, which was fine. Also Comfort read a very nice piece about the man who did not care to go to church or give to foreign missions, which we all enjoyed.

Red Rose: I hope you will have your pin the next time we meet.

Necia, True Blue and Chocolate: Was sorry you could not go. Hope it won't rain the next picnic day. Hope we may have more of those interesting letters from more of the old writers and the new. Best wishes for the Social Corner.

FINDING THE WILD FLOWERS

Dear Social Corner Friends: I read with interest the letter sent in by Twice Twenty of June 23rd. Being very fond of the great out of door, I have roamed the fields and woods often for the wild flowers and will say that I know many and have found the pink ladies slippers often under the pine trees. I found one yellow one and I left it standing in hopes to return the next year for other but I did not return. I never saw a white one. Last year at Brookline, N. H., I found a large quantity of pink ones. They are of the orchid family and are sought for near and far. If you will scratch around under the pine needles you will find in spots the rattlesnake plantin. You cannot fail to know it. It grows in patches perhaps ten or twelve feet apart. You will find another patch the leaves of which are striped and very pretty. One can learn so much in gatherin the wild flowers. While in Southington, Conn., on a visit this summer I was shown a plant called hens and chickens, but I do not know it by that name.

SATURDAY EVE.

A MILITARY STOREHOUSE IN MAINE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Some time ago I had in mind to write about our military storehouse here in the city. Many people don't know we have such. I have a friend who works there on soldiers clothes pressing, mending, etc., And through her I was able to see the stock on hand of army goods, equipments, every thing but a cannon, and I don't know but we could have unearthed that.

Its no use naming each article, because its beyond me or my imagination, but I certainly was much interested in all I saw. Such beautiful flags! Old glory took my eyes, for I do love our flag as every good American should. Talking with a veteran who has worked many years in the service looking after the government supplies he said there was $82,000 work of goods there. With what they have stored on the muster field it would amount up to 3,000,000. I enjoyed looking through an officers field glass, that you can adjust to any distance or near to. It was a wonderful instrument.

Balsam Fir: I see by today's paper the storm of yesterday did considerable damage out your way, where the automobiles had to drive through small ponds of water which in places came almost up to the hub caps on the wheels.

We had it hard here, but no damage out side of electric wires. Some got a shaking up by the gale of wind.

Bon Ami: I haven't written because I am on the job alone, for a week, and with things to look after it keeps me busy with no time off. Your card received.

The Fourth of July was a big time in the city, so much racket. I took a few hours out in the country to get away from the noise. They started here with the cannons the third and there wasn't much sleep for any of us.

Best wishes to all the sisters.

CHEERING UP MARY

Dear Cornerites: Just a little human nature tale this week.

Well Jack, as I have a few minutes to spare guess I'll run down and see how Mary Jones is getting along. Doctor said she was pretty bad and must be kept very quiet as she had considerable fever and her heart was very weak. Mustn't let any one in to see her but a minute or so at a time and they mustn't talk to her as it would make her nervous, her nerves were so unstrung. Any excitement would be bad for her. But seeing she and I are such old friends and I am always so careful what I say and do in a sickroom guess they will let me see her. If I don't get back for supper you can warm up the beans, make some tea and have some of that pound cake in the stone jar, or you can have some cracker and milk with the Dutch cheese I made today.

If I can help them any I will stay awhile.

How do you do Sarah, how is Mary today? Worse? Well I'm sorry to hear that, I just run over to see if I could help out a little. That's what neighbors are for. Yes, I wouldn't mind if I could see her for a minute or two. You look tired out, don't you want to lie down a while, while I'm here? I'll look out for Mary, all right, I'll stay til you come down. No, I won't let her talk or get excited any, you run along and lie down. Hello, Mary, Sarah says you don't feel as well today. I'm not surprised for I saw the doctor yesterday and he said you was in bad shape. That he felt pretty sure that by next Friday if you didn't get any better you would either be in this world or the next. He looked awful solemn when he said it. He said you was sick just about the same as my Jack's first wife was and she didn't live long after she was sick in bed. How old it makes you look. Your losing so much flesh.

Anything I can do for you while Sarah tries to get a nap? She looks as if she would drop any minute. I don't know who you could get to come here is she does give out. Yes, I'll get you some water. Isn't this nice and cold. I got it right out of the left hand pump. It's cistern water and you don't use it? Well never mind this time, it's wet, there wasn't many bugs in it and I fished them out. I knew of a man getting a spider into his stomach by drinking water like this. He was awful sick for a long time, then he died.

Don't you feel hungry? You can't eat anything? When I get home I'll get Jack to kill that four year old hen we've got that's lame and blind. I'll cook it tonight and send you some tomorrow. You can drink the broth and give the meat to Sarah if you don't want it. It will be good for you. Guess I'll kill these flies that just flew in through the door. You might get the typhoid fever if I don't. This paper is just the thing to whack them with. It belongs to Jane Brewster? Never mind its an old one. One, two, three, four, now if I can get that one on this vase I'll have 'em all. Oh dear, I guess I hit it too hard. Yes, it's broke, hit the table too hard. It's one your mother give you and you wanted to keep it? I'll pick up the pieces and you can keep them. There you are, they are safe now.

I went over to Sophia Brown's 'tother day. She has twin girls you know. Almira Goodspeed told me one of them wasn't very bright, so while I was there I asked her which one was the fool. She said she didn't know as either of them was. I told her I heard so. She acted pretty put out about it. Don't see why she should. I pity Almira when she sees her. I should think you would be afraid to stay here alone nights with only Sarah here. You remember Silas Haines' wife? One time when she was sick in bed same as you be, some one broke in one night while the nurse was out of the room. Rhoda was asleep and when she woked up there he stood looking right at her, when he heard the nurse coming he got under the bed. He told her if she told he was there he'd kill her. When the nurse went out again he jumped out of the window. He left it open so she got more cold and died.

Silas he married the nurse afterwards. You remember Maria Dodge? She is coming to visit her brother Rastus in a few days. You know your hubby used to be sweet on her. I know folks thought it strange he left off going with her and married you. They say she doesn't look any older now than when you married James. Funny she hasn't ever married. Maybe waiting to be wife number two. No, you musn't talk. I promised Sarah I wouldn't let you. Just lie still and listen. No, I don't want to call Sarah, she's too tired. Yes, I know its warm in here. I'll raise this window for you then you won't be so restless and keep moving your head so. I just love to sit here and rock. This chair is so easy. Your head feels bad? I don't wonder. You need some one to cheer you up once in a while. Maybe that ice cream they sent you yesterday from the Social Corner picnic and that lemon pie upset your stomach. I have just made you an egg flog, the milk had turned a little but I have put in lots of vanilla so I guess you won't taste it much. They were going to send you some flowers from the church last Sunday but I told them to wait til after Friday so's to see what happened then. Can't you take any more of the egg nog? May be the egg I found in a cup wasn't good, but it looked all right only a little old. Well I hear Sarah coming so I will run along home. Real glad I could have this little talk with you. I always like to cheer sick folks up when I can.

No, Sarah, she hasn't talked a bit, I wouldn't let her. Hope she has a good night but you never can tell.

Let me know when I can help you again.

Good bye.

TWICE TWENTY AND ZANY ENTERTAIN JULY 16

Dear Corner Folks: How do you feel about going to another picnic? We surely had a very hot day for the one at E. K. but every one survived the day so now I am planning to give you a chance to attend one at the home of Zany and myself on Thursday July 16. Standard time and hourly trolley service here.

It seems unnecessary to say bring dishes and food every time but perhaps that is the better way for I have been guilty twice of forgetting the dishes but I never forget the eats. One part of the programme will be a roll call, to which each one is to respond by telling something about the town or city where they were born. Now this is easy, so mind you that every one who does not respond in that way will have a forfeit to pay.

Now get out your old sunbonnet with the slats and frill upon it, connect faithful Lizzie with the gas, then through the roads of corners drive to Dayville Four Corners, where you will grass.

Now for a good day and a good crowd is the wish of

TWICE —ENTY and ZANY.

CLUB NO. 2 CONSIDERING NEW MEETING PLACE.

Dear Sisters: I would like your idea and wish on the question of larger quarters for our monthly meetings. Our Club No. 2 is growing so that the present room is too small for getting the tables and dinner ready. I find I can get Odd Fellows room and kitchen for a reasonable price that we could afford to pay, with the use of gas and stove. Our only requirement is to have each sister bring her own plate, cup and saucer and silver (knife, fork and spoon), same as we do at picnics or visiting Clubs No. 1, 3 or 4, if they can do it. I don't see why we can't bring our own dishes. We can purchase by the hundred, paper plates for bread, rolls and dry food. All those I have spoken to are in favor of it. I must know in a week or ten days so kindly drop into store, No. 56 Broadway, Norwich, or drop a penny postcard to Calla Lily at the store address or drop in and leave your name and your preference as to hall. Odd Fellows hall is nearly opposite the Buckingham Memorial, where we met this last winter, with kitchen and banquet hall on same floor and a large room which will make the hostess work easy, with no up and down stairs. So let me hear at once. So far all are in favor of I. O. O. F. hall that I have talked with about it.

Yours for a speedy reply. As ever for your pleasure and interest.

TIMELY RECIPES

Dear Sisters: These recipes may interest you.

Grape Juice Fizz: 1 1-2 tablespoons lime juice, 1 1-2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 tablespoons shaved ice, 1-4 cup grape juice, 1-4 cup charged water.

Method: Mix the lime, lemon, juice and sugar well, add ice and grape juice; shake and strain in to the glasses (tall ones are preferable.) Fill with charged water and garnish with mint leaves.

Currant Punch: The juice of currants, 1 cup currant jelly, 2 cups boiling water, 1-2 cup sugar, 3 tablespoons lemon juice. Beat the currant jelly to a froth, adding 2 cups of boiling water, gradually and add the sugar and lemon juice, then chill thoroughly. At serving time add 1 quart charged water and pour over a block of ice.

Bread Nut Cake: 2 eggs, 1 cup bread crumbs, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup chopped nuts (any kind), 1-2 teaspoon sage and butter, 1 teaspoon celery, 1-4 cup brown sugar.

Form into small cakes and bake on buttered pan in a moderate oven 20 minutes. Serve with brown gravy. The above is a good way to use left over bread.

"Special Pineapple" is delicious with any kind of meat. To the juice of one pineapple add one cup of good vinegar, one cup of sugar, one half teaspoon cinnamon, three-quarters teaspoon of cloves. Let this boil ten minutes, then add the pineapple (each slice cut in four pieces) and let simmer for twelve minutes.

IN THE BAREFOOTED DAYS

Dear Editor and Sisters: Thought I was too busy to write but feel I must tell Billie how I am enjoying his or her letters.

Twice Twenty: Have found yellow, white and pink lady slippers in abundance at my childhood home in Massachusetts but have seen only a few here and those were pink. One day as my brother and I were running barefooted through the woods when were mostly pine and scrub oak, I chanced to step over an old broken rail fence and as I did so my brother who was close behind called sharply for me to lookout. At our feet, lay a huge blacksnake. It was curled up in a snug heap and after looking at it a moment we decided it was too large for us to tackle and thought we'd best not disturb it. We ran home in quick time and got a brother-in-law to go back with us. He killed the snake which had not moved and we measured it. It was eight feet and nine inches long.

I don't believe there is much of any, way to get rid of black ants which are the kind that trouble me. When we tore down the old one we destroyed several nests of them and though we have a new ell, entirely new, the pests are around larger than ever. What would life be like with nothing to fight against?? But then

DON'T WORRY.

DISLIKES THE NOISE

Dear Social Corner Editor and Members: As I am all alone thought I would write to the Social Corner. I always dread the Fourth with the firing of cannon and firecrackers.

Hope all the shut-ins are better this time.

If it is not too late would like a Social Corner pin.

I was glad to hear from Dorothy Bradford through the Social Corner a short time ago.

PICNIC AT BUMBLEBEE'S JULY 15

Dear Corner Sisters and Friends: Greetings to all. Will say there will be a picnic at my home July 15 at the Tibbetts place, on the road to Fitchville. The Norwich-Colchester bus passes the door and gets there in time for dinner. So be sure and come, one and all.

Bring dishes and something good to eat as usual. Your for the success of the Corner.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

A petition for city water signed by a number of Greeneville residents was before the common council a half century ago but was withdrawn as it was argued that a city meeting should be held and that more residents of that section should ask for water before any expense was incurred.

Other happenings of the week in 1875, as taken in part from the files of the Norwich Bulletin of that year, are as follows:

Monday, July 5, 1875—All the shipping in the harbor was elaborately dressed on the Fourth giving the harbor a most attractive appearance. The captain of a clam boat unable to trim with flags run a red shirt up the masthead of his ship and joined in the celebration with other ships by tooting his old fish horn at intervals throughout the day.

The usual Fourth of July preliminaries are being reported. No less than three young men have been injured by blank cartridges during the past two days and a man in the Greeneville section had five toes in the right foot nearly shot off by a "blank" which turned out to be the real thing.

The Willimantic Linen company is putting up a $35,000 storehouse and this, with other building projects in the city, is keeping the carpenters and mechanics working full time.

Tuesday, July 6, 1875—The Fourth falling on Sunday, the celebration for the day came on Monday and the day was one of the quietest Norwich has seen in many years. A light rain fell in the morning and dampened whatever ardor the local people may have had for a celebration. The order of Mayor Osgood, that no fireworks be used, was carried out nicely and there was only an occasional sound of fireworks throughout the entire city.

The Greeneville horribles opened the activities for the day, over 150 being in line. The Ella made her trip to Watch Hill with over 200 on board and the City of Lawrence went to Newport with over twice that number. Several picnics and excursions were held by local societies. The Trotting park Kitty Hill won in four heats and Lady Lightfoot won the race for $25 for time nearest 3 minutes, her time being 2 minutes and 1-6 of a second.

A plea for funds is being made by the Bacon Academy and it is earnestly hoped that Norwich people will come forward and endow the academy with money like academies in other cities have been endowed. Last year one teacher was dropped for lack of money and as the pupils are on the increase the public is asked to support the academy.

The capacity of Norwich peach eaters has been placed at one carload by peach growers who have been checking up Connecticut cities for their harvest this year.

Wednesday, July 7, 1875—At the common council meeting Tuesday evening, a petition was received for the introduction of water into Greeneville. Arguments were made that this was beyond the council and that a city meeting would have to be held. A number of Greeneville people signed the petition but it was withdrawn on suggestion of a number of aldermen. The petition of George A. Davis and others, for a free floating bath house on the Thames river was referred to the committee on public amusements. Three petitioners for rebate of taxes because they had found that they had paid on their property for a number of years, when it was not in the city, was referred to the finance committee.

The chief engineer of the fire department reported 3,500 feet of hose in good condition and that 500 feet of leather hose be purchased during the current year. The report also asks for water for Greeneville and the construction of a cistern on Laurel Hill for fire protection. The report of Captain Whaley showed 21 men on the force. Resolutions were adopted to fix grades in city streets and Mayor Osgood and the street committee were selected to look into the matter.

H. G. Jerome of East Main street located his horse at Central Village Tuesday. The animal was taken from the stable by a young man who claimed he wanted to go to Greeneville Monday, but when the horse failed to return at night the search was started. The young man was found but was freed when a member of the family took him home, claiming he suffered from fits of insanity.

A large steam mud digger is employed in clearing the sewerage from around the wharves.

Monday, July 5, 1875—Mrs. H. T. Phillips and two daughters were injured Wednesday afternoon when the carriage in which they were riding, overturned on Broadway hill. They were taken to the office of Dr. Sprague where their injuries were cared for and then taken to their homes.

Charles Holt of this city was seriously injured at Willimantic Tuesday afternoon when run over by a train on the N. Y. & N. railroad. Both arms were cut off and he was injured internally.

The Hayward rubber works of Colchester will suspend work at the end of this week for two months. Three hundred hands are laid off because of the shut-down.

Prof. Hutchinson of the Free Academy sails for Europe today. He is accompanied by his son and by Messrs. Slater and Sayles, sons of John F. Slater and Thomas D. Sayles.

Many manufacturers in Eastern Connecticut are closing down their plants during the summer due to dull times. They expect better business conditions in the fall.

The best strawberries are selling in the local markets now for 25 cents a basket.

It is said that Norwich factory whistles at noon are used by North Stonington farmers to regulate their time pieces.

Friday, July 9, 1875—There are not many people at Watch Hill yet but the hotel keepers say the season will be a good one for them. At the Atlantic House there are 20 guests, a few more at the Watch Hill House, and at others in proportion.

There were 4 runaways in town yesterday but drivers escaped injury. Three wagons were smashed however, and one horse dropped dead after his long run over Church street.

The Crocker House in New London is getting to be a favorite place for college boys to hold their annual class suppers. Amherst boys were there yesterday and several other colleges have been represented during the past few weeks.

A frame structure owned by the Chelsea Paper company was destroyed Tuesday and a number of pieces of harness, wagons and one horse were lost. Three highly prized horses were saved before the fire was beyond control. It is believed that the fire was of incendiary origin.

Saturday, July 10, 1875—The honesty of Norwich hack drivers has always been vouched for by their friends and the man who took a young lady home last evening demonstrated that the saying is a truthful one. The young lady paid him a dollar for the trip and accidently gave him an extra bill worth two dollars. The next day he called at her home and returned the bill, receiving a smile that more than repaid him for his honesty.

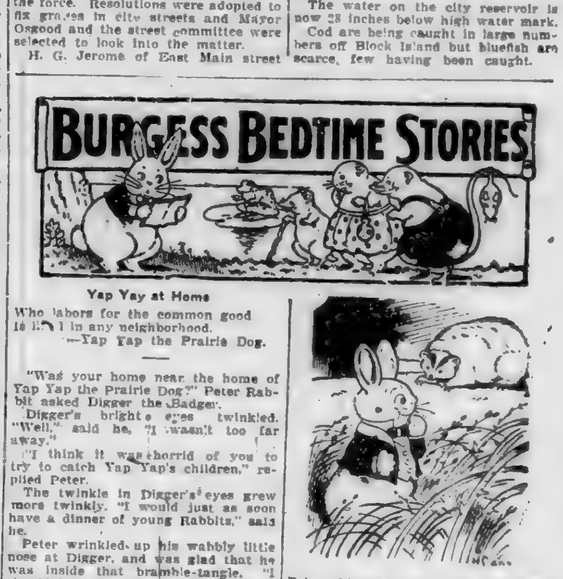
Robert Palmer of Noank has finished the yacht he has been building for Schuyler Hamilton of New York, recently secretary of the New York Yacht Club. The yacht is 54 feet long, beam 16 feet and depth of hold 6 1-2 feet.

Twenty liquor dealers were found selling without a United States license by the federal officers who has visited this city. All cases but two were settled on payment of small fines. Two will be prosecuted.

General Eaton, United States Commissioner of Education is in the city for a few days, the guest of Rev. Mr. Palmer.

The water on the city reservoir is now 28 inches below high water mark.

Cod are being caught in large numbers off Block Island but bluefish are scarce, few having been caught.



Yap Yay at Home

—Yap Yap the Prairie Dog.

"Was your home near the home of Yap Yap the Prairie Dog?" Peter Rabbit asked Digger the Badger.

Digger's bright eyes twinkled. "Well," said he, "I wasn't too far away."

"I think it was horrid of you to try to catch Yap Yap's children," replied Peter.

The twinkle in Digger's eyes grew more twinkly. "I would just as soon have a dinner of young Rabbits," said he.

Peter wrinkled up his wabbly little nose at Digger, and was glad that he was inside that bramble-tangle. "I shouldn't have wanted you for a neighbor if I had been in Yap Yap's place," said he.

"Oh, he was used to me," replied Digger. "I don't suppose he loved me any, but then, he and his relatives didn't love several of their neighbors. They didn't love Old Man Coyote, for instance, when he lived out there. They didn't love Blackfoot the Ferret."

"Who is Blackfoot the Ferret," demanded Peter, looking very much interested.

STOCK PRICES REACTIONARY AT YESTERDAY'S MARKET

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP)—Stock prices turned reactionary today on selling apparently inspired by the marking up of call money rates to 4 1-2 per cent., the disappointing U. S. Steel tonnage report for June and the failure of the oil shares to respond to an increase in Mid-continent crude prices. While isolated points of strength developed in several sections of the list, net losses of a point or two were scattered throughout the list at the close. Trading slowed up somewhat in volume although the day's sales ran above a million shares.

Reduction of nearly 840,000 tons in the unfilled orders of the U. S. Steel Corporation last month, compared with earlier Wall Street estimates of 300,000 tons, except for the acute weakness of the pipe shares, the preferred issues of which broke to new low levels of the year, the steels held up relatively well, U. S. Steel common closing fractionally higher at 118 7-8 while Bethlehem Steel was bid up nearly two points to 41 1-4 and then eased slightly. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, broke ten points to 130 or just 100 points below the year's high, and then rallied over two points, and Universal Pipe common closed 1 1-3 lower at 29 7-8, while the preferred showed a net loss of 2 1-2 at 67 1-2 after selling as low as 65.

Steady accumulation of Dodge Brothers common, which was bid up over two points to a record price at 29 1-4, in anticipation of a favorable semi-annual earnings report, was one of the day's features. General Motors 7 per cent. preferred also attained new high ground, but further weakness cropped out in the Pierce Arrow issues. Mack Trucks, General Motors common and some of the other issues in that group. A renewed demand was noted for Fisher body.

North American also was in brisk demand, runing up over two points to 84, the highest price since the recapitalization of the company in 1921. Among the few other issues to sell at new peak prices were Metropolitan Edison preferred, Underwood Typewriter, Household Products, Weston Electric Instrument, Phoenix Hosiery and International Agricultural Prior preferred, the last named jumping 12 points on one sale.

The weekly mercantile reviews reported further improvement in business. Dunn's states that "a further disposition to extend commitments prevails in some of the leading markets and quotations on some important commodities tend higher distribution is on a larger scale for this season and gives promise of further expansion." Bradstreet's reports that "evidences accumulate that a seasonal quieting down in some lines of trade and industry masked, but did not entirely conceal, a definite turn for the better in June."

Wheat Prices Undergo Setback

CHICAGO, July 10.—(AP)—Wheat prices underwent a sharp setback at the last today as a result of selling on the part of early buyers who were attempting to realize profits. The movement of new winter wheat appeared to be increasing and predictions of a hot wave for the northwest led to only a transient upturn in values. The wheat market closed heavy 2 1-4c to 2 5-8c net lower, September 1.42 1-8 to 1.42 1-4 and December 1.43 1-2 to 1.43 5-8 with corn at 1-2c to 2 3-8c advance, and oats unchanged to 3-8c off. In provisions, the outcome varied from the same as yesterday's finish to 25c higher.

With the government crop report about wheat construed as moderately bearish and with Liverpool wheat prices showing relative weakness, the wheat market here displayed a downward tendency during the first part of the day. Cool clear weather in the spring wheat belt acted also as a handicap to bulls. Later however, forecasts of higher temperatures northwest led to considerable speculative buying and to an upturn swing in prices. On the other hand, assumed likelihood of greater danger of black rust damage pro

VISITOR FROM PENNSYLVANIA PAYS FINES FOR FISHING IN RESERVOIR

For using Fairview reservoir for fishing purposes Alleck Gesak of Simpson, Pa., a visitor in this city, was fined $1 and costs on each of two counts Friday morning in police court by Judge Arthur F. Libby. Costs brought Gesak's bill up to $11.65, which he paid. He was fined $1 for fishing in a reservoir and $1 for fishing without a license.

V. P. A. Quinn, attorney for Gesak, stated that Gesak had found a fish line with bait on the bank of the reservoir and had started to fish when Deputy Game Warden, W. S. Watson of Baltic came along and arrested him. City Attorney Lee R. Robbins told the court that the statement of Gesak's attorney was not so as Gesak had admitted to Captain Thomas Murphy at headquarters Thursday night that he had secured the line from people near where he was staying and had also secured worms for bait.

City Attorney Robbins said that fishing in the reservoir was becoming altogether too frequent and that something must be done to put a stop to this violation of the law.

The light fine given Gesak was because he had been in Norwich and in this state but a short time.

Conrad Gendron of Sherbrook, Canada, was presented on a charge of embezzlement of $97.55 from the John Hancock Insurance Company. His case was continued to Thursday, July 16th, under bonds of $800 which were furnished. It is understood that Gendron's father will make good the amount of the embezzlement and that Gendron has made a confesion of his embezzlements.

Gendron was arrested Thursday evening in a Main street boarding house by Serg. John Casey and Officer Hugh McAvoy and William Sharvin. It is alleged that he lived beyond his means and took small amounts from his collections for the John Hancock Insurance company, the habit finally resulting in his arrest.

One local man paid $5 for violating a city traffic ordinance and then court adjourned for the day.

NORWICH LIONS ENJOYED SOCIAL AT OSWEGATCHIE

Over 50 members of the Norwich Lions club with their lady friends enjoyed an outing at Oswegatchie Inn casino Thursday evening, the members making the trip by automobile. At 8 o'clock a fine banquet was served in the casino which had been cleverly decorated with streamers and electric lanterns. Previous to the banquet Lion Jean Keiffer took a photograph of the members and friends, on the lawn outside the casino.

Throughout the evening a delightful musical program was rendered by D'Atri's Wauregan House orchestra which also provided the music for the dancing later in the evening.

President William A. Anderson was toastmaster and the program opened with the singing of America, followed by the offering of grace, by Rev. Robert B. Day. Lions George Madden and Earle Taggart were in charge of the singing and kept the members happy with numerous snappy numbers. Pete Ethier, club pianist, officiated at the keyboard for the song numbers.

Following a welcome by President Anderson there were brief speeches by Rotarians Ed Harris and Judge Nelson J. Ayling, Lion Max Hanover and several others. The program closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner and the remainder of the evening was devoted to dancing.

The affair was arranged by President Anderson and Lion George Madden and was voted one of the best ever held by the club, members voicing the opinion that such outings should be made more frequently.

CONNECTICUT LICENSE TO DRIVE CONNECTICUT CARS

Postage on motor vehicle registration markers and certificates applied for by mail is no longer required to be paid by the applicant. A pamphlet covering the changes in registration fees effective July 1, which has been issued by the state motor vehicle department, states that hereafter the department will pay the postage. Since the postal rates were changed by congress, an additional charge of eight cents has been made by the department to cover the postage in cases where registrations were requested by mail. Previously the charge for postage was six cents.

Pennies have ceased to figure in applicants' payments for registrations, so far as the requirements of the department are concerned. Under the new motor vehicle law, which went into effect last week, all registration fees are now figured to the nearest even fraction of the dollar in multiples of 25 cents. For the accommodation of the public, revised fee tables have been printed by the department giving the exact amount required for registration of cars of all measures of piston displacement. These will be widely distributed in the hope of expediting the issuance of registrations in the closing days of this year and the early days of 1926. The department is already making extensive plans for registering cars for next year.

"Only Connecticut-licensed drivers can legally operate Connecticut-registered cars" says a legend printed in a box in red ink in the upper left hand corner of envelopes in which registrations are now issued. General discrimination of information as to this requirement is especially desired by the department during the vacation season when people from outside the state come to Connecticut resorts in large number and often overlook the law on this point.

MACHINES COLLIDE AT THAME STREET CORNER

Two Ford machines, one driven by Andrea Giaconozza of New York city, and the other by John Frank of Montville, were in collision about noon Friday at the corner of High street and Thames where the New York car attempted to make the sharp turn from Thames up into High street. The Montville machine was traveling just behind the other and banged into the right side of the New York car as it was making the turn. A mud guard on the New York car was crushed and the Montville car had a tire go flat.

Officer Charles Smith and a state policeman arrived at the scene in response to a report that there had been a bad accident. They assisted in smoothing out the arguments of the drivers as to who was to blame, and the Montville man agreed to give the other a mudguard he had at home to replace the damage.

ROSES AT MAPLEWOOD MAKE BEAUTIFUL SHOW

Many Norwich people who travel to Elizabeth park, Hartford, to see the roses in bloom may not know that there is a beautiful display of roses much nearer home. This is at Maplewood cemetery where now the rose bushes are in their full glory.

Underwriters' Half-Holiday.

At a meeting held Friday by the Norwich Board of Underwriters, it was voted to observe the summer half-holiday on Thursdays as the stores do, by closing in the afternoon.

GOVERNOR SAYS DETECTIVES MUST JOIN STATE POLICE

The state attorneys of the several counties of the state did not succeed in prevailing upon Governor Trumbull to recede from his position that county detectives will be required to join the state police, when they met the governor in conference at Hartford Thursday. State attorneys from six of the eight counties were present at the conference at which they asked him to insist on the stated requirement, but to approve the reappointment of the county detectives.

Governor Trumbull did not yield, but said he would call another conference when details of his plan to co-ordinate the two forces could be discussed.

State Attorney Alcorn, of Hartford county, said that County Detective Edward J. Hickey of his office would never submit to re-entering the state police department. He asked the governor to approve Hickey for reappointment Thursday as matters stood. The executive declined to discuss individual cases while the general policy was under consideration.

County Detective Anthony Tomanio, of Litchfield county; William E. Jackson, of Windham county; Koland Alling, of New Haven county; A. Waterbury, and William Lewis of New London county have already been reappointed by the state attorneys of those offices, subject to the governor's approval.

State Attorneys Arnon A. Alling, of New Haven county, and Ernest A. Inglis, of Middlesex county, did not attend the conference, which was held in the governor's office. Those present were State Attorneys Alcorn, of Hartford county; Noone, of Tolland county (who has no regular county detective); Comley, of Fairfield county; Brown, of New London county; Holcomb, of Litchfield county, and Lawrence I. Lewis, of New Haven county at Waterbury; and Assistant State Attorney R. L. Gideon, of Hartford county, and Howard C. Bradford, of Putnam, representing State Attorney Searles, of Windham county.

Make Counter-Proposal.

The state attorneys said they would guarantee on their own responsibility the co-operation of county detectives with the state police if the governor would not insist on their becoming state police members before approving their reappointments. They said they disagreed with the governor's view that the way to co-ordinate their efforts was to have the detectives join the state police.

Friction Between Departments.

The state police department has reported to the governor instances of county detectives making raids on certain resorts just before state police raids were to be made, resulting in the time and efforts of the state police spent in preparation for the raid going for naught. Reports have also been made to him, he said, of destructive friction between the state police and county detectives in the detection of perpetrators of major crimes. Some of the state attorneys at Thursday's conference contended that the state police were not free from responsibility for the lack of co-operation. As a result the governor said he would ask Supt. Robert T. Hurley of the state police to attend the later conference which he arranged to have with the state attorneys.

The latter asked the executive where the authority of the state's attorneys over county detectives in the state police force would end and where Superintendent Hurley's authority over them would begin. The governor said that he had not worked out the exact details of the plan, but said that they could be worked out at the subsequent conference which he would invite all the state's attorneys to attend. He wrote State Attorney Searles, of Windham county, that, generally speaking, his plan was to have the county detectives assigned back to the state's attorneys with whom they have been associated but on condition that reports of their work be available to the superintendent of state police.

Detectives Remain For July.

Mr. Alcorn told the governor that the terms of county detectives had expired June 30 and that the state's attorneys were now without the assistance of their detectives. He asked the executive to approve the reappointment of Detective Hickey and a proposed increase in Hickey's salary from $3,000 to $3,600 a year. The governor said he would not consider individual cases apart from the general policy. He advised the state's attorneys to keep the county detectives on duty under the old arrangement for the month of July, saying that the details of the new plan would undoubtedly be adjusted before the end of the month.

An increase in County Detective Jackson's salary from $2,600 to $3,000 a year was proposed to the governor by State Attorney Searles, of Windham county, several weeks ago. This matter is also held in abeyance. Mr. Searles was absent Thursday on account of illness.

County Detectives Cost $39,089.

Salaries and expenses of six county detectives aggregated $39,089.01 in the fiscal year ended June 30, according to records of the state comptroller's office. Detective Hickey received $10,620.94, of which $3,000 was his salary and $7,620.94 his expenses; Detective Koland Alling, of Waterbury, $10,447.44, of which $2,916.66 was salary and $7,530.78 expenses; Detective William Lewis, of New London county, $8,911.92, of which $2,400 was salary and $4,511.92 expenses; Detective William Kearns, of Fairfield county, who served only part of a year, $2,005.39, of which $700 was salary and $1,305.39 expenses; Detective Jackson, of Windham county, $4,593.24 of which $2,600 was salary and $1,992.34 expenses, and Detective Anthony Tomanio, of Litchfield county, $4,511.03, of which $1,866.31 was part of a year's salary and $2,644.77 expenses.

County Detective Hickey was a member of the state police department up to the time he was appointed by Mr. Alcorn about three years ago. Detectives Alling, Jackson and Tomanio have also been state policemen. They have been quoted as being willing to rejoin the state police, in accordance with the governor's plan, if the state's attorneys with whom they are associated desire it.

Wedding Intentions in Westerly
(Special to the Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, July 10.—These wedding intentions were filed at the Westerly town clerk's office July 8: Warren Webster Church, Norwich, coal salesman, born in Putnam; Irene Harrison Wells, Norwich, bookkeeper born in Providence.

FRENCH AIR PILOTS ANXIOUS TO MAKE ATLANTIC FLIGHT

PARIS, July 10—(AP)—Paul Tarascon, French "ace" and pioneer in prewar flying in Europe, has been bringing all the pressure he can to bear on M. Painleve at the war office and M. Laurent Eynac of the aeronautic department to enable him to make his proposed non-stop flight across the Atlantic this summer.

Tarascon, who lost a leg before the World war and had difficulty in getting into the service, will be accompanied by another skilled air pilot, if the flight is made, Francois Coli, a naval officer who accompanied Roget on his France-Rumania flight and on his "stunt trip" of crossing the Mediterranean twice in one day.

It is planned to start the flight toward the end of July, provided the necessary government authorization can be obtained, leaving from Le Bourget airdrome, just outside of Paris, and making the jump to Mitchel Field on Long Island. The French air authorities are counselling the two pilots to take off from Ireland or nearer the French coast than Le Bourget, and to aim for Newfoundland as a first landing place. Tarascon and Coli, however, persist in maintaining the flight can be made without a landing and are demanding a fair chance to prove it.

The plane they intend to use is the Breguet "Paris-Tokyo" model made famous by Captain Pelletier D'Oisy on his flight a year ago. The engine will be either the Hispano-Suiza or the new Renault.

SHOES OF LIZARD SKIN POPULAR IN LONDON

LONDON, July 10—(AP)—Lizard farming in England has been greatly stimulated within the last few months since the skins for women's shoes have become fashionable. Lizard shoes for street wear have become very popular in London this summer and lizard slippers for evening wear have been quite the fad for some weeks.

Dealers say lizard skin shoes are here to stay as the material is serviceable and comfortable and not nearly so expensive as is usual when a new idea is introduced. Lizard skin shoes retail here at from $15 up.

ROME BUILDING CHURCH TO HOUSE SACRED STAIR

ROME, July 10— (AP)—The dream of three-quarters of a century to erect a church worthy of the ecclesiastic setting and solemnity of the world-famous Sacred Stair is at last about to be realized. Thanks to the small offerings of thousands of Holy Year pilgrims, who go up the 28 steps on their knees, saying a special prayer on each, most of the necessary funds for the edifice have been raised. These offerings have been supplemented, but course, by a number of large donations.

The architectural plans have been drawn up and the cornerstone was laid recently by Cardinal Pompili.

Sun Causes Fire in Berlin

BERLIN, July 10.—(AP)—The sun's rays shining on a shaving mirror caused a fire in a Berlin home. A concave mirror left standing near a window caught up the sun's rays and reflected them upon the curtains which became ignited. In a few minutes the entire room was aflame.

IRISH ASK VISA FROM NEW YORK

DUBLIN, July 10.—(AP)—While all American citizens traveling to Free state ports from New York must have a Free State visa, arrangements have been made by which travelers from any other American port may land in the Free State on a British visa. The extension of the New York arrangement to the other trans-Atlantic ports of the United States however, is contemplated.

Norway Gives Books to Germany

BERLIN, July 10—(AP)—The Norwegian University Library at Oslo has presented the Prussian State Library with 570 volumes of modern Norwegian literature. The collection includes all publications issued in Norway during and after the war. In a letter accompanying the gift the hope was expressed that the collection might prove a profitable asset to German science and that it might serve to cement the intellectual relations between Norway and Germany.

NORWICH TOWN

There was a large attendance of friends and neighbors at the Sacred Heart church Thursday morning at 730 o'clock, when the pastor, Rev. Charles W. Brennan, celebrated an anniversary high mass for the repose of the soul of Joseph Hughes. The musical part of the mass was in charge of the organist, Miss Elizabeth A. Malone. There was singing by the choir and at the close of the mass Miss Mary Buckley sang Abide With Me.

SAYS BIBLE IS EVIDENCE OF THE LAW OF EVOLUTION

Booklet Issued by Rev. George Graig Stewart of Evanston, Ill.—Contains Assertion That There is Nothing Irreligious About Evolution—Dr. Stewart is Not Ashamed to Have a Monkey For His Ancestor.

CHICAGO, July 12—(A. P.)—"Evolution a witness to God," is the title given a booklet issued by Rev. George Craig Stewart, DD, LHD, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, Evanston. Dr. Stewart is prominent nationally in the councils of his church and has been spoken of as a probable witness in the Dayton trial.

"God's conception of the [illegible] as I would [illegible] conception of [illegible] Stewart. "The bible is [illegible] conclusive evidence of the [illegible] evolution. It was not created in [illegible] as the world was not created [illegible] it has upon it, the marks of [illegible] the lower forms of man's primitive [illegible] as man bears upon the [illegible] marks of the lower forms [illegible] organism was evolved. [illegible] no less divine because he [illegible] with him a pineal gland [illegible] appendix, relics of [illegible] now abandoned use. The [illegible] about the bible is in its [illegible] purpose, note of develop-[illegible]

"The universe is immensely larger, [illegible] immensely larger and greater than any Hebrew prophet ever dreamed of and we have to thank modern science for everything out the heavens, enlarging the horizons of creation and knowing God as creator [illegible] and more manifold crowns. [illegible] is not a thing. It is not a God itself or a substitute for God. It never did anything. It never created anything. It has not added a feather-weight of probability or reasonableness to the argument for or atheism. There is nothing mysterious about evolution. It does not answer the 'who' or the 'why' of creation: it does however, throw light upon the 'how' of creation. Out of whatever horizon it may [illegible] be welcomed, for truth in any and every form is God, is a revelation of God, is a word of God.

"It is incredible that today there should be men claiming to be intelligent who can still indulge in the cheap jokes about monkeys in which the contributions of fifty years ago indulged.

"Skulls have discovered in [illegible] and in silt, the [illegible] in the Rhodesian man, [illegible] original man, the Heidelberg [illegible] Pithecanthropus man, the Java man [illegible] the ape like man) who lived [illegible] a million years ago.

"I am not ashamed to have a monkey for my ancestor, but I would be ashamed to claim kinship with a man who has begun strife to obscure the truth.

"I do not say, nor does any [illegible] say, that man sprang [illegible] of the species of monkeys [illegible] on the earth today; no one [illegible] he did.

"Evolution, after all, is not where [illegible] body come from, but whence [illegible] majestic difference between [illegible] and the animal.

"After all the question is not merely [illegible] one of goals, [illegible] man reaching up toward? [illegible] manifest destiny? He feels [illegible] the struggle going on. St. [illegible] knew real man feels it. [illegible] between flesh and the spirit. [illegible] within him the demand of the [illegible] hunger lust is on him, and [illegible] is on him: but he feels [illegible] the upward pull, the [illegible] being.

"I do not away back yonder [illegible] past creating man and [illegible] in his own guilt; nor away [illegible] the remote future beckoning [illegible] to struggle up by [illegible] power. He is within man, [illegible] within all life, compelling life, [illegible] it upward and ever upward [illegible] and compelling and moving man to [illegible] himself step more and [illegible] the [illegible] divine life of which he is [illegible]

PLEASED WITH PROGRESS OF THE EVOLUTION CASE

CHATTANOOGA, July 12.—(A. P.) Dudley Field Malone and Arthur Garfield Hays, New York attorneys who are defending John T. Scopes, Rhea county high school teacher being tried in Dayton for violation of the Tennessee anti-evolution law, came to Chattanooga for the week end and expressed pleasure at developments in the case.

"The chief difficulty which the evolutionists have to contend with in the case is public opinion, said Mr. Malone. They are in a helpless minority, he said, and particularly the ethical trend of public opinion is for [illegible]

"Every juror is up against this pressure of public opinion," he stated. "If we can find them alone, if we could reason with them alone, our task would be so [illegible]

Regarding the people of Dayton, Mr. Malone said:

"I was astonished that the Dayton people are so decent, sympathetic and kind with those who support a proposition to which they are so much opposed. We have few supporters there, but many friends.

"Truly, I have never been to a place where the people take religion so seriously. Around the courthouse you find revival meetings in progress, prayer meetings and psalms being sung. Everywhere there are little groups of persons earnestly discussing evolution. They think we are emissaries of the devil but they smile at us, nevertheless, and want us to meet their friends and relatives."

MANIFESTO ISSUED BY ANTI-EVOLUTION LEAGUE

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 12.—(A. P.)—The Anti-Evolution League of America, with R. T. T. Martin, field secretary, presiding, at a meeting at Dayton, Wednesday adopted a manifesto setting forth the tenets of the organization, and attacked the statements of Professor Henry Fairfield Osborn, head of the New York Museum of Science. Professor Osborn was characterized as "field marshal of the discredited old guard evolutionists."

The manifestor bitterly attacked all phases of evolutionary thought.

QUIT PASTORATE BECAUSE OF EVOLUTION CONTROVERSY

DAYTON, Tenn., July 12.—(AP)—he Rev. Howard Gale Byrd withdrew from his pastorate of the Methodist Episcopal church (Northern) here today when a large part of his congregation protested against the proposed preaching of a sermon on evolution in the church's pulpit of New York.

Mr. Byrd, who invited Dr. Potter to occupy his pulpit, is pointed to as the original inspiration for the filing of charges against John T. Scopes, whose trial on an indictment alleging violation of the state law against teaching evolution in public schools begun here Friday.

The three regular Sunday preaching services were called off by the pastor, who announted to newspapermen at the parsonage:

"I have quit. I have not resigned—I have quit."

Byrd is 31 year old and has been pastor of the local church for three years. Members of his congregation declared today that the church had grown more during Byrd's ministration and had done more religious service than in all its history.

The Rev. Foster W. Taylor, fundamentalist champion, and pastor of the Cocoanut Grove Presbyterian church, Miami, Fla., of which William Jennings Bryan is a member, had been invited by Mr. Byrd to preach in the church tonight. He was informed by the pastor early today that the services had been cancelled. Mr. Byrd told Dr. Taylor that he would explain later in cancellation of the invitation.

Dr. Taylor declined to comment on the incident. He did not wish to say what was the subject of the sermon he had prepared. Dr. Potter, pastor of the West Side Unitarian church, New York, until his resignation takes effect in October, had announced "Evolution" as the subject of his sermon, which he expected to deliver in the Methodist church this morning. He was invited by Pastor Byrd. Byrd explained that he "quit" because he had invited Potter and intended to "stand by him."

Learning of the protests, Dr. Potter told Mr. Byrd that he would "under the circumstances," withdraw his acceptance of the invitation.

The New York minister then posted this notice on the window of Robinson's drug store, where the local controversy over the Tennessee anti-evolution statute started:

"Dr. Potter has cancelled his evolution sermon this morning at the Methodist Episcopal church owing to the threat of congregation."

Questioned as to the significance of the expression "threat of congregation," Dr. Potter declared:

"More than half of Mr. Byrd's congregation called on him last night in a body and told him that if I were permitted to speak in the church today, they would wreck the church."

George W. Rappleyea, original prosecutor of the evolution charges against John T. Scopes, agreed to Potter's explanation. Rappleyea is a Sunday school teacher in Byrd's church and an ardent admirer of the local minister. "Yes, they threatened they would break up the church," he said.

AVIATORS SEARCHING FOR MURDERER IN FOOTHILLS

MINEOLA, N. Y., July 12—(AP)—Two aviators left Mitchel field for Plattsburg, N. Y., by airplane today to search the thinly settled foothills of northern New York for Philip K. Knapp, army deserter, who is charged with the murder of Louis Penella, Hempstead taxicab driver.

The officers will be assisted at the Plattsburg army barracks and, working with Nassau county detectives, will fly over the region where it is believed Knapp may be hiding.

The aviators, Lieutenants M. L. Elliott and Walter H. Sargeant, both know Knapp, who was stationed at Mitchel field until his disappearance, shortly before Penella's murder was disclosed.

Major W. N. Hensley, Jr., commandant of Mitchel field, under whose orders the aviators are assisting in the hunt for Knapp, said that with the airplane they will be able to search more territory than could be covered in any other way.

A warrant for Knapp's arrest has been issued and the Nassau county grand jury will be asked to indict him for Penella's murder.

FOUR BOYS SEVERELY BURNED IN WORCESTER

WORCESTER, Mass., July 12—(A. P.)—Four boys were severely burned today when a quantity of carbide which they had poured into a sewer exploded. The explosion errupted a sheet of flames which enveloped the boys burning them so severely that all were sent to City Hospital for treatment. The boys were Irving Lincoln E. Alfred Vigeant, Jr., 11, George Moynihan, 13, and Joseph Dean, 15. Witnesses said one of the boys threw the can of carbide into the sewer and the explosion followed when another struck a match and threw it into the sewer.

SWIMMER DROWNED IN THE PROVIDENCE RIVER

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 13—(A. P.)—James North, 22, negro, of 25 Cedar street, New Bedford, a waiter on steamer New Haven of the New England Steamship company's Providence line was drowned while swimming in the Providence river today. A seaman aboard the ship said North suddenly threw up his hands and sank. John Hanley, assistant freight clerk of the vessel dived for the body and brought it to the dock. Attempts to resuscitate the victim, with a pulmotor were futile.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Caillaux Elected.

Le Mans, France, July 12—(A. P.)—Finance Minister Caillaux was elected on the first ballot in today's senatorial by-election to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of M. Gigon. M. Caillaux received 641 votes out of a possible 870. M. Gigon resigned in order to enable M. Caillaux to obtain a seat in the senate.

PREPARING FOR OPENING OF INSTITUTE OF POLITICS

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., July 13.—(AP)—With the opening of the fifth annual session of the Institute of Politics less than a fortnight away, a number of foreigners who will lecture there, are, or soon will be on their way across the ocean. The list of foreigners was given out today by Dr. Walter W. McLaren, executive secretary of the institute. The session will last from July 28 to August 22.

Count Antonio Cippico, Italian senator and fascist, will devote two of his six lectures to Italy and fascism. International relations as viewed from Geneva will be discussed by Dr. William E. Rappard of Geneva, member of the permanent mandates commission of the League of Nations. Count Alexander Skrzynski, foreign minister of Poland, will arrive at New York on Tuesday and will confer with President Coolidge at Swampscott immediately afterwards.

Robert Masson, French financier, is scheduled to lecture on the peace problems of France.

Guests of the Institute of Politics from England include Lionel Curtis, Major-General Sir Frederick Maurice and Prof. Arnold J. Toynbee.

The final list of the American members of the institute, which is open only to those possessing competency in international relations, will be announced by Dr. McLaren in about a week he said.

EVOLTION TRIAL TO BE RESUMED IN DAYTON TODAY

DAYTON, Tenn., July 13—(A. P.)—Sunday in Dayton on the eve of the resumption of the Scopes trial was marked by almost everything but quiet. The storm in court was expected to break tomorrow, but today failed to bring the calm before the storm. The chronological order of events developed.

Cancelling of a sermon on "evolution" at the Methodist Episcopal church by the Rev. Charles Francis Potter, New York, when a section of the congregational objected and subsequent announcement by the church's pastor, the Rev. H. G. Byrd, that he had "quit" as a result of the action of his congregation.

Delivery of an address by William Jennings Bryan at a combined Sunday school and church service at the Methodist-Episcopal church, south, with John Randolph Neal, chief defense counsel, occupying a seat in the pulpit and Judge John T. Raulston, presiding at the trial, seated in a front pew.

YALE PROFESSOR WINS 98 POUND BAG OF FLOUR

NEW HAVEN, July 12—(AP)—The Journal-Courier, in a special despatch from Minneapolis, Minn., will tomorrow say that Professor George A. Baitsell, of the Osborn Zoological laboratory of Yale university is to receive a 98 pound bag of flour from a Minneapolis milling company, due to the fact that he took up the offer of the concern's manager to send the prize winner of a film title contest a sack of flour to any part of the United States. The contest was conducted by the Hennepin County Tuberculosis association of Minnesota and Professor Baitsell happened to be in Minneapolis at the time the film, showing a new 600-bed tuberculosis sanitorium was being presented for the first time submitted a title. As a result, a 98 pound bag of flour is soon to be delivered at 234 Lawrence street, New Haven, Conn.

SECOND HOTTEST SUNDAY OF YEAR IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP)—The second hottest Sunday of the year with the temperature at 92 degrees at 4:45 o'clock in the afternoon sent hundreds of thousands of New Yorkers to the beaches, parks and country. Three deaths believed to have been caused by the heat were reported, and four persons were taken to hospitals suffering from heat prostrations, while scores of others were given first aid treatment.

At Coney Island and other beaches first aid had to be administered to scores of persons overcome by heat. At least 750,000 persons, the season's largest crowd, thronged Coney Island, while it was estimated that 300,000 were in bathing at Coney beaches.

BOY DROWNED IN CONN. RIVER AT MIDDLETOWN

MIDDLETOWN, July 13—(A. P.)—After dragging the Connecticut river for two hours late today for the body of Guy Sapia, 7 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Sapia, who was drowned near the dock of the Hartford and New York Transportation company, police abandoned search until daylight.

The boy tripped and fell from a wall into the river late in the afternoon. Edward Powers and Francis Skinner called to rescue the boy by Edward Mitchell, who saw him fall in, but who could not swim, dove many times for the body. Police were called but continual dragging of the river failed to locate the body.

Besides his parents the boy is survived by one sister and two brothers.

HIGHWAYMEN CAPTURED AFTER THRILLING BATTLE

PHILADELPHIA, July 12.—(AP)—The alleged highwaymen were captured early today after a thrilling battle in the darkness and in 20 feet of water with policemen. After struggling for 15 minutes in the Pennypack Creek on the outskirts of the city, the patrolmen beat the two men into submission with the butt ends of their pistols and swam ashore with them.

TWO GIRLS DROWNED IN THE BLACKSTONE RIVER

BLACKSTONE, Mass., July 12.—(AP)—Nellie Wujick, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Wujick, and Mary Duprey, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Duprey, both of the town, were drowned this afternoon about 1:30 o'clock when they slipped into deep water in the Blackstone River from a submerged road used as a ford.

French Chamber Has Voted the Budget

Vote Was 421 to 150—Socialists Voted Negative—Measure Returned to the Senate.

PARIS, July 12—(A. P.)—The chamber voted the budget at an early hour this morning, 421 to 150. The Socialists voted against it.

As modified by the chamber the budget was returned to the senate and the sitting was suspended until 2:30 a. m.

M. Blum, the Socialist leader, announced the return of his party to the old practice of voting against a Bourgeois budget, as reasons for abandoning this practice no longer existed.

CAILLAUX HAS SUPPORT OF PREMIER PAINLEVE

PARIS, July 12—(A. P.)—Premier Painleve stood squarely behind M. Caillaux, minister of finance, when on the return of the budget from the senate tonight, M. Blum, the Socialist leader, instead of moving an amendment reinstating the article exempting provision dealers and small traders employing less than three persons from the turnover tax.

M. Caillaux urged the need of revenue from ever source and promised to reintroduce at a later date a bill for the relief of small retailers, and declared that he would resign if the amendment was adopted.

At a time when he was about to undertake delicate debt negotiations with Great Britain and the United States, M. Caillaux said, he must be able to show a cleanly balanced budget and could not admit of any reduction in the revenue.

Premier Painleve followed, making the question one of confidence, and his government was sustained by a good majority, the vote being 325 to 244.

In consequence, an open split in the left cartel which has been long threatening appears unavoidable. A section of the Socialists, however, agree with M. Caillaux, and it is expected that the group, taking advantage of the recess of the return of the budget to the senate, made necessary by small modifications introduced by the chamber, will meet and decide the party attitude. But it is generally believed that the Socialists will vote against the budget.

BANKING CREDIT AFFECTED BY TURN IN TIDE OF GOLD

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(A. P.)—The turn in the tide of gold has begun to affect banking credit in the United States, and members of the system are resorting to increasing use of credit from the federal reserve banks.

A gold overflow of $175,000,000 has taken place in the last seven months and now, the federal reserve board disclosed today, the commercial banks find themselves in a position sharply in contracts to that which they held almost continually since the end of the war during those years, these banks, through the deposit of imported gold with the federal banks, obtained funds for repayment of borrowings and for use as a basis for increased extension of credit.

Total loans and investments of all member banks, though they show little growth so far this year, now approximate $22,500,000,000 or 10 per cent. more than in the spring of 1924. For two years, the total of loans and investments of these banks has been above the high point reached in the fall of 1920, and on April 6, this year, they were roughly $3,000,000,000 larger than the maximum in 1920.

DANZIG HAS LIBERAL VIEW OF THE LIQUOR PROBLEM

DANZIG, July 12.—(AP)—A liberal view of the liquor problem is held in this second smallest state in Europe, the slogan being: "Drink all you want, but first give your wife a chance at the pay envelope."

While wine, beer and cordials flow freely, the law provides that saloons and bars must be closed Fridays and Saturdays from 2 to 9 p. m. Experience shows that too many workmen invested the contents of their pay envelopes in spirits, leaving little or nothing for the support of their families. By closing saloons during the "critical hours" after the week's wages are paid, wives are given a chance to claim their share.

Danzigers also feel it is unbecoming their dignity as church-going people to have liquor dispensed during church hours; therefore the saloons are closed Sundays until noon.

FIVE RUM BOATS TRIED TO LAND IN BUFFALO

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 12—(A. P.)—Five rum boats tried to land in Buffalo from Canada before daylight on Sunday morning, one of them was captured and 400 cases of alleged whiskey valued at $30.000 were seized. Another was intercepted by the coast guard crew and forced to return to Canada. Three others were seen in Niagara river and chased by government boats. It is not believed that they landed their cargoes.

The seizure of the motor boat, Marion L. of Saint Catherines, Ont., laden with nearly four hundred cases of ale and whiskey was said to be the biggest seizure ever made by local government authorities and caused the first American gun to be fired against the Port Colborne rum runners.

SWIMMING RECORD MADE BY MISS HELEN WAINWRIGHT

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 12—(A. P.)—Miss Helen Wainwright, 19 year old national woman pentathlon swimming champion, today was reported to have established here a new record of three minutes, 10 seconds for the 220 yard free style swim. The previous record was said to be three minutes, 32 seconds.

FATALLY INJURED WHILE CHASING BOY IN STREET

NEWPORT, R. I., July 12.—(AP)—Anita Ward, aged between two and three years, died at the Newport hospital this afternoon from injuries received when she ran into the side of an automobile while chasing a little boy across the street. The car was driven by Frank L. Luth of 51 Washington street this city.

Prosperity Reflected In Bank Statements

Signs of Expansion Are Visable in Various Lines of Industry—Freight Traffic Heavy.

NEW YORK, July 2—(A. P.)—Confidence in business prospects was strengthened last wek by indications of record breaking prosperity as revealed in the national bank statements, showing their condition as the close of the first half of the year. Resources, deposits and undivided profits of the large New York institutions exceeded the previous high records established in the boom years of 1919 and 1920, while Chicago banks reported corresponding gains.

This satisfactory commentary on the state of trade, coming at a time when signs of expansion were visible in various lines of industry, engendered a more cheerful sentiment in financial circles. With prices of many securities selling around the highest levels of the year, Wall street recalled with satisfaction that it was just a year ago that the stock market began an upward climb which culminated in the impressive post-election boom. Except for a moderate spring reaction, the course to prices has now been advancing for more than a year.

Among the most illuminative aspects of the business situation last week were advancing prices for several steel products, copper, crude oil and rubber, the last-named commodity selling above $1 a pound, the highest price in almost ten years, with crude oil output declining steadily, a commission of expert geologists predicted that the peak of production in this country had been passed for all time and that it was not too early to begin a search for satisfactory petroleum substitutes. Automobile manufacturing activities continue to quiet down but production was reported still to be of record proportions for this late stage of the season.

Sparkling changes took place in the steel industry the most significant development being the forecast of the trade reviews that consumption would continue through July and August on a scale well above the summer of 1924. The U. S. Steel corporation's statement of unfilled orders at the end of June, showing a decrease of 339,342 tons compared with the month before, was somewhat disappointing to Wall street, which had been expecting a better showing.

With freight traffic for the last week in June running more than 80,000 cars above the corresponding week, of last year, the railroad outlook continued satisfactory. A survey of freight car requirements of the eastern industry for the third quarter of the year indicated that the movement would be about 5 per cent. heavier than in 1924. Prospects of a bumper corn crop offsetting estimates of a smaller wheat yield, encouraged the western carriers.

Virtually the only commodity in which definite price weakness has developed is sugar, which sold last week at the lowest level in three years. With the fruit canning season opening up, prevailing conditions have been much more satisfactory to consumers than to refiners. Competition from western beet sugar has been blamed for the decline in Cuban raw and graduated sugar at New York.

SECOND OLDEST BANK ON PACIFIC COAST ABSORBED

Portland, Ore., July 12.—(A. P.)—Ladd and Titon bank of Portland, oldest financial institution in the pacific northwest and second oldest on the Pacific coast, with assets aggregating $25,927,112, was sold yesterday to the United States National Bank of Portland. The transfer is to be effective at once.

As a result of the deal, the United States National has become the largest financial institution north of San Francisco and west of Minneapolis. Its combined deposits amounted to approximately $59,000,000.

MAN DIED SUDDENLY WHILE BATHING AT MERWIN'S BEACH

BRIDGEPORT, July 12.—(A. P.)—Jacob Shtootman, thirty-six, 107 Blake street, New Haven, died suddenly this afternoon while bathing at Merwin's Beach, Milford. Police said the man was struck by lightning as he died immediately following a flash of lightning. Medical Examiner Dr. J. W. H. Fischer, however, declared he died of heart attack, as no burns were found on the body.

Shtootman was bathing in only three feet of water, at low tide, in front of the Sauter hotel. It is said he became frightened when he saw the flash of lightning and died of heart failure. He was brought shore by bathers and placed in a nearby cottage.

The body was sent to his home in New Haven tonight. He was visiting friends at one of the cottages at Milford beach but was alone while in the water. Friends or relatives could not be located this afternoon.

BISHOP HICKEY DENOUNCED THE EVOLUTION TRIAL

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 12.—(AP)—"These men who have gone into the courts of the land to determine by legal process whether man is descended from the common ancestor of the ape and the gorilla, or whether of God, and in their foolish conceit imagine that truth of the issue depends upon their finite knowledge, would do better to get down on their knees, bow their heads and open their hearts so that the grace of Jesus Christ might enter their hearts."

In these words Rt. Rev. William A. Hickey, Roman Catholic bishop of the diocese of Providence, denounced the Scopes evolution trial now in progress at Dayton, Tenn. The statement was made in his address dedicating the new church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel at high mass this morning.

U. S. TO INSIST THAT CHINA FULFILL ITS OBLIGATIONS

Announcement Made by Secretary of State Kellogg Following Conference With President Coolidge—Must Protect the Lives of Foreigners and Otherwise Observe the Treaty That China Entered Into at the Washington Conference.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 12.—(AP)—Insistence that China live up to its treaty obligations and protect the lives of foreigners was announced today as the keystone of the policy of the American government toward that nation.

Secretary Kellogg outlined the attitude of the administration after a week end conference here with President Coolidge, centering chiefly on the Chinese situation. He insisted also that there must be "scrupulous observance of the obligations to China entered into at the Washington conference."

Formulation of a definite policy was deemed necessary by the President and his secretary of state in view of recent disorders there jeopardizing the lives and property of Americans and Nationals of other countries and on account of the completion of ratification of Washington's treaties dealing with Chinese customs and extra territorial rights.

Foreign debts, settlement of which was said to be progressing satisfactorily, also came up for consideration at the conference in which under Secretary Grew participated. Mr. Grew accompanied Secretary Kellogg on the latter's return tonight to Washington where the state department head will resume his duties after an interrupted vacation he was spending in St. Paul, Minn.

On leaving the summer White House Mr. Kellogg gave out this statement: "We have been engaged in a conference with the president with regard to the situation in China, the foreign debt question and some departmental matters.

"The conference in relation to China had reference to matters of policy. The cornerstone of that policy, so far as this government is concerned, may be said to be a scrupulous observance of the obligations to China entered into at the Washington conference and the insistence that the government of China take adequate measures for the protection of foreigners and to carry out her responsibilities under the treaties.

"There is nothing new in the debt general situation. Settlement is progressing satisfactorily."

Before his departure for Washington, Secretary Kellogg expressed confidence that all of the nine powers signatory to the Washington treaty designed to bring about a revision of Chinese customs would participate in the conference which the pact stipulates must be calle dwithin three months after completion of ratification.

In addition to the United States and China, the nations which negotiated the treaty are Japan, Great Britain, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium, Portugal, and France, the last to give the treaty its approval. The conference will be held in Pekin with John Van A. MacMurray, the new minister to China, and Silas Strawn of Chicago representing the United States government.

It is the belief of President Coolidge, expressed before he went over the situation with Mr. Kellogg, that it would be inadvisable for the United States to make a move for general conference on Chinese conditions but that this government should give encouragement to enlarging the scope of the customs conference in an effort to provide solution of various kindred problems.

Although plans are being made for the holding in the near future of the customs conference, the prediction was made again today to Mr. Kellogg that it would be some time before extra territorial rights are taken up at an international conference also authorized by an agreement reached at the Washington arms conference.

Mr. Kellogg was reticent about any negotiations the Washington government may be making for the Chinese parleys although it appeared likely that the state department during the week would make definite effort to shape up its program and perhaps advise with other powers as to procedure.

Following their yesterday's conference, the president and Mr. Kellogg, talked over the situation today only in a general way, devoting the day mainly to attendance at church and rest. Accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, the president and Mr. Kellogg motored to Salem to attend morning services at Tabernacle Congregational church. A decided rise in the temperature prompted Mr. Coolidge to discard the high hat and cut away coat he usually wears to church and instead he was attired in white flannel trousers and a blue sack coat. He wore a straw hat and carried a cane.

SOLICITOUS FOR CHINESE INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP)—An appeal to President Coolidge to help obtain for China the abolition of extra territorial rights now exercised by the foreign powers in that country was made today by the American Federation of Labor.

William Green, president of the federation, in a letter to the chief executive, asking that the administration take steps to bring about an international conference to vacate these privileges, which have been a large factor in the recent Chinese outbreaks, declared organized labor had a special interest in the subject because the "present political provocations have paralleled the coming of trade unions in Chinese industrial development."

"Since the Washington conference on the limitation of armaments and political questions in the Pacific and Far East convened at our invitation in 1921 provided for of a commission to study this subject and that action was not carried out," said Mr. Green, "there devolves upon us a responsibility for keeping the faith with China and the friendship of international justice to see to it that the intent of that pledge is redeemed. For the declaration was in fact a pledge of help to China, then struggling with the problems of reorganization, as well as to countries participating in the conference which wished to assure China opportunities for self-development and reorganization.

"There is every reason to believe that the fundamental cause for present disturbances in China is due to special privileges given foreign nations in treaty pacts and that the abolition of extra territorial rights of foreigners is necessary to China's administrative integrity and sovereignty. The Chinese are an ancient and honorable people who have developed an instinctive culture of rare qualities and they have a right to demand the respect and deference accorded to national sovereignty.

"Because of the fact that present political provocations have paralleled the coming of trade unions in Chinese industrial development, and the struggle of Chinese wage earners for industrial justice and civil rights is projected into the international problem it is most important and necessary for fully balanced consideration of the whole question that representatives of wage earners participate in this inquiry. We urge that the initiative be taken by the government of the United States in calling an economic conference to consider the Chinese situation and that this provision for labor representation be incorporated in the conference invitation extended to the countries. Ratification of the Washington treaties by France makes a strategical opportunity for such action."

BEACHES IN VICINITY OF BOSTON THRONGED SUNDAY

BOSTON, July 12.—Traffic jams resulted from the hottest July 12 Boston has experienced since 1911. The thermometer touched 93 this afternoon and drove a crowd estimated at half a million to the metropolitan beaches.

Barnard Claverty, 24, of Charlestown, was drowned two miles east of Graves Light in the lower harbor, when he fell overboard from a motor boat from which he and a party of friends were fishing. The harbor police were notified but the crew of the police boat Guardian were unsuccessful in attempting to locate the body.

On the return trip up the harbor the Guardian reached Deer Island in time to rescue William Roze, of Summerville, fro mdrowning after he had been washed from a fishing boat by the swell of a passing Nahant steamer. The holiday throng on the steamer witnessed the rescue. On the Beverly Beach, Gerald Hughes, 17, of Beverly, failed to come up when he dove from a raft. Other bathers recovered the body but efforts at resuscitation failed.

Boston beach received record throngs for the summer today. The police estimated that 250,000 persons visited Revere and that the throng at Nantasket numbered 100,000. Smaller resorts catered to between 150,000 and 200,000 pleasure seekers, it was estimated.

Two special trains from Providence, R. I., filled with excursionists, arrived at the Nantasket station of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad and quotas from a half dozen other Rhode Island and Connecticut points arrived here in special chartered busses.

The police on state highways to Revere and Nantasket reported the worst traffic jams in their experience.

Charles Faulkner, 13, of Beverly, was drowned while swimming in Beck's Pond, at Hamilton.

PERILS FACED BY AN A. P. STAFF CORRESPONDENT

NEW YORK, July 12.—(A. P.)—How a staff correspondent of The Associated Press who was sent to the Arctic regions to learn the fate of the Amundsen-Ellsworth North Pole expedition, unflinchingly braved the perils of the icy seas can now be told.

Refused aid by both the government and the club, left to his own resources in finding means of transportation through the untravelled and ice-strewn Arctic waters, Bouman did not falter. Twice he imperilled his life and suffered genuine hardship to reach his objective. This was at King's Bay, where the overdue Amundsen and his party at last returned from their unsuccessful undertaking.

Once Bouman entrusted himself to a leaky rowboat, once to a tiny unseaworthy motor sloop to make his way. Even the natives said he was crazy. These risks do not take into account a long drawn out one of being thrown overboard by a drunken sailor. It was, indeed, an exploit that rivalled in its call for courage that of the explosion, whose hazards he had been called upon to report.

That Mr. Bouman failed at the time to get his story to the outside world was due to the contract made by Amundsen to sell the narative of his experiences to a group of newspaper syndicates of various countries, whose representative at King's Bay controlled the only means of communication—wireless. He refused to allow Bouman's dispatches to be sent.

FORMER CORNELL STUDENT IS SUSPECTED OF HOLD-UP

UTICA, N. Y., July 12.—(A. P.)—Authorities of this city and Oneida county, today are searching for a hold-up man, believed to be Philip Knapp, former Cornell student wanted for murder in Mineola of Louis Penella, taxi driver.

A man answering Knapp's description held up a taxi driver named Kruger at Amsterdam, ordered him to drive to within a few miles north of this city Saturday night and then tied him to a barn, taking $85 and a silver watch.

A few hours later, Joseph Wurts, local taxi driver, was held up by the same man. Wurz gave fight but the man escaped after Wurtz's gun failed to shoot.

WILLIMANTIC

Deputy Judge of the police court Russell A. Andrews had an opportunity to try out his new job for the first time, Saturday morning, when he heard the case of Mrs. Mary Renejowski, of 74 Chapman street, charged with breach of the peace. Deputy Judge Andrews received the congratulations of friends, after court adjourned. The Renejowski woman was arrested by State Policeman Joseph Kamminski, one of the state officers stationed here during the strike at the American Thread Company. He testified that one noon last week the woman was standing near the No. 4 Mill gate when the operatives were leaving to go to lunch. He ordered her to move on and she retorted with an oath and refused to go. In answer to a question put by Prosecuting Attorney Harry S. Gaucher, it was brought out that the woman did nothing else to violate the law.

Mrs. Renejowski testified that she and her husband and children had stopped near the gate. They were told to move on. She admitted hesitating and replying, "I move fast enough. I pay taxes in this town." She denied, however that she swore at the officer. The court agreed to continue the case for two months and gave the accused a word of advice on her conduct in the future.

G. D. Waldman of 23 South Hudson street, Hartford, driver of a Studebaker coupe, said that he was "nowhere," when asked his identity by Deputy Sheriff William E. Jackson after a chase up Main street, where Waldman was detected cutting through traffic. Jackson was returning from church services when he saw Waldman's car zig-zagging through automobiles at the junction of Walnut and Main streets. Both cars were headed east and Officer Jackson put chase. He failed once to have Waldman stop in answer to a wave of the hand and finally by a police whistle, with results. Waldman was booked for a hearing in the police court Tuesday morning on a technical charge of violating the traffic laws.

Wilson Armstrong, of Manchester, who was cited at State Policemen Harmon and Hulbert and then took the lead for several miles on a motorcycle while the officers were going to investigate an accident in Andover, Tuesday night, was in Columbia town court Friday evening charged with reckless driving. Armstrong pleaded guilty and explained that he waved his hand as a signal for the officers to pass him and that he did not speed in a reckless way. He did not know for a fact that the other participants in the race were officers. Attorney Hyde of South Manchester, made a strong plea for his acquittal, but Judge Hubert P. Coleman imposed a fine of $5 and costs, amounting to $22.15 which was paid.

A truck load of 600 loaves of bread was sent from Hartford, as a donation of the Hartford Worker's Circle A. A., to the strikers in this city Saturday afternoon at four o'clock and stopped at the Labor Union Hall. There the bread was distributed to the striking operatives of the Thread Company. Samuel Dagger Wolfe Rosen of this city was influential in securing the donation.

The Salvation Army Sunday school picnic was held at Columbia Lake yesterday. A fine program of sports was carried out under the direction of Sergeant-Major Mrs. Bacon. Arrangements for the general round of events were in charge of Captain Lulu Sehl.

Mary Dabiautlot will appear in police court this (Monday) morning on a charge of assault. A woman named Louise de Chaplin, formerly of Ives street, it is said came into a grocery store on Lower Main street Saturday and was set upon by Mrs. Dabiautlot, who threw rocks and sticks and swore at her. Mrs. Lucks complained and a warrant was sworn out.

The summer schedule on the South Coventry branch of the Connecticut Company goes into effect Wednesday, July 15. The first car leaves the barn on West Main street at 5:30 a. m. for Port Coventry, returning here at 6:15 a. m. Trips out of Willimantic are at 7:15 a. m., 8:15 a. m. and 9:15. The next trip is at 12:15 and then hourly until 9:45 p. m. except on Wednesdays and Saturdays when the last trip from here will be at 11:15 p. m. The last trips from South Coventry will be made at 10:45 p. m., except Wednesdays and Saturdays when the last car leaves Coventry at midnight due to the dance at Lakeside Casino.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Clark entertained at a birthday party at their home recently in honor of the anniversaries of Mr. Clark and Fred L. Avery. Both received gifts. Others present were, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Maine, Mrs. Martha Pendleton, Mrs. A. L. Avery, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Tainter, Mrs. M. L. Burnham, Mrs. Martha Wells, Mrs Fred L. Avery, Master William Maine and Miss Betty Sharpe.

The Willimantic textile strikers held a successful tag day at Stamford, Saturday, under the direction of the Stamford Central Labor Union and the Building Trades' Alliance of that city. The union representatives received permission from Mayor John F. Keating to canvass the streets for funds to assist the strikers.

Wayne L. Storr of Spring Hill, who was badly mutilated by a road scraper when the horses ran away April 1st, last, is still at St. Joseph's Hospital, but making good recovery from his many wounds. Skin has been grafted on one hand and a delicate operation was necessary on one leg, which had suffered the loss of a portion of the bone.

Troops 2, 3, and 4 of the Boy Scouts of St. Joseph's parish are in camp for two weeks at the Holmes farm, Columbia Lake. A field mass was celebrated there Sunday morning at nine o'clock and was attended by many from this city and Columbia. The camp includes about seventy boys.

Alfred J. Mathewson who was named as vice grand in an account of the installation of officers of Obwebetuck Lodge No. 16, I. O. O. F., is a past grand. Charles J. Jones is the vice-grand.

In The Bulletin's account of fifty years ago events it is found that at that time the Willimantic Linen company, now the American Thread, was putting up a $23,000 storehouse and this, with other building projects in the city, was keeping the carpenters and mechanics working full time.

The cases of Wilfrid Delude, Everett Sypher and Gilbert Lewis, charged with breach of the peace and assault on Louis Babcock, a local young man, Wednesday evening at 9:15 o'clock at the corner of Windham and Selden streets, were continued to this (Monday) morning, at the session of court Saturday. Lewis is in Norwich and was notified to come to court. A fourth case which was continued was that of John Moran of North street.

ANTI-CHRISTIANS SOUGHT TO PREVENT RESURRECTION

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP)—Dr Earl R. Bull, missionary of the Methodist Episcopal church in charge of the work of Lee Choo Islands District of Japan, reports that in his travels about the island of Amakusa, he recently came across a huge boulder on which it is stated that the heads of 11,111 Christians lie buried there.

The grave dates back to the year 1635, when the Japanese practically wiped out all the Christians who had been converted to that faith by Roman Catholic missionaries. The inscription over this grave tells that 33,333 Christians were slain, beheaded and buried in graves many miles distant from the rest of their bodies. Only one-third of the Christian heads were buried in this particular island.

When Dr. Bull made inquiries as to why the heads were buried in graves miles distant from the other parts of the bodies, he was told, "When the Catholic priests preached about the resurrection, they said that Christians would rise again. Fearing that it might be true, the officials of the persecuting Shogun determined that they would make it impossible for them to rise again by separating different parts of the bodies of the dead Christians. If their heads were buried in one township and other parts of their bodies in another township, they concluded that the resurrection was then impossible."

Dame Fortune calls on some, while her daughter, Miss Fortune, visits others.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Deferred Advice

By ills I'm frequently attacked;
My doctor's diagnosis
Is that I'll presently contract
Arteriosclerosis,
Unless from all business cares
I sunder every tether.
Arrange to settle my affairs—
And rest for years together.

I fain would follow his advice;
He says he thinks would quite suffice
Ten years of inanition
To better my condition—
Provided that the time I spent
In some spot warm and sunny
Where I might live in calm content—
Nor think of making money.

But science has not yet progressed
So far as to enable,
A man to take a perfect rest
And keep his bankroll stable.
And though to toil beneath the trees
Would be extremely pleasant,
I do not think I'll take my ease
Or idle for the present.

But it's a comfort to my mind,
In this grave situation,
To think that presently they'll find
A serum for starvation.
And then from every form of work
I'll sever every fetter—
In some secluded spot I'll lurk
And rest till I am better!

Maria: Her Day

NOON

Flannel-clad, her aureole shot
With fire and gold from the level dawn,
Maria twitters from crib to cot
Her "I and me!" and her "Dark all gone!"

The cots, informed that day has begun,
Yield two bronzed brothers, that padding go
Through jewel weed, in early sun,
To splash in the opal pond below.

NOON

A brother squirms from his fresh-dug hole
And calls to his brother-gnome.
Blind and sleek as a velvet mole
In a world of visions and loam.

Maria's kiss is quick and cool,
A little smile with every kiss;
Nor do I know a better rule
For kisses, firm and fresh, than this!

DUSK

The patient dolls have undergone
An endless alteration
Of bed and bath Maria, worn
With mixing mud-pie ration.

Explodes in a fit of lightning wrath
After a purple hush.
When an oaf of a brother blocks her path
On the road to milk and mush.

NIGHT

The shade of her lashes, darkly unfurled,
Over her curved cheeks sweeps
As night droops over the curve of the world,
The air grows cool. Maria sleeps.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

One of the sweetest songbirds known is the nightingale, but many people in this country have to take the word of Europeans for this. The nightingale is related to the robin and the song-thrush, a sober looking bird, but having a beautiful head and full eye.

These birds are seen much in England, the male arriving about a week ahead of the female bird, going year after year to the same place, many times straight to the nest where they were born.

It is when the female birds arrive, and from then until after the baby birds are hatched, that the male bird sings his marvelous song. Singing first to win his sweetheart, he continues to sing while they build their nest, and then, while the mother bird sits on the nest, the male bird sings almost all night to keep her happy.

When the baby birds come out from their shells the songs stop for the father bird must go to work finding caterpillars for them to eat, also get ant's eggs, worms and beetles, for his family is a hungry one.

The nightingale is a shy, nervous bird, though he builds his nest near the home of man, but when he starts his song he seems to become carried away by the love of the mate for whom he is singing and forgets all danger in the glory of his melody.

People in England have been known to wait for hours and go for long distances to hear the song of the nightingale and those who have heard it say it is the most beautiful song in all the world. Strange to say, however, the song is rarely heard after the second or third week in June although the nightingale sometimes sings for the second brood if the first becomes lost or stolen.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

Occupations

Dear Uncle Jed: Most people earn a living by doing some kind of work. We call the people's work their occupation. Some occupations are: Agriculture, manufacturing, mining and commerce.

We all eat food made from plants, and from plants we get cotton and linen for clothes.

Now we all know that cabbage and potatoes do not grow by themselves and neither will wheat, corn, cotton and flax. There must be people to plough the ground for them, plant the seed and reap the grain when it is ripe, cut the flax or pick the cotton.

Farmers need ploughs to turn up the soil, and machines to cut their wheat. We all need knives, scissors, needles and pins and such things. Those who do this are called manufacturers.

But of course the man who makes ploughs must have wood and iron from which to make them. Where shall they get this.

Iron is a mineral. It is dug up from the earth. Some one must dig it up. The occupation or digging mineral is called mining.

If in one country people do not have enough they buy some from a country where they have more than enough. This is called commerce.

Betty Zane's Bravery

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my second letter to the Wide Awakes. I am going to tell you about Elizabeth Zane.

In a village on the banks of the Ohio river there was a large fort called Fort Henry. When the Indians, who were pushing on the side of the English, attacked the village, all the men, women and children fled to the fort.

The Indians next attacked the fort, and all of the men who went out to fight them were killed or taken as prisoners. At last there were but 12 men left to protect the women and children. The men had plenty of guns, and the women worked busily molding bullets, and loading the guns and handing them to the men.

The fighting was kept up for many hours. Often the Indians crept up and tried to set fire to the fort, but they were driven back each time. At last they withdrew a little way into the edge of the woods, to rest and prepare for another attack. When the colonists also began to prepare for another attack, they found that their supply of powder was almost exhausted. They well knew that without powder they could not hold back the Indians, and that to surrender meant certain death.

Captain Zane called his men together and said: "In my house there is a keg of powder. I do not wish to order any man to go for it, as it is a very dangerous thing to do, but I would like to have some one offer to go."

Several of the men at once volunteered. "It means almost certain death," said the captain. "I know that," replied one of the youths; "but we must have the powder. To stay means death to all."

Just then the captain's sister, Elizabeth, a girl fourteen years old, stepped forward. "I will go for the powder," she said. "You cannot spare one of the men. They are all needed to protect the fort. I fear that there are not enough now. If we are captured by the Indians I shall surly be killed. Please let me go."

At first Captain Zane refused, but he knew she was right; not a man could be spared. So, at last, the gate of the fort was opened for a moment, and the girl ran quickly out. The Indians saw her cross the road. "A squaw! a squaw!" they cried in amazement; but they did not attempt to shoot her.

She entered her brother's house and found the keg, but it was too heavy for her to carry, so she emptied the powder into her apron. When she came out of the house and started to return to the fort with her apronful of powder, the Indians cried at her; but although the arrows whistled over her head, she ran swiftly on, and reached the gate in safety.

With the help of this powder, the colonists were able to keep the Indians from setting fire to the fort that night.

The next morning more men came, and the Indians were driven away.

The story of the fight at Fort Henry is often told, and Elizabeth Zane, the brave girl who carried the apronful of powder to the men in the fort, will never be forgotten.

Mountain Laurel

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written before and I thought I would write again. I am going to tell the Wide Awakes about the Mountain Laurel.

The mountain laurel are very beautiful flowers. They are scentless, but very brilliant in the display of bloom. It bears great flat-topped masses of flowers, ranging in hue from white to deep pink. The flower is like a saucer which has a five sided rim. At each angle and in each space between the angles, is a small pocket which projects on the outside like a little knob.

This evergreen shrub sometimes grows ten feet or more in height.

The leaves are very green and lance shaped.

Masses of laurel leaves, as they endure transportation well, are stripped from the bushes and used for holiday decoration.

I thing this is all I have to write about the mountain laurel, and I hope the Wide Awakes will enjoy reading it.

A Trip to Hartford

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write to you and tell you about my trip to Hartford.

I am a member of a 4H club and every year each club of Connecticut is supposed to send a delegate to Hartford to attend the State Club "round up" which was held on April 24 and 25. All the clubs of Connecticut meet there.

This year I was chosen a delegate and my leader, Mrs. Sisson, was supposed to go but her son was taken sick so her daughter went.

We were to meet Miss Stratton, who is the Home Demonstration Agent for New London county, at the Willows Four Corners, on the New London to Hartford road. From there we went with her to Hartford.

We were to spend the night at Hotel Garde and were supposed to be there by half past six. At half past six we had a banquet, after the banquet we heard speeches, which lasted until ten o'clock. One of the speeches was given by Governor Trumbul on his trips to Labrador and the west. This story was illustrated by moving pictures.

In this trip he told about hunting the wild caribou and other animals. This speech was very interesting. This was the last speech given that night and we all went to our rooms.

The next morning we awoke about seven and after we had breakfast in the dining room of the hotel we went out on the street and walked over to Fox's store.

I was supposed to be at the capitol at half past eight but did not get back in time and missed the club songs which were first on the program.

We stayed until twelve o'clock. The last thing we did was to visit the capitol which was very interesting.

At twelve o'clock we went to the Hotel Bond where we had lunch. After lunch we heard a few more speeches. After the speeches we left for home.

When we got down to the Willow's Four Corners we waited for my father to come after us. I went home quite pleased with the trip. I hope some one else in my club can go next year.

I hope all the wide awakes will have a pleasant vacation.

A Picnic in the Park

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to the Wide Awakes. I'm going to tell you about our picnic in the park. We started from here at 10:30 a. m. and in half an hour we were in Mohegan park. We went in the truck with the family and a few friends. We went on the swings and fed the monkeys with bananas and cookies. There were three little boys getting the monkeys mad and my father made them stop. After a while four of us went in a rowboat and had a wonderful time. At noon we ate our dinner and after a while we went to see the peacock. Just as we went to see it, it opened its tail and we took pictures of it. About 4 o'clock we left for home and that was the end of our picnic in the park.

Sun Drying of Fruits and Vegetables

Dear Uncle Jed: The drying of fruits and vegetables in the sun is the simplest form. Bright, hot sunny days are chosen for this work and a close watch is kept to see that no rain or dew wets the product. Once or twice a day the slices are turned over with the hand and the thin ones which dry first are taken out. Mosquito netting may be thrown over the rack as a protection against insects and dust. Unless the trays are protected carefully, flies and especially certain insects, which habitually attack dried fruits, will lay their eggs upon the product.

Fruits and vegetables, when dried in the sun, generally are spread on large trays of uniform size so constructed that they can be stacked one on top of the other and protected from rain by means of a cover made of oilcloth, canvas or roofing paper.

A very cheap tray can be made by strips of lumber three fourths of an inch thick and two inches wide, which form the sides and ends, and lath which is nailed on to form the bottom. Spaces one eighth of an inch wide should be left between the laths for ventilation and the trays can be raised off the ground by placing them on poles or an improvised trestle. As laths are four feet long, these lath trays are most economical of material when made four feet in length.

Better but more expensive trays can be made by substituting galvanized wire screen, one eighth or one fourth inch mesh for the laths, in which case the most economical size would depend upon the width of the wire screen obtainable.

About Malaria

Dear Uncle Jed: Malaria is a disease from which many people die. The mosquito lays its eggs in swamps and in stagnant water. The eggs can be destroyed by putting oil or gasoline in stagnant water. In the Spanish-American war more soldiers died of malaria than were killed in the war. You can tell the mosquito because it has spotted wings, and yellowish brown body. The fish and frogs eat the eggs in the stagnant water. Many people in the south didn't know how to avoid being bothered by mosquitoes during the day and night. Then they found out that they could screen houses. Now so many people do not die of it because they know what causes malaria, and how to get control of the mosquitoes.

My Vacation

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my vacation.

We went up to my cousins house Sunday and spent the day. We had our dinner up there also. My two cousins came down to my house. They are very nice girls and are quiet. I am not very noisy myself. We are playing school now. Probably you have heard of Martha and Eleanor Babcock. Don't you think they are nice girls. I do any how. Ever since the time we got up we have been laughing. Not all the time but almost. It has been raining all morning long. Will have to close now.

The Fire

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have ever attempted to write to you.

I am going to tell you what happened one day in Montana.

One day five girls and myself decided to go into the woods and have a picnic and go in swimming in the brook near a big oak tree.

The day was bright and very hot. We trudged along in the burning sun until we came to the big oak tree, and, oh, gee! but it did look inviting indeed.

We flung ourselves under the tree, making sure however that our pails and baskets were in the shade too.

After having rested a bit we took off our dresses (we had our bathing suits under them). Soon we were splashing, laughing and having a very enjoyable time.

We kept in the water until we were hungry. Then we certainly had an enjoyable luncheon.

All of a sudden I saw smoke curling up towards the sky a little ways from where we were having luncheon.

Curiosity overruled us and we made our way toward the spot. What we saw made us jump back in horror and fright.

A fire was starting made by the heat of the sun.

My mind acted quickly and I gave a stern command: "To the pails, fill them at the brook." We girls were quick.

After a hard struggle the fire was extinguished and we made our way back to our forgotten luncheon and we certainly did justice to the meal.

When we got home and gave the warning searching parties were sent out to keep the fire away.

When the authorities heard of our doings that day we were each awarded a gold medal for heroic deeds.

Hans and Gretel

Dear Uncle Jed: I am sending you this story and hope the Wide Awakes will enjoy it.

On a bright December morning long ago two thinly clad children were kneeling upon the bank of a frozen canal in Holland. The sun had not yet appeared but the gray sky was parted near the horizon and its edges shone crimson with the coming day. Now and then some peasant woman poising a well filled basket on her head came skimming over the glassy surface of the canal or a lusty boy skating to his day's work in the town cast a good natured grimace at the shivering pair as he flew along. Meanwhile with many a vigorous puff and pull the brother and sister, for such they were, seemed to be fastening something upon their feet, not skates certainly, but clumsy pieces of wood narrowed and smoothed at their lower edge and pierced with holes through which were threaded strings of rawhide. In a moment the boy arose and with a pompous swing of his arms and a careless "Come on, Gretel" glided easily across the canal and in another moment they were laughing together as hand in hand they flew along the canal, never thinking whether the ice would bear or not, for in Holland ice is generally an all winter affair. Just then a clear quick voice was heard calling "Hans! Gretel!"

"It's the mother," said Hans looking solemn in an instant.

By this time the canal was gilded with sunlight. The pure morning air was very delightful and skaters were gradually increasing in numbers. It was hard to obey the summons but Hans and Gretel were good children. Without a thought of yielding to the temptation to linger they pulled off their skates leaving half the knots still tied. Hans with his great square shoulders and bushy yellow hair towered high above his little sister as they trudged homeward. He was 15 years old and Gretel was twelve. He was a solid hearty looking boy with honest eyes and a brow that seemed to bear a sign of goodness within just as the little Dutch summer house means a motto over its portal. Gretel was lithe and quick. Her eyes had a dancing light in them and while you looked at her cheek the color paled and deepened just as it does upon a bed of pink and white blossoms, when the wind is blowing.

Our Graduation

Dear Uncle Jed: — I thought I would write and tell you about our school graduation. Another girl and I were the only graduates from the Manwaring school. There were graduates from other schools that met and graduated from the Montville Center Chapel. At seven o'clock we marched into the building. I did not know where and what to do, but one of the graduates told me, who sat next to me and I got along all right.

The other girl who graduated with me spoke but I did not as I spoke at a speaking and spelling contest and she did not. After the essays and poems were recited the diplomas were given out and prizes given to two or three girls or boys out of every school. I won the Comstock prize "Connecticut Beautiful" by Wallace Nutting. After the prizes were given out there were talks. After this we went outside. I got a present from my Aunt Ruth who was there, a collar and cuff set. My other aunt, Aunt Lila, gave me a pair of white silk stockings for graduation. My Aunt Mena gave me a bath set. Mrs. Morgan gave me a flower book, entitled "Wild Flowers" by Asa Don Dickinson. When we came home it was very late. Many people were surprised that I graduated as they expected me to graduate next year. I intend to go to the Norwich Free Academy this fall. I have nothing more to write about so will close hoping to write soon.

Uncle Johns Monkey

Dear Uncle Jed: While Uncle John was coming home from a journey, he found a monkey. He took it on board one ship to the amusement of all the other sailors. This monkey was a cute little fellow and he caused much laughter with the funny tricks he performed. The sailors called him, "Ned" gave him what he wanted and fed him. As a reward to the sailors for their kindness, Ned would hide their caps, and jump on them when they weren't aware, thus making them laugh.

One day, Uncle John went to his dressing room. When he got there, he saw Ned with a cup of soap suds in one hand and a shaving brush in the other. He had not only plastered up around his mouth, but also a large portion of his body. Ned did not like the bath that Uncle John gave him to remove the soap suds.

Uncle John often tells us some of the funny tricks that Ned did while on his journey homeward and also tells how sad the sailors felt when he took Ned away.

Lover's and Lanier's Oaks

Dear Uncle Jed, Lover's Oak is one of the most beautiful oaks in Brunswick. It is a large oak with spreading branches. The moss hanging from its branches makes it look as though it were weeping. It has been standing a long long time even before Columbus discovered America.

Lanier's Oak is a famous tree located on the Dixie Highway, Brunswick, Glynn country Georgia. It is called Lanier's Oak and is pointed out to tourists as the oak under which Sidney Lanier, the South's greatest poet, sat and dreamed while he received inspiration for the beautiful poem The Marshes of Glynn. Brunswick appreciates this oak and takes pride in trying to preserve it and pointing it out.

Cleaning Carpets

Dear Uncle Jed; I'm going to write and tell you about cleaning carpets. Sweeping rugs and carpets with a broom will take away the dirt which is on the surface, but it will not remove the dirt which sifts into their threads or goes through them to the floor. You cannot clean carpets by sweeping them while they lie on the floor. The only way to clean carpets is to take them out of doors, and beat the dirt and dust from them. Rugs are more healthful than carpets, because the rugs can be taken up and cleaned more easily.

GARDNER LAKE

The macadam road from Norwich to Gardner Lake has just been completed, and hundreds of tourists are taking advantage of the great improvement.

Elmer Able, of New London, has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Able for the past few days.

Miss Lola Warnicke, who has been staying at the Gardner Lake House for a week, returned to her home in Hoboken, N. J., Friday.

Sidney Dolbeare, who recently had his wrist broken in an automobile accident, is being treated by a specialist in Hartford.

Milo Light, director of Camp Cadaho, has purchased two more horses from J. Kaplan, of Chesterfield.

The girls of Camp Waneta, who are under the supervision of Milo Light, hiked around the Lake Thursday.

A number of young people from here were present at the dance given at the Chesterfield Casino on Thursday evening.

Love, like ice, is awfully slippery and it soon thaws.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Charles Dansereau, notorious for years in this territory, again is in the toils of the law. While Dansereau is locked up in the county jail at Brooklyn, as told in the Bulletin Saturday morning, state police are actively engaged in checking up the details of his latest exploits in alleged crime. Convicted more than 30 years ago as a horse thief and given a sentence in Worcester county, on various counts, of a total of 44 years, of which he served about 20, Dansereau did not learn the lesson of honesty. About four years ago he was again convicted, in Windham county, as a cattle thief and sentenced to from one to three years in the state prison at Wethersfield. Being released from that term he returned to his farm on the Moosup pond road, about two miles south of South Killingly, and little has been heard of him for a year or more.

His newest entrance into the limelight follows his arrest as a receiver of stolen goods—not horses or cattle this time, but something newer as devices go—automobiles. Dansereau is specifically charged with receiving two stolen automobiles, believed to have been brought into this territory from Worcester. His hearing will be before Judge George Torrey in the Brooklyn town court next Thursday afternoon. State officers have made a careful checkup of things at Dansereau's isolated farm and will have an interesting story to present to the court.

Dansereau is not the type that one would select as being of his calibre. He is suave and gracious, very kindly, intelligent and likeable. He is as smooth as milk. During the periods when he has not been behind prison bars he has given his attention to farming in a small way, to buying and selling horses and cattle and in trading for livestock.

In spite of his abilities, Dansereau appears to have an inescapable faculty of going wrong. He has been arrested for the theft of grain, has been in difficulties with the state about taking livestock into Connecticut without permits and for other such actions. Dansereau is now considerably over 50 years of age. When he was first arrested as a horse thief he was in his 20s.

In those days his raids were on rigs owned largely in Massachusetts and Rhode Island. Providence and Worcester being two of his principal operating points. His arrest as a horse thief and his subsequent trial and conviction gave all of southern New England a sensation, which is talked of hereabouts to this day. The horses and vehicles he stole were brought to Danielson and disposed of in the surrounding country. Dansereau operated as a respectable horse dealer and trader.

Elijah H. Berriman established himself as one of the foremost trap shots of Connecticut, at a week end shoot for the state championship at Bridgeport. Competing against 90 of the best shots at the traps that the state can muster, Mr. Berriman came with an eye of winning. His total score in two days of shooting was 193 out of a possible 200. The winner of first place had a total score of 194. Mr. Berriman shot one string of 35 without a miss. Members of the Danielson Hod and Gun club were elated Sunday over the splendid showing made by Mr. Berriman, a comparatively recent recruit to the fold of trapshots. Only those who have had experience at trapshooting will fully appreciate how unusual Mr. Berriman's showing at Bridgeport was. It was being predicted that he is a future champion for Connecticut at the trapshooting game.

Following a prayer service at her home in Elmville, Saturday, funeral services for Mrs. Martha Janes were conducted at St. Alban's church, Danielson, at one o'clock by Rev. Leonard Richards. Burial was in the High street cemetery at Dayville. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Epraham H. Harrington, the greater part of his life, resident at East Killingly, is dead at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Inez R. Burrill, at East Putnam. Mr. Harrington was born in Foster, July 4, 1840, a son of Amos and Chlotilla Howard Harrington. For a great many years as a resident of East Killingly he was an overseer in the mill now operated by the Aseptic Products company. Since February last he has been making his home with his daughter at East Putnam. Mr. Harington leaves other daughters, Miss Lilly M. Harrington of Lowell and Mrs. Grace H. Bailey of East Killingly. His sons are Chester E. of Baltouville and Saville of East Killingly.

F. D. HARROWER BREAKS LEG WHEN CAR LEAVES HIGHWAY

(Special to the Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, July 12.—Francis D. Harrower, assistant agent of the Wauregan Company mills at Wauregan was seriously injured, about 5 o'clock Saturday morning, when his Ford touring car shot off the state highway on the Providence road, about seven miles east of here and plunged into a ditch.

It was nearly half an hour before a machine came along or other means of assistance presented itself. Pinned in the wreckage of his car, Mr. Harrower managed to signal a passing machine and other aid was then promptly summoned from the home of Edward Greene, nearest resident to the site of the accident. First aid was rendered Mr. Harrower by those who were prompt to respond. It was found that his left leg was broken. There were numerous gashes on his face, the side of his nose and forehead and on his hands and arms.

Approximately three hours elapsed before Mr. Harrower was taken from the wrecked car and placed in an ambulance that conveyed him to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam. The delay in getting him away from the wreck was due to lack of telephone service in the vicinity and failure of messages that were sent to Danielson by motorists who happened along to be as quickly responded to as might have been expected. Though but seven miles east of Danielson, the place where the accident occurred is well over the border in Rhode Island. A Providence hospital that was called declined to send its ambulance out after the injured man. Eventually Dr. J. N. Perreault, for whom Mr. Harrower had asked, was reached and rushed over in his car, giving Mr. Harrower every possible attention. It was 8 o'clock before the ambulance took Mr. Harrower in and started for Putnam with him.

Through all the ordeal Mr. Harrower was conscious and gave evidence of splendid courage. He expressed his gratitude, as he still lay pinned in the car, for the attention given him by Mrs. Greene, who had bathed his face and otherwise exerted herself to make him as comfortable as possible.

Mr. Harrower was returning from Providence, where he had been visiting his brother, when he met with the accident, which may have been due to the left front tire on the machine blowing out. That Mr. Harrower had done his best to stop the car from plunging off the road was indicated by the fact that the emergency brake was pulled up tight. It was apparent he had no time to shut off the power, for the motor had continued to function after the machine struck the tree, the rear wheels digging into the soft dirt as they spun around. It is believed that Mr. Harrower was rendered unconscious for a time after the crash.

The car is badly wrecked. In striking a tree it stripped bark entirely off the trunk for a distance of about five feet from the ground. Mr. Harrower, who is the son of a noted Worcester physician, was alone when the accident occurred.

METHODS OF DANSEREAU IN COACHING YOUNG THIEVES

(Special to the Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, July 12.—Developments during Sunday indicate that the arrest of Charles Dansereau on a charge of receiving stolen goods, as told in the Bulletin of Saturday, will lead to the extinction, in so far as their liberty is concerned, of a band of automobile thieves that have been operating in southern New England, particularly in Massachusetts, and being used by Dansereau as the source of supply of pleasure cars and motor trucks that he received and sold as opportunity offered.

Sunday, two accomplices of Dansereau's were under arrest or held technically, one of them, Walter Francis, at the state police barracks here, another, Edward Powell, in custody at Webster. The hope of the officers is that three more implicated parties will be arrested before long. One of these arrests is to be looked for in Connecticut, the others in Massachusetts.

Dansereau, convicted horse and cattle thief and with a long state prison record, appears to have been the guiding light of the youngsters associated with him in stealing cars and disposing of them, or dismantling them for parts. There is no charge that Dansereau stole cars personally. It will be alleged that he dealt with youngsters who actually stole machines and drove them to his isolated farm, on what is known as the Moosup pond road, about two miles south of South Killingly. It is possible that the operations have been under way for a year or more. Two Reo trucks, parts of another machine of the same kind, a Chevrolet and a Dodge have been found at the Dansereau place.

Parts from these cars were found in the attic of Dansereau's home, other parts hidden away in the kitchen stove, still other parts in a barn on the place. One machine, a new Dodge coupe, had been practically dismantled. The body had been taken off the chassis and hidden deep in the woos. A cushion belonging to this car was found in Dansereau's barn, and a balloon tire and a disc wheel from the machine were in the attic of his home. Yet Dansereau tells a strange story relative to this car that would indicate that he knows nothing about whence it came or its history. This particular machine was stolen in Worcester, June 15, and is the property of Irving O. Jaffe. One of the Reo trucks found at the Dansereau place is believed to be the property of a Worcester furniture concern.

Young Francis, a youth still in his 'teens, has talked freely to state officers about the banditti, of whom he was a member. He said that he and his companions have made many visits to the Dansereau farm. He told of how he had been there with others under arrest or to be arrested and how Dansereau would let them have a car to take to Worcester for sale, alleging that Dansereau would admonish them to bring back every cent they obtained for it—and another car to take its place. For this service, Francis says, Dansereau would reward them with as liberal a payment as $5. The information the police has obtained is voluminous, relating to the operations of the gang now in process of being cleaned up. One of the gang is Louis Dansereau, resident in Worcester, and reputed to be a nephew of Charles Dansereau. The police have information that he boasted that the police of Worcester would never find one Reo truck, which had been taken to the farm of his uncle and dismantled. He was wrong about that. Officers are prepared to establish the identity of this truck. All the motor vehicles found at the Dansereau farm have been siezed by the state police and are now at the barracks here. Officers are continuing to seek for an Essex car and for a Ford roadster run down from Massachusetts as stolen cars and disposed of in this territory.

The complete uncovering of this case is expected to make interesting reading.

PUTNAM

Francis Harrower of Worcester, Mass., is at the Day Kimball hospital with a hip fractured in two places, caused by the car he was driving leaving the road and crashing into a telephone pole. He is the son of Dr. David Harrower of Worcester, one of New England's most noted eye specialists, who is now on a trip to the Pacific coast.

The accident occurred shortly after noon Saturday on the Providence road two miles across the Rhode Island line. Mr. Harrower, who is 29 is assistant superintendent in the mills of the Wauregan Company, at Wauregan. He was on his way home and, as far as he has been able to remember, suffered a severe shock from the effects he has not recovered, lost control of the car and it left the road and crashed into a pole.

State Officer Williams of the Danielson barracks was patrolling the road along the boundary line and was at the site of the accident a few minutes after it happened. As soon as he saw the young man's plight—besides the injury to the leg, he was badly cut and bruised—he sent after the ambulance of the Putnam hospital and accompanied him here.

The car was badly jammed up. It could not be determined whether the steering gear had slipped or what caused the machine to swerve.

At the July meeting of the physicians of Putnam and vicinity, held at the Day Kimball hospital, the following were present: Drs. Bullard, Kent and Perry of Putnam; Todd, Burroughs, Tanner and Judson of Danielson; Pike of East Woodstock; Paine of Thompson and Overlook of Pomfret.

A meeting of the Northeastern Connecticut Fish and Game club was held in the hall at North Woodstock. There was a general discussion relative to conditions in this section and the advisability of further stocking the streams, lakes and ponds. Also the situation and advisability of propagating game birds, by buying and releasing more birds. No action was taken, as all matters were laid on the table until the September meeting. It was evident from the reports of fishermen that the trout fishing in this section this season has been the poorest in years.

Attorney Howard C. Bradford, represented the state's attorney of Windham county at a meeting between Governor Trumbull and the State's attorneys of all counties. The meeting was for the purpose of trying to persuade the governor to change his determination not to ratify any appointment of county detective unless the appointee would agree to become a member of or already was a member of the state police force. The governor, however, stood firm in his determination.

A number of the state's attorneys have sent in their appointment for county detectives. State's Attorney Searles is one of these, and in re-appointing William E. Jackson he recommended an increase in salary from $2,600 to $3,000. Mr. Jackson has taken the stand that he will be guided by the state's attorney in the matter. He was for a number of years a member of the state police force.

The man killed at Moosup Friday morning was Maurice Lesber, 36, of Putnam, not Morris Kaminsky as given in the despatch from that town. He was employed as a clothing salesman by S. Kaminsky, a local merchant.

Mr. Lesber was driving a Ford touring car and was struck by a passenger train from Providence, on the grade crossing. This was a few minutes after six o'clock. He was brought to the Day Kimball hospital here by ambulance and an examination disclosed a fractured skull and other injuries. He died two hours later without recovering consciousness.

Mr. Lesber was married and had one child. He came here from Worcester two years ago. The body was taken to Worcester for burial, the funeral services being held Sunday. He is a brother of I. S. Lesber of the Lesber Fur Company, manufacturers of fur coats.

Headquarters Company of the 43rd Division, State National Guard, left Putnam Saturday morning for Camp Trumbull, Niantic for two weeks' military training in the open. Captain McGarry was in command with Lieutenant Rosario Beaudoliel as second and 58 enlisted men. Lieutenant Owen S. White, who has been principal of Israel Putnam school is taking a summer post graduate course and was excused from camp duty.

The body of Stanley Zygmeniewzci, who died Saturday at Voluntown, Conn., twenty-two, was brought here for burial. He was born in Austria but came to this country with his parents several years ago.

Attorney and Mrs. Charles L. Torrey will start today (Monday) by automobile for a trip to the middle west, with Marietta, Ohio as the probable ultimate destination. They expect to be gone for a month.

Franklin H. Converse, 82, died at his home in East Woodstock Friday night. He leaves his wife and two children, John Converse and an unmarried daughter, both living at home. Up to about a year ago Mr. Converse had been a resident of North Grosvenordale where he had spent the greater part of his life. He also leaves a brother, James C. Converse. Another brother, John Converse, who died a few years ago was superintendent of the County Home for a number of years.

Anna Markoretz, nine year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Markoritz of Woodstock, died at the Day Kimball hospital Friday morning following an operation for appendicitis performed seevral days before. Funeral services were at the home Sunday afternoon; burial was in Grove cemetery, Eastford.

At the meeting of the Rotary Club Attorney Howard C. Bradford gave more of his report of the Rotary International convention which he attended recently at Cleveland, Ohio. He mentioned the singing of Rotary songs by from eight to ten thousand men in the mammoth auditorium, as one of the most inspiring features of the meeting.

While working over a loom at the mill of Strongman and Perkins, a strap on the loom broke and a steel hook entered the eye of Joseph Lajoie a loom fixer. The injured man was taken to the hospital and an operation was performed by Dr. Burroughs of Danielson. It is thought that the eye and the sight will both be saved. This is the first accident of a serious nature that has occurred at the Strongman and Perkins mill, one of the city's newer industries.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Axtell and son, Lane Axtell, Mrs. Carr and Whitney Kane of Omaha, Nebraska, have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Ransom of the Wolf Den Farm at Pomfret.

Fans in this vicinity were interested in the announcement that Walter J. Maranville had been appointed manager of the Chicago National League club. While a member of the Boston Red Sox, he played several games in this section, the last being on the North Grosvenordale grounds.

Mrs. Edward S. Keith is spending a week with relatives in Eastford and vicinity.

Oscar Peterson of Pomfret and Miss Esther V. Anderson of Thompson were maried July 1 by Rev. Frederick C. Baker pastor of the M. E. church at North Grosvenordale. They left for a wedding trip through New Hampshire and Vermont. Mr. Peterson has a large circle of friends in Pomfret and Putnam. He is a popular member of Putnam Lodge, B. P. O. E. For years he has been employed at the Ben Grosvenor Inn, Pomfret, and is a daily visitor in Putnam. Miss Anderson was for a number of years employed by the late Mr. and Mrs. Norman B. Ream of Thompson. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Anderson of Thompson and is well known in that town.

The wedding was kept secret from their friends and the first known of was the receipt of post cards signed by Mr. and Mrs. Peterson.

Sergeant George Laird is acting captain of police and doing day duty during the absence of Captain Jarvis, who is on his wedding trip.

Patrolman Durand is having his annual leave of absence, and with his family is occupying a cottage at Oakland Beach.

Special Officers Ernest Chandler and Howard Steers are doing patrol duty while the regular men are having their vacations.

John M. Kelley of Princeton, Maine and Live Oak, Florida, has been spending a few days with his brother, Harry Kelley, general manager of the Yankee store.

ABINGTON BOY DROWNED AT COUNTY Y. M. C. A. CAMP

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WOODSTOCK, July 12—Death stalked Sunday afternoon among a merry throng of boys who are at Camp Woodstock at Black Pond here. Ellsworth Amidon, 12, of Abington, in the Town of Pomfret, lost his life by drowning. This is the first serious accident that has happened at this camp, where there are 145 boys from Windham, Tolland and Hartford counties, under a very efficient County Y. M. C. A. organization. A steam lifecraft was floating about the pond for the boys to dive from when the accident happened.

Young Amidon who this season, won the broad jump and junior state Y. M. C. A. championship, is believed to have struck his head in diving from or swimming about the raft. The fact that to the surface was not discovered by t othe surface was not discovered by his associate swimmers for a brief period and it was from 10 to 15 minutes before the body was brought up. An experienced life-guard was on duty with the boys at the time.

A telephone message to Southbridge brought members of the fire department of that place with a pulmotor within 20 minutes and another message to the Willimantic fire department brought men and another pulmotor in very short time. The equipment was used for hours in an attempt to oresusciate the boy, but without success. Dr. Ernest R. Pike of Woodstock, medical examiner, viewed the body. The accident plunged the camp into gloom. It was entirely unavoidable and happened notwithstanding every precaution that the Tri-County Y organization takes to safeguard the boys in the camp, where Gov. Trumbull is scheduled to make a visit in a few days.

MYSTIC

Work on the foundation for the new post office is progressing rapidly. Many passers-by stop and watch the pouring of the cement. The contractors were fortunate in finding a good quality of sand in excavating, which enables them to accomplish more work, not leaving it to cart it from banks some distance from the village.

Mrs. F. C. Wheeler invited the members of Mystic Grange to meet at her home, Thursday afternoon. Matters pertaining to future work of the grange were discussed and the suggestions planned will be placed before the grange at the next meeting.

Miss Dorothy Lamphere, of Los Angeles, Cal., spent Thursday with Miss Ruth Barnes.

Mrs. Elwood Lathrop and Miss Jennie Denison called on Mrs. Gurdon Allyn in West Mystic, Thursday.

Mrs. J. G. Osborne was invited to the tea given by the Women's society of the Third Baptist church in North Stonington, Thursday afternoon. She spoke on the Golden Jubilee planned by the Missionary society of the denomination.

Misses Sarah and Laura Wilkins are visiting their grandmother in Norwich.

Mrs. James P. Miner, of Middletown, is visiting at the home of her grandson, George H. Griswold.

Several members of Mystic Grange attended the meeting in North Stonington, Friday night. Mrs Ellery Burdick was invited to give recitations. She is receiving many invitations to recite at granges and social affairs.

The meeting of the Mystic Garden club will be held at the home of the president, Mrs. Louis P. Allen, on New Londo nroad, next Wednesday at 4 p. m.

Mr. Freeman, of St. Louis, Mo., who is superintending building the new post office, has been joined by Mrs. Freeman and they art at the Clinton, but have engaged rooms at Mrs. Agnes Parks', on Pearl street, for housekeeping.

Rev. J. G. Osborne was a visitor in Westerly, Thursday.

Those who canvass the village each year for membership in the Visiting Nurse association are meeting with good success.

J. C. Crandall and family, with guests, spent Thursday at Lantern Hill.

Dr. C. F. Congdon was called to the home of Mrs. Antoinette Ripley, in the Road Church district, Thursday, to attend a man employed there, who met with an accident that required fourteen stitches to close a wound.

At 40 years of age, Judge William P. Stacy, the new chief justice of North Carolina, is believed to be the youngest man in the entire country to preside over a state supreme court.

French Soaps

Have Failed to Please French Women

Your own Palmolive is one of the two largest selling toilet soaps in France, today

WHEN you are tempted with French claims for a soap, Madam, please remember that in France, the home of cosmetics, French toilet soaps by the score have given way to Palmolive.

In France, Palmolive Soap is the "imported" soap. French women gladly pay almost double the price for it that you pay. And often three times the price of many French toilet soaps. The cosmetic qualities of Palmolive soap hold supreme today in French beauty culture.

In your own interest, and in ours, carry this in mind: Don't buy soaps with "French" claims and expect Palmolive results.

Palmolive Soap is a secret blend of olive and palm oils. Of cosmetic oils famous since the days of Cleopatra. Before it came, you were told to "use no soap on your face." Because soaps were too harsh.

Palmolive, based on 60 years of soap study, is a scientific soap. A soap made for one purpose ONLY . . . to foster good complexions. It is made by experts in beauty . . . more than merely good soapmakers . . . to guard your youthful charm.

Don't expect Palmolive results from ordinary soaps. Don't expect them from medicated soaps. Even genuine castile failed in bringing them. Certainly no ordinary soap can. Protect your skin's beauty by using soaps made to protect it.

Palmolive is not recommended for laundry work, or even for fine fabrics. To make it good for those things, its cosmetic qualities would need be much reduced. And good complexions are too precious to be endangered thus.

There are soaps at 25 cents and over that approach Palmolive in complexion results. We know of two. But Palmolive sells at 10 cents . . . no more than ordinary soap. Enormous production brings you this modest cost.

The fact that one woman in every two today has a clear, fresh skin proves Palmolive results. Would you go back to crude, harsh soaps and perhaps imperil yours?

Wash, cleanse, launder with any soap you wish. But when beauty is at stake, take care. Use Palmolive, a soap you know is safe to use. It is nature's formula to "Keep That Schoolgirl Complexion."

THE PALMOLIVE COMPANY
(Del. Corp.)

Don't Expect
Palmolive Results from "Jack-of-all-trades" Soaps

Palmolive Soap is not intended for laundry work or even for fine fabrics. To make it good for those things, its cosmetic qualities would need be much reduced. And fine complexions are too priceless to be endangered thus.

Palmolive Soap is based on 60 years of soap study. A soap made of rare cosmetic oils for ONE purpose only — to foster good complexions. Palmolive complexion results come only from Palmolive. Don't expect them from ordinary soaps, from soaps claiming to serve many ends, "jack-of-all-trades" soaps. They can't, that stands to reason.

Note carefully the name and wrapper. Palmolive is never sold unwrapped.

Soap from Trees

The only oils in Palmolive Soap are the soothing beauty oils from the olive tree, the African palm and the coconut palm—and no other fats whatsoever.

That is why Palmolive Soap is the natural color that it is—for palm and olive oils, nothing else, give Palmolive its green color!

The only secret to Palmolive is its exclusive blend—and that is one of the world's priceless beauty secrets.

CUTTING SURTAXES

When it is pointed out that the surplus of $283,000,000 in the treasury was in excess of the estimate and that much of this was due to a gain in income tax receipts, it is sometimes argued to attribute this gain wholly must part to the fact that there was a cutting of surtaxes, which resulted in the turning of a greater amount of capital from the investment securities to the various lines of industry.

Maybe so, but what the reduction in the surtaxes was expected to do and that which was claimed for it by those who wanted to have it put at a lower rate. But if the cutting of it to 40 per cent has resulted in such an appreciable gain, it is reasonable to suppose that a further lowering of it would have that same desirable effect.

Those who were unwilling to admit that when the reduction was made the government could not believe such a thing would follow, are converted in a measure by the manner in which the new schedule is affecting the further collection of the surtax rate. Instead of falling downward at a rate which the reduction would warrant they display a decided heading. They are even causing to outdo the advocate of the surtax cutting. Those who scoffed are now the exhorters.

There has been an admirable demonstration of what the lowering of the rates will accomplish. There has been a demonstration of the fact that part of the saving as the government is giving away a big percentage of the total money invested in those taxes money is going to be invested in tax exempt securities. The government is not to have their efforts for the benefit of the government.

The treasury department appears to be working toward a further reduction in the surtax rate. The amount will be fixed at $200,000,000. The present surplus must be cut in half or it may be necessary to do more but upon the strength of the performance under the previous reduction opponents of such action seem to have been convinced. The success of course strengthens in the position of the secretary of the treasury and the administration.

IT OUGHT NOT TO BE

Part of the rule we are going it is going to take a long time for the people to bump off all those who persist in their refusal to exercise the amount of care at railroad crossings and yet there is altogether too great a number sacrificing themselves and others at just such times.

This is the time when we stop to wonder why it is simply because of a failure to observe the folly understanding which exists at such crossings the number is so large, that the same escapes probably never realize however great the menace was to them. It is only when highway transportation was confined to oxen and horses that we became all the greater in these days of the automobile when there are so many more users of the highways.

The time cannot come any too soon for the crossing users to give due consideration in advance of approaching to the necessity of exercising a part of a minute for the sake of life protection. It is folly to suppose that nothing can happen. It is simply a figure that you will win the race with the engine and it is reckless to undertake to ignore the danger which is daily being emphasized by those who are familiar with crossing conditions are no more immune from danger than others. The lessons of the crossing dangers are constantly being repeated in all their phases and it is being shown that it is the failure to give due regard to what is coming down that too often results in the fatal accounts of the crashes at open points.

There have been enough of such unnecessary affairs to cause the driver of any car to give heed to what he is actually doing, to make sure that is safe before going ahead and to show proper respect for the peril at every crossing. If that were done there would be fewer sudden deaths and an appreciable reduction in the list of those seriously injured. It is impossible to ignore danger and hope to escape its effects at a railroad crossing.

THE TWO DOLLAR BILLS

If at first you don't succeed, try, try again. That is an old motto but one which the treasury department of the government is following in its effort to meet conditions and save the country as much money as possible.

It was only a few months ago that there was an effort to have the two dollar bill abandoned. There was no good reason advanced for it. There was the claim that gamblers considered it a hoodoo, but we are not as yet catering to the gamblers, and there was the claim that it was too easily mistaken for a one dollar bill. The possibilities of mistakes from a careless handling of money are recognizable, but with fair eyesight and a proper regard for money there are not many instances where a two is given or accepted for a one, and certainly no one is taking a one in the belief that he has a two.

On the part of the government there has been an effort to have the people accept the silver dollar and keep them in circulation in order to relieve the demand for dollar bills, which demand has been hard to fill because of the inability to print and season the many ones as fast as they are called for. But the public has not been disposed to tote about the cartwheels. They are too heavy to be loaded down with and the paper money is preferred in most sections of the country.

It is a wise conclusion that the treasury department has arrived at in deciding to put about 65,000,000 of the dollar bills into circulation as one means of relieving the call for ones and to give the needed time for the seasoning of the ink on the latter. The life of a dollar bill is less than a year, but it is extended through a proper seasoning following the printing.

There cannot be, and there is no reason to suppose that there will be, any real opposition to the two dollar bills. The one great scramble will be to get enough of them and for those who are carrying much money with them it is preferable to have 50 of the twos to 100 of the ones. There will be much satisfaction expressed over the fact that the two dollar bills are to be put out in increased number.

CONNECTICUT INVENTIONS

Of course Connecticut accepts with pride the submission of statistics which go to prove that it is the leader of the good old U. S. A. in its inventive ability. But there is contained in that information only what has long since been established. The Nutmeg state has long since been the commonwealth where inventive genius has been encouraged and developed.

Connecticut was made up of old Yankee stock, but Connecticut is a manufacturing state and long has been. Its manufactures cover a wide range and those engaged in manufacture are invariably devoting more or less thought for the betterment of their products. They employ men for that purpose, and the example of their study is not lost upon others. It develops thinking along many lines and in many directions. There is a study of one device which may result in a decided improvement. It isn't always the old inventor who gets it. Inventing is more or less contagious. There's a fascination about it. It is a great brain exerciser. That means much to the manufacturing business.

Known as the land of Yankee ingenuity, Connecticut bids fair to cling to its distinction for some time to come if we are to judge by the figures for the past year showing that one of every 1052 of the population was granted a patent, while for the entire country the ratio was one to every 2,646.

The distinction gives cause for much satisfaction but it is to be hoped that with the changing conditions as to population the inventive ability will not decline but continue to stand at the same high level. Inventors of Connecticut are not to be measured entirely by those who have received patents for there are many with meritorious accomplishments who have never sought patent protection.

SHIPPING BOARD BIDS

By the refusal of the shipping board to accept the highest of the bids for the 200 vessels put up to bids for scrapping, two things are apparent. It means that the board must eventually get enough for those ships to offset the bids, and the added expense which the care of them entails, or else it sees its way to getting such results through the delayed Ford bid.

The term of the high bid for scrapping did not satisfy the board. It was the purpose of the company to salvage all that was possible from the ships in the way of engineers and boilers and put them on the market. The effect of such action upon business did not meet with the approval of the board. Its idea was to have all of the vessels go to the scrap heap.

This will increase the interest relative to the bids made for the vessels by Henry Ford. Just what those terms are have not been disclosed. Inasmuch as further bids will have to be sought it would not have been fair to reveal what could not be judged along with the other bids. It is not said whether the bid exceeded the others, but it is fair to infer that it did since the chairman of the board seems to be favorably impressed by it, and particularly that feature, which he mentions, concerning the disposition of that material derived from the vessels in Mr. Ford's plants. Perhaps this will cause the board to be a bit more definite in the next bids as to what it means by "scrapping."

Whatever becomes of the ships it is evident that it is taking longer to get rid of them than it did to construct them.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Dayton, Tenn., seems to have outdistanced Cave City, Ky., in the matter of publicity.

Selectman Murray is to be congratulated for the elimination of "crossing the bumps" on Laurel Hill bridge.

The man on the corner says: "It would be a great time for a convention of hand organ men and monkeys in Tennessee.

Offering something to the Riffs which they are expected to decline doesn't indicate much more than a waste of time.

In spite of efficiency methods it is not possible to put an automobile together as fast as it can be taken apart at a railroad crossing.

Boston may well wonder how many more buildings within its limits are in the condition the Pickwick club building was. Inspection that doesn't inspect prevents nothing.

Those who are disposed to spend in advance the money they will save by federal tax cutting next year might make a better showing if they waited to learn what the cut is going to be.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

For the summer use tan linen for covers and luncheons in your dining room. They look much cooler than the more elaborate linens.

Several old newspapers tied together in a bundle make a useful pad to place under the knees when weeding in the garden.

Gasoline will quickly remove paint or varnish from the hands. Put a little on a cloth and rub on the paint spots.

Scrub your garbage pail with salt soda and rince with boiling water once a day.

When baking a sponge cake it is better not to grease the pan but line it with ungreased paper.

To slice hard boiled eggs perfectly without crumbling use a knife dipped in boiling water and wipe dry.

Always save cooked peas, carrots, beets, string beans and almost any cold vegetable to combine in salads.

Sponge cakes and angel food are much better for having both the flour and sugar sifted separately several times.

Always scald a mouse-trap after a mouse has been caught in it. They will not step in it if they smell where their kind has been.

A soft pastry-brush will reach the most difficult corners of an electric toaster and brush out the most elusive crumbs.

A piece of adhesive plaster put on the inside of a thimble will make it fit if it is too large.

Keep a small dish or can lid on the stove or a shelf to lay cooking spoons on.

When painting moldings, hold a piece of heavy cardboard under the molding so that the paint that drops from the brush will not spatter on the wall.

FOODS ABSORB PUNGENT ODORS

The advantage of putting food in its proper place immediately after it comes from the store is two-fold: Aside from the fact that confusion, friction and disorder abound when things are out of place harmful results may also be effected. Fresh meat, vegetables and fruits lose much of their flavor if permitted to remain in a warm room, and butter absorbs pungent odors very readily. For these reasons it is obvious that these articles of food, especially, should be placed in the refrigerator or in a cool place as soon as possible after bringing into the house.

If the dry groceries come in cartons they can be put away in these. It is sometimes cheaper to buy them in bulk, and in this case containers should be supplied to hold them and exclude the air. Labels pasted on these containers will save much time when one is in a hurry.

BAKED CRACKERS

To serve with soup, split common crackers and spread with butter, allowing one-fourth of a teaspoon of butter to each half cracker. Bake until they are delicately brown.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

In treating facial wrinkles once or twice a week is enough in most cases. The massage should be very gentle, so as not to stretch the skin. An astringent lotion should be used daily. Attention to general health is an intrinsic part of the treatment.

Not all of us can afford an expensive operation to alter the shape of our noses. Since the kind of this feature is composed of cartilages and muscle, it can be improved by massage. A nose support, such as is advertised in many women's magazines, may be worn at night to help train the nose on classic lines.

Rubbing a little white vaseline over the edge of the skin at the base of the nail every night will keep the cuticle pushed back into shape so that it can be easily cut. But a little faithful care in using a preparation which is made to avoid cutting it will in the end give the best results of all. Then when it is fully trained, whatever dead skin remains can be quickly wiped away, and lo, there are beautiful, smooth cuticles with no ragged edges to bother about.

Here is a good tonic for dry hair to be applied once a week: Two ounces white vaseline, two ounces lanolin, one and one-half teaspoons flower of sulphur; ten grains sulphate of quinine. Divide the hair into a number of small strands and apply the salve to the scalp. After the scalp has been well covered wring out a towel in hot water and wrap it firmly around the head. Leave on until cool. Use only pure castile soap for the shampoo. Massage for five or ten minutes every day.

BRUSHING THE HAIR

The correct way to brush is with even, steady strokes up away from the scalp, every stroke touching the scalp as if to make the hair stand on end and then long sweeping strokes down again to polish. Brushes should be kept clean as you hope your son's character will be. The bristles should be flexible. A very stiff brush is a lot of fun to use, but it doesn't polish and it doesn't cleanse and it very often irritates the scalp. It is false economy, as most of you know, to buy a cheap brush. A good one lasts for years. When you brush the hair, use a towel, and about every five strokes wipe the brush on the towel. You'll see how much brushing cleanses. Wash the brush in good, warm soapy water, swishing it up and down, rinse in cold water thoroughly, dry quickly in the sun or in a current of air. Never use artificial heat and never stand a brush on its bristles.—The Delineator.

VOGUE IN HANDKERCHIEFS

New handkerchiefs are particularly dainty, being fashioned from linen centers, six or seven inches square, with colored net footing from an inch to one and one-half inches wide. The most effective handkerchiefs are those developed in white linen with colored net footing and drawn threads and embroidery to match. The edges of the linen are rolled, the corners rounded and cross stitched and the footing put on straight with a slight fullness at the corners. A variety of designs may be worked out with drawn threads, tiny embroidered roses, baskets, etc.

DICTATES OF FASHION

The circled skirt panels are one of the new ways introduced as a means of varying the straight silhouette.

As the fall approaches Dame Fashion will be found to have given notice that the velvet hat of bright colors is to be worn.

Envelope bags made of colored raffia are again to the front. The bags solve the ever-recurring problem of what to carry with light summer clothes.

Extremely simple styles are predicted as the smart thing in gloves for the season, the slip-on type of fine suede being most favored.

Taffeta and chiffon dresses with very bouffant skirts come in eyelet-men, faded pink, lavender and in combinations of blue and pink and black and pink.

New parasols to ward off the rays of the sun while sitting on the beach are of gay cretonne and while moderate in size have the short stubby handle that is so smart.

A stunning dressing gown light enough in weight to be an excellent choice for midsummer wear is made of polka-dotted foulard with a China blue background and dots of white. The smartest coats for late spring are the tailored models of black taffeta made on lines suggested by the Prince of Wales' top-coat. Frequently the collar is of velvet and sometimes there is a lining of kasha in a natural shade.

On summer dresses the revers are carried out in self-material, in tartan, printed voile, foulard or white linen edged with embroidery. The jabots are of great variety and originality. Even on tailored suits scarves are pinned to one side of the coat to give a jabot effect.

Bouffant lines display the flowered materials best. As a variation of most bouffant models one frock has a flat front panel and the new square neck line. Another shows the lines of the coat dress taken over into evening most effectively.

Since the ensemble idea has taken femininity by storm, what formerly was known as the coat dress is known merely as the ensemble dress. One model was fashioned of printed silk and was more than interesting with vest front and slit skirt panels.

MUSHROOM HAT HERE

What more appropriate than a mushroom hat on a boiling day? Perhaps that is responsible for the vogue for straws of the mushroom shape, which are exceeding their immigration quota in this country from England at the present time. These hats are of woven hemp and trimmed with a wide band of velvet tied in full bow at the side or swathed with a bright colored georgette. The hemp weave lends itself readily to many color combinations.

BEAD NECKLACES STYLISH

Carved ivory and wooden bead necklaces are considered good style and are often selected to match the color of a frock. A novelty in necklaces is shown with pendant several inches long formed of a succession of beads linked together, tipped with an ornament. In Paris they are wearing the necklace around the throat in front, with the loops or pendant at the back.

SEWING HINTS

When stitching thin lawn, silk or net, slip a piece of paper under the material and stitch through it. When the stitching is finished, the paper can be torn away and will leave no trace.

When making a pincushion if a piece of cardboard the length of the cushion is inserted in the center needles will not be lost in the cushion and the cardboard will help to keep the cushion in shape.

To hem a circular piece of linen, make the size wanted by drawing a faint line in pencil, say the side of a plate. Now, for the hem allow twice what your fold outside your line pencil needs. On the fold of that overcast in fine stitches, but loose enough to pull, turn your other fold on the line of marking and draw up your thread. There's your hem flat, ready to be stitched. Now you wish your bedroom curtains to look fresh and unwrinkled for a considerable length of time put a small dress hook in the lower corner of each curtain and an eye about half way up the curtain. At night when the windows are open the curtains may be fastened back with the hook and eye and cannot blow out of the window.

SILK AND YARN SWEATERS

A hand-knitted sweater of yarn mixed with silk threads is one of the latest attractive imports from Germany. The sweater is a slip-on with a purled V-neck. Purling also finishes the cuffs and bottom of the sweater. Two cunning little ducks, which may be put on with a cross stitch, adorn the front and are the only design. The set is completed by a pair of white stockings, knitted plain, with little ducks worked into the border.

FOR CABIN OR BUNGALOW

Quaint little ash receivers of gay peasant pottery are adapted to the informality of a country house living room and the soft subdued colorings fit into almost any scheme of decoration.

CLEANING RUGS

India grass rugs can be cleaned by scrubbing with boiling water in which a handful of bran and a tablespoon of soap powder have been dissolved. Rinse the rugs in clean water and hang them in fresh air to dry.

UNUSUAL WALLPAPER SCREENS

Tall screens made of gay wallpapers which have been so treated that they resemble old vellum are remarkably effective in a living room or to place in front of the door going into the pantry from the dining room.

TELEPHONE AIDS

A luxurious adjunct to the very necessary telephone is an address and telephone number book made of Chinese brocade with an inset of carved white jade. The effect is truly lovely.

EASILY MATCHED

A cheap basket hung from the rafters of the cellar is nice to hold pieces of leftover wallpaper. It is wise to save some of each paper used in the house. Then you are prepared for any emergency.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Girls of 12 years of age may legally wed in a number of states.

Dr. Mabel Elliott of the Women's Medical college hospital, Philadelphia, has been selected as head of the public health department of the American hospital at Tokio, Japan.

As a result of the recent election, the number of women members in the Montana legislature has been reduced from four to one.

Among the women engaged in administrative work in England and Wales are one lord mayor, five mayors and nearly 900 magistrates.

With a proposal of marriage for every year of her 18 years of life, Margaret Hepburn of Jamaica, L. I., is planning a party and will invite all her suitors with the view of looking them over.

Sixteen-year-old Vallie Griffith, a senior in the Burlington (N. C.) high school, is one of the champion pupils in the United States. For the entire 11 years of her school career, approximately 2,000 consecutive school days, she has a perfect attendance record.

CUSHIONS FOR SUMMER PORCH

Wide striped linens in the gayest colorings make excellent covering for cushions for the swinging seat or the veranda chairs.

SALT VS. SOOT

When soot is tracked into the room and forms an apparently hopeless spot on the rug, sprinkle the spots liberally with salt and then sweep up. The soot will come with the salt.

RECIPES

Frozen Strawberries and Cream: Add one cup of sugar to one-half cup of water, place over the fire and stir until the boiling point is reached. Wash, drain and hull one quart of choice strawberries, add berries to the syrup, heat again to the boiling point and let boil five minutes. Add one teaspoon of gelatine that has been softened in two tablespoons of cold water and let mixture cool; then chill on ice. Turn into a freezer and half freeze; then add one cup of triple cream that has been beaten until stiff while gradually adding one third cup sugar. Finish freezing, serve in tall stemmed glasses and garnish each portion with an unhulled strawberry.

Strawberry Coupe: To one cup of triple cream add three tablespoons of sugar and one half teaspoon of orange extract; beat cream until stiff. Wash, hull and drain dry one box of strawberries. Pick out some of the large choicest berries and cut them in halves lengthwise. Mash and press remaining berries through a strainer. To pulp add one and one-half cups of sugar; stir until sugar is dissolved and chill on ice. When ready to serve, put a tablespoon of syrup into each tall stemmed glass and set a ball-shape portion of strawberry or vanilla ice cream above syrup; pipe a frill of the the whipped cream over the ice cream, pour over another tablespoon of strawberry syrup, and garnish each portion with four or five halves of strawberries, cut side out. Serve at once.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Montgomery Repeats

Mr. Editor: Neither John Troland nor Albert Boardman appears to understand my recent letter to the Bulletin. The fact remains that none of the letters of Panizzoli, Poreda or Quimet get us anywhere, neither do they change any man's views, and no one knows it better than John Troland. Albert Boardman shows his gross ignorance of affairs in Tennessee when he says the bigoted Baptist and Methodist, etc. and loses sight of the fact that it is not the Baptist bigot but the great Presbyterian denomination, headed by the monarch of all American Presbyterians, W. J. Bryan, that is persecuting and prosecuting a teacher who dares teach the theory of evolution without which their would be no Americanism.

John Troland says "One must be very obtuse who has failed to have obtained information" etc. The fact here is that not one line of information has appeared in any of the letters; it is the same old story be it false or be it true that has been told for centuries and I repeat has no part in the forward march of the genuine American idea. When Albert Boardman says, referring to me, "he seems to think that dollars are the only things worth using," etc. I wish to say so plainly that Mr. Boardman will not misunderstand me that he makes a flat false statement and cannot in any line of any article ever written by me and I have written some in the past 53 years, find where I have ever put the dollar above the idea), as he sees fit to call it.

Albert Boardman does not have the least idea what 100 per cent. American means. His short letter proves that fact. The Americanism of a Lincoln, a Cleveland, a Roosevelt, a Harding, or a Coolidge does not recognize dollars, does not recognize religion bigotry, does not in any way turn backward but ever onward.

Charles Carrol of Carrolton the Irish Catholic who signed his name and address to the Declaration of Independence was a 100 per cent. American. Crispus Attucks, the black negro who gave up his life for American liberty before any other living man, was a 100 per cent. American. General Richard Montgomery the first American general killed, a Presbyterian in religion, was a 100 per cent. American. Lord Baltimore, the Roman Catholic founder of Maryland, was a 100 per cent. American. George Washington, the Englishman, was a 100 per cent. American. Bob Ingersoll, the infidel, was a 100 per cent. American. None of them recognized in any way the dollar above anything else and all of them were of one mind—"Let every man worship God according to the dictates of Boardman to the contrary notwithstanding.

C. B. Montgomery does not belong in Tennessee, and there is not a man woman or child that ever lived where C. B. Montgomery has lived that has not always found him ready to divide not only his last dollars but last meal also with any one in need. Albert Boardman to the contrary notwithstanding.

In regard to John Troland's statement, I can truly say, and John Troland knows it, that there is no evidence whatever of any search or research. It's the same old story told over and over again by two opposite parties who delight in telling the same old yarn just as all true Americans have heard it without any interest whatever for a century at least. I trust I have succeeded in what I started out to do and that is to draw a little attention away from religious arguments that get us no where and that have never yet in nearly 2,000 years changed any one from his belief.

A Reply to Mr. Boardman

Mr. Editor: Will you publish in letters to the Editor column just a few words in reply to A. Boardman's statement. Any man who receives a living by 100 per cent. Americans or church-going people in general and knocks the same, or who has no religion or no American patriotic sentiments is bound to be judged accordingly.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Stephen S. Wise, who has been selected by the Zionist organization of America as its representative in the World Zionist congress to be held in Vienna next month, is a noted Jewish rabbi of New York City, who has exercised much influence in social, civic and religious affairs. A native of Hungary, he came to America while a lad, was graduated from Columbia when 20 years of age and the following year became pastor of the Madison avenue synagogue in New York City, whose large congregation he insisted on serving without salary. Much of his time not given to synagogue work has been devoted to social settlement activities and to purifying politics. During the war Rabbi Wise obtained employment in a shipyard as a laborer because of his belief that men who could not enter the military or naval service ought to contribute their labor to essential industries.

Stories That Recall Others

Local Color

A pageant was being given and several Bible scenes were being enacted. One of them represented the nativity and the manger scene.

Just as the curtain was being drawn, a rather distant automobile horn out on the street was blown. An imaginative woman with a party of friends heard this and a pleased smile illuminated her face. "Now isn't that clever of these pageant people!" she exclaimed, in a voice heard several feet away, "Having a cow moo offstage in order to get the proper atmosphere of the manger!"

A Gallant Rebuff

Benny, age seven, was always mixed up in fist fights with other youngsters of his town. His mother made several futile efforts to get him to stop. Finally she told him whenever he felt an inclination to fight it was the devil tempting him, and he should say, "Get thee behind me, satan."

A few days later the little boy rushed into the house and said breathlessly: "Mamma, them boys down there tried to get me to fight, but I just said: 'Get from behind me, satan,' and then ran home to you."

From Small Beginnings

Clement Fallieres, President of France

Pah! He is a peasant! Who would soil his sword with the blood of a peasant?" In such a way one of the French nobility is represented as speaking in Charles Dickens' story of the French Revolution, A Tale of Two Cities. The French lord who speaks has been attacked by one of the peasants, whom he kills in self-defense. The haughty lord is ashamed that he has stained his sword with peasant blood. What would such a person have said could he have looked into the future and seen upon the chair of government in France, not a member of the old nobility but one of peasant family and peasant traditions, Clement Fallieres—at the head of France, not by the divine right of the kings but by the divine right of the people!

In the French Revolution a new day for France rose, and finally, after the backward turn to the Bourbons and to Napoleon III, there came the French Republic, of which Clement Fallieres was the eighth President. "Where did his people come from?" one asked at his inauguration. "From the land where the floods are. From the old region of the Garonne," came the answer. That indeed was the section of France from which came the family of Clement Fallieres. From the region of the Garronne, too, be it remembered, came those famous Girondists, in the days of the French Revolution, men who at one time mastered the mobs and who a little later went singing to the guillotine.

From the humble peasant stock that tilled the fertile fields of the great, well-watered region of the Garonne the young man sprang. From the first he loved books. Then he devoted himself to the study of law, and began to speak in public. He was an ardent patriot and a forceful speaker who was not afraid to make himself heard. "The Royalists are coming back into power," a man said to him one day when there was indeed royalist plotting in France. "Not while I live," he said. Such a man rose beyond a mere office. He became a town official, then a Deputy, finally president of the senate, and in 1906 president of the French republic.

In Prairie Dog Town

We all work for the common good,
As everybody always should.
—Yap Yap the Prairie Dog.

Digger the Badger sat with a far-away look in his eyes. Peter knew without being told that in his imagination, Digger was seeing his old home in the Far West. Peter wished that he could see what Digger was seeing.

"A Prairie Dog town is a lively place," said Digger. "Yap Yap is social. He and his relatives and friends do a lot of visiting back and forth. But with all their love of visiting they never forget that danger is likely to appear at any moment. So always they have some watchman on duty."

"I suppose you mean," said Peter, "that there is always some one sitting up and looking this way and that way for danger."

Digger nodded. "That's just it," said he. "And when one of those Prairie Dogs is sitting up on one of those mounds it is hard work for any one to get anywhere near without being seen. Goodness knows, I've tried it enough times. If there had been only one watchman I would have succeeded sometimes, but always there were many scattered all through the town, and one or another of them was sure to see me."

"What happened then?" asked Peter.

Digger grinned. "I went without my dinner," said he, "or my breakfast or my supper, whichever it happened to be. The one who saw me would give the alarm and each one of the other watchmen would take it up in turn and Yap Yap and all his friends who were visiting would scamper for their homes. A moment later they would all pop their heads out, and then such a scolding and yapping you never have heard. It used to take smart hunters to get a Prairie Dog dinner, excepting in the case of Blackfoot the Ferret. All he had to do was to make sure of a home which was being lived in, and go right in. Some of the Coyote family were occasionally successful, but it took two of them to do it. I never had any one to work with me."

Peter had pricked up his ears at the mention of the Coyotes. "How," he asked, "did the Coyotes work it?"

Digger the Badger pretended not to hear. "When I said that only Blackfoot the Ferret got his meals easily," said he. "Of course, Buzztail never had much trouble in getting a Prairie Dog meal whenever he felt like it. He has plenty of patience. Besides he doesn't eat as often as some of the rest of us."

"But how did the Coyotes work together?" persisted Peter.

Again Digger appeared not to hear. "A lot of people seem to think that the Burrowing Owl, who lives in Prairie Dog town depends on young Prairie Dogs for his food. I suppose he does get one occasionally, but for the most part he lives on grasshoppers and crickets, with some mice and ground squirrels," said Digger. "As a matter of fact the Prairie Dogs are not much afraid of him. Those Owls sometimes give the alarm. Are any Owls around here, Peter, which live in holes in the ground?"

Peter shook his head. "I've never heard of any," said he. "But tell me, Mr. Badger, about how those Coyotes work together. Please do."

"Oh, did you want to know about that?" asked Digger, pretending to be much surprised.

MORE HUMANE PRIVILEGES IN RUSSIAN PRISON

MOSCOW, July 13.—(AP) Prison life in Russia has greatly improved since the grim days of the Bolshevik revolution. A much more humane regime has replaced the terroristic methods which accompanied the change from a monarchical to a democratic regime. From the hardened murderer down to the inoffensive looking youth accused of theft, prisoners eat, sleep mingle together and share the same daily conditions of prison life. Criticism is chiefly directed at the slender quantity of food and lack of outdoor exercise.

Only in the cases of the most dangerous criminal prisoners are found such things as stone cells, iron bars and solitary confinement. All others, even political prisoners, are given large, well-lighted, tidy rooms with iron cots, and a single blanket for a covering. In most cases these rooms are not even barred, and the inmates are free to mingle among themselves. Very little work is provided and the prisoners, therefore, are free to indulge their hobbies, to smoke, play cards, read and have the freest use of musical instruments (their own) and other forms of entertainment.

American films have popularized the American bungalow, with its built-in furniture and many modern living conveniences, to the people of Brazil. Forty-five per cent of the new dwellings going up in Sao Paulo, Brazil, at the present time, are copied from the California product. The only difficulty encountered is the general absence of a servant's room: all middle class Brazilians have servants, due to the cheapness of labor.

NO LONGER need evenings be spoiled or sleep ruined by mosquitoes.

Flit spray clears the house in a few minutes of mosquitoes and disease-bearing flies. It is clean, easy and safe to use.

Kills Household Insects

Flit spray also destroys bed bugs, roaches, ants, and insect eggs. The cracks and crevices where insects hide and breed are readily reached by Flit spray. Spraying Flit on garments kills moths and their larvae which eat holes. Extensive tests showed that Flit did not stain or injure the most delicate fabrics.

A Scientific General Insecticide

Flit is the result of exhaustive research by expert entomologists and chemists. More than 70 formulas were tested on various household insects before Flit was finally perfected. Flit is a 100% effective insecticide containing no inactive (inert) ingredients.

Lemons Tighten Wrinkled Skin

Squeeze the juice of two lemons in a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents, shake well and you have the very mildest anti-wrinkle lotion to tighten relaxed skin; erase fine lines and eradicate crow's-feet.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion into the skin at night. By morning most of the tell-tale wrinkles, tired lines and crows-feet are smoothed out, giving a more youthful contour to cheeks, chin, throat. It leaves the skin velvety soft, clear and fresh.

Beauty experts use this astringent lotion for enlarged pores, also to clear and whiten sallow, tanned skin.

Mix this harmless lotion yourself since it acts best immediately after procured.

LAFAYETTE MAIN WILL INSIST ON JURY TRIAL

Suit has been brought against Lafayette Main of North Stonington by Attorney Thomas M. Shields to collect his fees of $75 for legal services. The writ was returnable before Justice of the Peace John B. Barnes, who gave a hearing at his office in the Chapman building, where Attorney H. H. Pettis, counsel for the plaintiff, Thomas H. Shields, Lafayette Main, and several witnesses were present.

Before the hearing got underway, Lafayette Main made a motion for a trial by jury in which he says: "The defendant moves that a jury of six be summoned to try the above titled case," the defendant, Lafayette Main.

By agreement of all parties present, Justice Barnes set the date for a hearing on the matter with a jury until Aug. 21, 1925, at 10 o'clock at the justice's office. Lafayette Main appears as his own counsel in the matter so far.

Deputy Sheriff Oscar Main served the legal papers upon Lafayette Main.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Michael O'Brien

Following a lingering illness the death of Margaret O'Brien, widow of Michael O'Brien, occurred at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon at her home No. 34 Roath street. Mrs. O'Brien was born in Limerick, Ireland, but had spent practically all of her life in Norwich where she had many friends who will learn of her death with sorrow.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. John McGrath of Norwich, and Mrs. Robert McCloud of Ilion, N. Y., also several grand children and great grandchildren.

Michael Delaney

Following an illness of some time the death of Michael Delaney occurred Friday night at 10:30 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Walter W. Lang of 23 Winchester street, with whom he had resided in recent years.

Mr. Delaney was born in Ireland, the son of Charles and Johanna Cuddy Delaney. He came to this country about 60 years ago and had spent practically all his life in Norwich. Most of his active business life was spent in the old paper mill in Greeneville, but he had been a retired life for a number of years.

In 1868 he was united in marriage at the old St. Mary's church by Rev. Daniel Mullen and at the time of his death was a member of St. Patrick's parish. Surviving are his daughter, Mrs. Walter W. Lang of Norwich, a son, Charles H. Delaney of New York city; two sisters, Mrs. William Campion of Norwich and Mrs. Jeremiah Sheehan of New Rochelle, N. Y., nieces and nephews and six grandchildren of Norwich.

Miss Helen Gilmore

Miss Helen Gilmore, 62, of Colchester, died late Friday night at the Hartford hospital where she had been taken for treatment for blood poisoning. Some time ago, while tacking a piece of flypaper, Miss Gilmore cut a finger with one of the tacks. She did not give any attention to the bruise. Infection set in and she summoned a physician, who ordered her removed to a hospital. Infection had taken too firm a hold, however, and she was unable to recover.

Miss Gilmore was a life long resident of Colchester. She was a trained nurse by occupation. She leaves three brothers, Robert Gilmore of New Haven, David Gilmore, of Providence, R. I., and George Gilmore of Colchester.

Maurice J. King.

Maurice J. King, 65, died at his home in Colchester Friday evening after an illness of several months. He was born in Colchester, Sept. 10, 1859, the son of Cornelius and Margaret Clifford King. He was educated in the public schools of the town and later took up the occupation of farming, in which business he was engaged up to the time of his illness. He is survived by a sister, Miss Hannah King, of Colchester.

Capt. John F. Chapman

Capt. John F. Chapman, 67, died at his home in Eastern Point at 3 o'clock Saturday morning after an illness extending over a period of four months. Captain Chapman was prominent among the older fishermen of Groton, having been actively engaged in the fishing business for about 53 years. He started fishing when but a small boy and his work during the many years brought him into contact with many people. About four months ago his health began to fail and a month later he was obliged to retire.

Captain Chapman was born in Groton. He was the son of Jeanette Perkins and Albert Chapman. Although his work caried him to distant parts, Captain Chapman always made his home in Groton. He is survived by two brothers, Moses Chapman and Elias Chapman, both of Groton, and several nieces and nephews.

FOUR MEN STRUCK BY LIGHTNING, ONE KILLED UNDER BOAT AT BLACK POINT

One of four young Finlanders, who had been out fishing off Black Point, Niantic, Sunday afternoon, was instantly killed by lightning and the others were rendered unconscious when a boat on the beach under which they had taken refuge from the storm was struck by a bolt of lightning.

The name of the dead man could not be learned as none of the officials connected with the case had secured it, owing to the difficulty of talking to members of his family in English. The dead man is about 19 years old and has lived in Niantic only a short time. It is understood that his father lives in New York.

The four young men were out fishing when the thunderstorm came on about 4 o'clock. They rowed ashore and turned their boat over on the beach, all getting under it to keep out of the rain, which was accompanied by hail. A crashing bolt of lightning singled out their boat for its target and left one of the party dead and the others unconscious.

Dr. F. A. Dart, medical examiner, and First Selectman F. A. Beckwith went to Black Point when they were notified of the fatality and the medical examiner gave the selectman permission to take the body to the Prentiss undertaking room in New London. The dead man was wearing a bathing suit.

One of the other men, who became violently delirious was taken to the Lawrence Memorial hospital in New London and the other two were taken to their home in Niantic. One of them had partially recovered consciousness late Sunday night but the other remained unconscious.

ARESTED LEO BARR FOR TAKING AUTOMOBILE

Leo Barr, 21, of this city, who uses crutches to get about with but is able to drive an automobile, is under arrest at Norwich police headquarters charged with taking an automobile without permission of the owner, C. V. Pendleton.

Barr was arrested near the Plainfield depot late Sunday afternoon by State Policeman Whitmarsh after the officer had located a machine from Pendleton's garage, that Barr has had in his control since last Wednesday. On the afternoon of that day, Barr induced one of Mr. Pendleton's employes let him take the car out by falsely representing that he had Mr. Pendleton's permission to show the car to a prospective customer. All trace of the car and driver was lost until Saturday when Mr. Pendleton learned that Barr had bought a tire in Pachaug and had it charged to Pendleton. A warrant for Barr's arrest was sworn out Saturday.

TOOK COUNTY HOME CHILDREN TO BEACH

Over fifty children from the county home, in charge of Matron Miss Jessie Gibson, were treated to an outing Saturday at Ocean Beach, by members of Nemrod Grotto.

Machines furnished by members of the Grotto, in charge of Elmer Johnson, chairman of the entertainment committee, left the city about 1 o'clock and at the beach the children were provided with entertainment to their hearts content. Every member of the party received, numerous favors, including flags, horns, rattlers, etc., and there was ice cream and drinks for them. The party returned home late in the afternoon, the children voicing appreciation to the Grotto members for the delightful outing at the shore.

C. F. NOYES LEAVES FOR MONTH IN EUROPE

The New York Herald-Tribune, of Sunday, said:

Charles F. Noyes left last Friday for Havre on the France. He will be away until the middle of August. Mr. Noyes has decided that this is an opportune time to leave the market "uncovered." He has been an active man all year. The reports of his company for the fiscal year showed a business total of $55,000,000. According to a statement issued following the sale of the Huntington corner to D. A. Schulte's company for $4,000,000 that was the eighth Fifth avenue property he had sold this year. In view of this it seems that Mr. Noyes might relax for a month in Europe. There are so many operators now traveling on the continent it is possible that he may be compelled to change desires and lay foundations for a few deals to be built up and completed when he returns to New York.

NORWICH DOG WINS THREE PRIZES AT SHOW

In the recent New London county kennel club dog show licensed by the American kennel club, Tiger Tom A. K. C. No. 460, 455 one of Sterrill M. Chase's high bred police dogs brought three ribbons to Norwich. Tiger Tom, who serves as mail dog at the Chase Cliff kennels, was entered in three classes, and took fourth place in the American breed, third place in the novice, and third place in the local. In the novice class with ten entries, Tiger Tom, went ahead of such dogs as Westridge Kennels' famous stud dog, Wood's Night Wrangler, Miss Eveleth A. Chappelle's Prince Etel von Heidetor, and others.

In the local class, Tiger Tom, placed ahead of such dogs as Mrs. Daisy S. Duggan's Sandy Boy of Fox Farm and Argus V. Heckengarten dog, and George A. Chagnon's Arno Von Charan.

THROWN THROUGH WINDSHIELD IN GALES FERRY CRASH

R. G. Clark of Willetts avenue, New London, was thrown through the windshield of his Ford runabout when it was in collision about 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Brown's Crossing, Gales Ferry, on the military highway, with the touring car of Mr. Carney of 705 Howard avenue, New Haven.

Mr. Clark was taken to the sick bay at the submarine base for treatment for a cut on his head, later going to his home. His car was taken to a Groton garage, having the front end badly smashed.

Mr. Carney was on his way to make a visit at the Norwich state hospital and was able to proceed after state policemen had made an investigation of the accident. His machine had a damaged mudguard and fender. The two cars were traveling in opposite directions at the time of the crash.

THREE AUTOMOBILE CASES BEFORE CITY COURT

The case of Phillip Cormier of 265 Prospect street, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, was continued until today (Tuesday), when it came up in the city court Saturday morning. Bonds were set at $500 and were furnished.

John J. Vassett of Central Park, R. I. charged with driving an automobile with Connecticut registration, with a Rhode Island driver's license, had his case nolled. Vassett was visiting relatives in Greenville, and had borrowed the car for a ride. An accident led to the discovery of the Rhode Island license and his subsequent notice to appear in court.

The case of Thomas Filion, charged with speeding, was nolled, and after a man paid $5 for violating parking laws, court adjourned for the day.

Visited Tobyhanna Camp.

John J. Riley, William Pelace and Robert Woodmansee returned Saturday from a trip to Montreal in Mr. Woodmansee's machine. On the way they visited the Norwich boys in the field artillery camp at Camp Tobyhanna, Tobyhanna, Pa.

SAYS MORE PLAYGROUNDS WOULD SAVE CHILDREN

If a city will provide more playgrounds for its children fewer youngsters will be killed by automobiles. That adequate playgrounds actually do prevent accidents is the declaration of Earl J. Reeder, of the National Safety council, who has made a series of traffic surveys in various communities to ascertain what causes accidents and what can be done to cut down the terrific loss of life and limb. Mr. Reeder is confident that the lives of most of the 25,000 boys and girls who have been killed while in the streets during the past five years could have been conserved if those children had been properly instructed regarding the necessity of caution and if there had been recreation centers for their use.

"Observations in several community safety surveys have indicated a distinct relation between the location of playgrounds and child automobile fatalities," says Mr. Reeder in his report. "This is particularly true where effective supervision of playgrounds is provided and where playgrounds are properly located with respect to heavily traveled streets.

"Authorities claim that playgrounds will draw children under 6 years of age within a circle of a quarter mile radious and children from 6 to 13 years within a half mile radius. Where however, heavily traveled streets traverses these areas children may not be expected to cross such streets for playground facilities. This difficulty has been overcome, in some cases, by providing block patrols of older children to accompany the younger one to and from the grounds.

"Playgrounds should not be placed adjacent to through traffic streets. Likewise, such through traffic streets running parallel and only a few blocks apart should have one or more playgrounds between them in densely populated residential districts.

"Children must play. If they have not the space and facilities for recreation at home, on neighbors' residential property or in properly supervised playgrounds, conveniently situated, they will either romp in the streets or in such positions upon limited spaces adjacent to the streets that they will have many occasions to run into the danger zone of vehicular traffic. Properly located supervised playgrounds furnish the means for such play in safety."

JUDGMENT FOR PLAINTIFF IN SUIT OVER LOANS

Judgment of $137.84 was entered for the plaintiff by Judge Charles B. Waller in court of common pleas at New London Saturday, in the case of The New England Iron and Metal Co. against Frank Armstrong of New London.

The plaintiff sued for $250 damages, alleging that on or before May 13, 1925, the plaintiff made loans to the defendant, amounting to $200.

Osteopath Makes High Marks.

All six of the students of osteopathy, who took the state examinations, given in the Capitol, June 25 and 26, passed and some extraordinarily high grades were recorded, it was announced by Dr. Louis C. Kingsbury, chairman of the examining board. Miss Grace E Wilmot, of East Orange, N. J., received the highest marks in all the examinations except one, and also received a mark of 100 per cent. in gynecology. Miss Wilmot's 87 in pathology was beaten by C. Cattaneo's 90, the highest mark in the examination. He is from South Norwalk.

Included among thirteen who passed the state dental examinations, which permit them to practice dentistry in Connecticut, was Max Hertz of this city. Among nine women who passed the dental hygienist examination were Miss Esther Cramer of this city and Mrs. Elizabeth Wright of Putnam. Announcement of the results of the examinations has just been made.

SALEM SUIT SETTLED OVER BARN BURNED

The suit of Abraham Simonowitz, of Salem, vs. the L. Suzio Construction Co., of Meriden, which was assigned for trial in the common pleas court at New London, Saturday, was settled out of court.

The case was brought by the plaintiff for damages of $600, claimed as the result of a fire which destroyed his barn in Salem, together with six tons of hay.

According to the complaint, the plaintiff owned a barn at Willows corners in the town of Salem, the barn being valued at $300 and the hay at $150.

On Nov. 1, 1924, it was alleged that the defendant, its servants, and agents operated a steam roller in the Hadlyme road, during the course of repairs to the highway and that the barn was destroyed by fire, from sparks thrown from the steam roller belonging to and operated by the defendant, "due to the fact that the steam roller was defectively equipped, constructed and operated to permit large and unnecessary quantities of sparks, live cinders and coals of unusual and extraordinary size to be cast therefrom, owing to the fact that said roller, owned and operated by said defendant, its servants and agents, was carelessly and negligently operated, and, owing to the fact that said defendant, its servants and agents did not stop said steam roller from progressing on said highway while said sparks were leaping therefrom."

58 YEARS SERVICE WITH STEAMSHIP LINE

Alonzo R. Ashcraft of 63 Ramsdell street, Groton, first mate of the steamer Richard Peck, has been in the service of the Norwich-New London line since March, 1867. Recently a Boston paper stated that Cornelius McCarthy of Hingham had observed the 58th anniversary of his employment with the Nantasket Beach Steamship Co. on July 3, and termed him the oldest licensed mate in the country. However, Mr. Ashcraft has from March to July in his lead over Mate McCarthy.

Mr. McCarthy was mate on the first Nantasket line steamer that ran from Boston up the Weir river to Nantasket and was in charge of the workmen and engineers who marked out the channel for steamers.

On July 2, 1867, shortly after the Civil war, Mate McCarthy made his first trip. Since then he has seen the South Shore recreation spot developed from a barren waste of sand to a well populated community. The average day's travel was about 800 passengers a day when he entered the service and today it is more than 20,000.

In the winter when the steamboats are tied up in storage, he resides in the family homestead at Hingham with his two daughters.

Mate Ashcraft has also seen many changes in the more than 58 years of service, when as a youth in his teens, he began steamboating under the command of Horace C. Lanphear, one of the famous Sound captains in his day. He was doing a man's work before Capt. Edward Geer, former master of the Richard Peck, was born.

WEDDING

Tatum-Cutler

The largest social wedding of the season, thus far, in the summer colonies of New London and vicinity took place Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Galilee chapel, Groton, when a Brookline society girl, Miss Julia Cutler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Henderson Cutler, of Brookline and Eastern Point, was married to Johnson Ralph Tatum of Miami, Fla. Rev. Philip Markham Kerridge pastor of the St. James Episcopal church of New London, officiated. The double ring service was used. The church was tastefully decorated, a green and white color scheme being carried out.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. The maid of honor was Miss Alicia Kennedy of Brookline and the bride's attendants were Mrs. Leigh Liggett, Mrs. Harry Hunt, Mrs. Ralph Nickerson, Miss Annette North, all of Brookline; Mrs. Theron Miller, sister of the bridegroom, of Miami, and Miss Eleanor Judkins of New York. Conolee Tatum, brother of the bridegroom was the best man and Theron Miller, Horace Wright, Frederick Aufford J. Beebe Tatum and J. Wallace Parnell, all of Miami, and John Campbell of Boston were the ushers.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of white satin, made with a straight back and satin godets, embroidered in pearls, set in front. A long train of chiffon, falling from the shoulders, was finished with a wide border of white satin, embroidered with pearls, and caught up with orange blossoms. The veil of tulle was fan shaped and held in place with a band of pearls flat across her hair and fastened on each side with orange blossoms.

The maid of honor wore orchid chiffon trimmed with champagne lace. The gown had a tight bodice with a girdle and shoulder knot of flowers to match. She wore an orchid horsehair picture hat with one large orchid on the side and a broad champagne streamer, and slippers and stockings to match.

The bride's attendants wore hand painted flowered chiffon gowns, two of which were yellow, two pink and two flesh. Champagne colored horsehair picture hats trimmed with flowers, streamers to match the gowns, and champagne colored slippers and stockings completed their costume. Mrs. Cutler, mother of the bride, wore blond lace ensemble suit, trimmed with ostrich, and an orchid hat. Mrs Tatum, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gown of blond Venetian lace with hat to match.

Following the ceremony there was a large reception at the Cutler home at Eastern Point. A pink and white color scheme was carried out in the decorations. A large platform on the grounds of the house was used for dancing. The receiving line consisted of the bridal party.

The bride is a graduate of Miss Lee's school in Boston and of the Briarcliff school, Briarcliff, N. Y. She is an active member of the Brookline society group. Mr. Tatum is a graduate of the University of Florida and is secretary and treasurer of the First Mortgage and Bond company of Miami.

Mr. and Mrs. Tatum will motor to the White Mountains for a wedding trip. They will make their home in Miami.

BODY RECOVERED FROM CONNECTICUT RIVER

HARTFORD, July 12.—(A. P.)—The body of an unidentified man, thought to be an Italian, was recovered from the Connecticut river near the sand bar just north of the Willimantic railroad bridge early this evening. Charles Goodspeed of 17 Gilbert street, East Hartford, canoeing with his wife, saw the body floating on the surface and with the help of another canoeing party brought it ashore. He then phoned the state police who notified the Hartford police. Assistant Medical Examiner Howe pronounced death due to drowning.

TWILIGHT LEAGUE STARTS SIXTH TONIGHT WITH HALLVILLE VS PALACE

This Week's Twilight Games
Monday, Hallville vs. Palace.
Tuesday, Centrals vs. Nuggets.
Wednesday, Yantic vs. E. C. P.
Thursday, East Ends vs. St. Joseph's.

With a week of complete surprises behind them the twilight league swings into its sixth week tonight with three teams, the Centrals, Palace and Hallville tangled up in a hot race for the top rung of the ladder. Everyone must admit that the past week sure did give the dopesters an awful spill. First on Monday night with the East Ends the favorite, Lefty Harold, pitching for the Centrals, held the East Side boys well in hand and his team easily won 5 to 1 and retained the league leadership. On Thursday night after decorating the cellar for four weeks Mgr. Oney handed out another big surprise by presenting an entirely new team led by "Spike" Liberty, who held the Nuggets to two scattered hits and won the first game of the season for the Saints, starting what looks like an honest to goodness drive towards the top of the heap.

The real and big upset came Friday night as only a very small crowd was on hand to see Hallville turn the trick. It was a game well worth watching and was anybody's game until the last man was out. Another interesting feature was the opposing pitchers, Gaudette of the Centrals, not yet twenty-one with plenty of speed and confidence against Joe Cranker of Hallville, grayheaded and well along in years, with an assortment of slow curves and a wise old head on his shoulders.

Tonight those that missed the fireworks on Friday night will have a chance to see Mgr. Taylor lead his Hallville team against "Mike" Morin's Palace team. This game is without doubt the most important one of the week as one team or the other after tonight will have to drop out of first place and it's a sure bet that both teams will fight hard to stay on top.

Where Hallville has had only a fair following of fans, tonight the whole of Hallville and a large delegation from Baltic will turn out to see the team that beat the Centrals in action.

Almost overnight this little mill town from down below has been transformed from an ordinary slow-going village to a real live red hot town, everyone bubbling over with joy and all anxious to assist Mgr. Taylor and his boys in bringing a pennant to Hallville. Whatever they do for this hard working manager won't be too much as he has worked hard and no doubt spent many sleepless nights in putting his home town on the map.

While Hallville took the Centrals in tow it must be remembered that the Palace team is a very strong team losing their first game and since then have won three straight from the best in the league. Morin's team is composed mostly of youngsters, all promising baseball stars who are liable to

For the Palace either Mike Morin or Buck Shahan will do the pitching with Hamel behind the bat, Mulcahy will play first, Leo Morin second, Nap Simcox short and Chip Dugas third. In the outfield will be Johnny Shea, Joe Jackson and Long John Keenan or Eddie Moran recently of Trinity.

Mgr. Taylor refused to publish his lineup claiming that he surprised the Centrals and intends to duplicate against the Palace and tonight will present a team even stronger than last Friday's.

REDS PLAY MEMORIAL GAME IN FITCHBURG

FITCHBURG, Mass., July 12—Cincinnati Reds, led to world championship in 1919 by the late Patrick J. Moran, came to their former manager's home town today and participated in an impressive memorial program. The Reds defeated the Fitchburg semi-pros 9 to 4. Donohue, Rixey and Luque, who were with the Reds under the beloved Fitchburger, pleaded for the pitching assignment, which was split by Manager Hendricks. Each of the three pitched two innings. Mays finished the game. Rosey Ryan of the Braves twirled three innings for Fitchburg and was replaced by Frank McCrehan of Boston College, who did well against the leaguers.

Features were the fielding of Albert of Fitchburg and the hitting of Hohne and the Reds who got two homers, one over the centerfield score board. A capacity crowd jammed into Crocker Field. The game was preceded by an eulogy by David I. Walsh former United States senator, who lauded Manager Moran as a sports-

CARACTUS, 30 TO 1 SHOT, WINS FEATURE AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, July 12—A new name went to the Hawthorne course hall of fame when Caractus, trained and owned by C. W. Reidinger, of Lexington, Ky., won the Chicago derby Saturday over a distance of one and one quarter miles and paid the limit in the betting ring, 30 to 1. Jockey H. Thomas was likewise unfamiliar to track followers and even to the winning owner. King Nadi finished second, three lengths ahead of Silver Fox.

The famous Earl Sande aboard Arbitration from the A. C. Boswick stable, finished eighth. Dangerous, with C. Kummer up was sixth, thereby disappointing G. A. Cochran. Rothermel of J. N. Camden's outfit with D. Meagler up was fourth and Mark Master, handled by E. Scobie was last.

Kentucky Cardinal, owned by G. E. Croissant, ran fifth with J. Walace's Buttin In, seventh.

Shuffle Along, Sande up, won the August Belmont Memorial.

HOLLAND TO PLAY IN EUROPEAN CUP FINALS

Noordwijk, Holland, July 12—Holland has defeated India in the Davis cup tennis competition, and thus wins the right to play in the finals of the European zone. In the third day's play today Diemer Kool, of Holland, beat Dr. A. A. Fyzee, 7-5, 6-1.

Holland won the doubles yesterday. Kool paired with C. Van Lennep, defeating Fyzee and S. M. Hadi, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2. In singles competition the previous day Holland and India each won a match.

C. Van Lennep, of Holland, won a singles match today from Jagat Mohan Lal, of the Indian team, 6-2, 6-3, 7-5. This gave Holland four victories, while the Indian team has only one.

MARTIN TEAM BEATS WORCESTER TEAM IN TENTH

Worcester, July 12.—The J. B. Martin nine, of Norwich, Conn., defeated the Crompton & Knowles team at Recreation park, yesterday, 13 to 9, in 10 innings. In the second inning, Keyes was hit freely, the visitors getting four runs. Bergman relieved him and pitched well for the remainder of the game.

In the fifth, after Dumas had singled, Campbell drove the ball into the woods in deep center for a home run.

The score was tied at the end of the ninth with 9 runs for each team. In the tenth, after two were out, Connolly made an error on Decelles' grounder. A double by J. Murphy scored the latter. Two more runs followed and won the game for the visitors, as Crompton & Knowles failed to score.

Dumas and Malloy made brilliant catches in the outfield while F. M. Murphy pulled off a fast double play for the Norwich team after three runs had been scored. Score:

CLEVELAND POUNDS RED SOX HARD FOR EASY VICTORY

CLEVELAND, July 12.—(AP)—Cleveland made 18 hits off Ehmke and Neubauer here today and defeated Boston in the second game of the series, 13 to 2.

Myatt's drive bounded off Boone's knee in the eighth for a three-base hit. Time had to be taken out for the Boston outfielder.

BERESFORD AND HOOVER TO ROW FOR GOLD CUP

LONDON, July 12—(A. P.)—Jack Beresford, Jr., of England, and Walter M. Hoover, the American challenger for the Philadelphia gold cup, will meet tomorrow at Putney in what is expected to be a stirring contest for that trophy. A few days ago Beresford defeated Hoover for the diamond sculls, and he has, too, a distinct advantage over the American in that he is more familiar with the tidal waters of the Thames where the race for the gold cup will be rowed.

The men will face the starter at 6:15 p. m., and, win or lose, Beresford has declared his intention of returning the cup to the United States.

Beer as an aid to an athlete in training is advocated by Beresford, while Hoover holds views to the contrary. English athletes have always trained on beer, while Americans have avoided not only malt liquor but pastries, tea, coffee and tobacco during the days at the training table.

Beresford drinks three or four pints of beer or ale daily, as do most of the English scullers in training, and he eats what he pleases, and smokes occasionally. Hoover believes in abstinence and adheres faithfully to the diet as prescribed for athletes when he went to school. The American takes a light breakfast and then eats but one more meal, chiefly of fruit, vegetables eggs, cheese and whole wheat.

Both men are said to be in splendid condition for tomorrow's race.

BRASSCOS GET EVEN BREAK WITH HILLIES

WATERBURY, July 12.—(AP)—Harry Purcell's home run in the ninth inning to deep right field with two out broke up a pitchers' battle between Douglas and Touchstone and earned Pittsfield an even break with Waterbury in a double header here today. The score was 1 to 0 in the second game. In the opening engagement, the locals hit three Pittsfield pitchers hard to win by the score of 13 to 8. The all-around playing of Leary and the fielding of Collins featured both games. Scores:

WEST ENDS WIN TIGHT BATTLE FROM FITCHVILLE

The West Ends of Willimantic, in an 11-inning game, defeated the Fitchville team at Fitchville Sunday, 11 to 10. Errors by the local infield were responsible for the defeat. Standish, toeing the rubber for Fitchville, was hit hard and in the fourth inning made way for Cannonball Jones, the twirler who starred with Fitchville for two seasons. Jones was in rare form and allowed but five hits in eight innings. DiMarchi, pitching for the West Ends, was also in fine form, allowing but 11 hits in as many innings. The birthday of Chafetz for Fitchville and the fielding of A. Heller were features of the game. Next Sunday at Recreation park in Willimantic, Fitchville will continue the argument with the West Ends. Jones will pitch for Fitchville.

MURPHY'S GRAND CIRCUIT EARNINGS TOTAL $8,360

CLEVELAND, July 12.—(AP)—Thomas W. Murphy, Syracuse, was the leading money winner in the first two weeks of the 1925 Grand Circuit racing which ended yesterday at North Randall. Murphy's earnings totalled $8,360, which was $1,190 more than that of Walter Fox, Goshen, N. Y. Through the three victories of Favonia, undefeated this year, Fred Edman, Memphis, was third with $4,575. Marvin Childs, Omaha, was fourth with $4,150. Favonia's victories included the Shaw and Geers stakes.

PENNANT RACES REMAIN CLOSE AS TEAMS REACH HALFWAY MARK

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP)—Comparative calm prevailed tonight along the baseball fronts after three weeks of desperate tugging at the latch-strings of first division posts with the sixteen clubs at the half-way mark.

The mid-season brush of Pittsburgh and New York in the National was one of the two mild flurries last week. Rain intervened twice to prevent the Giants from taking two tilts out of three from the corsairs and five out of seven in the week's play the champions were able to keep close to the Pirate craft.

The second ripple was tossed up by St. Louis teams, which set sail for third place in both circuits. The steady pull of the Cardinals in the National under the crippled home run leader, Rogers Hornsby, carried the club to the very door of the unsteady Robins, who tripped five times in six starts.

The Browns made even more marked progress in the American, flipping New York and Washington for six triumphs to climb within a game and a half of Detroit in fourth place and to within two games of Chicago third. Only a continuation of their smart clip by the Tigers at the expense of Boston and Philadelphia kept the Sisler entry out of the first division.

The lagging Athletics suffered at the hands of steady pitching by the Indians and retired from the shadow of the Cleveland wigwams only to face a battery of Detroit hurling arms which had furnished sensational performances in abundance against the Red Sox first place. Washington consequently found it necessary merely to break even during the week to become more firmly fortified at the pinnacle.

Baffling of Philadelphia batters brought its reward for Cleveland in a return to sixth place as the drifting Yankees slipped back in spite of frequent entries of New York home runs in the scoring books. Babe Ruth worked against the Yankee tide with improved clouting that included its shares of home runs, while Bob Meusel collected his twenty-first circuit drive of the season to tie Gabby Harnett of the Chicago Cubs for second place in the individual race of both leagues.

Chicago teams put in a losing week, in spite of the fact that the White Sox gave the Senators sufficient trouble to check them and retain third place. The Cubs made a bid for better days by turning over to the veteran shortstop Rabbit Maranville, the reins formerly held by Killifer.
